Month	Total	By the State	From Federal Funds
January, 1940	$17,850,000	$8,211,000	$9,639,000
May, 1940	18,787,000	7,889,000	10,897,000
December, 1940	16,372,000	6,263,000	10,109,000

None of the above expenditures by the state include administration costs.

The total amount expended monthly since a year ago has been reduced only 6%, while the Federal government's contribution has increased by more than 10%.

What happens to the charge that the Federal government has fallen down in the last year. I think these figures are a complete answer.

In conclusion I suggest that an adequate budget, prepared on an honest and frank recognition of governmental obligations requires that $146,400,000 or $157,200,000 be provided for.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Washington will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, yesterday I was very much impressed with the fine speech made by the gentleman from Clinton, Senator Stevenson; it was indeed constructive and wholesome. It touched upon a subject that should be of extreme interest to every loyal citizen of Pennsylvania.

I was likewise very much interested, Mr. President, in the discussion of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Shapiro, this morning. I want to say a few words in addition to what they have already said on this subject, which are not in any sense political.

I have always viewed relief as a canker on the body politic and I listened with much attention yesterday to the discussion in the Public Welfare Committee carried on by the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and Mr. Russell, and from all the information submitted there, including the data and all the figures, the astonishing thing to me was this, that relief in Pennsylvania is now considered by the department as permanent.

In other words, as the gentleman from Philadelphia, has already said, Mr. Russell stated that hereafter we must expend in Pennsylvania at least $4,300,000 monthly.

Mr. President, when relief began in Pennsylvania it was supposed to be temporary but now we find that it is to be with Pennsylvania perpetually. I have always maintained that relief is inconsistent with a democratic form of government—the more you give to people the less independence the people have and a democracy is based on independence among the people and there is nothing in my humble opinion that will tend to destroy our democratic form of government more than relief.

It is prevalent in Pennsylvania today and also in the nation that people are beginning to believe that the government will keep them, and that is destroying the very essentials of our free form of government. Independence in the people is essential to the prepetuation of our free form of government.

Mr. President, the youth of today believe that they need not take care of the future, that the government will take care of their future, and as a result many of our people are growing up weak, not only physically but otherwise, and I sincerely hope that the time will come when we can wipe out relief entirely in Pennsylvania and the nation and put our people back into the old channel where individual effort counts for everything, and in that connection, Mr. President, I wish to read from one of our Pittsburgh papers one of the finest editorials I have seen in many years. This emanates from the Sun Telegraph of Pittsburgh of the issue of Monday, February 17, 1941 and it is headed "Lesson for Modern American Youth."

"LESSON FOR MODERN AMERICAN YOUTH

"President George Barton Cutten, of Colgate University, gave interesting emphasis to a recent speech on 'The Role of Youth in the Defense of Democracy' by relating a little-known fact about the early history of America.

" 'There were two bands of Pilgrims which came to America,' he explained, 'both, so far as we can ascertain, of equal character and ability.

" 'One landed in a West India island where everything was easy and comfortable, and was never heard of afterward so far as influencing its time or environment.

" 'The other landed on an inhospitable shore, was met by savage Indians and was forced to obtain sustenance from a none too fertile land.

" 'The latter became the spiritual and economic foundation of our nation and of our democracy.'

"Dr. Cutten obviously told this story in order to make the point that modern American youth will make a more valuable contribution to democracy if it is taught initiative and self-reliance than if it is encouraged to rely on an indulgent government and social system to fix its place in the national life.

"In other words, he believes that conditions of life have not changed very much, and that people put under the hard necessity of providing for themselves are much more likely to have habits of industry and thrift and resourcefulness than people made soft by easy living.

"Now Dr. Cutten probably does not intend to say American youth should be raised in an altogether Spartan manner, being thrown out on the world at any early age to fend for itself entirely, and either survive or die in accordance with its instincts and talents.

"But what he does clearly mean, and correctly, is that in order to always have an intelligent, industrious and patriotic young generation of Americans coming up to replace older generations we must adhere closely to the practice of principles of American life and faith that made and kept us an intelligent, industrious and patriotic nation for more than a century and a half.

"He does not want youth raised in an economic environment which promises to 'shower them with everything and demand of them nothing, impress upon them that the country owes them a living . . . so that they will be encouraged to become irresponsible and indifferent.'

"He particularly does not want American youth taught a philosophy of 'taking away the earnings of the industrious and the efficient and giving them to the lazy and the incompetent.'

"For that is a false and vicious philosophy, unrelated to any of the fruitful accomplishments of Americans in the past, and wholly unidentifiable with the liberties and rights we enjoy as a heritage from our democratic American past.

" 'Let us publish abroad to the youth of the land,' says Dr. Cutten, 'that success will not be a signal for misrepresentation, abuse and persecution, but that on the successful our richest gifts will be bestowed . . .

" 'If given the assurance of unhampered opportunity for initiative and industry, our youth would respond by unbounded loyalty.'

"Certainly it was the opportunity for industrious and resourceful living which made the Pilgrim Fathers of Plymouth colony survive and thrive, and not just the hard necessity of their environment.

"But as Dr. Cutten plainly indicates and properly warns, it is dangerous and disastrous to instill in American youth today the malicious and false doctrine that there is neither need for industry nor survival of opportunity in this land.

"It is historically sound and morally sound and historically factual AMERICANISM which Dr. Cutten would have youth taught in the United States, today and tomorrow as it has been in our productive past.

"Let this be done by all educators and in all schools, lest there ultimately be no democracy to defend in America, let alone a 'role for youth' in the defense of our free institutions."

Mr. President, that is my philosophy and I believe that that philosophy can not survive where a great portion of our people depend on relief and the dole.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the discussions of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and also the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, and which I believe were conducted under the plea of personal privilege, and I will ask for myself the same privilege in order to make some observations thereon.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will proceed.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Mr. President, with what the Senator from Washington has said I am in full accord. The Senator from Washington has, I think, the correct viewpoint of the American philosophies of life, so that it is always a great pleasure for me to hear him present them and I think in directing attention to the effect of relief on the character on the recipient and the way in which it may make him lose his American type of character, I believe the Senator from Washington has rendered a distinct service. I am glad the editorial from which the Senator read will be printed in the Journal.

However, Mr. President, when it comes to the statement made by the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, I am bound to say it seems to me there is a great distinction in the philosophy of life between that of Governor James and that of Senator Shapiro. I am very free to acknowledge that the philosophy of Governor James seems to me to be more correct than that advanced by the Senator from Philadelphia.

Mr. President, when Governor James was inaugurated into office I imagine the amount of money spent for relief in Pennsylvania was about ten or eleven million dollars a month, and that I think is borne out by the figures quoted by the Senator from Philadelphia.

It seems to me, Mr. President, with the government of this state interested in the welfare of its workers, the first thing to be done was to encourage business and to provide that business should expand and thus take up the slack of unemployment. That was the reason for the creation of the Department of Commerce; that was the reason for a number of suggestions which the Governor made, and as a result month after month there has been a decline in Pennsylvania's share for relief, until from the beginning of his administration when expenditures were at the rate of eleven million dollars a month, that has decreased so that in December, according to Mr. Shapiro's own figures, seven million dollars a month were required.

Eleven to seven in two years, Mr. President. Continue that same line of development and in the next biennium we would certainly get down to five millions of dollars a month or less. In other words, Mr. President, if the same development continues that has continued for the past two years the budget itself will be amply justified.

Mr. President, there are items which the Senator from Philadelphia mentioned to which I think attention should be directed. It is true what we call categorical relief is not likely to decrease, that is, old age assistance, mothers with dependent children, pensions for the blind. Those have become more or less fixed in our system of relief and on that I expect the figures presented by the gentleman from Philadelphia, adding up the unemployables, would probably amount to $4,300,000 a month, and it seems to me that amount of money, $4,300,000 a month, ought not to be provided in this state on a system of temporary taxation but that those taxes ought to be permanent, ought to be placed on such a basis that they become a regular portion of the state's revenues.

As to a comparison of the philosophies of the Governor and those of the gentleman from Philadelphia, I think the policy of the Governor is correct, in trying to pass the business revival on. Let us take advantage of that, let us encourage it as much as we can in the hope that eventually every relief recipient will have an opportunity to engage in work for himself.

Mr. President, if that is fulfilled it fulfills the budget and if it is not fulfilled then there will be a Special Session of the Legislature called and if a Special Session is called it is worthwhile for us to remember there have been Special Sessions in Pennsylvania in every biennium for the last five, to deal with that subject or something similar to it.

Mr. President, I think we should approach this problem in a broad and statesmanlike manner.

In all our counties we are bound to recognize there has been tremendous expansion in opportunities for the workers. In my own county of Montgomery we have Brewster Aviation establishing a plant at Hatboro. There has been great expansion in plants in Pottstown and recently I was delighted to learn that practically everyone who had been on relief in Pottstown had been taken off relief and had found jobs.

We are bound to recognize also the Governor's budget message is very statesmanlike in the attention it directs to vocational training, and that there is the possibility of taking some of those whom we call unemployable and giving them training that will fit them for employment, if they are capable in the way of physical capacity and mentality, so that they will be taken off relief. That seems to me to be clear, Mr. President.

For those who fall within what we call the permanent categories of relief we ought to do everything we can to provide assistance but that should not in any way interfere with providing opportunities for those capable of working.

Now, Mr. President, that, I think, is the philosophy of the Governor and I think it is a sound philosophy; I think it will make a lot better American citizens than this other philosophy, and as far as the figures quoted by the gentleman from Philadelphia are concerned I should like to call his attention to the fact that when we met two years ago the relief cost in Pennsylvania was approximately ten million dollars a month and we at that time appropriated $121,000,000 and, Mr. President, the proposition is now that we shall appropriate the same figure when relief is down to seven million dollars a month. Under the circumstances it does not seem to me the attack upon the budget the Senator has made is relevant.

Mr. President, if I have to choose between the philosophy of Arthur H. James and the philosophy of Harry Shapiro in governing the State of Pennsylvania I am for the philosophy of Arthur H. James. I believe emphatically in encouraging business and opportunity, I believe in seeing to it those who can not get work at the present time are given the training necessary in order to fit them for the work, and my thought would be in all of our legislation we should bear in mind what the Senator from Washington has said concerning the tremendous importance of developing American character and I believe under the philosophy of Arthur H. James we will come nearer than under the philosophy suggested by Harry Shapiro.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, my old professor I believe is confusing his philosophy of life with that of the Governor. I am frank to say I do not know what is the philosophy of the Governor but taking from his speeches and his remarks what his philosophy of government is I am frank to say I am perfectly satisfied to have my old professor agree with the Governor on his philosophy of government, but I must say I can not agree with that philosophy.

Mr. President, I can not agree with any philosophy of any government or any governor who refuses to give information to Senators and members of the Legislature, who have the problem of carrying out these suggested governmental functions, when that Governor does not consult the members of the Legislature on whom he casts the burden of seeing to it the suggestions he makes are carried out; that is one disagreement I have with Governor James. I say this without any information as to his personal philosophies but I say the Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania never asks or seeks our advice or consent, except to go through the form of asking us to advise and consent on the matter of confirmations and he does that because the Constitution says he must do so, and even then he often disregards our advice if we do not agree with him and makes the appointments after we adjourn.

Mr. President, I repeat remarks I have made previously, and I do that only for the purpose of clarifying the issue. I say we are a house divided into two parts, as far as we are concerned, the Governor and the Legislature, and instead of working together we work apart, none of us know what is in the mind of the Governor as far as governmental functions are concerned and the Governor does not know what is in the minds of the membership of the Senate and the House.

Mr. President, with that philosophy of government I am in absolute disagreement and I am perfectly satisfied if the gentleman from Montgomery wants to take his stand with that of the Governor. I do, however, Mr. President, pay homage and credit to his intelligence, ability and understanding and I say respectfully to him I do not believe he really means it.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, may I ask the Senator from Philadelphia if when he refers to intelligence he is referring to the Governor or to Edmonds.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, when I speak of intelligence or brains in this administration I am referring to Senator Edmonds.

I call attention, Mr. President, to the fact that my objections to the philosophy of government of the Governor (my disagreement with the Governor) lies in the fact that he tells the Legislature in the Special Session we need $71,000,000 for relief when he knew and had been informed it would take $92,000,000 to carry on relief.

Mr. President, I take objection to the philosophy of the Governor, who, when he has had experience of four or five months previous, with figures that show relief would cost $198,000,000 and he has been so informed by the man he placed in charge of that, then he tells the Senate he will appropriate $129,000,000, and then changes that to $121,000,000.

I should like to say, Mr. President, I agree with what the gentleman from Washington and the gentleman from Montgomery have said—we must not take a paternalistic attitude toward our citizens, but we must assume responsibility for those who do not want us to be paternalistic but who do want a job and who do want to eat and are willing to work for it. Mr. President, I do not agree with any philosophy of government which will deny them that.

Mr. President, there is a difference between the philosophy of life the gentleman from Washington has iterated and reiterated on the floor of this Senate. I have the same philosophy of relief but the trouble is, Mr. President, the philosophy of our government which has come from the executive department is one of words and phrases, as I pointed out right at the beginning, but which the gentleman from Montgomery seems to have ignored, and that it does not help the situation to say the total relief expenditures have gone down about a million and a half dollars in the last year when as a matter of fact they have not gone down at all.

That does not help the situation, Mr. President, and it is beclouding the issue and telling an untruth. The gentleman from Montgomery said relief has been reduced from eleven million dollars to seven million dollars a month. That is not a fact. Relief has been reduced from a fluctuating amount of around ten on eleven million dollars a month to a fluctuating amount of between nine and ten million dollars, but that has been because, as I have pointed out, of the shifting in the relief load; instead of direct relief bearing the burden of $9,800,000, it now bears a burden of $7,200,000, or a difference of a million and a half dollars, which has been shifted to old age assistance and mother's assistance and if you put back into the general relief fund the money taken out for old age assistance and mother's assistance you will get $8,800,000 as your normal expenditure, and if you add to that eight per cent additional for administration expenses, you will have approximately the same figure.

Mr. President, in March of 1939 the cost of old age pension was $727,000 and in December of 1940 the old age pension cost was $1,100,000, and the same is true with respect to the mother's assistance fund. You will find the mother's assistance fund has gone up from $650,000 in the same period to over $1,100,000 in December, and there you have the shifting of over a million and a half dollars from one pocket to the other—the two pockets have been divided and that is the reason for the difference of a million and a half dollars a month in the relief program in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, when the gentleman from Montgomery says in the face of the facts that we only expended $120,000,000 in the 1939 budget, he forgets what the Governor provided in the budget bore no relationship to the necessities at all, because as I pointed out even two years ago, in 1939, I wrote a budget for the Governor then, when I said that he could take the estimated income, deduct from that the expenses and what is left would be for relief, and I assumed $120,000,000 would be the amount, and that is what happened.

Mr. President, that was no stroke of genius; that was an undertsanding of the philosophy of government, not of life, because the Governor could estimate the amount of revenue and he knew what could be provided for relief and at the same time keep taxes down.

Mr. President, I could have shown the Governor he was wrong, that he needed $198,000,000 to provide adequate relief because with the kind of world we live in today, Mr. President, unless democracy is worth fighting for nobody will fight for it but they will fight against it, unless we give these men who are anxious and willing to work the protection, some assurance they have something to look forward to, all the laws you pass could not help, they would not be worth the time it would take to write them.

That may be his philosophy of government but I say it is not the philosophy of life, and it is certain it is not a practical way because it takes away the responsibilities of the Legislature.

Mr. President, I have no patience with the statement the Governor has a philosophy of life because if he has a philosophy of life and if it is reflected in his philosophy of government, then I frankly say I disagree with his philosophy of life. I can only guess at his philosophy of life. I can say, however, I am perfectly willing to admit if the Governor of Pennsylvania, as an individual were called upon—and I say this in a charitable manner—and he were free from political speeches, he would probably react just as well as I would and if he would only bring that into his philosophy of government I would have no quarrel whatsoever.

There has been no real revival, I say to the gentleman from Montgomery, there has been no revival in business; I believe the gentleman will remember that Mr. Russell said so. He said we have not yet felt a real revival in business—he said despite the men working in the defense program we have not as yet felt a real revival in business, and yet the Governor, instead of making that statement as Mr. Russell did, he said in the speech from which I quoted those reductions that have occurred have been before we felt them due to the defense program, and there were no real deductions in the last twelve months.

Mr. President, in the twelve months of 1940 the only reduction was from $17,500,000 to $16,000,000—a reduction of $1,500,000 in the total expenses—and I do not call that a real reduction, and when the Governor presents a program which on its face shows it is made not to meet the obligations of the government but is made to meet the situation, then I protest. I have no sympathy for that kind of governmental philosophy, and I make the additional charge that the people who prepared that budget, who helped to prepare that budget, furnished information from which the Governor knows that his income will be in excess of his estimates, and the record will show that charge to be true, as it has shown with some others I have made that have been proven to be true.

Mr. President, I have examined the budget and I was prepared on the information contained to make some statements which I know will be borne out, but I prefer the method I have adopted, and I am doing it deliberately, because I am hoping that there has been a change in this Senate to the extent that no Governor from now on will be able to hand his budget to a member of the Senate and say, "that is what I want," he will not be able to do that from now on, because I am sure, and I say this to you with no thought of flattery, but from my experience with the gentlemen on the other side I believe they will be very cautious with all kinds of legislation from now on, and I am very happy to see that.

I think the day has passed, Mr. President, when any man will be able to get up on the floor of this Senate and say no speech ever changed a vote or defeated a bill. I think I have seen the signs and I am glad the gentleman from Montgomery brought out the points on which he differs with me.

Mr. President, basically the whole difficulty between the Governor and the Legislators, I think, and that includes myself, is the fact that the Governor will not be frank, I do not think I breach any confidence when I say I went to the Governor's office in the company of the state chairman of the Democratic Party and I might say, in answer to what the gentleman from Montgomery has said, I went into that conference with an open mind, because before I went I said to members of my party, "If I go and if the Governor says very well, these are the situations which confront me, if you do not agree with my plan, which is as follows, suggest another plan," and in that event I proposed to be honest and frank and suggest a plan, no matter what it might have meant politically and when I was through I was told by my colleagues that was certainly satisfactory and agreeable and when I went in there, as a member of the Senate, I was told when I asked the Governor what problem there was as to the fiscal affairs of the state, he said, first that he would cover that in his budget and, secondly, that was confidential, and I then ventured the suggestion I knew of no law of morals or morale which made the fiscal affairs of the state a matter of confidence so that the Governor could not disclose them to a member of the Legislature, and the Governor told me he had not even consulted with his own people and I suggested that I did not think that was very wise. I am frank to say he is a very sociable person, but, Mr. President, I did not go in there for that purpose; I went in there in my capacity as a member of my party and as a member of the Senate and I thought I should be able to ask him if he had information which showed something must be done.

Mr. President, I do not think I am alone in that situation. The records before us show the Republican members of the party have not been consulted any more than the Democrats have been consulted, and, Mr. President, that also is not my philosophy of government.

I do not think it is fair, what happened yesterday, from a Governor who knew he would require $21,000,000 more for relief, but he seems to protect himself against that knowledge, in his budget, by saying he will recommend $14,500,000, it may be it will be necessary to have another five million dollars and if that is so you will have to take it from a cushion—he protected himself against that.

Mr. President, that was not frankness, when we were asked to pass a law in an hour's time which will give the right to suspend contributions to the Sinking Fund Veterans' Bonds.

I might also say, Mr. President, I spent the lunch hour trying to find out what the implications of that were and I think the Republican members of this Senate will give me credit when I say I looked at it honestly; I will say I give them credit for the fact they looked at it honestly.

Is that the way to run a government, to pass a law in ten minutes time, about a matter which could have been brought to our attention four weeks ago? Is that a philosophy of government which tends to the best interests of our people? I do not think so and is there anyone who can gainsay me when I say that is wrong? Am I wrong in protesting against that? As I said when I started out, you might say there is a tinge of politics in my conclusions, but the figures and the inferences are not politics.

Mr. President, how could the Governor of any Commonwealth say to us, "All I need is five million dollars a month for relief," in the face of something which is horrifying—I do not want to gloss it over—when we know there is a fixed load of $4,300,000, which leaves one hundred thousand cases a month to be cared for. It is a startling fad—something we did not know and only found out by a lot of effort which should have been avoided and made unnecessary, and I believe there are many members of the Senate who did not know it. All you had to do was to take the trouble to go over the figures and then of course you may say I derived my confirmation from Mr. Russell, but he did not tell me anything new.

This is a serious situation, Mr. President. There has not been a single statement on the relief question, where the figures involved have come from the executive department, that has been fair and honest and open with sufficient fairness and honesty to permit us to deal with the subject intelligently, and I am prepared to say this, Mr. President, when the intelligent figures come, when an honest and fair and frank and open statement from the Governor is made about what the situation is, and what it demands, I am ready to go along with that on a non-political basis, on any reasonable basis, but I will not go along blindly and I refuse to be silenced when I feel I am not being told the truth.

That is my philosophy of government, Mr. President.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, there are two or three things I would like to say in response to the statement of the Senator from Philadelphia and I hope this does not inspire a third outburst of oratory on the part of the Senator from Philadelphia.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will proceed.

Mr. EDMONDS. In the first place, Mr. President, in regard to the speech of the gentleman from Philadelphia, I might say I read in Time Magazine two weeks ago a review of Hitler's speech on his eighth anniversary.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, do not class me with Hitler.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I do not want to make such a comparison but there was one sentence in that speech which reminded me very much of the speech of the speech of the Senator from Philadelphia—it said the speech commenced historically but concluded hysterically. It seems to me that is the great danger sometimes.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am about to make a reply. I think this is a good time to make a reply.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I have not finished. The point I want to make, Mr. President, is that there is a difference between the statements made by the Governor and those just made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, when he said the Governor will not be able to run relief on five million dollars a month within the next two years. The Governor says we will make the effort. There is no proposition to reduce the amount of relief, there is no proposition to reduce the standard of relief, but the question is how soon will the pick-up of industry out of the defense program be felt in Pennsylvania?

The Governor says he regards it as wisdom to appropriate this limited sum in the hope and belief the time will come when the pick-up in industry will provide real opportunities for these workers and my feeling is that is reasonable on the Governor's part and I do not think it deserves the criticism that has been directed against it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I want to say that is exactly the trouble with the relief problem, the Governor has taken it as a joke, the same as the gentleman from Montgomery when in his reply he quoted somebody as saying Hitler's speech started historically and ended hysterically.

I am frank to say, Mr. President, it has been difficult for me to compose myself to discuss this matter dispassionately but now I know exactly what is going on I want to say to the members on this side of the house and also those on the other side of the house, as to the implications of the gentleman from Montgomery, I have tried not to be hysterical, I have tried calmly and dispassionately to discuss this matter and I hope we will get results, but I do not think making wisecracks on the relief situation is a very helpful way of meeting the problem.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I had not intended to speak on this subject, but speaking of relief naturally brings me into the picture somewhat. When I hear some of my colleagues speak on the subject of relief, being a permanent affair, or whether or not it might be discontinued, I say, Mr. President, I believe we must all make up our minds definitely once and for all relief is here to stay. In that connection I must agree with Mr. Russell. We have the problem of aged people today more than we had ten or fifteen years ago. In this Commonwealth according to the latest figures there are 952,262 persons above the age of sixty, who today receive some form of relief. That group of people will never be able to take up work. Let's not kid ourselves or try to kid the public.

Mr. President, I am satisfied once a man has reached the age of sixty never again will he have the opportunity of obtaining gainful employment. What are we doing about it? We must make up our minds they must be taken care of. Some people feel this government owes them a living.

Why today, Mr. President, if you go down to our mines and to our mining towns, to our factories, and a streak of gray hair is in your heads, you are too old, they have no use for you. Think of the many widows, the many men up in that bracket who never again, as I said, will gain gainful employment, so we must make up our minds we must feed them, whether we like it or not.

There is no thought in my mind of ever dispensing with that problem, so Mr. President, I want to say the only remarks I have heard made on this floor along those lines were made by my colleague from Blair in the early stages of this session when he presented a resolution memorializing Congress, encouraging the enactment of some type of national old age pension, because those aged persons must be cared for and every state in the union is talking about pensions. Why? Because they know that old man or woman will never again be able to secure gainful employment. I am sorry to say herein this Commonwealth I hear very little from my colleagues along those lines. But they must make up their minds sooner or later something must be done.

We in this Commonwealth have failed to take advantage of the money given us by the federal government because we have on the statute books today, if we meet the requirements of old age assistance the first twenty dollars will be paid by the federal government and we shall pay the last twenty. Have we taken advantage of that? No. Why not? Because so many of us believe we owe the old people nothing, they are peddling for themselves.

I have offered a bill, Mr. President, it is not a pension bill because I fully realize our Constitution does not provide for a pension, but I am fully aware of the fact that we can pay assistance. I have offered a bill to take care of the aged—sixty at sixty. All of my colleagues laugh at it and think it is a joke, but, gentlemen, before this session is over you will hear plenty about it. Something must be done to take care of the men who can not take care of themselves and we here have been elected to do that job, and I trust my colleagues will keep that in mind and not laugh here with the thought in mind we owe nothing to the aged.

Mr. President, do not forget they are the ones that made this Commonwealth, our fathers and forefathers, they are the ones who settled, who built our beautiful communities, our schools, and churches, and made this Commonwealth what it is today, and today, because they are old and feeble and crippled, sick, we can not say to them, take care of yourself. Even to those who are receiving old age assistance, above the age of sixty-five, we say to them now we shall take from you what you have earned. We compel them to assign their worldly goods for the meager pittance we give them.

I read here from the report as presented by Mr. Russell with reference to the bond I spoke about the other afternoon. I trust you have all read it. What does it say? Mr. Russell states in that report that out of every fourteen persons who receive relief but one is the owner of real estate and for that reason he states we shall make that person sign a bond to make sure we have an encumbered home.

Mr. President, thirteen people walk up and secure old age assistance, widow's assistance or direct relief, but the fourteenth man walks up and he pays for it.

What are we doing? We are breeding into our youth relief. We are telling our youth today do not be independent, do not do as your father has done, take no part in civic affairs or social affairs and above all do not build a home. If you do and fall in the same category as your parents did we shall take that home from you.

So, Mr. President, we are encouraging youth today to be drones, to do nothing to better their lives, because we give them no encouragement, we hang up a sign, If you get a home we will take it from you.

So, gentlemen, that is the problem facing us. It is not only my problem, it is the problem of all of us, and I am happy to say the attitudes of some of my colleagues have been very liberal in their views in private conversation; they have told me they are willing to sit down to try to work something out. Mr. President, I am willing to sit down and try to meet the problem but let us make up our minds that relief is here to stay and in our days it will never be abolished.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think if the founders of our nation, that we see in the murals on the walls before us and have seen before us every session we have sat here, could come to life, I think they would react and exhibit enthusiasm that for once in many decades this body is struggling desperately to rise out of a state of politics toward a far more sublime statesmanlike atmosphere.

Mr. President, I am enthused myself, after having been in this body for about seven years, that we are here today struggling to lift ourselves to a level of at least embryonic statesmanship to face these very serious problems that have been discussed.

We must all agree, Mr. President, regardless of what our political connections might be, that the philosophy so ably enunciated by the gentleman from Washington in a statesmanship manner on the floor of the Senate many times is a philosophy that we ought to tie our activities to. There ought to be no reservation of mind on that particular point, but it is not the relief, the giving of the public dole that is the canker on the political structure of our State today, in my view of this problem.

Mr. President, I honestly and sincerely believe the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, and the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, and quite a number of others in this body some sessions back struggled desperately to place their fingers upon the real canker. It is not the giving of the dole that is the canker. It is not the mass down below that is the canker, but if we do view this problem in a statesmanlike manner then I say we ought to brush aside generalities and reach right into the thing that does give this relief set-up the aspect of a canker on our political body.

Mr. President, we can easily diagnose the problem, as other problems are diagnosed, whether medical, arithmetrical or otherwise. The thing we must try to discover is the element or the condition that keeps this relief dole and this public dole so attached to the activities of our government.

I would diagnose it by trying to find out who is benefited by perpetuating this public dole and who is not benefited if it is taken away.

Truly the mass below is not to be blamed if they are not here in the halls of the General Assembly to promulgate those enactments that provide for the public dole, but, Mr. President, isn't it reasonable to look for the cause of this in those elements, those agencies that are here immediately connected with our activities in these legislative halls?

I say that to the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, and to quite a number of others in this body struggling desperately to get their fingers on the cause of the canker, but his efforts as well as the efforts of others were thwarted by more powerful influences than the gentleman from Somerset and the others were able to muster.

Mr. President, when we analyze this relief problem here we find attached to our governmental agencies is an element of men and women who, if this public dole is abolished, will themselves be greatly inconvenienced and will lose money and jobs that carry some very magnificent salaries and if we are now arisen from the stench of political mire and are up into at least the twilight air of statesmanship, there are members of this Senate who will have to honestly and conscientiously admit that in the sessions of the past when we have been struggling with this relief matter a most powerful pressure upon this body has been exercised by that element that we have repeatedly called the trained professional welfare workers. Mr. President, that element is an element that stands to lose the most if we proceed in a statesmanlike manner to tackle the problem of the public dole.

I tell you sincerely that the spirit that imbued the founders of the nation is still present here among us. There is not one within the sound of my voice who, if he had a loaf of bread and his neighbor was without bread, would not share that loaf of bread with his neighbor and I say, Mr. President, and tell you sincerely I believe if we were to abolish the public dole today there would not be a single man, woman or child that would go without food because we have food and plenty of it and there is no neighbor that would permit his neighbor to go without food, but the present situation is such that if the neighbor comes and says I am hungry, I have no bread today, your answer is why don't you go down to the relief office.

Mr. President, we have developed a mental attitude that here is an agency established for that particular purpose and that it is not now necessary for that magnificent spirit that imbued our ancestors to continue to function—here we have now a public dole and it is not necessary for me to share my loaf of bread with my neighbor.

Mr. President, I say to you sincerely, and I believe that, if the public dole were abolished tomorrow not a single American man, woman or child would starve in this United States of America.

Mr. President, as I have stated, I subscribe to the philosophy of the gentleman from Washington and the gentleman from Montgomery fully but I do wish to at least comment on the—I will not say defect—that the chief executives of this Commonwealth, and I am not going to make any distinction between them because I think they have all been affected when it comes to political philosophy, whether they be Democrats or Republicans—we find either wholesomely or unwholesomely, and I think unwholesomely, a most shocking fact present in our political structure, not national structure let us say, but in all our activities of life.

Mr. President, there seems to have developed here in this Commonwealth and this nation a double state of morality, a double philosophy, that it is absolutely immoral for a man to do a certain thing on the street in his social connections with his neighbor but then it is perfectly alright for him to do that same thing in his political activities. That was not the philosophy of the founders of this nation. They had but one standard of morality. That standard of morality held true beyond any political life, beyond any social life, or beyond any industrial life.

Mr. President, I have repeatedly in talks throughout this Commonwealth illustrated the point thus: the trouble with us today is we have too many men and women who profess this Christianity, who profess this morality, who go to the Temples of God on Sunday to proclaim that great philosophy of the founders and their belief in that God, they listen to it, but when they come out the door they leave that philosophy there, they do not take it with them down to their business lives and practical lives.

Mr. President, I do not agree with the gentleman from Montgomery, that the present chief executive of this Commonwealth is fully imbued with the philosophy so ably and statesmanlikely enunciated by the gentleman from Washington.

He readily takes the position that we must effect economy, that this unchecked spree of spending must stop here in the State. That is a proper philosophy to apply to our state, but where does he stand in the application of that same philosophy to our federal government?

When he insists that philosophy is a proper philosophy for our state then, if we are in a spirit of statesmanship, we must insist that that same philosophy be applied to the activities by the state and by our Federal Government, and I can not understand the Governor's insistance that the Federal Government must contribute more and more to meet this public dole in this state, if we are satisfied the public dole is a canker, then we must also adopt that same standard of philosophy with relation to our Federal Government.

I think this too, Mr. President, if we analyze that road that has led to so many dictatorships in this world today we will find the beginning of that pathway strewed with the public dole, the same as we are strewing the pathway here in America. And no dictatorship can exist if the mass who produce, who deliver, who sell the produce, the food they produce, the necessities of life, says there shall be no dictatorship.

You may ask the question why so many dictatorships are in the world today. Because they who have sought dictatorial power have strewed the pathway on those matters, have taken away from them the necessity of thinking about building up; they have caused to die in the minds of the mass below them that great wisdom that they are the government, that they own the government and not that the government owns them.

You will find that one public dole after another leads to one usurpation of power after another, until finally you have the mass probably sincerely believing the fellow, the man who has usurped to his clutches all the powers of government, to the destruction of the form of government we believe in here in America.

Mr. President, I wish to conclude with this statement, I honestly believe we can solve this public dole in this state only if we are able to bring under subjugation this element of our population which is interested in continuing this public dole, not for the elevation of the morale and the souls of the mass below, but who are more interested, as has been repeatedly shown by past sessions, they are interested in the building up of this new profession and of securing to themselves the right to administer this dole and to provide for themselves these jobs, as has been illustrated in the percentages stated by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, showing an increase from seven to nine per cent of the total amount appropriated for administrative purposes. That is where we are going to find it, in those cartilages that are holding this canker firmly against the agencies of our government here in this state.

RECESS

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 12:00 o'clock noon.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. WADE, from the Committee on Elections, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 23, entitled:

An Act to amend subsections (a) and (f) of section one thousand three, subsection (b) of section one thousand one hundred seven, subsection (h) of section one thousand one hundred ten, subsection (c) of section one thousand two hundred fifteen, and subsection (d) of section one thousand two hundred sixteen, and to further amend section one thousand two hundred twenty-three of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333), entitled "An act concerning elections, including general, municipal, special and primary elections, the nomination of candidates, primary and election expenses and election contests; creating and defining membership of county boards of elections; imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, courts, county boards of elections, county commissioners; imposing penalties for violation of the act, and codifying, revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections," by eliminating the right of electors to vote a straight party ballot by one mark or operation.

Mr. WADE. Mr. President, I have been directed by the Committee on Elections to report out a bill, Senate Bill No. 23, and to make the statement to the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and others who might be interested in this bill that if the committee wants to make a further study it will ask that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Elections after it has had two readings.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, if the Senate has time I would like to read a short statement. We listened early this week to a statement read by the gentleman from Warren, Dr. Chapman, relative to the defense industries and it impressed me that the inference was drawn that organized labor was not doing its part in seeing to it that defense was properly carried forward.

Mr. President, I have here a statement sent to me at my request by President William Green, from the American Federation of Labor, and in order that the issue might not be misconstrued, I have asked for and received permission to read into the record this statement.

"Statement Adopted by the Executive Council,
American Federation of Labor,
Miami, Florida, February 11, 1941.

'Organized labor is unalterably opposed to anti-strike or compulsory arbitration legislation in any form whatsoever. Labor has always regarded compulsory work or service as violative of our cherished liberties and in direct violation of the Thirteenth Amendment to the Constitution. The question of forced labor was settled by the Civil War and should not be revived at this time.

"The American Federation of Labor is in full agreement with the present policy of our Government in providing adequate defense for this country, in safeguarding the rights and liberties of our neighbors in the Western Hemisphere, and in assisting Great Britain and her allies to withstand the aggression of the totalitarian powers and thus defending the principles and ideals of human rights, freedom and of democracy.

"The American Federation of Labor has proven its loyalty and patriotism on more than one occasion. In previous emergencies, whether in time of peace or war, the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated unions have always been found ready and willing to aid our Government in its defense and in the promotion of the welfare and well-being of our people. There is no reason to question their loyalty on this occasion and in this emergency.

"We regret that there is, as in the last war, a movement on foot, to limit, curtail and destroy established and fundamental rights of the workers in this country. Opponents of organized labor see in this emergency an opportunity to tear down rights acquired by organized labor in struggles over the years and which have now become the established policy of the nation.

"This anti-labor policy manifests itself in the submission to the present Congress of numerous bills dealing with the subject of labor and defense industries. It would be difficult to make detailed comment respecting each bill. In the main, they profess to deal with obstacles in the way of continuous production. In truth, they seek to prevent the exercise of fundamental rights of organized labor such as the right to self-organization, to form, join or assist labor organizations, to bargain collectively, to engage in other lawful concerted activities for the promotion of the welfare and living standards of workers. It is now the settled policy of this country that these rights are constitutionally guaranteed. Yet an examination of the bills referred to indicates conclusively that the foregoing rights would be curtailed, invaded and in many instances completely annihilated. The most common means by which these bills seek to deny organized labor its fundamental rights is to provide for so-called 'cooling off' periods. During these periods no strike or stoppage of work may take place. However, it is apparent that the real purpose is not a 'cooling off' period but rather to impose upon organized labor 'compulsory arbitration.'

"The American Federation of Labor is unalterably opposed to compulsory arbitration in any form. It is contrary to every basic principle of Americanism. The adoption of the principles of compulsory arbitration would be to adopt that which the defense program is set up to defeat. The enactment of compulsory work legislation can only result in industrial confusion. The ensuing period of industrial unrest would do more harm to the defense program in the important months ahead than could possibly be undone by years of rigid enforcement of a statute that would be the very essence of slavery.

"The British Government in its present hour of test and trial has found it unnecessary to resort to anti-labor legislation. Instead it has appealed to the heart and mind of labor. As a result, labor in Great Britain is giving service of the highest order and of the most valuable kind. If Great Britain, at a crucial moment, the most critical in all its history, has found it unnecessary to resort to anti-labor legislation, why should the Congress of the United States do so? Labor in America will give service on a voluntary basis just as labor in Great Britain is doing.

"The American Federation of Labor is anxious to cooperate with the Government for the promotion of efficiency in production and for the elimination of obstacles to continuous production. We recognize that the present war is one of machines and of men who make them. We appreciate that efficiency and regularity in production are essential for the establishment of our own adequate defenses. We understand, too, that it is essential for the preservation of American democracy that Great Britain win the war and that for her to do so America must supply her with materials, machines and weapons. Organized labor has demonstrated in the past and will demonstrate again that superiority in efficiency can and will be maintained by voluntary action on the part of workers employed in industry and without compulsion of any kind.

"Organized labor has indicated its willingness to conciliate, mediate and voluntarily arbitrate its labor differences. If the same disposition is shown by employers, the nation is assured of the practical elimination of labor strife.

"In the last war, a Board with equal representation on the part of labor and industry was created by Presidential proclamation and not through Congressional enactment. That Board and its procedure were devised to protect the rights of free enterprise and of free labor. It brought about conferences on the part of the employers and workers and their representatives. Through procedure, the basis of which was wholly voluntary, the parties met and adjusted their differences. The history of the last war proves the effectiveness of this method. Industrial unrest was practically abolished and both the employer and labor cooperated with the Government in its production and war program. There is no reason for adopting any different method with respect to the present defense program. In such a program, the Government will have the wholehearted support of the American Federation of Labor and its affiliated organizations.

INTERROGATION OF CHAIRMAN OF COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the chairman of the Military Affairs Committee.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Miller, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Luzerne, whether he intends to hold a meeting of the Committee on Military Affairs before the adjournment of the session this week?

Mr. MILLER. I do not, Mr. President.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lackawanna will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, and members of the Senate, immediately following the spirited election in 1940, some of the leaders of the Republican party in the state and in the nation indicated that in order to protect the great masses of American people it was necessary to get a more liberal point of view.

Then when we convened on the first day of the convening of the session, in General Session, we noted the liberal tone in the message of the Governor of the Commonwealth, at a Joint Session of the House and Senate, and then later to our astonishment we noticed that the Republican State Committee had a meeting and at that committee meeting or rather, an executive committee meeting, the former majority floor leader of this Senate offered a motion putting the Republican Executive Session on record as being in favor of the passage of the Lease-Lend Bill. Mr. President, we had no reason to doubt the sincerity of the Republican leadership in the state, and assumed immediately following that action that some Republican member of the Senate in carrying out the mandate of that executive committee would present a resolution memorializing Congress to pass the lease-lend bill, now under consideration in the United States Senate.

Mr. President, last Tuesday I presented to the Senate of Pennsylvania a resolution memorializing Congress to carry out the intention of the Republican State Committee. I was greatly astonished when denied immediate consideration of the resolution. I felt sure over the weekend that opposition would make a microscopic observation of the whereas clauses to see whether or not we were making any accusations and that noticing there was nothing objectionable, they would come here this week and agree to report out the resolution for action of the Senate of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs has stated there will be no meeting of the Committee on Military Affairs this week. That to me, Mr. President, is a clear indication of the refusal of the committee to consider the resolution, because we can reasonably expect before we convene next week there is a very strong possibility the lease-lend bill may become a law of the United States of America.

Mr. President, this bill is House Bill No. 1776—a most appropriate number, because the very mention of it stirs the patriotic emotions of liberty in America, because in that year the beleaguered colonies were struggling for liberty and there was drawn around them that sacred fire of liberty which is lighted in every human heart and which all of the power of the dictators can never hold or destroy.

Mr. President, I believe the overwhelming majority of the people of America are behind giving England every possible support and I do not want to appear dramatic, I do not want to unduly alarm the members of the Senate, but I can see if England falls there is an ominous message, those clouds hanging overhead carry with them an ominous message, the spirit of Paul Revere goes riding forth again and loudly knocks at every door from Oregon to Maine; a call for the minute men is ringing in the air and echoing from state to state in America.

Mr. President, a week ago last Sunday I listened to Winston Churchill in a world-wide broadcast and for a clean-cut definite statesmanlike pronunciation on the situation abroad it has no parallel in world history and I hung on breathlessly as did many other people throughout the world; there was stirred within me a great feeling of emotion, and, Mr. President, I should like to read to my colleagues the closing lines of that memorable address.

The other day President Roosevelt gave his opponent in the late Presidential election a letter of introduction to me, and in he wrote out a verse in his own handwriting from Longfellow which he said, "applies to you people as it does to us."

"Here is the verse:

"Sail on, O Ship of State;
"Sail on, O Union strong and great.
"Humanity with all its fears,
"With all the hopes of future years,
"Is hanging breathless on thy fate."

"What is the answer that I shall give in your name to this great man, the thrice-chosen head of a nation of 130,000,000?

"Here is the answer which I will give to President Roosevelt:

"Put your confidence in us. Give us your faith and your blessing, and under Providence all will be well. We shall not fail or falter. We shan't weaken or tire. Neither the sudden shock of battle nor the long drawn trials of vigilance and exertion will wear us down. Give us the tools and we will finish the job."

Mr. President, four years ago I stood on the battlefield of Gettysburg, listening to the President of the United States address the soldiers of the north and south who had gathered there in order to celebrate the seventy-fifth anniversay of the historic battle.

Said he to the thinning ranks of the Blue and Gray, "We are not seriously concerned under which flag you fought then, we are thankful to God you are all under one flag now" and we can apply that philosophy to this situation; we are not concerned, Mr. President, with whether you were associated with the winner or whether you exercised your right of franchise to support the loser, but it is tremendously important that in this situation there ought to be national unity in support of President Roosevelt in his sincere attempt to keep America from sinking into the maelstrom which is now engulfing a large part of the civilized world.

Mr. President, I went to a theatre in Harrisburg last night and I saw a thing there that impressed me very much. I saw a happening there, and America is one of the few remaining countries in the world in which such a thing could happen. Mr. President, a poor broken-hearted yellow mongrel, the companion of a man serving under the selective service, was flown two thousand miles to the bedside of his master. It occurred to me, Mr. President, that that wholesome sentiment, America is one of the few nations in the world where such a thing could happen, and we want to continue that great feeling here in this great nation of ours.

Mr. President, I believe the Bible contains a saying that is most pithy, the most powerful and the most far-reaching and I would like now to read it, "Do strenuously the things that remain"—do strenuously the things that remain. That is the philosophy behind the Lease-Lend Bill in this national crisis—do strenuously the things that remain.

Mr. President, we have assurances from the leaders abroad that all they need are the tools, and not the men, and I am greatly surprised, Mr. President, that the Republican leadership in the Senate, the Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, and the committee, denies the membership of the Senate the opportunity of joining in this most universal sentiment in the passage of that particular bill.

Somebody, Mr. President, seummed up the great leader of our nation in these lines:

" 'Tis truly said of God indeed
He finds the man to suit the need.
He saw our plight in thirty-two,
When things looked black for me and you;
And so He sent a man,
Tried in the crucible of pain;
A simple man,
One unafraid to face the unknown,
A man who spoke in simple terms,
A man who does not know it all
And never said he did it all,
But said instead we will try our best
And then to God leave the rest.
His best was good; he kept his vow,
We trust him more than ever now."

Mr. President, I am sorry we do not have the opportunity of giving our members in the United States Senate the sentiment of the people of Pennsylvania on this bill and I am again sorry that the liberal trend of thought of the Republican party in this Commonwealth is purely a myth and not borne out by their actions in the Senate of Pennsylvania.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, as Chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, I believe I would be remiss in my duty if I did not at least make an explanation in reply to I might say the very brilliant comments made by my colleague and friend from Lackawanna County, Senator Coleman.

I might say, Mr. President, as a World War Veteran, I am fully aware of the seriousness of the situation abroad and I will further say I do not believe there is a member of the Committee on Military Affairs nor a member of this Senate that is not in full accord with giving the British Empire every source of supply and finance.

Mr. President, at the time this resolution was presented to the Committee on Monday upon my arrival here, I discussed with several members of the Committee this resolution and I again say I do not believe they objected to the portion of the resolution but in the resolution there is embodied in the "Resolve if the House concurs this General Assembly memorialize the Congress of the United States to adopt with all possible dispatch the Lease-Lend Bill, H. R. 1776, in substantially the form introduced."

Mr. President, from my observation of the progress of the bill through the Congress there were many representatives of that body on both sides who were opposed to the bill in its form as originally presented. It was here amended and there amended, and now it has passed the Senate and there are still possibilities the bill will be further amended, so from a personal standpoint I believe the situation is well in the hands of the members of the Senate of the United States and I think those representatives who represent the people of Pennsylvania are likewise fully aware of the sentiment of the people of this Commonwealth.

Therefore, Mr. President, I state on the basis as contained in the resolution, that it be adopted in substantially the form introduced, the resolution was not brought out for further discussion by the Committee.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, as I stated in my opening remarks, I was simply astonished first of all at the failure to give us the courtesy of immediate consideration and then when it was discussed by members not in session, but members of the Committee, the failure to recognize the position of the Republican State Committee in the resolution sponsored by the former majority floor leader of this Senate, Senator Owlett, I purposely timed adoption of the resolution, or rather the presentation of the resolution into the Senate of Pennsylvania with the appearance of Wendell Willkie before the Senate committee. Mr. President, at the very time I presented the resolution and it was read on the floor of the Senate the man whom the Republicans placed their faith in, the man whom twenty-two million people in America in the election last year expressed their faith in guiding the country in the great crisis ahead, was appearing before the Committee, explaining his belief to the people of the United States as a whole, and that is the reason the action of the Committee was such a great surprise to me.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think our expressions on the question of relief just before we recessed the last time must have fallen on deaf ears.

Here we were all enthused that there was an effort being made to elevate ourselves out of the stench of partisanship and emerging into the twilight air of statesmanship and now we hear the things that have now been said with reference to a resolution that in the first place had no business in the Senate, and secondly, it concerns a matter so controversial and so fundamental to the structure of our federal government that we are too far away from their sight to intelligently act upon any matters of that kind.

Mr. President, I want it to be understood I speak as a man that does not speak from any place, did not stand on the battlefield of Gettysburg, but I wish to speak as an American, a native born American, who has stood on the battlefields of France in defense of this democracy.

Mr. President, I did not gather from the campaign platforms or the campaign speeches that it was the intention of either major party to enlarge the field of intrigue, to involve this nation into the war, nor did I take from those campaign platforms and speeches any intentions to liberalize or enlarge that field that is leading to the point of dictatorship that we talked about shortly before this time.

Mr. President, I view with great alarm, as a man who has given some of his blood in defense of his flag, any course or any action by the federal government or the state government that tends to give more power, more power into the hands of executives and take it further and further away from the repository that our forefathers intended it to be, that is, in the hands of the people.

Mr. President, I am concerned about the safety of America just as much as anybody else and the fact that my ancestors hailed from Italy surely is not to convey that I am in sympathy with any Italy or any Germany or any other country over in Europe. I am vitally concerned, intensely concerned, with the safety and welfare of America and I do not wish to be moved or concerned with general oratory, but I wish to be governed cooly and sensibly with the facts as they unfold before me on the pages of the recorded history and in the face of the present exigencies.

Mr. President, let the federal government deal with this problem. I think the chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs did the wise thing, did the noble thing, did the sensible thing, that a good American should have done.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Lackawanna himself admits the bill will be passed regardless of what we say. Then why the necessity of burdening the functions of this Senate with matters of that kind when we have problems and questions so vital, so interesting and so necessary to the people of this Commonwealth?

Mr. President, I am a member of the Committee on Military Affairs. I did nothing to forestall the action upon this resolution. I think the chairman of that committee will so affirm on the floor of the Senate. Mr. President, the resolution was not brought up before the committee for consideration, but I do feel I ought to show some degree of resentment when an attack is made upon the chairman of that committee, of which I am a member, to impugn or question the motives or the Americanism or patriotism or the duties of that committee.

I again repeat that nowhere during the campaign, and I campaigned strenuously throughout the four corners of this state for the Democratic platform and for the Democratic party, for our present president who is in the White House, nowhere in that platform or the campaign was I apprised that we were to stand for the proposition that there should be liberality in the field of intrigue or that there should be liberality in conferring more powers upon the President of the United States to do acts or things that might embroil us in the European conflict.

Mr. President, I stand with all my energy, with every drop of blood in my veins upon the propositions enunciated by the founders of this nation, that the further we stay away from this insane hatred and prejudice of Europe the greater nation we are going to become, and I think in the eyes of God as well as in the eyes of humanity.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am concerned about the fact a bill was introduced in the House of Representatives on the basis of the Governor's statement that we should do all possible to aid in the defense of America, and that bill provides for an appropriation, originally intended at twenty-five thousand dollars, and for the appointment of a commission, in order to do all things necessary to aid in the defense of America.

Mr. President, I assume that bill was passed because all of us realize America is preparing to defend itself, and unless we, all of us, agree there is a danger, I do not think we would be preparing to defend ourselves. Mr. President, we passed that bill in the House, or we are passing the bill in the House, on the basis the Governor says we all ought to work together in the defense of this country.

Mr. President, if that means more than mere phraseology, then we must be consistent. The Republican party took that position and the Governor took it because he thought there ought to be no politics in that situation, and to go further, I will say the Republican party feels there ought to be no politics and that we ought to defend America, and the Republican party then through its leaders resolved that the lease-lend bill should be supported. There was no mention in that resolution as to whether it should be supported in its final form, but in substance, the purpose at which it aims should be supported.

Mr. President, I take it the protest of the gentleman from Lackawanna, my colleague, Mr. Coleman, in rising to his feet was to express what has been in my mind and it is surprising the leadership of the Republican party is apparently a matter of words, because when it comes into action through the Senate, the Senators take no action, and it is quite inconsistent, in my opinion, to hear the Committee on Military Affairs, headed by a Republican Senator, take the position it will not show that this Senate believes what the Republican party says it should do, namely, co-operate. From that point of view, Mr. President, I am very much interested, and I am very much interested in finding out whether the claims, the attempts, the assertions that the Republican party is going to forget politics when it comes to national defense, forget politics when it comes to the welfare of the people, whether it is a serious proposition or a mere matter of words, and because of that I join with my colleague, Mr. Coleman, in protesting against the action of the committee.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, no one is more desirous to proceed with the Calendar and get on with the Senate business than am I, but I think the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and the gentleman from Lackawanna, Mr. Coleman, in their enthusiasm to have this lease-lend bill endorsed are overlooking one very pregnant fact, and that is this bill is before the Committee on Military Affairs and that committee is absolutely non-partisan.

Mr. President, as to the resolution introduced by Senator Coleman and in view of that resolution introduced by Senator Coleman, and the defense of the committee and the explanation by the very distinguished citizen, the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, that does not need any elaboration on the floor of this Senate by a Republican, because that was a non-partisan explanation, by a gentleman who at one time was perfectly willing to lay his life on the altar of his country, and to have his motives viewed in a political light is unfair, and it certainly could be classified as un-American. Mr. President, the resolution was not smothered for political purposes, and the mere fact the gentleman from Luzerne, Senator Miller, has the political faith of the Republican party, is no reason why his patriotism should be questioned.

Mr. President, on the Committee on Military Affairs are fourteen members, and nine of them happen to belong to ex-service organizations. In other words, nine men on that committee at one time served their country's flag, and for political purposes when the patriotism of that committee is challenged on the floor of this Senate, I think we are going just a little too far in urging upon Senators Davis and Guffey that they support the lease-lend bill.

Mr. President, I for one am much in favor of this Senate minding its own business, as suggested by the gentleman from Fayette, and that we go ahead and take care of our own responsibilities and have faith in Senator Guffey and Senator Davis that they will take care of their own business to the best interest of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and the United States of America. May I say to the gentleman from Philadelphia and the gentleman from Lackawanna the viewpoint of the Committee on Military Affairs as expressed by the Senator from Fayette and the Senator from Luzerne is correct, it is non-partisan, it is non-political, it has viewed it from a patriotic standpoint, and I do not think it should be challenged on the floor of this Senate.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I wish to make a few remarks in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

Mr. President, as I have indicated, not only in this matter but in all matters, we are trying to rise to a degree of statesmanship in handling these problems.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia has been frank and sincere, and for that he ought to be commended, in stating that the motive back of what has been stated is merely political, that the motive in back of this resolution was a political motive, but I assure the gentleman from Philadelphia and the gentleman from Lackawanna, and I think I speak the sentiments of quite a few of the members of the Committee on Military Affairs, that when the Congress of the United States of America has done its duty and has decided what they want done in the passage of this Lease-Lend bill, that every energy, every wit and everything in the power of the Committee on Military Affairs will be utilized to see that what the Congress has started will receive the full support of this Committee, and I say it should receive the full support of the Governor and of this Legislature, and everyone who claims to be an American of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. After Congress has acted and decided what we have to face, that is when we will give our unstunted unreserved whole-hearted support to the President of the United States and the duties placed upon him by the Lease-Lend Bill.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I have always had a tremendous amount of respect for the gentleman from Fayette, and in my brief contact and conversations with him I can say the same as to the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Miller.

Mr. President, the Pennsylvania Legislature is a sort of a mirror, a kind of a screen in which is reflected the entire life of the State of Pennsylvania. Here, Mr. President, we have every idea and every ideal of the great Commonwealth represented by the two hundred and fifty-eight members of the General Assembly and here is where these conflicting opinions come to clash in a peaceful democratic way to settle their differences. That is the essence of democracy.

Mr. President, my mind goes back reverently to the days of 1917—when the gentleman from Fayette and the gentleman from Luzerne were both discussing the proposition before us—I could vividly recall standing on the principal streets of the City of Scranton, watching the flower of Scranton manhood marching off to war, and I can well recall the feeling of all of us back home that when America threw her fresh strength into the ranks of freedom just in time to change the whole tide of the struggle, when the fate of the world hung in the balance, we were eternally grateful to men like Senator Cavalcante and Senator Miller, who offered their breasts as barriers to enemy bullets, so when the gentleman suggested I am impugning the patriotic spirit of the gentleman from Luzerne, he missed the point of my argument.

Mr. President, I just want to read this editorial, and I think it is most appropriate, which appeared in the Philadelphia Record on Tuesday of last week. The language of the editorial could very well be applied to the proposition we are discussing here in the Senate of Pennsylvania:

"How swiftly will the Senate move to meet the emergency which the bill itself is designed to meet?

"That is the question millions of Americans ask. It is the democratic test which the Senate itself faces. If the Senators so desire, they can debate this bill for a year; they can talk and talk and talk, until they can say, with Hitler: 'I have talked as much as a man can talk.'

"On the other hand, they can recognize that this question has been threshed out thoroughly in the House committee hearings, House debates, and the Senate committee hearings—and they can proceed to limit debate and insure quick action.

"That is the choice facing the United States Senate.

We don't think it is much of a choice. Not if the Senators remember:

"Time is marching on.

"So is Hitler."

Mr. President, I have only one observation to make in answer to the gentleman from Fayette, I conscientiously share the belief, the anxiety of millions of others, and that is if Hitler wins the war, we will have graver problems facing the people of the State of Pennsylvania than the relief problem which is now pressing us for solution.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I move to amend, page 4, line 3, by inserting after "United States" the following: of America.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the section as amended?

It was agreed to.

The second section of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

Section 2 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to have the bill transcribed for a third reading?

The title of the bill was read as follows and agreed to:

An Act to amend section eight hundred one of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333) entitled "An act concerning elections, including general, municipal, special and primary elections, the nomination of candidates, primary and election expenses and election contests; creating and defining membership of county boards of elections; imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, courts, county boards of elections, county commissioners; imposing penalties for violation of the act, and codifying; revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections," by further defining parties and political bodies.

And said bill as amended having been read at length the second time,

Will the Senate agree to the bill as amended?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I think everybody will agree, I do not think this bill will get a dissenting vote; I mean, the purpose of this bill will not meet any dissent from any of us. I think we are all about fed with the type of people who come here and participate and get the benefits of our democracy, and try by force of arms and other methods indirect to overthrow the government, but I am concerned about making this act workable, and I venture the suggestion that in the present form it does not provide the machinery for carrying out the purpose of the act. The amendment is that no political party shall be deemed to be a political party, if in effect it advocates the policy to overthrow the government by force, and it stops there.

Now, Mr. President, there is no machinery and I suggest first there ought to be a provision in this bill that every political party, in order to be considered a political party, shall file with the Secretary of the Commonwealth its political philosophy, and if its political philosophy discloses in the opinion of the Secretary of the Commonwealth that it advocates the overthrow of this government, using the phrase as used here, "by force," then it shall not be entitled to a place on the ballot, giving the right to such political party then to appeal to the court or some tribunal from the action of the Secretary of the Commonwealth. Otherwise there is no machinery or no method by which you can ascertain what is the political philosophy of the party, and conversely, if you say nothing about it, it is up to the Secretary of the Commonwealth to determine whether the party advocates that philosophy, and it has no control over the picture at all.

I therefore suggest, Mr. President, that this bill should be reconsidered before it either passed on second reading or passed finally.

Mr. President, I may say frankly I understand the Attorney General has prepared this bill and I have expressed my thoughts to him on the subject and he has suggested to me that there is some merit in the position which I have taken, and he is going to give it further study.

However, Mr. President, before we let this bill out of our hands, I think we might consider putting in the machinery to enforce it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I might suggest to the gentleman from Philadelphia there is a lot of merit in the suggestion he has made. That very point, Mr. President, was raised with the Attorney General's office before the bill was submitted to the Senate, and the suggestion made by the Attorney General's office was to the effect—and I am merely giving you the information which was received by the sponsor of the bill; we do not, of course, subscribe to the authenticity of it—the courts have already taken judicial knowledge of the standing of the Communist party, for example, and their philosophy of government, and that the Secretary of State or the Secretary of the Commonwealth could under this act remove from the ballot or refuse to accept petitions filed by parties covered by this act, those parties whose philosophy is adverse to the form of democracy practiced in this country.

However, Mr. President, Senator Cavalcante and I agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia that we want the bill to be workable, and we are perfectly willing to accept any constructive suggestions or criticisms that might be offered on the act, because I think, as the gentleman from Philadelphia says, we are one hundred percent tired and disgusted with the type of people this bill is attempting to suppress.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, in answer to that, since the gentleman from Allegheny has mentioned the Communistic party, might I suggest that the same party can call itself the communal party, or the Smith party, and you do not have any protection against that.

Mr. President, my thought is there ought to be in this bill a provision setting forth the machinery, which, as I suggested, is that such political party should file whenever it wants to file, its political philosophy.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, nothing is so discouraging as a debate between two lawyers on tweedledee and tweedledum, but on the other hand the party we have been discussing could file their philosophy of government with the Secretary of the Commonwealth and it could be more idealistic than that of the Democrats or the Republicans and the Secretary of the Commonwealth might not have anything which the Secretary could get hold of to eliminate them from the ballot. The philosophy of government might be expressed in the most beautiful, glowing terms, using three syllable words, which would eliminate the opportunity of keeping them off the ballot.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think the difficulty at this point is this, we are probably failing to note that this is merely an amendment to the code and that the code itself provides the machinery in other sections by which the question commented upon by the gentleman from Philadelphia is determined, the same machinery that is used in the code to determine whether a party shall have a place on the ballot. Thus we already have cases and the machinery has already been tested, where a group of individuals come to the Secretary of State and ask a permit to register a particular party and have it placed on the ballot, and if the Secretary for any reason refuses to put that party on the ballot, the machinery is already set up in the code by which you compel the Secretary to put that party on the ballot, and if the Secretary refuses, then the court itself decides whether or not that party is a proper party on the ballot, and that is where this should be determined.

Mr. President, as my colleague from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, has stated, as far as this Commonwealth is concerned our Appellate Courts have already determined what the Communist party is at present in this state.

Mr. President, one very salutary feature of this bill is this—I will not say we do not want to pass a bill that merely outlaws labels; you see, we are going to outlaw the label "Communist Party," and that we do not want to do, and we must be careful we do not run into a constitutional storm here, because whenever you pass legislation of this kind, you are then looking into the face of the constitutional provisions that give freedom of thought, and freedom of speech, and the right of the people to alter and change their government as they see fit.

Mr. President, it is not the label we are attempting to outlaw, but a certain philosophy that is in direct opposition to the philosophy of our government as found within the four corners of the Constitution. The machinery, Mr. President, in my opinion is already set up in the former sections of the act that this bill amends, and to re-state that machinery in this bill I think would be absolutely surplusage and not necessary.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, in regard to this bill I would just like to leave one thought with the members. I do not think this will cover what the people are trying to get at. You can not change the minds of these people by preventing them from running a ticket.

Mr. President, while I am not opposed to this bill, yet it has occurred to me it might be a whole lot better to have them vote their ticket so we know where they are. I am never afraid of those who come out as my open enemy, I am only afraid of those who pretend to be friends, and hide behind something else, and if we keep these people from running a ticket, Communists or whatever it may be, then they will be voting either the Democratic or Republican party, and do considerably greater harm than if they voted their own ticket where we can see them and know where they are.

Mr. President, I am not so sure this is a good bill, for that reason; I would like to see these people brought out in the open so we can see where they are.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think this bill permits that. The thing we are trying to guard against, is, and I think we ought to be united on this—no matter who they are, they should not entertain a philosophy of government or a philosophy that will sanction the overthrow of our present government by force. Now, Mr. President, that is where we are, the question we have in mind. I agree one hundred percent with the gentleman from Somerset, I would rather see them in the open and on the ballot, but I also feel we cannot here compromise, nor can we explain, a philosophy that would stand for the overthrow of our government by force or by subversive means. Any party, Mr. President, whether they call themselves the Communist party, the Socialist party or whatever they want to call themselves, if they believe in the philosophy of altering our government, changing our government by the means contained within the four corners of the Constitution, we want them on the ballot, no matter what their names might be. They may call themselves the Communist party or any label they want to call themselves, they ought to have that right, they ought to be on the ballot, but what we are aiming at here, the thing that is dangerous here, are groups or classes of individuals who are under the influence of philosophies beyond the control of our government, beyond the boundaries of America, whose fundamental philosophy, whose teachings are that where you cannot alter or change your government within the structure of the government, then you have the right to overthrow it by force or subversive means.

Mr. President, this bill if carefully analysed and the real purpose of it grasped, you will see that it reaches that point, that is, the point we ought not to have any party on our ballot here in America, a party of individuals who believe in the philosophy of overthrowing our government by force. If they come and say, "All right, we do not subscribe to that philosophy, we renounce that philosophy, but we want to call ourselves the Communistic party, but we will change the government and we will pursue towards that end by lawful and peaceful means, means provided within the four corners of the Constitution," this bill will permit such a label on the ballot, it will permit the Communistic party on the ballot, if their philosophy is to alter or change, staying within the four corners of the Constitution.

Mr. President, I hope I have made myself clear.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, when this bill was in committee, I did not have a chance to read it; it was reported out so rapidly I did not have much chance to study it. However, since this discussion I agree with Senator Ealy that the bill will not accomplish the purpose of the sponsors.

Mr. President, I believe this is federal matter, and if there is anyone in the country who would attempt to overthrow the government by violence or by force, then I think after a fair trial in the Federal Courts, upon conviction, if he be a citizen, his citizenship should be revoked and he should be banished from the country.

I think, Mr. President, it has to do with a personal or an individual matter and I do not believe this bill will solve the question at all.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the point the gentleman from Fayette and I are trying to impress upon the Senate is that there is a concentrated movement in the United States and in Pennsylvania to eliminate a common enemy. We are after the Communist party foot, horse and artillery and this is one link in the chain. We are trying to stop the teaching of the Communistic doctrine in our schools; we are trying to eliminate the Communists from the public payroll, we are trying to point out to the citizens of the United States that from a practical standpoint we are on the threshold of war and we do not propose to have this common enemy within our ranks, occupying positions of power and trust and having the rights of citizens of this country, with all the rights of citizenship, and at the same time trying to eliminate our government, our constitution and our flag.

Mr. President, this bill will accomplish this much. I appreciate the wisdom of the suggestion made by the gentleman from Somerset that it is best to get them out in the open.

I am for the moment disagreeing with the co-sponsor that they might change their philosophy of government They cannot change their philosophy of government because this is only a subordinate chapter here in this country.

They will have to change that philosophy of government as suggested by Joseph Stalin in Russia, and after the father, the fountain-head of the communistic doctrine has changed, they then must change over here and I want to see the Communistic party eliminated from power and public office in this country, because in a few short years your boy and mine are going to go to war and I want their backs protected as well as their front. This goes deeper than the ballot; this is a fight against Communism and every effort we can make, every link in the chain we can forge is just another step towards the ends that the sponsors of these various bills are trying to accomplish.

This is just one move we are trying to make and I agree with the gentleman from Somerset, perhaps it is best they be out in the open but we want to eliminate them, and with God's help and the F.B.I. we will drive them further than out in the open.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, may I ask whether or not there is a motion before the Senate?

The PRESIDENT. No. There was an amendment offered to the bill.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to delay our adjournment today, but personally as I glance through the bill, I see communism sticking out between every line.

Mr. President, I just can not quite understand all the discussion about philosophies of government here today. We are doing exactly what the Nazis have done in Europe. They eliminated from the ballot political parties that did not believe in the same philosophies that the ruling powers believed in.

Mr. President, we can not destroy communism with legislation, we can not destroy subversive activities by denying the right of publicly proclaiming their philosophies. I do not believe Thomas Jefferson would rest in his grave peaceably today if he knew this bill was on the Calendar. He believed in the right and the freedom and the liberty of the individual. If there be a man in this country, Mr. President, who does not believe in the type of government we have, he is protected by the Constitution and the Bill of Rights and he is allowed to say and do as he pleases so long as he does not do anything subversively which would injure the government of this country or the peoples of this country. Let a man have his liberties, let him think and believe as he will, that is the price of democracy.

Mr. President, when we get so efficient we can control the very thoughts and the actions of every person in this nation, it will no longer be a democracy, it will be some sort of a fascism, and the next thing you eliminate from the ballot will be the liberals with whom you do not agree.

Mr. President, twenty-five or thirty years ago any person who would have propounded the philosophies and policies of the present Democratic party would have been called a subversive agent. I have heard President Roosevelt called a communist by eminent speakers of this nation, I have heard the Democratic party berated by eminent and prominent speakers as being a party that did believe in constitutional government, and if that group became the majority, then that would eliminate from the ballot the Democratic party or the New Dealers, or the Liberals from Wisconsin, or the Progressives from New York.

Mr. President, every person in this great land of ours has the right to feel and believe and do the things he or she wants to do so long as they do not subversively destroy or help to destroy the nation itself. Persons can believe in what they want to believe in; the laws of this nation are sufficient that any person who does the things we are talking about here, that the communists do and believe, if convicted, and they will be convicted by a court, allow them to go on the ballot under any name they want; allow them to make their appeal to the people of Pennsylvania and see the number of votes they get. How far will a party get in this State or this nation that proposes to overthrow the government of the United States by military force?

Mr. President, awhile ago we discussed, some of us, the resolution presented by the gentleman from Lackawanna, and we stated it was properly a matter for the federal government. I believe it is, and I believe the gentleman from Lackawanna had the right to come in here, and as he said, the General Assembly of this state is the mirror of the State of Pennsylvania, and express the views of his constituents. I believe that is what he was trying to do.

Mr. President, this is more so a matter of federal jurisdiction than that resolution was. By eliminating them from the ballot in Pennsylvania, you do not do anything to them in New Jersey, New York, or the other forty-seven sovereign states. We have sufficient laws to take care of communists.

Mr. President, Senator Ealy properly stated if they do not have their own ballot, their own political party, they will join ours and use the old ferreting trick of communists and bore from within, a more dangerous procedure, believe me, then standing out on a soapbox with their whiskers and bombs and red flags and telling what they are going to do to this country. Why, this is silly.

Mr. President, the Constitution of this United States gives every man the personal liberty to say things and do things, and I am not for the elimination of any political party regardless of how drastic its beliefs or how radical its conception of government, but I reserve the right as an American to vote against that political party and to vote against its philosophies, its beliefs, and its proclamations, and I want to exercise that right. I do not want my boy to grow up with the blind conception that he can not think as he pleases. Sometimes during our stage of life, some of us, because of our contacts, of our environment, fall into the habit of thinking along communistic lines, but the government itself by its treatment of its citizens straightens our thoughts out.

Mr. President, let the man believe as he will; that is what the Bill of Rights is for; let him do as he pleases, but when he does anything that tends to destroy this nation and the laws of this nation, then the law as it is so contained today will reach out its long arm and take care of that individual or group of individuals.

Mr. President, we are wasting more time on something here than we did a while ago on the serious resolution presented by the gentleman from Lackawanna.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, far be it from me to encroach upon the time of this Senate, but I can not help but make just a few remarks in regard to this bill.

Mr. President, in the earlier part of this session I myself introduced a bill of a similar nature. I introduced that bill at the suggestion of the Department of Pennsylvania American Legion, which had the whole hearted support of the four veteran organizations of this Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I have studied the bill presented by the gentleman from Allegheny and the gentleman from Fayette, and I am fully convinced there is embodied in that bill the fundamental principles which the veterans' organizations desire to bring about.

Mr. President, mention of Thomas Jefferson was made. I can not speak for the political philosophies of Thomas Jefferson, but from my knowledge of the gentleman as an American patriot, I can say that he did, I believe I can say that he, if he were to be here today and were to read the salient features of the bill, that any party or political body whose philosophy or goal is the overthrow of the democratic form of government of the United States by force, shall not be deemed a political party within the meaning of this act, and I think that he would readily agree with that philosophy.

Mr. President, I might suggest to further eliminate the communistic party, if we will use names, there might be an amendment inserted whereby the finances of that particular party or any other party desirous of appearing on the ballot, whose philosophy, whose aims or principles are the overthrow of our present form of government, that if those finances are derived from foreign sources, it should be the means of refusing that particular party a place or name on the ballot.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, might I add to what has already been said, this, the more I read and the more I hear on this subject the more I am convinced the public or the national mind is a ballyhoo, from Oregon to Maine, over the radio, in the newspapers, from the town hall, from the pulpit, at Washington, D. C., from the floors of our Congress, here in the Senate of Pennsylvania. Just a little while ago, we were apprised by the gentleman from Lackawanna that some place in that veritable jungle of insane hatred and prejudice known as Europe, that light, that torch of democracy is about to be extinquished, and it is the sacred or some other duty of this American nation to lay upon the altar of sacrifice, thousands, probably millions of its youths, in order to keep that torch of democracy, that light burning.

Mr. President, now we hear on the floor of this Senate, we have just heard a little while ago, that it is absolutely immaterial whether that same torch of democracy continues to burn here in its sanctuary, or whether it is extinguished.

Mr. President, it is ballyhoo. If we are going to hold ourselves out as the sanctuary of that sublime torch of democracy, then we must do all in our power to see that that torch continues to burn, and gentlemen, I can not for the life of me see how we can assure the burning of that torch here on the shores of freedom, when we say, All right, if there is anybody here who claims himself to be an American and wants that torch burned out and something else put in its place, dictatorship or communism, he shall have the right to so believe and do it, and if he can not get it done within the peaceful structure of the Constitution, go ahead and do it by force and subversive means.

Mr. President, I can not understand this ballyhoo. If we are willing to place upon the altars of war millions of our young men in order to see that that torch keeps burning over in Europe or any other place in the world, I think we owe it to our sacred conscience here to do all within our power to prevent anything that tends to blow that torch out here in America.

Mr. President, I say that individuals, whether born here in America or naturalized, have no right to believe in the philosophy of overthrowing our government by force. I believe to the profoundest depths of my body that the founders of this nation who founded its democracy by the blood of thousands who died on the battlefields of the Revolutionary War, intended that from that day on their descendents,. their children's children, should never again resort to the sword or the gun in order to change their form of government, but I sincerely believe they intended to establish an everlasting democracy and that they intended that torch to keep on burning and that the only right the citizens should have should be the right, within the structure of the Constitution, to change their form of government.

Mr. President, I have repeatedly stated on the political platforms of this country, that any time, the majority of the people of this United States of America, within the structure of the Constitution, say they want a dictator instead of a president, Mr. President, I have enough Americanism in me to say, "You are the majority; you want that form of government today, you have proved it by your ballot, and so therefore I will go along".

But, Mr. President, I do not believe Thomas Jefferson or any of them after fighting that Revolutionary War intended to leave in the hands of the people the right to overthrow the government they were about to establish by force, by the sword, or by the gun, and I am ready to see that this torch of democracy shall be guarded and shall burn perpetually till it is blown out by the peaceful means contained within the structure of the Constitution.

Mr. President, as an American I am jealous and I am not ready to concede to a fellow American that he has the right to overthrow our government by subversive means. Never will I subscribe or compromise to that proposition.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to take much time, but in order to let Jefferson sleep tonight, I think perhaps I had better inform some of the senators it was Thomas Jefferson who upheld the right of Shay, when Shay rebelled; it was Thomas Jefferson who came also to the defense of the whiskey insurrectionists in Western Pennslyvania. Thomas Jefferson never conceived a democracy or an ideal of government which would deny to any individual of that government the right to think, the right to do, the right to say as he pleased in conformity with the laws of the nation. Mr. President, the laws of this Nation already take care of the situation covered by this bill.

Mr. President, maybe I did not stand in Flanders Field, simply because I wasn't old enough, but I did go through the Banana Wars and the Haitian Peninsula, the Central American Islands and Peninsula. I had my four years in the United States Marine Corps, I served my country and will do it again in defense of the ideals so well brought out by the gentleman from Fayette, but I still believe as an individual, and I shall say the things and do the things my mind says and directs me to do under the constitutional rights of an American citizen.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, do I understand this bill was amended on the floor of the Senate?

The PRESIDENT. It was.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Our Heavenly Father, we, Thy children, pause to say "Thank You" for this, another opportunity to use our God given ability in a manner whereby we become useful men in the dispatch of the tasks that confront us this day.

We ask Thy guidance in all the departments of our government—the Legislative, of which we are a part, the Executive, and the Judicial. Grant that each may accept its individual responsibilities in such a way as to afford the greatest good to the greatest number within the Commonwealth.

Hear our prayer, we implore thee. Amen.

RESOLUTION INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Messrs. SARRAF and KEENAN, (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 32.

In the House of Representatives, February 19, 1941.

Whereas, In the City of Pittsburgh and in the County of Allegheny the dissemination of smoke and other products of combustion into the atmosphere has long been unusually great, and

Whereas, The recent marked increase of industrial activity in said city and county has operated to raise considerably the smoke content of the atmosphere thereabouts, and

Whereas, The presence of such unusual amounts of smoke in the atmosphere results in the so called "smog" which has a recognizable ill-effect upon the general health of the residents of said city and county, and

Whereas, The chief cause of such smoke is incomplete combustion which it may prove possible to eliminate to a considerable degree, with material savings in operating costs to the various industries located in said city and county, and

Whereas, On the other hand any satisfactory and adequate method of eliminating smoke from the atmosphere of said city and county may be found to entail such prohibitive expense as to drive out important and necessary industries, with consequent unemployment, and

Whereas, Any effective program of smoke elimination might necessitate a decrease in the amount of bituminous coal consumed in said city and county, with a consequent depressing effect upon the bituminous mining industry which is so essential to the prosperity of that area, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a committee of five members shall be appointed, three by the Speaker of the House of Representatives and two by the president pro tempore of the Senate for the purpose of investigating the smoke and the so called "smog" condition existing in the County of Allegheny and the City of Pittsburgh, and for the purpose of ascertaining whether such conditions can be effectively eliminated or relieved without unduly burdening or discouraging industrial and mining activities in that area.

The said committee shall make a report of the result of this investigation to the General Assembly now in session as speedily as possible in order that appropriate legislation may be enacted if such be found feasible or necessary, and be it further

Resolved, That an appropriation of $3500 be made available through the adoption of an appropriation act to cover the expenses of this committee.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

RESOLUTION NO. 26.

Mr. STINE. Mr. Speaker I desire to call up Resolution No. 26, Printer's No. 30.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 12, 1941.

Whereas, Nationally organized poultry interests have announced the dates of March 6-12 inclusive and May 1-7 inclusive as Springtime Egg Festival and

Whereas, This event is designed to increase the consumption of eggs during the period of peak production and thereby lessen the egg surplus that depresses the egg market for the remainder of the year and

Whereas, Pennsylvania leads America in the dollar value of eggs produced annually and

Whereas, Poultry and Eggs are a $67,000,000 annual industry in Pennsylvania with its 67 counties and

Whereas, There are 167,000 farmers owning flocks producing eggs in Pennsylvania in every one of the State's 67 counties and

Whereas, Merchants throughout the State have agreed to cooperate with the poultry raisers in the intensive promotion of Springtime Egg Festival

Therefore be it resolved that the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania endorses Springtime Egg Festival and calls upon the consumers of the State to help Pennsylvania's 167,000 poultry raisers through materially increasing their use of eggs during Springtime Egg Festival

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

Mr. STINE. Mr. Speaker, organized poultry interests throughout the United States are interested in setting aside the two weeks referred to in the resolution, March 6 to March 12 inclusive, and from May 1 to May 7 of this year as the resolution sets out. The egg industry is one of the big farm interests of this Commonwealth, and leads the nation. There is annually, as the resolution sets out, sixty seven million dollars involved.

I call upon the Members of this House to vote for this resolution and thereby indicate their interest in promulgating and maintaining the egg industry as one of the foremost industries in this Commonwealth.

In the House of Representatives, February 10, 1941.

Whereas, December 15, 1941 will be the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights embodied in the Constitution of the United States as its first ten amendments, and

Whereas, This date, which is ordinarily significant, assumes unusual importance at this particular period in the history of our Nation and of the world, when those fundamental rights are threatened by totalitarian forces abroad and their sympathizers at home, and

Whereas, The American Legion, Spanish American War Veterans, and Veterans of the World War and other veterans' and patriotic organizations and citizens have petitioned this General Assembly to urge suitable action to encourage the promotion of widespread observance of the anniversary, therefore be it

Whereas, A serious controversy regarding the cause of said explosions has resulted in a series of investigations being made by eight different city agencies and

Whereas, Said agencies are to make a report to the Mayor of the City of Philadelphia and

Whereas, The City of Philadelphia has an interest in the findings of said agencies in that the city may be responsible for the occurrence of the catastrophe and

RESOLUTION

GEORGE WASHINGTON

Mr. LOVETT offered a resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 19, 1941.

Whereas, During the recess this week, we will observe the two hundred and ninth anniversary of the birth of him who not only led the patriots of his day through a successful revolution against tyranny and oppression, but triumphantly builded this Nation amid an angry conflict of passion and prejudice.

His genius in military affairs begat the Nation, but his greatest service to mankind was the holding together of the feeble life that marked its inauguration as an independent power among the governments of the world.

The same high degree of courage and perseverance that inspired the half-frozen patriots at Valley Forge to carry on in the face of starvation and death, met and conquered every political disease that threatened the life of this new child in the world's family of nations, and made its growth sure and its development certain.

The days that marked his military service to his Country were constantly fraught with danger for all, food was scarce, property was insecure, and death lurked everywhere; but the courage of this man dispelled fear, inspired a patriotism that laughed at disaster, gave birth to a faith that was unconquerable, and won for him the love and devotion of all his countrymen.

During the years of his presidency, his courage met a greater task than Valley Forge, but with that same perseverance and devotion to duty, he carried on against enemies who sought to drag him from the heights, and despoil the Nation for their personal gain.

Amidst the innumerable pages of history, we find none other whose courage and genius contributed as much to free our land from bondage and elevate it to the rank of an independent and sovereign power.

George Washington was the noblest figure that ever stood in the forefront of a Nation's life; therefore be it

Resolved, That this House of Representatives when it adjourns this week, does so out of respect to the memory of that patriotic and inspirational hero, George Washington the Father of our Country.

COMMITTEE APPOINTED

RESOLUTION NO. 25.

Session 1941. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 25. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, FEBRUARY 24, 1941. No. 13.

SENATE

MONDAY, February 24, 1941.

The Senate met at 4:30 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

O Lord Our God, as we begin another legislative week, we are deeply impressed with Thy goodness, love and providence unto us as a nation. We repose our faith in Thee and our nation. Our love for both, O God, would be unquestioned through the evidence of our external acts. May we be fired with the same patriotic zeal which animated our forefathers to sacrifice even that which they held most dear—their own lives.

May we ever believe in our nation that she may always derive her just powers from the consent of the governed, a democracy in a republic, a more perfect union one and inseparable, respecting and honoring her flag and pledging allegiance to this one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all.

Guard and defend the armed forces of our nation whether it be the soldier in the field, the sailor tossing upon the billowy deep, the aviator in the skies or the navigator under the sea. May all our people, together with these, feel the need of sacrifice in order that our defense may be made strong and our rights inviolate among the nations of the earth.

Truly this day our hearts rise to Thee filled with thanksgiving as we receive Thy blessings showered upon us so copiously. We give thanks in Thy Holy Name. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. TAYLOR and Mr. BELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

Mr. Shapiro asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Luzerne, Dr. MUNDY.

Mr. Edmonds asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. WOODWARD.

Mr. McGinnis asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. BARR.

TIME OF NEXT MEETING

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered, and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 24, 1941.

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That when the Senate adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday afternoon, March 3, 1941, at 4:30 o'clock; and when the House of Representatives adjourns this week it reconvene on Monday evening, March 3, 1941, at 9:00 o'clock.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. "The weeks necessary for organization having passed, the members of this body will soon be called upon to vote on legislation which will come before the Senate with some rapidity in the near future. The imminence of this impels me to call your attention to certain facts which will become obvious from the recitation of the history of the particular piece of legislation which I intend to discuss today.

"On January 16, 1939, Mr. Boyd, a Republican member of the House of Representatives from Philadelphia, introduced a bill to amend Sections 3, 4, 5, and 9 of the Act of June 28, 1935, P. L. 463, commonly referred to as the 'State Authority Act.' This act authorized the creation of municipal authorities by the law-making bodies of municipalities in the Commonwealth for the purpose of 'acquiring, holding, constructing, improving, maintaining and operating, or owning or leasing . . . . buildings to be devoted wholly or partially for public uses and for revenue producing purposes . . . . grounds and facilities, sewers, sewer systems, sewage treatment works, water supply works, lakes, dams, hospital . . . .' all of which were referred to in the act as 'projects.'

"The Act of 1935 also authorized 'the Commonwealth, the County, or any city, borough or township in the County, to lease, grant, or convey to the Authority, upon such terms and conditions as are mutually satisfactory . . . . any existing' projects.

"The amendments introduced to this Bill by Mr. Boyd were as follows:

(a) Section 3 was amended by removing the existing requirement in the law that the ordinance of the council creating the Authority should set forth "in full the proposed articles of incorporation" of the Authority,

(b) Section 4 was amended by enlarging the 'projects' to include 'gas works, gas manufacturing and gas distribution systems' and adding that the municipality organizing such Authority may 'in its resolution or ordinance, or from time to time by subsequent resolution or ordinance, specify the project or projects to be undertaken . . . . and no other projects shall be undertaken by the said Authority than those so specified,'

(c) Section 5 was amended by (1) increasing the authorized term of the bonds issued by the Authority from 30 to 40 years, and (2) by making such bonds legal investments for banks, fiduciaries, insurance companies, boards, commissions and agencies of the Commonwealth.

(d) Section 9 was amended by making this section dealing with transfers of existing facilities by local communities conform to the amendments of Section 4, including gas works, etc., as a project.

"It is important to call attention here to the fact that in January, 1939, the City of Chester did not have a municipal authority, but it did have a privately owned water works. I emphasize the word 'privately' for reasons which will become apparent as we go on.

"The amendments offered by Mr. Boyd became House Bill No. 38, and it was referred to the Committee on Municipal Corporations, of which Mr. Boyd was not a member.

"On March 15, 1939, Mr. Leydic, a Republican member of that Committee, reported the bill out of Committee, as amended in the Committee. What were these Committee amendments?

Section 3 was amended in the Committee so that, if the ordinance or resolution of council did set forth the articles of incorporation of the Authority in full (even though by the proposed amendment it was not obligated to do so) it should not be necessary in advertising the resolution of council to publish the articles of incorporation in full, but it would be sufficient to set forth briefly the substance and refer to the provisions of this Act.

Section 3 was also amended in the Committee so that one municipality could join another for the purpose of forming an Authority.

Section 4 was amended in the Committee to add "parts of sewage systems" to sewers and sewer systems projects already authorized by the existing law as an authorized Authority project, and removed 'gas works, gas manufacturing and gas distribution systems' but in its place it added 'water works and water distribution systems' as an authorized project.

Section 9 was amended in the Committee to conform to the amendments of Section 4 by removing 'gas works' as an authorized project and adding 'parts of sewage systems and water works and water supply works,' etc., as a project which any municipality might transfer to an Authority.

Section 11 was amended in the Committee by adding the provision that 'water and water rights' might be acquired by the Authority by purchase or by eminent domain.

"On March 20, 1939, the Bill passed first reading in the House.

"On March 21, 1939, the Bill, on being called up for second reading—Mr. Boyd offered amendments on the floor—which Mr. Turner, the Speaker, directed the Clerk to read. They were adopted without a roll call. These amendments were as follows:

"Section 9 was amended by adding the words 'or an owner' so that transfers of existing projects by municipalities was extended so as to authorize transfers to a Authority by a private owner; and, in order to clinch th matter and leave no loophole to thwart the scheme ther was added to Section 9 the following: 'This Section, with out reference to any other law, shall be deemed complet for the acquisition by agreement of projects as define in this Act, located wholly within or partially withou the municipality or municipalities causing such Authorit to be incorporated, any provision of other laws to th contrary notwithstanding and no proceedings or other ac tion shall be required except as herein prescribed.'

"On March 23, 1939, the Bill was read for the thir time and passed finally by a vote of 152 to 2 with Repre sentatives Achterman and Brancato, Democrats, voting i the negative.

"On March 27, 1939, the Bill was presented to the Senat for concurrence; and was referred to the Committee o Municipal Government, consisting of 8 Republicans an 4 Democrats.

"I was a member of that Committee. In the Committe I opposed the Bill. I particularly objected to the amend ment to Section 5, which made the bonds of such Author ities legal investments. I pointed out that since ther was no control under the Act over the price which th Authority might pay for a project or over the sale o the bonds by the Authority, it was dangerous to mak these bonds legal investments; that this was especiall true in view of the fact that our Fiduciaries Act regu lating and defining legal investments passed only afte careful consideration by persons of considerable experi ence in that field.

"On April 5, 1939, the Committee reported the Bill ou as amended so that the provision making the bonds lega investments was removed but there was added to th Bill an amendment which included 'low head dams' a an additional Authority project; the Committee also adde a little irony to the picture by including the followin statement in the Bill: 'The purpose and intent of thi Act being to benefit the people of the Commonwealth by among other things, increasing their commerce an prosperity, and not to necessarily burden or interfer with existing business.'

"On the same day the Bill was read for the first time

"April 11, 1939, on motion of Mr. Owlett, seconded b Mr. Mallery, House Bill No. 38 was recommitted to th Committee on Municipal Government.

"On April 24, 1939, Mr. Owlett re-reported House Bi No. 38 from the Committee on Municipal Government a amended. The amendments in Committee were as follows

(1) The amendment making the bonds legal inves ments was restored.

(2) The approval of the Water and Power Resource Board was made a necessary requisite for the acquisitio by the Authority of water and water rights, and

(3) The Authority could only exercise the right eminent domain after it had acquired 65% of the proper involved by the purchase or agreement.

"On April 25, 1939, the Bill passed second reading, the Senate.

On April 26, 1939, the Bill came up for third readi and final passage, and Mr. Owlett asked unanimous co sent to correct a minor error; but on interrogation by M Edmonds, Mr. Owlett admitted that the amendment ma ng the Authority bonds legal investments had been restored to the Bill. In the discussion on the objection to the Bill by Mr. Edmonds and myself on a motion that the Bill be re-committed to the Committee for further study, the majority floor leader, made the following statement:

'Mr. President, I have no objection to the motion, and I have no interest in the bill myself, except I understand that some of the members of the House are very much interested in this bill because of a provision which permits the acquisition of water works by several municipalities, and I understand they are exceedingly interested in having these bonds legal investments for financing a number of improvements in the Senator from Montgomery's section of the State. I know there would be serious objection in the House to the Senate taking that clause out."

"On the assurance of Mr. Owlett that consideration of the Bill would be postponed to give the Senate time to consider the matter, Senator Edmonds withdrew his motion to re-commit the Bill and action on it was postponed.

"On May 1, 1939, the majority floor leader, called up House Bill No. 38 and moved to amend the Bill by striking out the provision which made the bonds legal investments. The amendment was agreed to.

"On May 8, 1939, Mr. Owlett moved that the Senate resume consideration of House Bill No. 38. I objected to the Bill, and among other things said:

'Mr. President, this Bill originally gave the right to State authorities—to local authorities, rather, to engage in water projects and sewer projects. It was then amended so as to make the bonds of those authorities subjects of investment for trust funds. It was then amended to make these bonds negotiable instruments. And then it was amended to take out the trust fund portion so that these bonds are no longer investments for trust funds. Now it is amended so as to include not only the purchase of water works from municipalities but also from private owners.

'Ordinarily this bill might not mean anything but if you read the rest of the bills that are coming through the Senate, there was one bill that came from the House last week which makes these bonds, municipal authority bonds, proper for deposit to secure bank deposits.'

'If we pass these bills and we continue to allow these State authorities to issue these bonds we will find ourselves in a position where we just as well might have permitted the amendment in the bill; and I think this bill is a bad bill because it does not stand alone but is aligned with other bills that are coming over to the Senate for passage, which will make the bonds acceptable as security—give the State a great deal of security which may turn out to be of no value, and for that reason I am voting against this bill.'

"The assertion often made, that a speech seldom changed vote in the Senate proved true again. My remarks did ot convince a single Republican Senator, nor did it change vote; the lines were fixed; the Bill passed finally. It eceived a bare constitutional majority 26 votes, though here were only 24 Republican Senators in the Senate, and ll the Democratic Senators voted against it.

"This, Mr. President, is the actual and factual history of ouse Bill No. 38 in its travels through the House and e Senate. There can be no dispute as to the facts reted. I have quoted from the record.

"The enactment of this Bill into law has created the scond political scandal in Delaware County; and the man involved in the first has now been indicted as the principal actor in the second.

"I am convinced that any disinterested person having some knowledge of legislative matters and the average citizen following the progress of this Bill from its introduction to its final passage would ask—

"(1) Why did Mr. Boyd, a member of the House from Philadelphia, introduce a Bill affecting or intended to affect a situation in Delaware County?

"(2) Who prepared the amendments introduced by Representative Leydic in the House?

"(3) At whose suggestion did Mr. Leydic introduce these amendments?

"(4) Who prepared the amendments for Mr. Boyd, which he introduced on second reading, the effect of which was to add water works and water distribution systems as an authorized project?

"(5) Who prepared the amendments for Mr. Boyd which authorized the transfer of any project by private owners by private agreement?

"(6) At whose suggestion was the amendment making the Authority bonds legal investments restored to the Bill after it had been stricken out by the Committee on Municipal Affairs in its first action on that Bill?

"(7) Who were the 'some members of the House' who, according to Mr. Owlett, were 'very much interested in this Bill because of a provision which permitted the acquisition of water works by several municipalities,' and who, according to the majority leader 'are exceedingly interested in having these bonds legal investments for financing a number of improvements in the Senator from Montgomery's section of the State?'

"(8) How did Mr. Owlett know that 'there would be serious objection in the House to the Senate taking that clause out?'

"And lastly, you, the members of this Senate, will ask, 'How did the Bill receive the requisite constitutional majority of 26 if, as I have said, all the Democrats voted against the Bill and only 24 Republicans voted for it?'

"The answer to all these questions, except the last, is not within my knowledge nor within the purpose of this discussion. But to the last question I think I know the answer. But first I should say that no one can deny that the whole corrupt scheme now sticks out like a sore thumb, and that the plan weaves its way through the pages of our Legislative Journal to its ultimate consummation, directed by the hand or hands of a person or persons who knew legislative procedure and legislators. Obviously the recitation of these facts is proof positive that without the active or at least passive assistance of the Legislature the scheme would have died aborning. That the members of this Senate actively participated I deny; but that the members of the Senate passively assisted by their votes at least, cannot be doubted; that the Republican Party leaders must bear full responsibility is the only honest conclusion.

"I think I can establish that fact. But if that were my only purpose I would not have taken the trouble or the time to bring this matter to your attention. These remarks are not intended to be destructive. Nor is it my aim to prove or claim that righteousness is an exclusive virtue of the Democratic party. On the contrary, I hope that my discussion may serve as a constructive criticism which may serve to bring about a more serious consideration of every piece of legislation that comes before this body by both parties.

"On the radio, in the newspaper, in our homes, we are constantly made aware of the fact that our democracies cannot prevail unless we can convince our people that a democracy is worth fighting for. The strength of a democracy lies in its law-making and law-enforcing bodies. I think I have said that frequently; and the ability of those bodies to function effectively increases in proportion to the respect which the people have for the law-making and law-enforcing bodies. Twenty-six people in this Senate, I have often said, hold in their hands the destiny of 10 millions of people. The history of House Bill No. 38 conclusively proves that every bill that comes before this Senate, no matter how innocuous it may appear, may be used for or have the effect of interfering with the financial or physical well-being of the people in some community or all over the State.

"Twenty-four Republican Senators voted for this Bill. The floor leader of the majority party made it his business to see to it that this Bill was finally enacted into law. The vote, which included every Republican in his seat at the time, indicates clearly that this was caucus action or that the desire of the majority floor leader was accepted by all the Republican members of the Senate.

"I have acquired a great respect and admiration for all these men. I have no word of criticism to offer of any one of them with respect to their vote on this Bill. Party regularity has been used and abused many times for the purpose of accomplishing the passage of legislation. Where it involves party pledges or principles, I can understand and agree with it. Our two party system requires it, for in that way only can the people judge of the sincerity of party promises. But when it is extended to non partisan or non political matters, it becomes an abuse. That it was abused in this case is obvious, because the party as such could have had no party interest in the passage of House Bill No. 38, unless it was that the party leaders were willing to pay a debt to a local leader and with absolute contempt for the Senatorial members of their party, used their votes for their own corrupt purposes. If this were not so, how could 24 Republican members of the Senate become a majority of 26 without Democrats voting for the Bill. The only way that could be accomplished would be by getting two members of the Senate who were not elected as Republicans to join the Republican ranks.

"Certainly neither Mr. Eroe nor Mr. Dando could be called Democrats. The methods by which Mr. Eroe was induced to vote with the Republicans on the organization of the Senate in 1939 was certainly a Senatorial, if not a public, scandal; the reason for Mr. Dando's absence from that organization meeting is a matter upon which I prefer not to linger. Mr. Dando and Mr. Eroe were elected as Democrats; their alliance with the Republican party is not a fit subject in a non political discussion such as this. These two men joined the Republicans in voting for the Bill. Who got them to do that, and at whose request? I am exposing no secrets when I refer to the fact that the majority leader of the Senate frequently came to the minority side to confer with these two gentlemen whenever the voting situation required it.

"I am frank to say that I do not believe that the majority floor leader was actuated by any desire, motive or interest other than to carry out the requests of the Republican party leaders in dealing with this Bill.

"As I said before, I do not make any charge, nor do I reflect on any single member of this Senate; but I do indict and charge the leaders of the Republican party with full responsibility.

"I cannot forget that the Earle administration, from the Governor down, were accused by the Republican party of high crimes and misdemeanors upon charges so flimsy that they cry out for shame in the face of this story.

"The local authorities in Delaware County have exposed this transaction. It has been made the subject matter of indictment. What have we, here in the Senate, done about the matter? There is a mad rush on the part of the Republican Senators to amend the laws so that this may not occur again. The Republicans are adopting the usual but futile method of attempting to cure moral ills by the application of a legislative poultice plaster. This case ought to serve as an answer to the cry of party regularity. It ought to destroy once and for all the argument that 'the organization is in favor of this bill,' as a reason for voting for it, which I so frequently heard as a member of the Republican party. I sense a rising feeling on both sides of this House against such arguments, and it is because of that feeling that I am willing to risk being misunderstood in order to focus attention upon a custom and a method of dealing with important legislative problems, which should long since have been outmoded and outlawed.

"The majority side include men of ability and conviction—men who have the courage of their convictions and who I am certain resent the fact that their votes were used for the purpose of carrying out the avaricious and the corrupt intentions of some greedy politicians. I think and I hope that that will appear from the manner in which legislation about to come before us will be treated.

"You may ask, 'Is this preliminary to a request for a legislative investigation,' and my answer is that so far as I am concerned I shall ask for no investigation and I do not think that anybody on this side of the House will. I am, however, expressing my personal opinion. I feel and I think that my colleagues will agree with me that whether it be by investigation or otherwise, the matter is in the lap of the Republican party leaders.

"The vehicle of corruption was created and built by them. It is their child. The exposition of its parentage and the reasons for its birth lie within the knowledge of those persons whose conception it is.

"The Republican majority of this Senate may take steps to lift the curtain if it so desires. If it does, and allows the chips to fall where they may, it will be to its everlasting credit. If it doesn't the public may assume that the legislature is corrupt and the Republican Party leadership is content. What may come from either an investigation or from completely ignoring these facts is problematical. What can come from a disclosure of these facts is what prompted me to recite them.

"The members of both parties with a full sense of their responsibilities to the people as well as to their party can make democracy worth fighting for by showing that the Legislative process is a democratic and not a dictated process. We of the Senate by resolving that we will view and act upon all non political legislation solely on its value to the people as a whole, can do much to bring the Legislature to that high public regard to which it should aspire.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, last week I spoke briefly upon the results of the Louis-Dorazio fight. Since that time I have received compliments and plenty of criticism. I have not been alarmed about the criticism up until today, when I found out that the Republican State Committee has injected themselves into this argument.

Mr. President, before I proceed I would like to have permission for the Clerk to read a release as given to the press on the twenty-first day of this month. I asked unanimous consent to present this release.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria may proceed.

The Clerk read the release as follows:

"February 21, 1941.

Republican State Committee
Front and Market Streets,
Harrisburg, Pa.

"For Release Saturday A. M. and P. M. Editions

"Harrisburg, Feb. 21st—Senator John J. Haluska, (D), Cambria County, who promulgated the "dive" charges in connection with the recent Joe Louis-Gus Dorazio fight, was called upon today to exercise his self-admitted pugilistic skill to sidestep explosive verbal punches tossed his way by Republican legislative leaders.

"Rep. Lloyd H. Wood, (R), Montgomery County, aggressive spokesman for a younger bloc of House Republicans, said that Haluska's 'comic-opera effort' to project himself as a Democratic authority on athletic and gaming issues was an 'irresponsible product of thwarted statesmanship.'

"Mr. Haluska's self-styled 'record' as an old-time fighter is as mysterious as the reasons for the electrifying speed with which his gaming skill now before the Legislature were repudiated this week by Democratic State Chairman Meredith Myers," Mr. Wood declared.

"If Mr. Haluska's views on gaming are so vigorously frowned upon by the leaders of his own party, with what degree of credibility can we look upon his 'expert' analysis of heavyweight championship fights?

"The gentleman from Cambria County, who admits, on the basis of his own boxing experience that he knows a dive when he sees one, not only takes issue with 60 of America's top-flight sports writers when he labels the Louis-Dorazio fight a 'frame-up' but he executes a questionable piece of footwork to gobble some free publicity at the expense of the Pennsylvania State Boxing Commission.

" 'Mr. Wood questioned Haluska's purported ring background and said that boxing records failed to identify anyone by that name who might even remotely be qualified to judge a "right cross from a green shutter."

" 'Mr. Haluska challenges the ephemeral quality of Joe Louis' punching prowess in an obvious effort to create an element of fraud and substantiate the Jaspan-Di Silvestra resolution to investigate the chairman of the State Boxing Committee.

" 'If Gus Dorazio was a party to a frame-up, then all of the victims of Mr. Louis' ring skill . . . Schmeling, Braddock and Baer . . . are placed in a similar light.'

" 'The Montgomery County Republican leader said he doubted that this theory would be accepted by accredited boxing scribes who have written the history of boxing 'since the halcyon days of Corbett and Sullivan.'

" 'Certainly the gentlemen of the press are better qualified to judge a knockout blow than an ex-boxer who had the dubious distinction of fighting for ten years only to have his contributions to fistic science so completely ignored by the official records.

"It is unlikely that in the course of his own meteoric career, Mr. Haluska was ever thrown in the same ring with anyone packing the pulverizing punch of Joe Louis or he might have greater respect for the courage displayed by Dorazio in carrying the fight to the champion before Louis administered the 'coup de grace.'

"Similarly, to accuse Joe Louis of any part in a shady ring frame-up is an affront to a great, deserving champion and the race he so honorably exemplifies,' Mr. Wood charged."

Mr. President, so that the record may be clear I wish to state that release was issued by the Republican State Committee.

Last week, Mr. President, the papers misquoted me when they said I said on this floor I had spent ten years of my life as a professional boxer. I said no such thing and the record shows that.

I did say, however, that I spent ten years of my life as a boxer. I mean now just what I said then, and Joe Louis was not implicated in any sense whatsoever in my remarks, but it is my opinion had Joe Louis wished he could have in the first minute of the first round flattened this man Dorazio.

However, Mr. President, this man Wood, whoever he might be, I understand is a member of the House of Representatives. I have checked the record and I find no place in that record of last week where he made any such remark but I do find by reading the press the remarks were made and therefore he must be a power and the words were placed in his mouth and I am surprised that the Republican State Committee would stoop so low as to inject themselves into this battle. Who are they? Who are these leaders?

This afternoon to determine the facts I tried to reach the Republican State Committee chairman, Mr. Torrance. I called three times but he failed to answer. I left word to have him call me but until the present time he has failed to call me.

I understand, Mr. President, the Republican party has a deficit to meet and I would like to make the suggestion, if Mr. Torrance deems it wise, he might try to arrange a bout between his power Wood and myself, the proceeds, if the contract is good, to go to the Republican party and to John Haluska.

Mr. President, I am not speaking for the Democratic party, I have never spoken for the Democratic party and whatever I say on this floor I am responsible for. If it is bad, it is my fault and if it is good the credit goes to me, but my party is not responsible for any bills that I introduce, as quoted by Mr. Wood.

Mr. President, my party is not responsible for what I say or do. I do the best I know how, the best I can. As Lincoln once said, I expect to keep on doing that to my very, very end, whatever the end brings me, and regardless of what might be said about me, and if the end proves me to be wrong, it would make no difference.

Now, Mr. President, I have not in any way tried to mislead anyone or make anyone believe Joe Louis was in the frame-up battle but I do say and I repeat that Gus Dorazio in that fight to find an easy way out went to the mat. He said himself he did not even feel it.

Mr. President, I recall when Joe Louis fought Schmeling, after he was hit, he went to the hospital; when Louis fought Galento he went to the doctor's immediately and some of the sports writers said Louis struck the greatest blow of his life when he hit Dorazio. What did Dorazio say? Mr. President, quoting from the paper Dorazio said he did not even feel it, and therefore Louis must have lost his punch if he struck the toughest punch and the hardest punch of his career.

So, in conclusion, Mr. President, I wish to state I am responsible for what I do. If Mr. Wood or the Republican party wishes to blame the Democratic Party for what I do it is up to them. If they refer to my gambling bills they are my own pet bills. I believe in them and this body will hear about them if we stay here until next December, I expect to put my bills before this body and get fair consideration of them, but do not blame the Democratic party for what I do.

Mr. President, if you men are interested in that release, if you are interested in bringing about a little clash, contact the State Chairman and let me see the contract and I will sign on the dotted line.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to convey to a very distinguished member of the press the sincere congratulations of the great State of Allegheny; we are awfully glad to see that he has recovered from the arduous responsibilities of becoming a proud father. Welcome back and sincere congratulations.

Mr. President, for the information of the members of the Senate, permit me to say the gentleman to whom I refer is the Honorable Joe Miller of the Philadelphia Inquirer.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, so as not to break the continuity of the business before the Senate, I now rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lackawanna will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, the gentleman from Cambria complained about the punch in the jaw given to Gus Dorazio in Philadelphia and my complaint is about a slap in the face given to the City of Scranton last week.

As a native born Scrantonian my sense of appreciation of a great community asserts itself and rebels against any unfair treatment of the third largest city in the State. I rise this afternoon, Mr. President, to protest against a rank injustice done to the region I represent in the Senate of Pennsylvania. In 1937 the Publicity Commission, whose function was taken over by the Department of Commerce, issued a booklet describing every political subdivision in the Commonwealth. After thousands had been distributed throughout the country it was discovered that reference to Scranton was omitted from the book. Notwithstanding that the taxpayers of Scranton had contributed their proportionate share of the $500,000 appropriation to the Commission, the City next to Pittsburgh in size was not even mentioned. I took up the matter with the late Warren C. Van Dyke, an estimable gentleman, who was Chairman of the Commission and learned that a proof reader had inadvertently omitted placing the sheet describing Scranton in the booklet. On the age old truism that 'twas human to err we accepted the apology and a clip sheet was later added to the remaining copies not distributed. The people of the metropolis of the anthracite then settled down to peaceful pursuits. We heeded the Biblical admonition and turned our collective cheeks only to get another slap last week, the sound of which has justifiably angered every resident of the region I represent.

Last week there was released the first edition of the book. "Pennsylvania; A guide to the Keystone State." Compiled and edited as a Pennsylvania Writers project of the W.P.A. and just published by the Oxford University Press, New York. It is a 660 page illustrated volume costing $3.00 per copy. It is sponsored, as I understand it, by the Pennsylvania Historical Commission and the University of Pennsylvania . Listen to their description of Scranton and surrounding communities I quote "Despite the angular skyline formed by coal breakers and factory stacks, despite an occasional building resting askew on sunken foundation, Scranton, as a whole is not dull or drab, though at places it is soot begrimed."

"Close to the river which winds in a southwesterly direction through the City, lies the downtown district, brightly lighted at night as if to relieve the miners' surfeit of subterranean darkness."

"Coal" continues the description "is the theme song of this City of the Hills. Coal brought prosperity and despair. Coal built its mansions, stores, banks, hotels and hovels, artificial hills of unsightly coal refuse and undermined the City itself."

Let me continue their description of some of the boroughs in Lackawanna County. Here is what they say about Mayfield. "Its wide main street terminates abruptly in shrubless mountainsides, to which grimy shacks, surrounded by grotesque alphabets of endless clothes lines cling desperately." Archbald, for example is described in this fashion.

"The coal black Lackawanna River flows through the town between high artificial banks, and periodic floods add silt to heavy layers of grime. Most of the streets are lined with shacks and end blindly in culm piles."

To add to the idiotic stupidity of those responsible for it the book contains a picture supposed to be a scene of Scranton. It appeared in a local paper with the caption "Take a Second look; W.P.A. calls this Scranton." Nobody in the community could recognize it. It happens to be a picture of Wilkes-Barre and I might say not a very flattering picture of the hustling community south of Scranton. I just want to talk briefly, Mr. President, if the members of the Senate will bear with me, about Scranton. There is not a camera developed as yet that can absorb the intangible things that make Scranton a great community. There is not a photographic plate sensitive enough to picture the things about Scranton I should like to discuss with you this afternoon.

For many years Scranton has been known as a terminal of good fellowship and while the coal mined from beneath our region has been diffusing the distilled sunshine of the ages over a shivering, though not always duly grateful country, its no less inexhaustible mine of hospitality has been giving warmth to people from all over the world. Those of you who might have visited our community have observed that we have abandoned the traditional policy of giving the key to the city to distinguished visitors, because in Scranton there is no necessity for any key. The warmth of our hospitality melted the lock away many years ago.

For more than thirty years, within the scope of my recollection, Scranton has been the greatest inland sporting city in America. Lackawanna County has been sending delegations to every sporting event from the game and play of chess to the sport of kings. Everywhere that champions contend for supremacy whether it be on netted courts, on baseball fields, amidst the swinging clatter of hockey sticks, on the gridiron, Scranton sons are on hand to yell and cheer to applaud and commend. Whenever the yearling or the colt contended for honors whether it be amid the blue grass hills of a Kentucky Derby or on the track at Saratoga you'll find the coal region boys occupying the best seats.

Whenever the emergency arose whether it be the call to colors or to contribute to a charitable cause the people of my community have always responded nobly. Those are the things that make a community great, not majestic temples of marble and granite. Scranton is a community where they still have wholesome sentiment, where the people still discuss with some reverence the church around the corner and the cemetery on the hill.

Scranton grew from a spot in the wilderness to the third largest city of Pennsylvania and while coal is the basic industry in our city Scranton runs the gamut in the diversity of her other products. Among them machinery, underwear, stoves, grates and stokers, salt, graphic art products. Scranton is the home of the nations greatest lace mill and is the second largest silk producing city in America. She is called the electric city because she was the first to run electric street cars in America. She was also the first city in which the third rail system was developed and operated. Scranton is proud of the university of Scranton and the graduates from the great Institution who have made their mark in various fields throughout the nation. She likewise takes great pride in Marywood college and boasts of being the home of the International Correspondence school, the largest of its kind in the entire world. Scrantonians are noted for their fine civic pride and many of them have bestowed gifts upon their city—Everhart museum. Weston Field and Albright Memorial Library to name but a few. Scranton has the greatest natural water supply in America. Her sons and daughters have reflected credit upon our community. In the movies Allen Jones has captured the hearts of theatre-goers in America and the little girl universally hailed as the screen find was born within the very shadow of my home. I refer to little Gloria Jean. The O'Neils, the Shortens, McNally and others left their impression on the national pasttime, Pete Latzo, George Chip and others won world's championships in the boxing ring.

We're proud to say that Scranton is the home of such men as Frank Walker, Postmaster General, E. J. Lynett, owner and publisher of the Scranton Times, the late M. E. Comerford, who built a small Nickelette into the greatest chain of theatres in the Nation and whose life story reads like a page torn from fiction, the late John Mitchell, great labor leader and defender of human rights.

The Lackawanna Valley is a community in which thirty-seven different religions and as many nationalities live in peace, tolerant of the others point of view. The three great faiths, the Catholic, Protestant and Jewish, are ever eager to join together in any community enterprise for the public good.

Yes, I am proud of the city in which I was born and which has given me the opportunity to sit in the Senate of Pennsylvania, and I rightly resent this distortion of facts in connection with the community I represent. We overlooked the inadvertent omission several years ago which didn't do our community any good. But we cannot sit idly by and see such gross exaggeration contained in a book compiled at the expense of the taxpayers. Scranton invites you to visit our community and get a first hand view of a truly great city.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I regret very much I am not able to add anything to the tribute to the City of Scranton paid by the gentleman from Lackawanna and I am not able from lack of intelligence to discuss the question of personal privilege raised by the gentleman from Cambria and, indeed, Mr. President, the condition of my throat is such that I could not discuss anything at great length but, Mr. President, I do want to say a word about the report which the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, has just read to us in connection with the municipal authorities.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will proceed.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, the Senator from Philadelphia is perfectly right. there is something wrong there. I have made some little study of this question and personally I have reached the conclusion the fault is in the act of 1935 and not the act of 1939, as the act of 1939 widened the scope of the act of 1935 but it was the act of 1935 that started these authorities with a legal existence, making it easy to establish them and easy for them to borrow money, and easy for them to enter into contracts, and all this without supervision by the state.

Mr. President, I think there is evil in this legislation which ought to be corrected and I think we can do it at this session. We have been trying to find out some information concerning authorities, and with the thought this might be viewed preliminarily, Mr. President, I ask permission to offer a resolution and urge its immediate adoption.

DIRECTING THE SECRETARY OF THE SENATE TO ADDRESS A LETTER TO MUNICIPAL AUTHORITIES, REQUESTING INFORMATION

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. EDMONDS offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 24, 1941.

Resolved, by the Senate of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, That the Secretary of the Senate be and he is hereby authorized and directed to address a letter to the various Municipal Authorities of the Commonwealth, as set forth in the list provided by the Secretary of the Commonwealth at the request of the Senate, requesting answers to the following questions:

First: What projects have been undertaken by the Municipal Authority in question, and which of these projects have been finished?

Second: What debt has been contracted by the Municipal Authority and how many bonds are now outstanding?

Third: What is the rate of interest upon the bonds of the Municipal Authority?

Fourth: Will you please send a copy of your latest Annual Report or Financial Statement with the answers to this question?

REPORT BY STATE HOUSING BOARD

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, last week I offered a resolution calling upon the State Housing Board for information and that information has just come and it is very interesting. It gives a list of the Housing Authorities and shows the series of bonds that have been authorized, totaling between sixty and seventy millions of dollars.

MOTION TO FURNISH COPIES OF REPORT TO MEMBERS OF SENATE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I move that the Secretary of the Senate be instructed to mimeograph this answer and place a copy on the desks of each of the Senators.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I second the motion.

It was agreed to.

MEMORIALIZATION OF GEORGE WASHINGTON

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I am happy in the thought that we as Americans are privileged to pay tribute to two illustrious individuals whose birthdays appear this month, and as has been the precedent and custom in the chambers of this Senate on Lincoln's birthday, I feel it is only fit and proper that we lay aside our arduous duties long enough to say some word of tribute in respect to George Washington, and, Mr. President, with that in mind I respectfully ask the indulgence of the members of this body.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Luzerne will proceed.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, members of the Senate of Pennsylvania, there is no mistaking the gravity of the times in which we live. Fortunate as we are in our residence and citizenship in this great State of Pennsylvania and in this blessedly situated United States of America, the shadow of the world conflict now raging inevitably is with us at all times. In the words of Matthew Arnold:

"We are here as on a darkling plain
Swept with confused alarms of struggling and flight
Where ignorant armies clash by night."

But no matter how serious the hour or how pressing the business of the day, the State Senate of Pennsylvania would be remiss in its obligation, would be unmindful of the great traditions which illuminate the pages of our country's history, were we not to pause for a moment to pay homage to that greatest of all Americans whose anniversity a grateful nation celebrated just two days ago.

An English historian has pointed out rather keenly, that it is a wise country that knows its own parent, and Americans are properly proud that the life and accomplishments of the father of this country are well known to all of us. Beginning in his own day, the wise men of America and indeed of every other nation have been quick to recognize the nature of George Washington. The tributes that have been paid to him are many and varied. They range from the sonorous eloquence of Edward Everett's master on the character of Washington:

"No gilded dome swells from the lowly roof (of Mount Vernon) to catch the morning or evening beam; but the love and gratitude of United America settle upon it in one eternal sunshine. From beneath that humble roof went forth the intrepid and unselfish warrior, the magistrate who knew no glory but his country's good; to that he returned, happiest when his work was done. There he lived in noble simplicity, there he died in glory and peace. While it stands, the latest generations of the grateful children of America, will make this pilgrimage to it as a shrine; and when it shall fall, if fall it must, the memory and name of Washington shall shed an eternal glory on the spot."

to the homely words of the humorist, Artemus Ward, who said:

"The prevailin' weakness of most public men is to slop over. George Washington never slopt over."

But while it has been customary on the occasion of Washington's birthday to rehearse what has been said and what is known of his life and accomplishments, to do so at this particular time in our nation's history is of more than usual moment. It is fitting that in times of crises we look back to the founding fathers of the nation and that from their words and actions, we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave their full measure of devotion. Just as the devil can cite scripture to his own purposes, so the public speakers, the legislators, the publicist can in the writings and sayings of a man like Washington, find words to suit whatever doctrine he desires to promulgate. The interventionist and the pacifist, the Republican and Democrat, the loyal American and the member of secret shirted groups can twist the words of George Washington to suit his own purpose.

It is not my intention to do that, in the limited time we pause to take this afternoon. But I cannot help delving into the life and background of the immortal founder of American Democracy, to find an incident which can serve to hearten and inspire us for the days of anguish and effort that lies ahead for all Americans. And fittingly enough I find those words in a letter which George Washing wrote on Pennsylvania's soil, written from Valley Forge to the Continental Congress in Philadelphia. This letter was written on December 23rd, 1777, at a time when criticism of Washington's leadership had grown loud and [illegible]cus.

"Sir, (Washington wrote)

Though I have been tender heretofor of giving any opinion, or lodging complaints, as the change in that department took place contrary to my judgment, and the consequences thereof were predicted; yet, finding that the inactivity of the army, whether for want of provisions, clothes, or other essentials, is charged to my account, not only by the common vulgar, but by those in power, it is time to speak plain in exculpation of myself. With truth, then, I can declare that no man in my opinion ever had his measures more impeded than I have, by every department of the army.

. . . As a proof of the little benefit received from a clothier general, and as a further proof of the inability of an army, under the circumstances of this, to perform the common duties of soldiers . . . we have by a field returned this day, made, no less than two thousand eight hundred and ninety-eight men now in camp, unfit for duty, because they are barefoot or otherwise naked . . . Since the fourth instant, our numbers fit for duty, from the hardships and exposures they have undergone, particularly on account of blankets (numbers having been obliged, and still are, to sit up all night by fires, instead of taking comfortable rest in a natural and common way), have decreased nearer two thousand men.

We find gentlemen, without knowing whether the army was really going into winter quarters or not . . . reprobating the measures as much as if they thought the soldiers were made of stocks or stones and equally insensible of frost or snow . . .

But what makes this matter still more extraordinary in my eye is, that those very gentlemen—who were well apprized of the nakedness of the troops from ocular demonstration . . . should think a winter's campaign and the covering of these states (New Jersey and Pennsylvania) from the invasion of an enemy, so easy and practicable a business. I can assure these gentlemen, that it is a much easier and less distressing thing to draw remonstrances in a comfortable room by a good fireside, than to occupy a cold, bleak hill, and sleep under frost or snow without clothes or blankets. However, although they seem to have little feeling for the naked and distressed soldiers, I feel superabundantly for them, and, from my soul, I pity those miseries, which it is neither in my power to relieve or prevent.

It is for these reasons, therefore, that I have dwelt upon the subject; and it adds not a little to my other difficulties and distress to find, that much more is expected of me than is possible to be performed, and upon the ground of safety and policy, I am obliged to conceal the true state of the army from public view, and thereby expose myself to detraction and calumny.

Signed—GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Viewed in the lapse of a century and a half the life of George Washington may have seemed serene and unsullied by failure or fear of failure. But this letter indicates that the father of his country lived too in parlous times. The glorious success which attended the efforts of that army which wallowed in the despair of "miseries which it is neither in my power to relieve or prevent" should serve to inspire America and Americans to go forward with our own fight for democracy. The opologists of gloom which surrounds us to-day are the same which no doubt surrounded Washington at Valley Forge. There were undoubtedly many sincere and loyal followers of the Revolutionists who argued that the Colonial forces were hopelessly unprepared, that they were woefully weak and that they would not be able to withstand attack. And yet under the leadership of Washington they came through the dark days.

The dark days that are before us, are trifling compared to those of Washington's times. We are a great nation now, rich, powerful, augmented by that strength which true democracy has instilled in us. With but a tithe of Washington's courage we can surmount all obstacles. But in addition to that fortitude of Valley Forge we need something else which Washington too, foresaw. In a circular letter addressed by George Washington to the governors of the states at the close of the revolution, he said—"There are four things which I humbly conceived are essential to the well being, I may venture to say to the existance of the United States.

First: An indissoluble union of the states under one federal power.

Second: A reward for public justice.

Third: The adoption of a proper peace establishment.

Fourth: The prevelence of that pacific and friendly disposition among the peoples of the United States, which will induce them to forget their local prejudices and policies; to make those mutual concessions which are requisite to the general prosperity; and in some instances to sacrifice their individual advantages to the interest of the community.

Fellow Senators, a century and a half later we have need of unity in the spirit and form of Washington's common sense—a unity based upon a deep and sympathetic knowledge of differences. And we have need also of a sense of consecration to those fundamental principles which Washington valiantly fought for. In George Washington's pew in Saint Paul's Chapel in New York City are inscribed the words of a prayer which we may repeat today:

"Almighty God, we make our earnest prayer that thou wilt keep the United States in thy holy protection; that thou wilt incline the hearts of the citizens to cultivate a spirit of subordination and obedience to government; to entertain a brotherly affection and love for one another and for their fellow citizens of the United States at large."

Fortitude; unity; good will—those were the qualities of George Washington—and it is for those, that we of the Pennsylvania Senate due him honor today.

REPORT ON CO-OPERATIVE RESEARCH PROGRAM ON ANTHRACITE AND BITUMINOUS COAL

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I do not know whether it will be necessary for me to formally arise on a question of personal privilege, in order to state that I desire to submit to the Senate a report on the progress and accomplishments of the Bureau of Research covering anthracite and bituminous coal, established by the Pennsylvania State College, under the supervision of the Department of Mines and Mining.

Mr. President, it is rather a lengthy report and I would respectfully ask that it be printed in the journal of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT.. If there is no objection the report will be printed in the journal of the Senate.

The report is as follows:

ADDRESS BY THE HONORABLE ROBERT M. MILLER
SENATOR FROM THE 20TH DISTRICT

Reporting Progress on the Cooperative Research Program on Anthracite and Bituminous Coal at Pennsylvania's School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station The Pennsylvania State College under Act No. 392 of the General Assembly of 1939

Anthracite and bituminous coal are the principal sources of mineral wealth in Pennsylvania. In dollars, they commonly represent three-quarters of the total produced in the Commonwealth annually.

Anthracite production reached a peak in 1917 with 99,611,811 tons. Since that date, there has been an almost constant decline so that recorded production for 1939 amounted to only 51,345,701 tons. Preliminary figures indicate that production during 1940 will be slightly less than this figure. Similarly, bituminous coal production in Pennsylvania has declined from a peak in 1918 of 178,550,741 tons to 92,190,000 tons in 1939.

* Figures from Dept. of Internal Affairs, Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

These figures in themselves mean little, but when translated into terms of unemployment, decline in real estate values, loss of revenue to the State and staggering relief costs, they supply the most serious social and economic problem with which the State must deal.

Realizing this situation and seeking to alleviate these conditions by increasing the market for Pennsylvania coals, I proposed to the General Assembly of the Commonwealth in 1939 a bill providing for research work on anthracite and bituminous coal to be conducted at the School of Mineral Industries and Experiment Station of The Pennsylvania State College under the supervision of the Department of Mines of the Commonwealth. This bill was passed as Act No. 392 appropriating the sum of $50,000 for the biennium for the program of research contingent upon the provision of a like matching sum. The bill as signed by the Honorable Arthur H. James, Governor of the Commonwealth, provided an appropriation of $35,000 for the biennium.

It is a pleasure to be able to report that both the anthracite and bituminous coal industries of Pennsylvania have cooperated whole-heartedly in this program and that substantial progress has been made toward the development of new or improved uses for coal.

Immediately following authorization by passage of this law, the late Honorable John Ira Thomas, then Secretary of Mines, called a meeting of representatives of the anthracite and bituminous coal industries and of both operators and labor at his office in Harrisburg. At this meeting provision of matching funds by both anthracite and bituminous industries was guaranteed, and the Secretary was requested to appoint committees representing all interested parties to meet with representatives of the School of Mineral Industries to formulate programs of research for the two industries.

In the latter part of July 1939, representatives of the anthracite industry met with the staff of the Mineral Industries School and, after an extended consideration of the problems facing this industry, it was decided that research should be concentrated upon two lines of attack. The major problem selected was "Gasification of Anthracite" and as a secondary problem "Activation of Anthracite" was chosen because it was believed that these projects would prove most beneficial to industry in the immediate future. At this meeting a Research Advisory Committee was appointed to cooperate with the College staff in the effective furtherance of the projects. Members of this committee were as follows:

Early in August representatives of the bituminous industry likewise met with the staff of the Mineral Industries School and adopted a program of two projects. As major project "Comfort Heating with Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal" was selected and as secondary project, the development of "Soluble Coal" studies. The Research Advisory Committee appointed to represent the bituminous coal industry was as follows:

Due to delays in determining the methods of financing this work, it was not until October 15, 1939, that an agreement was finally reached between the representatives of the two industries, the State Department of Mines and the College Administration, and funds were actually made available for use by the research staff of the School of Mineral Industries.

Since that time a staff of twelve full-time research men has been built up and these investigators are assisted by six full-time shop and laboratory technicians. The research staff of the project was carefully selected to include men with diversified education and training; eminent fuel technologists were placed in charge of the work. The School has assigned to the projects the use of four laboratories having a combined floor space of appproximately 1800 square feet with facilities for all types of fuels research.

A review of the purpose, method of attack and progress on each specific project is outlined briefly in the following paragraphs.

Gasification of Anthracite

Prior to and during the first world war, and appreciable tonnage of the larger sizes of anthracite found a ready market as generator fuel for the production of carburetted water gas. Although statistics are incomplete for that period, the peak sales of anthracite for water gas generator fuel appear to have reached well over a million tons per year about 1919. Partly as a result of excess coke producing facilities engendered by the war effort of 1917 and 1918 and partly as a result of the prolonged anthracite strike of the early twenties, anthracite was largely replaced in the water gas field by coke, bituminous coal and oil. Little or no research effort was exerted by the anthracite industry to counteract the extensive programs of research and improvement initiated by other interests, and as a result, anthracite has failed to recapture this important tonnage market. The 1938 statistics, the latest available, show that the anthracite industry provided 57,000 tons of generator fuel, or less than 5 per cent of the total solid fuel used in the normal anthracite marketing area. Modern developments of gas manufacturing equipment and methods of operation have, in general, been such as to favor the use of these substitute fuels and further displace anthracite from its once held position as a premium fuel for this market. This trend has had definite repercussions throughout the entire anthracite industry: Decreased demand for over a million tons of grate and egg sizes has necessitated crushing these sizes to stove, nut and pea with increase in processing costs and subsequent losses due to the production of lower valued buckwheat sizes.

With these considerations in mind, the Advisory Committee on Anthracite Research selected as the major project for investigation the use of anthracite as generator fuel for the water gas process. Plans were formulated for a threefold attack upon the problem and included: Laboratory studies on the properties of anthracite of specific importance in water gas manufacture; plant scale tests on the use of anthracite in both the heavy oil and gas oil processes of water gas manufacture; and a survey and compilation of operating methods and operating data for plants successfully using anthracite in order to familiarize the gas industry with the possibilities of this fuel, and to inform the anthracite industry as to the requirements of this market.

A study of the probelms of the gas industry revealed that the one property of anthracite about which least was known and yet which was of vital concern in gas manufacture was that of stability to thermal and mechanical shock. Laboratory studies were made of this property and as a result of these investigations a method has been developed by which this property can be quantitatively evaluated. The details of the method have been published in summary for use by interested parties.

Using the standard test procedure, tests have been made on anthracite from all the major mining districts of Pennsylvania. These tests demonstrated conclusively that a wide variation exists between the stability of coals from various districts. Some coals are resistant to thermal shock, others to mechanical shock, but only those of a few districts are reasonably resistant to a combination of the two types of shock to which water gas fuel is normally subjected. Calculations have been made to show the probable degree of satisfaction to be expected from coals of any district, and the results show that for the majority of water gas plants most anthracites are sufficiently stable for all practical purposes. For those plants where conditions of thermal and mechanical shock are severe, however, only a few of the most stable coals can be expected to perform with satisfaction. Details of the tests and methods of calculations have been presented to the Anthracite Institute in order that greater care may be exercised in recommending sources of coals for use in gas manufacture.

Through the courtesy and cooperation of the management of the Pottsville Gas Company, of Pottsville, Pennsylvania, extensive plant scale tests on the use of anthracite as generator fuel for the heavy oil process of water gas manufacture have been made at the Pottsville Gas Plant. These tests have been quite comprehensive and have included the use of three different anthracites. Studies were made on the most suitable methods of operation, efficiency of operation, and technical factors of specific interest to the gas industry. The results of these tests are very promising and indicate that anthracite can be used with satisfaction and efficiency with but minor modifications in methods of operating technique. Data were likewise secured on the necessary modifications required for using coals from different districts. Conclusions resulting from the laboratory studies on the effect of thermal and mechanical shock were substantiated in these tests. At the present time a technical article is in preparation covering the results of these tests and will be presented in the near future before a meeting of gas engineers in order to acquaint them with the possibilities of anthracite for use as water gas generator fuel.

Further plant scale tests are now underway at Carlisle, Pennsylvania, where, through the courtesy of the Pennsylvania Power and Light Company, studies are being made on the use of anthracite as generator fuel for a plant using the gas oil process. In these tests, coals from all the major anthracite fields will be studied, and further technical data secured on such points of interest as rate of steam decomposition, heat balances, and pressure and temperature surveys.

For use by the anthracite industry, a technical bulletin is now in preparation which outlines the scope and the needs of the water gas industry, the properties required of generator fuel, the methods of operation of gas-making equipment and modifications desirable for best results using anthracites, the results now being obtained by plants using anthracite, and the results that may reasonably be expected in various types of equipment if anthracite is used.

The selection of this subject as the major research problem of the anthracite project was, I believe, especially fortunate at this time when National Defense is paramount in the interest of the Nation. At the present time, a shortage of coke is developing as a result of the demands of our metallurgical industry. Technical information on the use of anthracite in gas manufacture is, therefore, urgently needed in order that maximum efficiency can be maintained in our varied war efforts. The staff of the water gas research project has already been called upon for advice and recommendations regarding the use of anthracite for water gas production and it is expected that the importance of this work will gain further recognition in the near future.

Activation of Anthracite

As the secondary project of the anthracite research program, the Advisory Committee selected a study of non-fuel uses for anthracite. Of the numerous possibilities considered, the production of active carbon was chosen because the inherent properties of anthracite appear to be such that it might have certain advantages over competing raw materials.

Active carbon is a material which by suitable treatment can be prepared from a variety of carbonaceous materials but, as the name indicates, it is essentially a form of carbon, and anthracite is the most concentrated form of carbon available in nature at reasonable cost. Active carbon is a special form of carbon that possesses the property of selectively absorbing other materials, especially liquids and gases, and is used industrially for a variety of purification processes such as deodorizing, decolorizing, clarifying and filtering gases and liquids. It is produced by selective oxidation, often with steam, at high temperatures and is a product whose use by industry is rapidly increasing both in scope and in quantity.

Because active carbons are quite specific in their action, and methods of preparation vary considerably depending upon the use for which they are intended, it was agreed that effort should be concentrated upon the preparation of a granular carbon suitable for the rapidly expanding water purification market. In view of the National Defense measures, the possibilities of gas mask carbon was also to be considered.

From time to time the results of small scale batch-type laboratory experiments have appeared in the technical literature claiming that anthracite could be satisfactorily activated to give suitable active carbons for some purposes. Experience has shown, however, the results of this type of work rarely agree with the findings from continuous industrial processes. This is not surprising in view of the sensitivity of active carbons to the conditions under which they are prepared. It was decided, therefore, that the activation project should be on a scale that would warrant predictions as to the probability of industrial success.

An activation furnace was designed and constructed for the continuous production of approximately one pound per hour of active carbon. This unit is capable of considerable flexibility in operation and permits careful control and controlled variation in any one of the several factors which influence the degree of activation and the quality of the product.

Experiments have been made with a number of anthracites using pea and buckwheat sizes from the several coal fields. The results have shown that all coals are not equally well adapted for the process, and that considerable variation is possible in coal from a given colliery. Using pea size coal, granular active carbon has been produced which possesses from 50 to 75 per cent of the activity of the better grades of carbon now marketed and compares favorably with the poorer grades sometimes found. Although, in general, not sufficiently active for most purposes, this anthracite carbon could be produced relatively cheaply and may prove of industrial use as a cheap active carbon for industrial water purification. Efforts are being made at the present time to determine the applicability of the product for this purpose because of the demand for a cheap means of purifying industrial waters to eliminate stream polution.

For the production of a carbon with activity comparable to the best grades now marketed, experiments have shown that it will be necessary to reduce materially the particle size of the coal to be activated. In order to accomplish this objective and still produce a granular product, studies are being made on the briquetting of fine sizes prior to activation. Through cooperation of the American Briquet Company of Lykens, Pennsylvania, a variety of blends have been prepared in briquet form. Experiments have been made to determine the most suitable baking conditions to give a briquet of maximum strength, and activation experiments are now underway on the briquetted material. Due to the presence of the briquet binder and to the changed physical condition of the coal in the briquet, a recheck is necessary of the most suitable activation conditions to give maximum activity.

This work is progressing satisfactorily and the results so far obtained indicate that improvement in activity is possible by this method of treatment.

Comfort Heating with Pennsylvania Bituminous Coal

The comfort heating of residential homes is a development of recent years resulting from the application of science and engineering to the fulfillment of a public demand. The American public has demanded, and at a price has secured, automatic heating with virtually all domestic fuels except bituminous coal. Even with bituminous coal a certain degree of pseudo-automatic heating is possible in certain sections of the country where coals are available which are adapted to use in the type of stoker generally marketed. The extent to which this industry has grown in recent years is illustrated by the following figures: The stoker production of the United States for the past three years has approximated 100,000 units per year and the total number of stokers estimated to be in use exceeds one-half million units. Of these, approximately one-half or about 250,000 are believed to be of the residential heating type. For the past five years the sale of stoker coal has been increasing at the rate of approximately 3 million tons per year and in 1939 reached the rate of approximately 20 million tons per year.

It is readily apparent from these figures that automatic heating has attained the status of a major industry and the question may well be asked as to how Pennsylvania industry and labor are sharing in the benefits of this development. Unfortunately, we are not securing our proportionate share of this rapidly expanding market, and Pennsylvania coals supply but a minor fraction of the residential stoker coal now sold.

There are two major reasons why Pennsylvania has failed to benefit by this trend toward automatic heat and both originate with the development of bituminous coal stokers. Soft coal stokers had their origin in the far West where high grade coking coals such as abound in Pennsylvania are not generally available. Hence, the burning equipment was designed to handle those coals most readily procured, namely, weakly coking, low ash fusion coals. The development and manufacture of domestic stokers has continued to concentrate in the West, and even today considerably over 90 per cent of the stokers are manufactured in states west of Pennsylvania. Advancement in design, efficiency, and manufacturing have, therefore, with few exceptions been based upon the utilization of local or cheaply imported coals and not upon the use of high quality Pennsylvania coal.

In general, Pennsylvania bituminous coals are strongly coking and have ash fusion characteristics that are not adapted to use in stokers designed primarily for other types of coal. Minor attempts at modification of the burning equipment have been made, but prior to the present research program at The Pennsylvania State College, no concentrated effort has been undertaken to develop a unit specifically adapted to our coals. Moreover, virtually all the residential type bituminous coal stokers now marketed are, because of the character of the coal for which they were designed, of the clinkering type which require daily manual removal of ash in the form of clinkers. Under no stretch of the imagination can these be classed as truly automatic, and they do not, therefore, fulfill completely the public demand.

Surveys of the domestic heating field showed that only one stoker was on the market which could be classed as fully automatic. This unit was developed by The Pocahontas Fuel Company of West Virginia and has proved highly satisfactory for the purpose intended, namely, automatic comfort heating with Pocahontas coal. Until recently it has been the policy of this company to sell and guarantee their stoker only if used with Pocahontas coal, but the sales policy has been liberalized somewhat within the past year or two. However, this unit has not proved entirely successful for use with the majority of Pennsylvania bituminous coals due to the strongly coking nature of our coal.

Four other stokers that purport to give automatic comfort heating are known to be in various stages of development and two of these have been placed on the market this past fall. Only two of these units have been developed with the idea of burning Pennsylvania coals and neither has yet proved itself satisfactory.

Research work on comfort heating under the Miller Bill program has of necessity followed two lines of attack, both having the same objective, namely, development of a satisfactory, completely automatic stoker for Pennsylvania bituminous slack coals. One phase of the work deals with the testing of automatic stokers that appear promising in order to determine their applicability to the burning of Pennsylvania coals, and has included minor development work on modifications to adapt the units for this purpose. The other phase has been the development of an entirely new unit specifically designed for the purpose of burning Pennsylvania coking coals.

The combustion laboratory of the project is now one of the most competely equipped and staffed organizations in the country for studies on comfort heating with bituminous coal. Facilities are available for simultaneous testing and development work on three units. Equipment is also available for modification of the properties of bituminous coals in order to change their behavior in combustion equipment. Tests have been completed or are now in progress on one conventional clinkering type stoker and all the automatic and semi-automatic ash removal type stokers now available on the market.

Of the stokers tested, only one has proved reasonably satisfactory for the handling of bituminous coal and that one only for a limited few coals with properties that are not common to the major portion of the tonnage of the Commonwealth. Suggestions for modification of these stokers have been made to the manufacturers and in two instances some improvement has been obtained. In neither stoker, however, have the improvements yet been sufficient to warrant unconditional recommendation of these units for use with Pennsylvania coals. Interest in the problem has been stimulated as a result of these tests and suggestions, however, and there is reasonable justification for the belief that substantial improvement of these stokers will result.

Development work on a new stoker has progressed satisfactorily. The primary problem of burning the strongly coking coals without formation of coke trees or coke plugs has been satisfactorily solved by utilizing the principle of preoxidation of the coal. This has been accomplished in the full scale experimental stoker by utilizing a portion of the air supplied for combustion. The mechanical features of air admission and proportioning have been worked out in the laboratory to give maximum simplicity of operation. Combustion tests have been made in this experimental stoker using 14 different coals representing all the major seams of Pennsylvania and covering a wide range of physical properties. The results have been decidedly encouraging. No coal has yet been found which cannot be handled satisfactorily in this stoker.

Studies have been made of the four basic types of ash removal systems—clinker, spill-over, scraper and movable grate, and the conclusion reached that some type of movable grate is most suitable for use with Pennsylvania coals. Experiments are now underway on the incorporation of such a device on the experimental stoker.

In view of the results so far secured as a result of both test and development work, the technologists in charge of this research feel confident in stating that the time is not far distant when we can expect to see on the market one or more bituminous coal stokers that will enable the public to secure from Pennsylvania bituminous coals the automatic comfort heating they have every right to expect.

"Soluble Coal"

As a result of researches carried out at the School of Mineral Industries of The Pennsylvania State College between the years 1936 and 1939, it was discovered that by suitable methods of oxidation, bituminous coal could be rendered soluble in certain organic solvents such as furfural and that by subsequent recovery of the soluble material an ash free product could be secured. This ash free product which has been termed "soluble coal" possesses physical and chemical properties which suggest its possible applicability for a variety of industrial uses such as the production of carbon black, Diesel fuel, and synthetic plastics, as an intermediate product in the production of liquid hydrocarbons by hydrogenation or as raw material for active carbon production.

Recognizing the long-range nature of such work, the Research Advisory Committee for bituminous coal recommended as a secondary project that a more intensive study be made of the methods of producing, recovering and utilizing the "soluble coal." Following these suggestions, the research staff has completed an extensive study of production and recovery methods from which it is possible to estimate the probable costs of commercial manufacture. Studies on possible methods of utilization of the "soluble coal" have been carried out along one of two lines of attack with definite indications of success.

After a study of a wide variety of possible oxidizing agents, it was concluded that nitric acid in either liquid or vapor form was the most suitable oxidizing agent. This conclusion was in agreement with preliminary experiments used in the development of the original process; but using larger scale experiments and new methods of application, it has been shown that the consumption of nitric acid can be reduced by 50 per cent or more without seriously affecting the yield of "soluable coal." This reduction in acid consumption is of decided economic importance because for the original process the acid costs limited materially the economic possibilities of the "soluble coal."

The method of recovery found most successful for laboratory work in the original experiments involved precipitation of the "soluble coal" by means of a second organic solvent. Large scale experiments showed that this method was impractical for commercialization due to cost. Other methods were studied, and a process involving steam distillation was developed which is reasonably cheap and effective.

Sufficient data on the properties of the "soluble coal" were available to indicate that it could be used for the production of carbon black, but economic considerations showed that further work on methods of producing carbon black with specific properties to meet the requirements of special industries was not warranted unless by-products could be developed which could in part carry the burden of processing costs.

Experiments on the chemical constitution of the material indicated that a certain fraction of the "soluble coal" had promise as a dye or dye-stuff intermediate, and for the past several months an intensive study has been made of the dye possibilities of the material. Four separate dyes have resulted from this study, and as work continues there is every probability that others will be discovered. The dyes thus far produced range from pale yellow through a variety of shades to deep brown.

A number of different fibers including cotton, linen, wool, rayon, celanese, nylon, silk and jute have been dyed with these four dyes. In general, the results secured for the dyeing of the protein-like fibers, wool, silk and nylon and for jute have been highly satisfactory. For the other fibers a limited degree of success has been secured in special cases. Laboratory investigations for quality of the dyes, using all the standard methods commonly employed, indicate that a very satisfactory product has been produced.

The dyes appear to have definite industrial possibilities, and in view of the fact that they are the first dyes known to have been produced by the direct processing of coal, there is a reasonable likelihood that another non-fuel use has been discovered for bituminous coal.

Further research is now being conducted on processing the "soluble coal" to produce other dyes, and upon completion of these studies attention will be given to the possible production of synthetic plastics from the "soluble coal."

Summary

Summarizing briefly the progress that has been made in a little over a year of investigation under the provisions of the cooperative Miller Bill research program, the following points are of interest.

(1) A research organization has been assembled which for practical studies on the utilization of anthracite and bituminous coal is second to none in the United States.

(2) Work on the gasification of anthracite has resulted in the development of a standard test by which the decrepitation characteristics of anthracite can be determined quantitatively in the laboratory and their behavior in a water gas generator predicted with reasonable assurance. Plant scale tests have been completed on the use of anthracite as generator fuel in a water gas machine employing the heavy oil process and have demonstrated conclusively that by minor modifications in operating procedure a number of anthracites can be used with satisfaction. Plant scale tests are now underway on the use of anthracite as generator fuel in a plant employing the gas oil process.

(3) Raw anthracite in pea and buckwheat sizes has been activated to give granular carbon with activity as high as about 75 per cent that found for the best grades of carbon now marketed. It has been demonstrated that the lower activity of the anthracite carbons was due to incomplete penetration by the activating agent. Experiments are now underway on the activation of fine sizes or anthracite in briquet form and preliminary results indicate that improved activity results from this method of operation.

(4) Test work on comfort heating with slack bituminous coals has shown that at the present time there is no truly automatic stoker available which will satisfactorily burn the majority of Pennsylvania strongly coking coals. Development work on a new stoker has reached the point where it is possible to burn satisfactorily even the most strongly coking coals without any difficulty from coke tree formation—something that can be accomplished satisfactorily by no other stoker tested or observed. Work is now underway on the problem of incorporating an ash removal mechanism on this stoker to make it compeletely automatic.

(5) Experiments have been completed on methods for the production and recovery of "soluble coal" and data secured on probable processing costs. Development work on uses for the material have resulted in the preparation of several dyes which appear to have industrial possibilities. Further work is now underway on expanding the range of colors available from these dyes.

Future Plans

As a result of the delayed start on the foregoing research program it will be of 20 months' duration rather than the 24 months indicated in the original Act. Because of the shorter time, and due to the fact that it is not feasible to start such a program efficiently at full scale, less than one-half the appropriated funds were expended during the first year of the biennium. It has been possible, therefore, to operate the program during the present fiscal year at the rate intended by the Legislature, namely, on a budget of $50,000, one-half of which has been provided by the anthracite and bituminous coal industries and one-half by the Commonwealth. In view of the fine progress made, it is my recommendation that the General Assembly continue sponsorship of this cooperative research effort on new and improved uses for Pennsylvania coals to the extent of appropriating $75,000 for the biennium 1941-1943. The program of research, subject to modification by the Research Advisory Committee, will be along the following lines.

Anthracite: Completion of plant scale studies on the production of carburetted water gas from anthracite in a gas plant employing the gas oil process.

Studies on the production and use of domestic purposes of blue water gas produced entirely from anthracite without any form of oil enrichment. This project is very wide in scope and involves both laboratory and field experiments on a variety of possible methods.

Completion of studies on the preparation of active carbons from anthracite followed by laboratory and field experiments demonstrating the applicability of this material for use in specific industries.

Bituminous Coal: Continuation of test and development work on bituminous coal stokers to automatically burn Pennsylvania coals. This problem includes completion of development work on an ash removal mechanism, studies of the most satisfactory design and controls for efficient operation, and studies on methods of eliminating or decreasing the fly-ash-fly-carbon nuisance inherent in the design of most stokers.

Continuation of the search for new uses and application for "soluble coal;" specifically along the lines of synthetic plastic, synthetic fibres, dyes and carbon blacks.

BILL POSTPONED

Mr STIEFEL. Mr. President, I move that further consideration of Senate Bill No. 58, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine of the Act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (Pamphlet Laws, three hundred sixty-three), entitled "An act relating to the organization, jurisdiction, and procedure of the Orphans' Courts; the powers and duties of the judges thereof; and appeals therefrom," as amended on the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (Pamphlet Laws, three hundred forty-nine), by extending the jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court to supervision and enforcement of gifts for charitable uses, even though such gifts have passed out of fiduciaries now subject to the jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court directly to corporations or others charged with their administration.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS RECOMMITTED

Mr. RUTH. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 86, on third reading, entitled:

An Act requiring the court in imposing sentence to include in such sentence the costs of keeping the person in the institution to which he is sentenced for the term as fixed by the court; providing such person is or shall become, during such term, financially able to pay for the same.

be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of further amendment.

Mr. STEVENSON. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 125, on third reading, entitled:

An Act abating certain tax penalties and interest on county, city (except city of the first class), borough, town, township, school district (except school district of the first class), and county institution district taxes; prohibiting the sale of real property for the nonpayment of any such taxes for a certain period; and preserving certain tax liens, and providing for the extension thereof.

be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of further amendment.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 130, on third reading, entitled:

An Act prohibiting judges of courts of record from engaging in political activity, except in furtherance of their own candidacy for the office of judge of any court of record; and imposing penalties.

be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of a public hearing.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, both the chairman of the Committee on Judiciary General and myself, and I think many members of this Senate, have received requests for a public hearing of this bill, and obeying the tolerant spirit of this body in all matters that are fundamental and of great importance I am glad to accede to those requests.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL NO. 130 TO COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY GENERAL

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 130 be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the specific purpose of an open and public hearing.

Mr. President, I think the remarks made for and against the bill ought to be stenographically transcribed and that, after a public and open hearing, the committee shall return the bill to this Senate with amendments or recommendations or both.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to and the bill was recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General.

SENATE BILL NO. 172

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, Senate Bill No. 172 also has developed considerable controversy and requests have been made concerning this bill, as I have stated concerning the bill we have just recommitted, and in order to receive intelligent and constructive criticism on this bill I am also willing—I speak for myself and the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker—that this bill be recommitted also.

However, Mr. President, I want to make this abservation before I make the motion to recommit Senate Bill No. 172.

Several of those who have requested a hearing on this bill have definitely promised they will come here with intelligent and able and constructive criticism in opposition to the bill, that they will not do anything to bring about a demonstration such as we have had around this Capitol in years past. Mr. President, I explained to them that as far as I am concerned and my co-sponsor, and I think all of the members of this Senate, we are beyond the spirit where a march en masse to this Capitol can bring any pressure on any member of this Senate, that this matter is a very serious matter and we want intelligent and constructive help on this bill.

MOTION TO RECOMMITT SENATE BILL NO. 172

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, with that in mind I move that Senate Bill No. 172 be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General, for the specific purpose of an open and public hearing, and that the remarks of those for or against the bill shall be stenographically transcribed and reported, and that after the hearing then the committee shall report this bill back to the Senate with amendments or recommendations or both.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I hope the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, understands when this bill goes back to committee it cannot go back with any understanding that it shall be reported out. That is up to the committee; the committee may see fit not to report this bill back, and as I heard the words of the gentleman from Fayette, I am assuming he understands, he has an understanding that the bill will come back to the floor of this Senate.

Mr. President, so far as I am concerned I want to place myself on record as understanding that the committee has full authority over this bill and it may not come back.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to say the suggestion made by the gentleman from Fayette was very well taken. Of course, we all understand it depends on the action of the committee and no member of the committee is bound to report the bill out; the bill may not meet with favor in committee or it might be amended in committee.

Mr. President, we have no way interpreting the minds of the very intelligent members of a very fine committee and may I suggest to the gentleman from Fayette that the possibility of having the minutes of the hearing stenographically transcribed is somewhat of a surprise.

Mr. President, the appropriation to committees are confined to the Committee on Appropriations alone and the Committee on Judiciary General does not have an appropriation to buy a brief case or to hold a stenographic hearing.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, my remarks were planned and I do not want them to be misconstrued. I absolutely feel that after a hearing has been had on this bill the bill should be reported out either with a favorable or an unfavorable recommendation, or amended. I think that is very plain language.

Mr. President, this bill deals with an ever present and serious situation and I have all of the confidence in the world in my colleagues that constitute the Committee on Judiciary General, but this bill is now out on the floor and these gentlemen that are asking for a hearing knew that this bill had been introduced, because I think it has received more newspaper publicity than many other important bills have, and it slept in committee for some time, it was put out on the floor of this Senate, it received second reading and they have had sufficient time and I think the bill ought to come out on the floor after a hearing.

Mr. President, I am not ashamed to hold my ground on that bill here on the floor of the Senate, and if the Committee on Judiciary General were to report the bill out with a negative recommendation I am sure I would not permit myself to lose my bearings and not take the recommendation of the Committee seriously, to view it seriously, to examine it seriously, and then either accept the report of the Committee with its negative recommendation or accept its amendments to the bill but, Mr. President, I do think we ought to vote upon recommitting this bill the same as we did on the bill just previous to this one.

I made the same motion and it was adopted and I think we ought to adopt the same motion here, that the committee ought to report the bill out after a hearing, either with amendments or with recommendations, negative or otherwise, but it ought to come out on the floor of the Senate and we should never leave any insinuation or impression that some sinister influence or hidden power around this Senate or anywhere has been powerful enough to kill this bill in committee.

Mr. President, I am speaking for all the members of this Senate when I say that. I think the bill ought to come out, so that if it is accepted every voter in the State of Pennsylvania can see all of us were for it and if it ought to be defeated, if it is not a wise and just bill, all the voters in the State of Pennsylvania ought to know that we think it is an unwise bill, but I think it would be a bad policy, I think it would leave a very unwholesome taste in the minds of many citizens of this Commonwealth if we were to send this bill back to committee and after a hearing have the bill vote negatively in committee and not reported to the floor of the Senate.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not want the Committee on Judiciary General to be under any misapprehension but up to this moment I am still Chairman of that Committee and when a bill is referred back to that committee it will be taken up in committee meeting and I insist that the action of that committee shall determine what shall be done with the bill and not any action taken on this floor.

Mr. President, if this Senate desires to destroy the committee or does not find favor with what the committee does with that bill then it can take appropriate action, but, Mr. President, if that bill goes back to my committee again, my committee will govern whatever happens to that bill.

Mr. President, I do not propose to vote to have this bill recommitted to my committee with my hands tied.

In that connection, Mr. President, I should like to read several telegrams I have received and in reading them I want to say to the people who expressed the desire to have this hearing; I have no objection to granting a hearing but I do object to having threats tossed at me by people whom I think this bill is aimed at and I suggest they abadon this type of propaganda, as far as my committee is concerned, because it will not influence or control me and has no influence on my committee.

Mr. President, if this bill is to go back to committee and the hands of the committee are tied, I will vote against recommitting this bill. If this bill goes back to my committee for action, the action of the committee will control

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I rise to a question of pariamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from McKean will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, the Senator who made the motion on the previous bill now seems to say to this Senate that by adopting his motion we have tied the hands of the Committee on Judiciary General so that we must report this bill out.

Mr. President, is that the effect of that motion?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair believes that is the intent of the motion.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, could there be any such motion passed by the Senate of Pennsylvania that ties the hands of the Committee on Judiciary General on the bill just committed?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would rule no.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, if there is any such motion I am going to move that the Senate reconsider that motion, because the Committee on Judiciary General cannot be bound by this Senate except to take the bill away from it after the committee refuses to act.

Mr. President, there is no such parliamentary procedure as to instruct us to send back a bill.

The PRESIDENT. The point of order of the gentleman from McKean is well taken.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. May I again inquire; is the Committee on Judiciary General bound to return the prior bill to this Senate. I refer to Senate bill 130, the bill on which action was taken just prior to consideration of this bill, because the gentleman from Fayette had intimated we are bound to send the bill back.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands the motion was just to recommit the bill. The Chair may be mistaken. Will the reporter read the motion of the gentleman from Fayette

The motion was read, as follows:

MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL NO.130 TO COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY GENERAL

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 130 be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the specific purpose of an open and public hearing.

Mr. President, I think the remarks made for and against the bill ought to be stenographic transcribed and that, after a public and open hearing, the committee shall return the bill to this Senate with amendments or recommendations or both.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President in this motion with reference to Senate Bill No. 130 I understand the gentleman from Fayette has intimated we are bound to send that bill back.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands the motion was just to recommit this bill. Perhaps the Chair is wrong.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I want the members of this Senate to understand me well. I made that motion in order to allow a public hearing on this bill but I want the bill back on the Senate floor.

Mr. President, I cannot understand the position taken by any member of this Senate that my motion ties the hands of the committee. It does not tie the hands of the committee, it just means that they have a right to amend the bill or they can report it out, but they must report it out, either with a favorable recommendation or a negative recommendation, and, Mr. President, that is provided for in the rules. If you study the rules it is in there that a committee may make a negative recommendation and then the rule says what the action on that negative recommendation might be.

You may defeat the motion if you want to. You may not agree with me but it is just simply a position that I have taken over the course of many sessions, that many bills come into this Senate that should come to the Senate floor after having been sent to committee and members of this Senate permitted to vote one way or the other on those bills.

Of course, Mr. President, you say you can accomplish that object by moving to discharge the committee but the gentlemen who have been around these assembly halls before know what inlaid prejudice and opposition there is upon members of this body to vote for the discharge of any committee and it was my hope to save the members of this Senate, should we come to that point where it might be necessary to move to discharge the committee in order to bring that bill on the floor of the Senate, by simply incorporating in my motion a provision that the committee shall report it out, amended or with a negative or an unfavorable recommendation.

Now there is nothing wrong with that, Mr. President; it does not tie the hands of the committee at all, unless there is somebody minded here to stifle the legislation or as we say to pickle the bill in committee, and that places the sponsor of the bill or any other member of the Senate in the position of moving to discharge the committee where, if the bill is reported out, if the committee does not like it, report it out with a negative recommendation and then the bill is finished unless under the rules of this Senate, some member that is interested persists and moves, as the rules provide, for consideration of the report from committee.

That does not tie the hands of the committee at all.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, when the gentleman from Fayette was discussing Senate Bill No. 130, I noticed he confined the provision which dealt with the return of that bill to remarks which were made after the motion, and therefore I made no objection to his first premise, but if you read the second motion on Senate Bill No. 172, you will find he coupled his remarks in the motion and he moved that this bill be recommitted for the purpose of a hearing and for the purpose of returning it to that committee and that it shall be returned to this Senate.

Mr. President, I know the Senate has control over the committees and also the Senate has control over the bill and it can either discharge the committee or it can give them instructions.

Mr. President, if this Senate votes to support that motion it is in effect a motion to discharge the committee in advance if it does not report the bill out, because the Senate has adopted a resolution directing the committee to do a specific thing.

Mr. President, I am in favor of the bill and I have no hesitancy in saying I am in favor of the bill, which will effectively make people who have subversive doctrines and want to be on our ticket state or disclose the doctrines so that we can vote intelligently but, Mr. President, at the same time I reserve to myself the right to vote as a member of that committee, and when I hear arguments by everybody concerned that the bill is a bad bill, I reserve the right to vote as I see fit and I do not want to be committed by any member of the Senate, no matter who he might be, in the matter of judgment by a preconceived motion which in effect is a motion to discharge the committee if the committee does not want to bring that bill back to the floor of this Senate.

Therefore, Mr. President, I ask as a matter of parliamentary inquiry and information that that second motion be read, in connection with Senate Bill No. 172.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, will the Chair please state to the members of the Senate what question the Senate is now acting on.

The PRESIDENT. The question is on the motion of the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, to recommit Senate Bill No. 172, with a public hearing, w stenographic notes to be taken, and the bill reported out y committee.

The Chair understands this motion is entirely different from the motion made in connection with Senate Bill No. 130.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I am one member of this Senate who has never—

The PRESIDENT. Did the Chair state the motion correctly of the gentleman from Fayette?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. —that has never plead and will never plead for the right to hide my vote on any matter behind an action of the committee.

MOTION TO WITHDRAW MOTION

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I at this time ask the privilege of withdrawing my motion to recommit Senate Bill No. 172 for the purpose of a public hearing.

The PRESIDENT. Will the Seconder of the motion agree to withdraw his seconding?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I very willingly agree with the gentleman.

The PRESIDENT. The motion is withdrawn.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I do not think it is fair to keep us sitting in our places here while some of our distinguished lawyers in this Senate chamber are fighting amongst themselves when, in plain language, we can make a motion for the privilege of a group to have a public hearing on one of our bills.

Mr. President, I think it is no more than fair—and I am not a Communist, I am against the Communist party—to give these people an opportunity to express their opinions because this is America, this is not a dictatorship, and I think the gentleman from Fayette took our time up in discussion, together with our other distinguished attorneys; we understand procedure and so on, but it is not fair to keep us here by the half hour or three quarters of an hour discussing a very important bill and then making a motion to withdraw the motion.

Mr. President, I think it is unfair, this is too delicate a proposition in a world of unrest, with so many insinuations and so many labels being put on people today, I do not think it is fair we should be put on the spot on this bill.

Mr. President, I think there should be a public hearing and I think the bill should go back to committee and if the committee feels the bill should be brought out, it is up to them, that is their privilege and their right.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 172, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to amend section eight hundred one of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (Pamphlet Laws, one thousand three hundred thirty-three), entitled "An act concerning elections, including general, municipal, special and primary elections, the nomination of candidates, primary and election expenses and election contests; creating and defining membership of county boards of elections; imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, courts, county boards of elections, county commissioners; imposing penalties for violation of the act, and codifying, revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections," by further defining parties and political bodies.

be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of a public hearing.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

A roll call was demanded by the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante.

(During the calling of the roll the following occurred.)

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of order.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, there is nothing before the Senate except the vote on the motion to recommit the bill.

The PRESIDENT. The point of order of the gentleman from Philadelphia is well taken.

Mr. MILLER. No. Mr. President.

And the question recurring.

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. DiSILVESTRO and Mr. JASPAN and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—42

Becker,	Edmonds,	Letzler,	Taylor,

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 201, as follows:

An Act to amend a certain appropriation item contained in section two of Act 69-A approved the twenty-seventh day of June one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine (Appropriation Act of one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine page sixty) entitled "An act to provide for the ordinary expenses of the Executive Legislative and Judicial Departments of the Commonwealth interest on the public debt and the support of the public schools for two years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred and thirty-nine and for the payment of bills incurred and remaining unpaid at the close of the fiscal year ending May thirty-first one thoousand nine hundred and thirty-nine" by deferring for a short period of time certain payments required to meet the Sinking Fund requirements of Veterans Compensation Bonds

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Luzerne will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, as I attempted to say, I desire to be recorded as voting "No" on the motion made. From my observation, from my experience, I feel this committee is making a grave mistake in permitting any individual who is going to represent a party at a public hearing, whose purposes and aims is the establishment, control, conduct, seizure or overthrow of the government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania or the United States of America by the use of force, violence, military measures or threats, to have any right in the hall of the Senate or in the committee rooms of this General Assembly.

Mr. President, I have found that these subversive groups who carry on their underhanded methods thrive on publicly that are given along such lines as we are permitting in the form of this public hearing.

Mr. President, I feel and so wish to express myself that I am in accord with granting those individuals, whoever they might be, the right to appear before the committee, but I am just fearful there may be some sort of a demonstration which we of the Legislature of Pennsylvania might have caused to regret, and I can see that nothing can come out of a public hearing other than publicly, and that is the thing I am definitely against insofar as these subversive groups are concerned, because not one of them who will enter that committee meeting will say the aims and principles of their party are those that are contained in the bill.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I would like to explain my vote. I voted to recommit the bill because I feel that by denying this group the privilege of coming before us it destroys the purpose of our democracy and encourages dictatorship.

Mr. President, I feel that any group has the right to be heard no matter how they think or how they feel and therefore, Mr. President, that is why I cast my vote in the manner I did.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege, to answer the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think that in the remarks I am going to make I have judged well the mind of the gentleman from Philadelphia. My motion was very specific; it did not deny anybody a public hearing, but it took away from Senators like the gentleman from Philadelphia the right to hide behind the action of this committee in case the committee should refuse to report the bill back to the Senate, and any true blooded American, regardless of who he is, should not be afraid to let that bill out of the floor of the Senate and vote for or against it so that the world may see how he stands on this proposition, and I challenge the accuracy of the statement made by the gentleman from Philadelphia that my motion in any way took away those fundamentals, those God-given rights of mankind, the right to express their opinions here in this United States of America.

Mr. President, my motion specifically provided for a public hearing and no man should have any objection to having his remarks recorded for or against that bill unless he has sinister motives in his remarks or in his conduct.

I again want to repeat, I am one member of this Senate that can stand on my feet on the floor of this Senate and defend every vote that I cast for or against a bill and I do not need the action of a committee to protect me from public view on this very vital matter.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, I am very sorry the distinguished Senator from Fayette felt I was making him the target of my remarks. I felt the previous speaker before I arose had objected to a public hearing and I tried to answer the fine gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Miller, in the best way possible.

Mr. President, I do not intend to enter into any exchange of remarks with the distinguished attorney from Fayette but I wish to assure this body I have as much courage as anybody in this room to stand on my feet and express my opinion and I will vote as I see fit on every bill. Mr. President, I want to assure my impulsive colleague from Fayette I have no intention of touching his integrity.

And the question recurring,

The PRESIDENT. The clerk will read the bill.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, what is before the Senate?

The PRESIDENT. The next bill in order is Senate Bill 201. The gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Miller, rose on a question of Personal Privilege, which was granted. Therefore Senate Bill 201 is now before the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to show by my conduct as well as by my speeches I do not need to express the fact I have courage, and I think there is a limit in debate too. When we were through with this bill the gentleman from Fayette said the friends of Communism had committed this bill back to the committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. And I hope the reporter got it, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. And, Mr. President, I am asking that might be made a part of the record so that those of us who vote may know that is the remark made. Mr. President, so far as I am concerned the gentleman, Mr. Reeve, who leads the Communists in Philadelphia has in written records before the election—not afterwards—a statement from me that I am not interested in Communist votes because the principles of those people and myself are at the two distant ends of the pole—for my party advocates a democratic form of government and his party advocates the overthrow of democracy as form of government.

Mr. President, I am sorry I had to get up and make this a matter of record but I have too much consideration and appreciation for the privilege of being in this Senate and of being permitted to live and raise my children as American citizens to sit idly by when an inconsiderate remark like that is made.

Mr. President, I too come from a people who know oppression and it is because we know oppression that we appreciate liberty and freedom, and the man does not live who can make a remark like that about me and get away with it without an answer. I want that understood, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I will gladly answer the gentleman from Philadelphia, and if the comments—

The PRESIDENT. The Chair must state this is only by unanimous consent and the question now before the Senate is Senate bill 201. If there is no objection the Senate will proceed to consideration of that bill.

MOTION TO CONTINUE WITH CONSIDERATION OF CALENDAR

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I do now move that the Senate now resume consideration of the calendar.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I want the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia stricken from the record if I am not permitted to answer his statement.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I think the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, was a little unfair in speaking out loud some side remarks of the Senator from Fayette. It calls upon us, as it were, each one of us, to deny we are friends of the Communist party and I do not like that aspersion.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, he did not speak quietly; he asked to put it on the record.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I would like to inquire whether that remark of the Senator from Fayette is in the record?

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. Is is on this particular motion?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, there is a motion before the Senate. I made a motion that we proceed with consideration of the Calendar.

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

The bill has been read three times.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to speak on the bill. I understand we are discussing Senate bill 201.

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, last week we had a lengthy discussion on the philosophy of life and the philosophy of government and I think I can point out to the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, that this bill represents what I call the philosophy of government of the Governor and those who advise him.

Mr. President, as you will remember, there is a deficiency according to the budget of fourteen and a half million dollars, which will be necessary according to the budget to carry relief through the rest of this biennium.

Mr. President, this bill, Senate bill 201, has nothing to do with that deficiency at all but it is a bill which requires the postponement of payment of some two millions of dollars into the reserve fund or the amortization of the Soldier's Bonds—the bonus or bonds that are to pay for the bonus given to the soldiers.

This bill provides that these amortization funds which are due in March and May of this year, the payment of them, shall be suspended until June 30, 1941.

Mr. President, this two million dollars in this bill is made necessary by reason of the fact we are told a fourteen and a half million dollar deficit is not really fourteen and a half million dollars but will be exceedingly more than fourteen and a half million dollars.

It has been estimated by Mr. Russell at the public hearing we had that seven millions of dollars would be necessary in addition to the fourteen and a half million dollars to see us through on the relief until the end of this biennium. That being so, Mr. President, I object to this kind of philosophy of government, which, piecemeal and hurriedly, overnight, presents us with legislation to fill a gap which is known, the size of which is pretty nearly known and the condition which it raises ought to be known.

Mr. President, if we need seven millions of dollars I am willing to go along and vote for seven millions of dollars. But I want to know where it is coming from and we do not want to be asked every day to vote for two million dollars from this fund, and five hundred thousand dollars from another fund, without having a concrete proposition set before us so that we can act on it.

Mr. President, I am quite sure there are many men on both sides of this Senate who feel the same as I feel.

Mr. President, the next bill on the Calendar is for an appropriation of fourteen and a half million dollars, and I have no objection to it but I do say my philosophy of government is that the Governor owes it to every man in this Senate to sit down with him and tell him just how much money is necessary and plan from what source we are going to raise this money, but since there is no information forthcoming as to how much more we will need and where we are going to get it, then this in my opinion is piecemeal and foolish and certainly unwise legislation and I am going to vote against it and ask my colleagues to do likewise.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, we are at the same situation as we were last Wednesday, namely, the Senator from Philadelphia prophesizes and the Governor prophesizes and neither of them being the seventh son of a seventh son, their two prophesies do not agree.

As an actual matter of fact, Mr. President, the Governor prosposes in this bill, to delay payment of two millions of dollars to this particular fund until June, so that the money may be available for increasing the appropriation for assistance, if it is needed. I do not see any objection to that.

Mr. President, like the Senator from Philadelphia, I would be glad to have all these things come up at one time and in one paper, but if they do not come up all at one time and all in one paper they may be equally good if they come in two papers and at two times, and therefore. I am going to vote for this bill.

Mr. President, I may further state that the committee made a careful investigation of this matter. The fund at the present time has in it twelve millions of dollars. The first payment that it is to make on the principal of bond is in 1944— that is four years hence. It is proposed not to pay this amount on March 1st or May 1st but instead to pay it in June. And I do not think the interest of the Commonwealth will suffer if we allow it.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

It was agreed to.

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 202, (House Bill No. 262) as follows:

An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Public Assistance and providing for certain allocations therefrom for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows:

Section 1 The sum of fourteen million five hundred thousand dollars ($14,500,000) or as much thereof as may be necessary is hereby specifically appropriated from the General Fund to the Department of Public Assistance for the payment of assistance administrative expenses and expenses of liquidating the State Emergency Relief Board as provided by the Public Assistance Law and for the payment of attorneys' fees and court costs necessary for the proper conduct of the work of the Department of Public Assistance for the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine and for the payment of assistance administrative expenses of liquidating the State Emergency Relief Board attorneys' fees and court costs accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine.

Section 2 Out of the moneys hereby appropriated the Department of Public Assistance shall allocate funds from time to time for the several assistance programs (old age assistance aid to dependent children pensions for the blind general assistance and other programs provided by the Public Assistance Law) for administrative expenses of the several county boards of assistance for such administrative expenses incurred by the department which are chargeable to such boards and for the payment of attorneys' fees and court costs necessary for the proper conduct of the work of the department.

Section 3 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment.

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

and the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask the Senate to defer action on Senate Bill No. 202 for just a moment or two, while the minority floor leader answers the telephone, as I believe he has a few pertinent remarks.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill originally passed the House containing an amendment, which provided control of distribution of administrative funds by the Governor, the Auditor General and the State Treasurer.

In 1939, before this Administration, there was a method of controlling the distribution of the administrative portion of this fund, and when this bill came over to the committee removed that amendment and I voted for the removal of that amendment and I want to put myself on record as doing so.

Mr. President, my reason is that I do not believe at this time controversial questions should be inserted in a bill which requires prompt action.

Mr. President, I do not agree that this appropriation bill should be a measure to test out the right or wrong of that situation and I do not think this bill should be made a vehicle for a political argument, though it may be a good one.

I should also like to say, however, the administration should know it is the intention, at least as far is I can understand it, and as far as the feeling on the part of the Democratic party is concerned to present legislation which will restore the distribution of the administrative portion of this fund to the situation to which it was before 1939 and that when the proper time comes legislation to bring about the same result which was attempted in this bill and which I say had no place in it, will be presented to this Legislature.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I have here the figures for the appropriations to the State Treasurer from the Assistance Funs for 1939-1941.

In 1939, the general appropriation bill was $1,000,000, of which $154,000 has not yet been allocated or spent.

At the Special Session of 1940, the appropriation was $550,000 of which $60,000 has not been allocated or spent.

This Legislature has appropriated therefore, Mr. President, $214,000 more out of assistance to the state treasurer than has been used by the state treasurer in his work and I am inclined to think that is enough to last him out the biennium.

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The State Treasurer is hereby authorized and directed from time to time between the effective date of this act and May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred forty-one to transfer from the Motor License Fund to the General Fund such sums not exceeding in the aggregate the sum of six million four hundred thousand dollars ($6,400,000) as the Governor shall direct Transfers shall be made under this act upon warrants of the Auditor General upon requisitions of the Governor

The purpose of this transfer is to provide funds for the payment of the deficiency appropriation for public assistance made by this session of the General Assembly for the fiscal biennium ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred forty-one To the extent to which this transfer makes it necessary the use of the transferred fund for its ordinary purposes shall be postponed but not otherwise modified

Section 2 The amounts transferred under this act from the Motor License Fund to the General Fund shall be repaid to the Motor License Fund out of the General Fund not later than June thirtieth one thousand nine hundred forty-one

Section 3 This act shall become effective immediately upon its final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill provides for the transfer of $6,400,000 from the Motor License Fund for the purpose of making available funds for the deficiency appropriation of $14,500,000, for relief.

Mr. President, it is because I personally, and we on this side of the house who have discussed this matter, objected to the method of approach to the relief problem that I am going to vote against this bill. This is again another piece of so-called piecemeal approach to a very important and very troublesome problem and I do not think this is the way it should be handled and therefore I am going to vote against it, and ask my colleagues to vote against it.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 23, on second reading, entitled:

An Act to amend subsections (a) and (f) of section one thousand three, subsection (b) of section one thousand one hundred seven, subsection (h) of section one thousand one hundred ten, subsection (c) of section one thousand two hundred fifteen, and subsection (d) of section one thousand two hundred sixteen, and to further amend section one thousand two hundred twenty-three of the act, approved the third day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-seven (P. L. 1333), entitled "An act concerning elections, including general, municipal, special and primary elections, the nomination of candidates, primary and election expenses and election contests; creating and defining membership of county boards of elections; imposing duties upon the Secretary of the Commonwealth, courts, county boards of elections, county commissioners; imposing penalties for violation of the act, and codifying, revising and consolidating the laws relating thereto; and repealing certain acts and parts of acts relating to elections," by eliminating the right of electors to vote a straight party ballot by one mark or operation.

be recommitted to the Committee on Elections for the purpose of further study.

Mr. FARRELL. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I just want to say to the sponsor of the bill I could see my colleague shake when he made that motion. I am very much against having this bill recommitted.

Mr. President, due to the lateness of the hour and my comradeship with that gentleman let me say I appreciate what he is doing and I am saying to him in all sincerity he is making a mistake.

Mr. President, in 1933 the same opportunity for decent legislation was afforded to the Republican party and they refused to accept it and were sorry later. In 1939 the same opportunity was offered the Republican party and they refused to accept it and again they were sorry.

Now, Mr. President, in 1941 again I call attention a golden opportunity is held out to them and with the hope that springs eternal in the human breast they are again refusing to strike a blow for a good cause.

Mr. President, for a moment I want to say I appreciate what was said by the distinguished gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, because if this bill is knocked out of the Senate it will never return again and I understand what is going on and merely want to say to my colleagues it is not with the idea of quarreling with your position or attempting to chastise your actions, it is merely saying to you on behalf of the Republican party I am sorry you are taking this action today.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not mind the bill going back to committee, but I would just as soon see it out so that I could vote "No."

However, Mr. President, I want to appease my friend from Allegheny and tell him Mr. Roosevelt will not run again.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, before we leave the discussion of the calendar I want to make a few brief remarks and then make a motion.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Washington will proceed.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, very recently we reported a bill back to a committee for the purpose of a public hearing. That was for purpose of letting anyone who said they were interested in the bill come in before a Senate committee and express his views. Immediately after that, Mr. President, one of the members of this Senate was refused the privilege of speaking to this body.

The PRESIDENT. That is in the committee?

Mr. REED. No. Mr. President, right here.

MOTION TO GRANT PRIVILEGE OF THE FLOOR TO THE SENATOR FROM FAYETTE

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I move at this time that the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, be given the privilege of speaking to this body.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. The motion of the gentleman from Washington is not in order. If the Senator from Fayette rises and addresses the Chair and asks permission he will be granted permission, but the gentleman from Fayette was out of order at the time, as it was a matter requiring unanimous consent.

The Chair has been fair, more than fair, with the gentlemen on the right and he will continue to be fair, but he is going to endeavor to conduct the proceedings of this Senate according to the Constitution and the rules adopted by this Senate.

If the gentleman from Fayette desires to address the Chair, the Chair will gladly recognize him.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I take exception to the remarks of the gentleman from Washington and wish to call to his attention Rule No. 4 of this Senate, which shows that the gentleman from Fayette had already spoken once more than he was entitled to speak on the same question, without there being any question or objection.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, that question was not raised by the gentleman from Allegheny. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, spoke and then the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, attempted to speak and he was shut off.

The PRESIDENT. That was unanimous consent and when the Chair discovered the gentleman was not talking on the motion the Chair denied the gentleman from Fayette the floor.

Following that the Senator from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, rose on a matter of parliamentary inquiry, which was entirely different from the question on which the Senator from Fayette rose.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am not criticizing the Chair, I am criticizing the procedure and I still maintain the gentleman has the right to speak.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair will continue in the performance of his duties in the future as he has in the past and if the gentleman from Fayette wishes to be recognized he may address the Chair.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I have no criticism to make of the Chair in regard to the courtesies that I have been extended while a member of this body.

Mr. President, concerning the incident mentioned by the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, I recall distinctly the gentleman from Philadelphia had spoken more than twice on the subject and then he made some remarks and asked me to answer his statement and I attempted to take the floor in order to answer him. Unfortunately the Chair felt it was not the time for me to answer but I do want to answer at this time.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette may proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, as I recall the remarks of the gentleman from Philadelphia they were to the affect that I said the ones who had voted for the recommittal of the bill were aiding and protecting the Communists of this Commonwealth, and he very emphatically stated that my remark was inconsiderate.

Mr. President, I want to disillusion the mind of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, My remarks were not made inconsiderately but with a deliberate mind and with deliberate words, knowing whereof I was speaking.

Mr. President, before this Senate convened today the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, rose to defend Mr. Carl Reeve, and personally handed to me and told me to read a speech that he had delivered somewhere in this Commonwealth and I am glad to know Mr. Reeve, at the recommendation of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro—I did not know where the headquarters of the Communist party might be in this Commonwealth; I am glad to know they are in Philadelphia and I am glad to know that the Communist party does thrive in Philadelphia.

Now, Mr. President, the statement handed to me by Mr. Reeve is headed "Speech of Carl Reeve on Behalf of the State Committee of the Communist Party of Pennsylvania at the Pennsylvania Congress for Civil Liberties, February 22, 1941,"—on the natal anniversary of George Washington, the father of his country.

Mr. President, I did not speak inconsiderately, I did not make the remark inconsiderately when I said they who had voted to recommit the bill were protecting Communists, individuals that should not be protected, especially when they make remarks such as I am going to read from that statement and ask to have them incorporated in the journal of this Senate. Here is what this gentleman said on the birthday of the father of his country:

"Certainly the frame-up of Earl Browder is a clear-cut indication that civil liberties today is being Blitzkrieged. Mr. Browder is the Tom Mooney of 1941. He is obviously the victim of political persecution. He is being railroaded to prison because of his political ideas. His conviction is a flagrant attack on the Bill of Rights. The technical passport charge against him is so flimsy that no one is fooled. As long as Mr. Browder is in jail because he leads a minority party, then we cannot boast that we have civil liberties in America.

"In our own state, there is another Tom Mooney case in the making—fantastic bomb plot frame-up against two leaders in the field of workers' education: Adolph Heller and Bernard Rush; and there is the case of Sam Darcy who was deported to California out of our state on framed-up charges.

"In my talk today, I want to deal chiefly with the moves of the politicians in power to outlaw the Communist Party and other minority parties and independent candidates which take a pro-labor, progressive or radical position. Senate Bill 172 of Senator Walker and Cavalcante which comes up Monday in the Senate for a final reading, is the most publicized of these Bills.

"Look to what lengths these fascists are going in their attacks on democracy. Take House Bill 395 introduced by Mr. Fiss. This bill provides that any candidate or party ticket may be removed from the ballot 'upon the verified petition based upon information and belief of at least five qualified electors' that the party or candidate is seditious or communistic; in other words five fascists have power under this Bill to remove a legal party from the ballot and to remove an elected candidate from office. Does anyone dare to say that such procedure is not fascism?"

Gentlemen, my honest belief in the Bill of Rights and in our form of government, my sincere desire to protect this democracy, does not at all tell me any American citizen has the right, after a petit jury, after a lower court, has passed upon the innocence or guilt of a man, after the appellate courts of the State of New York and after the Supreme Court of this United States of America has passed upon Mr. Browder's conviction and said it was lawful and he was a law violator. I do not see that any man who now says the lower court was wrong, that the appellate courts of New York and that the Supreme Court of the United States was wrong, has any right to be heard by any patriotic body in this United States of America.

As an American, Mr. President, I am not willing to give any man the right of free speech on that particular subject. The Supreme Court of the United States has spoken and I am not going to defend or permit any right to be granted to a man who takes that attitude or has that frame of mind that Browder was railroaded, that he is persecuted and that he is not a law violator.

Mr. President, I was very considerate. I considered the matter very thoroughly when I said anybody who is seeking to send this bill back to committee and keep it there is protecting Communists that have no right under the American flag. Nobody has any right under this flag to its protection who would advocate its overthrow and its destruction by any means other than the means provided by the Constitution, and I sincerely believe the Communist Party as understood by us today is a party believing in the overthrow of our government by force and that they are merely hiding themselves behind other movements such as labor movements, such labels as "Congress of Civil Liberties"—what liberty do they mean—the liberty to overthrow our government by force?

Mr. President, that is the kind of individuals I do not want to do anything for on the floor of this Senate, to obtain for them any hearing or anything else as far as I am concerned.

I was ready and I am ready to vote upon Senate Bill No. 172 and I think we make a grave mistake whenever we yield the right of a public hearing to a man who is the leader of a party who has a philosophy such as I have read and quoted from his speech, a copy of which was handed to me by him personally on the floor of this Senate and in his presence I promised to give him the right to be heard in spite of what I have just stated and my feelings are, we will go to the limit to protect this form of democracy, that these gentlemen from Philadelphia who are so politically afraid of the Communistic party have been pleading for.

Mr. President, I am not afraid of any Communist in Fayette County. Men have red blood there, they are Americans, they face them in the open, they face them everywhere, and I repeat, the gentleman from Fayette—myself—does not need the protection of a committee room to hide my vote on that bill.

MOTION THAT SENATE ADJOURN

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, before any of the members of the Senate yield to the gladiatorial urge and feeling that a good night's sleep might do all concerned a world of good, Mr. President, I move you that this Senate do now adjourn to meet at 11:00 o'clock a. m. tomorrow, Tuesday, February 25, 1941.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, there is one bill to be read for the first time before we reach that motion, if there is no objection.

The PRESIDENT. A motion to adjourn is not debatable.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I submit a motion to adjourn is always in order and not debatable.

The PRESIDENT. That is correct. Does the Senator from Lackawanna insist upon urging the motion?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, will the Chair allow me a minute?

Mr. President, I ask that the motion be submitted to the Senate for a vote.

The PRESIDENT. All in favor of the motion will signify their consent by saying "aye."

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask for a roll call.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. COLEMAN and Mr. SHAPIRO and were as follows, viz:

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Philadelphia, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I will not engage in any long discussion except to say if the gentleman from Philadelphia had merely said all of the members of this Senate, outside of four or five, who voted to recommit this bill were protecting Communists, I would not have made any remarks, but what the gentleman from Fayette said, and what the newspaper gentlemen hurriedly wrote down, was that the bill was recommitted to the committee by friends of Communists, and because of that statement and because of the fact I knew it was going out to the public press, I felt it ought to be put on the record.

Mr. President, everybody in this Senate excepting four or five men voted for the same motion the gentleman from Fayette made, which was to recommit the bill, excepting that we voted for a motion without any strings attached.

He should not think that all of the patriotism that might be expressed on this floor and all the patriotism in this great country reposes solely in the soul of the gentleman from Fayette, and certainly I have a right to resent the charge that I am a friend of the Communists, and I certainly do not wish to put every other member on the other side or on this side of the House in the position to be compelled to answer it, but I want it known that the remark was made, and I want to record my objection to it.

Mr. President, I was fair enough and considerate enough to suggest that the gentleman had made it inconsiderately, but if he did not, it makes no difference to me, but I for one want that to be on the record.

Mr. President, I do not know Mr. Reeve, except that I have seen him on one or two occasions. I do not have any contact with him, I do not read his speeches, I do not waste time on them, I do not pay any attention to them.

Mr. President, I rather like the suggestion by the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy. I do not believe it does any good to smother these people. The more they talk the better it is for freedom and democracy.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I voted "no" on this motion to adjourn, because I felt the Senate should not adjourn with the charge, the publicity, which the Senator from Fayette left.

Mr. President, I cannot think he charged us with being friends of Communists, because we voted to recommit this bill, and that was the reason for my former remark with regard to Senator Shapiro. Certainly, Mr. President, the Senator from Fayette does not charge us with being friends of the Communists, or to say we were against the conviction of Browder. Certainly I think everyone in this Senate was in favor of Browder's conviction, and that he should have been convicted very much earlier than he was. Mr. President, he is a menace to this country, and that is the position we all take, anybody that would do what he has done, and advocate what he advocates.

Mr. President, this bill raises entirely different questions, and that was the reason why we all saw fit to recommit it.

Mr. President, I am sorry the Senator from Fayette has indulged in these remarks, because we are all interested in this spirit to try to do what is right.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, there has been a lot of loose talk it seems to me, in the Senate chamber today, and this again is just a very clear example in my judgment of why we should be a little more careful in choosing the words we use.

For instance, Mr. President, Senator Cavalcante read from a speech or article that referred to himself and Senator Walker as Facists.

Mr. President, the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, voted to recommit that bill, but with the all-inclusive remarks of the Senator from Fayette, he separates the Senator from Allegheny from himself and puts him in the class with the friends of the Communists.

Mr. President, of course that is ridiculous.

Mr. President, we ought to assemble here and get down to business and stick to business and lay off the clowning and the hippodroming that takes place in this Senate.

Mr. President, I also, as did the Senator from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, and the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, want to object to and I do resent the fact that when I conscientiously vote on a question, that I be referred to in such a manner as the Senator from Fayette remarked after that vote was taken.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, my colleague from Fayette seems to remember the city I come from very vividly, and I am happy he remembers the name of Philadelphia because Philadelphia is the cradle of liberty and we people who come from Philadelphia think everybody should have a voice in anything that comes up.

Now, Mr. President, the Senator from Fayette thought, in his judgment, he could just lay it on heavy and thick.

Mr. President, as a representative from South Philadelphia, I wish the members of this Senate to know I do not intend to enter into any controversy nor do I wish to enter into any controversy with the Senator from Fayette on his future campaigns.

INTRODUCTION OF MEMBER OF NEW YORK LEGISLATURE

The PRESIDENT. Before we adjourn, if the Senate will permit me, I should like to introduce Senator Wiswall, from New York State.

Mr. WISWALL. Governor Lewis and members of the Senate, I am an alumnus of some years standing but I notice that the government of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is taken care of in about the same manner as the government of the State of New York insofar as its higher body of the Legislature is concerned.

I felt much at home a little while ago when the Senator from Scranton was enumerating some of the illustrious sons of that great city, and it reminds me of an occasion twenty years ago in the Senate of New York when the then minority leader was the Honorable James J. Walker, better known as Jimmy, who later became the Mayor of the City of New York. In the majority party was Theodore Douglas Robinson, a nephew of Theodore Roosevelt. Senator Robinson was elected from Herkimer County but maintained an elaborate residence on Park Avenue in New York City.

Senator Walker, always witty, referred to Robinson as the Senator from Herkimer. Robinson rather resented this and one Monday night—these things always happen on Monday—he rose to the floor and he said, "I want the Senator from New York to know and understand that many illustrious men have come from Herkimer County." Then Walker arose and said, "Mr. President, I want the Senator to appreciate that I do know and understand that many illustrious men have come from Herkimer County, but the measure of their greatness was always determined by how soon they came.

I thank you for this opportunity to enjoy with you a short while this beautiful chamber in which you meet, and to congratulate you, as I know you congratulate yourselves, on having the benefit and the experience of a presiding officer who has come up through the ranks, and has been in the game a long time, and to know and understand that even though the sides of the aisles may divide rather acrimoniously sometimes, that we all have to live, that we are all still Americans, and that when we leave and go out of this chamber we are all friends.

Thank you.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Tuesday, February 25, 1941 at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

MONDAY, February 24, 1941.

The House met at 9 p. m.
The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

We thank Thee for this, our land, wherein Thou hast set our feet. We express unto Thee our gratitude for its rich material resources. We glorify Thee for its opportunities for advancement. We are moved to praise Thee for the freedom which is ours to make of ourselves the very best. May we in turn prove ourselves worthy of all heritage which is ours. Help us to promote honorable industry. May we stress such education that coming generations shall be better than all preceding ones have been. May our conduct be worthy in the sight of both God and man. Let our ideals be of the highest, having roots in the very foundation of that which Thou hast created. Give us unity of thought and purpose in these trying times. Save us from violence and discord, from lawlessness and pride, from arrogance, pestilence and famine. Guide those in whose hands authority has been put. Give them wisdom from on high so that they may legislate wisely, act with justice and prudence, and themselves set the example of what a citizen should be. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. RESOLUTION No. 33.

In the House of Representatives, February 19, 1941.

Whereas, Under the provisions of the Selective Service Act, registrants who have been convicted of a felony are not eligible for induction; and

Whereas, Many selectees, otherwise fully qualified, voluntarily commit felonies to evade operation of the law; and

Whereas, Others have, by exemplary behavior, long eradicated the stigma of their conviction; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives request the Governor, as head of the State Selective Service Program, to direct a communication to the Congress of the United States, praying that body to so amend the Selective Service Act so that local draft boards may exercise discretion in the cases of such individuals, and select those which in their opinion are now socially rehabilitated.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. HIRSCH. RESOLUTION No. 34.

In the House of Representatives, February 19, 1941.

Whereas, The Works Progress Administration of the Federal Government has, with the cooperation of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, established sewing projects within this Commonwealth, affording employment to approximately 12,000 women; and

Whereas, The contribution of the Commonwealth towards the total cost of these sewing projects has, in the past, been approximately 3½% while the Federal law requires a contribution of 25%; and

Whereas, The Works Progress Administration threatens to abandon these sewing projects unless the Commonwealth increases its proportionate contribution; and

Whereas, The Executive branch of the State Government has refused to make the 25% contribution now required by the Works Progress Administration or even to make the suggested compromise contribution of 15%; and

Whereas, If means are not found to adjust this difference and continue these sewing projects, some 12,000 needy women will be thrown out of work, many of whom have dependent families; and

Whereas, Any such cessation of these sewing projects will result in a material increase in the number of persons on the direct relief rolls of the Commonwealth thereby causing a much greater expense to the Commonwealth than would be occasioned by the 25% contribution towards these sewing projects; now therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby pledges itself to adopt an appropriation bill furnishing the necessary 25% contribution by the Commonwealth for the continuation of these Works Progress Administration sewing projects.

Referred to the Committee on Welfare.

By Messrs. McGRATH and McSURDY.

RESOLUTION No. 35.

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1941.

Whereas, The sole industry of the Lower Anthracite Region located in north Schuylkill County is the mining, preparing, and selling of coal; and

Whereas, The coal industry has suffered greatly during the years of the National depression, resulting in great unemployment in this region; and

Whereas, This condition of unemployment will not be corrected in the course of anticipated business improvements throughout the Nation as a whole, due to the fact that many of the mines are now flooded and the colleries demolished and can be made productive only at prohibitive cost; and

Whereas, The people have suffered greatly from reduced incomes and the various state relief agencies have been required to expend tremendous sums of money to maintain them; and

Whereas, It is the policy of the State and National Governments to create employment as one of the purposes in the reconstruction of the Defense Program of the Nation; and

Whereas, The government, as part of the National Defense Program, is at present distributing contracts for production of defense needs; and

Whereas, The geographical location of the region offers suitable sites for the construction of airports; and

Whereas, This petitioning region has sufficient skilled and unskilled labor and sufficient sites with adequate transportation facilities to warrant the location of defense industries; and

Whereas, The Borough Councils of Ashland, Frackville, Gilberton, Girardville, Gordon, Mahanoy City, and Shenandoah, their members, officers, and constituents have appealed to the Legislature directly for an immediate and thorough survey of the above mentioned region and its possibilities to determine the feasibility of maintaining and constructing factories, airports, or any other needs for the defense program, and such a survey would greatly aid in the reduction of the unemployment, which would in turn relieve the state agencies of the tremendous burden of providing for the unemployed of the region; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives request the President of the United States and the Hon. Joseph Guffey and the Hon. James P. Davis, Senators from Pennsylvania, and all members of Congress from Pennsylvania, to make all possible effort to have the Federal agency directly in charge of the defense program make such a survey and take all steps necessary to achieve the objectives above; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be mailed to the President of the United States, and the Hon. Joseph Guffey and the Hon. James P. Davis, Senators from Pennsylvania, and all members in Congress representing the great Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1941.

Almost the first action taken by the House of Representatives at its present sitting was the adoption of a resolution for the appointment of a committee to incestigate all the circumstances surrounding the indicated failure of the Commonwealth to make its proper contribution to the W. P. A. sewing projects and to report its findings and recommendations promptly to the House, pursuant to which resolution, the Speaker appointed Mr. Shaw as Chairman and Messrs. Scanlon, Readinger, Bretherick and Stockham as members of the investigating committee.

The committee immediately entered upon its duties with vigor and efficiency, filing its preliminary report on February 17th, which shows that, through the efforts of the committee, demonstrations scheduled in Philadelphia and Harrisburg were averted; that the committee has very effectively inquired into all of the facts of the controversy, and has made findings and conclusions of inestimable importance; and that it has succeeded in having the sewing projects continue during further negotiations looking towards a permanent adjustment of the matter, thereby preventing untold suffering to the 12,000 women and their dependents who look to these projects for their means of sustenance, therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby thanks its committee for its prompt action and the thoroughness and effectiveness with which it has performed its services, and congratulates it on the magnificent results which it has already attained. It is the earnest conviction of this body that the work of this committee sets a new standard of promptness, efficiency and impartiality that other committees may do well to follow as an example, and that if every commission and agency of the State performed its functions in accordance therewith, the affairs of the Commonwealth would be better administered, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be delivered to the chairman and to each of the members of the Committee Named to Investigate the Sewing Projects Dispute.

RESOLUTION NO. 14

Mr. ROSENFELD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up Resolution No. 14, Printer's No. 34.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 4, 1941.

Whereas, The mayor and city council of the city of Philadelphia have deliberately refused to cooperate with the United States Housing Authority to facilitate construction of low-rent housing projects, and

Whereas, Such refusal has been extremely detrimental to business, labor, and the welfare of many citizens of the City of Philadelphia; and

Whereas, Such refusal has been extremely detrimental to the national defense because of the great influx of workers in defense industries located in the City of Philadelphia, particularly in the section south of Market Street; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House appoint a committee of three members of the House of Representatives to make a thorough and impartial study of the housing situation in the City of Philadelphia particularly as it affects workers in defense industries and be it further

Resolved, That the said legislative committee shall hold public hearings in the City of Philadelphia, so that the citizens of Philadelphia may be enlightened on all matters pertaining to the said housing situation; and be it further

Resolved, That said committee shall make a report of its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly as speedily as possible.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

RESOLUTION NO. 14—COMMITTEE APPOINTED

The SPEAKER. In accordance with the provision of House Resolution No. 14, Printer's No. 34, adopted February 24, the Chair appoints the following select committee: Messrs. Rosenfeld, Chairman, O'Brien and Voorhees.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from York will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, last week the gentleman from Indiana asked that the leter which we received from the Supervisors of the Soil Conservation District in Indiana County be read. At this time I want to fulfill that request. There was some insinuation last week that there possibly was no letter. I want to assure the gentlemen of the House that there is, and I want to read the letter at this time.

This letter is written on the letter head of "The District Supervisors of the Black Lick, Pa. No. 1 Soil Conservation District, Community Center Bldg. "Y. M. C. A." Indiana, Pa." The letter is dated February 10, 1941, and is addressed to Clayton E. Moul, State Agricultural Committee, House of Representatives, Harrisburg, Pa., and reads as follows:

"Dear Mr. Moul:

"With regard to the Supervisors of the Black Lick Soil Conservation District receiving pay for their duties, expense money for travel, and mileage for their cars, etc. I should like to state the following:

"The Supervisors did receive mileage for their cars for two meetings held near the beginning of the District's formation. They were then notified to submit no more bills until the required funds would be available, at which time the Supervisors would be so informed.

"The above notification was received by the Supervisors over two years ago, and they have received no further information nor compensation for their time or mileage expended since that time.

"It is apparent that the Supervisors should at least receive expense money for the cars, trips, meetings, etc. as this would be considerable encouragement to them in their attempts to advance the soil conservation work of the District which is bady needed in this area.

Very truly yours,

JAMES S. CORNELL,
Chairman, Board of Supervisors
Black Lick District"

The SPEAKER. The remarks of the gentleman under his question of personal privilege will be spread upon the Journal.

INTERROGATION

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MOUL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from York whether the letter which he has just read is in reply to a communication to him?

Mr. MOUL. No sir, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, was it in reply to a communication from someone else?

Mr. MOUL. No sir, Mr. Speaker. I will say this, however, that the gentleman from Indiana, after he saw what happened last week, was afraid there was no letter, and I have a second letter here, and if the gentleman wants to hear what the gentleman from Indiana said the second time, I will be glad to read the one he wrote under date of February 21, 1941. In other words, he feared apparently that it was lost and then he wrote a second one. The one I read was the first one, dated February 10, 1941, and was the original. I did not have any correspondence with the gentleman whatsoever.

Would the gentleman from Delaware wish to have the second letter read?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I never ask questions of people who volunteer information. I would like further to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from York, know how it came that this letter was addressed to him?

Mr. MOUL. I do not, Mr. Speaker.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. LEVY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have in my hand a newspaper account under today's date line, and I wish to read to the House the following remarks made by the Hon. Eugene Alessandroni of the Common Pleas Court in Philadelphia, in sentencing a gentleman who had committed certain acts contrary to public policy.

"The imposition of sentence brings to a close, one of the most sordid and shocking cases in the annals of our courts," Judge Alessandroni said.

"The imagination falters as it contemplates the ease with which one man was able to draw, as if by a magnet, nearly $2,000,000 of other people's money to do with virtually as he pleased."

That, gentlemen, was the opening remark in imposing sentence upon Robert J. Boltz of Philadelphia in connection with various investment practices.

Mr. Speaker, many of you who have served in the Legislature before know that up until the advent of the Earle administration in Pennsylvania the Pennsylvania

Securities Commission was nothing more or less than a tool of the investment bankers of Pennsylvania, and it is of the greatest importance to both the members of this Assembly and the people of Pennsylvania that on the eve and after the occurrence of this sordid crime in Philadelphia, and one incidentally which is about to be disclosed, that the securities law of Pennsylvania be discussed, and also in view of the fact that Pennsylvania stands as the number two state in the United States in the retail sales and distribution of investment securities.

May I give you, gentlemen, a little of the history involved. In 1935 George H. Earle appointed a Commission which started a fearless fight for the protection of the public's rights in connection with the manipulation and sale of investment securities. But, Mr. Speaker, the commission very early realized that the tools extended to it by the securities act of 1937 were wholly inadequate for the protection of the investing public. The Earle administration in 1937, not desiring to proceed with a legislative program without proper study, had introduced into this Legislature a resolution, and I refer specifically to resolution No. 71, Printer's No. 807, which was introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, on April 26, 1937.

For the purpose of the record, gentlemen, it might be well to read to the House Resolution No. 71, dated April 26, 1937. The resolution reads as follows:

"Whereas, during recent years there has been not only a marked and substantial change in the method of dealing generally in securities, but also an offering to the public of many novel types of investments and the furnishing of services in connection with securities; and

"Whereas, the jurisdiction of the Pennsylvania Securities Commission under existing law may not be sufficiently comprehensive to deal with such problems and to afford to the investing public adequate protection and safeguards in connection with such transactions. Now, Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That the Department of Banking and the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, be and they are hereby directed to make a survey of such dealings, and activities, and a study of the existing law under which the Pennsylvania Securities Commission presently has jurisdiction over transactions in securities within this Commonwealth, and to report thereon to the next regular session of the House of Representatives, together with such conclusions, and such recommendations and suggestions for legislation, as are deemed necessary and expedient in the premises; and be it further

"Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the Secretary of Banking and the Pennsylvania Securities Commission, by the Chief Clerk of this House."

Mr. Speaker, this resolution was adopted on the 12th day of May, 1937, and transmitted to the State Department of Banking and to the Securities Commission on the 13th day of May, 1937. It is my understanding that a thorough and complete study of various investment practices in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania was made by this Commission, and that some time in the early part of 1939, in January, I think a detailed report, representing the findings of the Commission, was submitted to this House; I believe to the then Speaker of the House. I do not know what became of the report as submitted and I doubt whether many of the Members of the House know what became of the report of the Committee, because very surprisingly the report was never printed in the Appendix of the Journal. But, Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, knowing about the rendition of this report I was fortunate in securing a copy, and to the Membership of the House I think it is now very important that we read the report to the House so that it might enlighten the members of the 1941 session as to the findings of the Committee which were apparently ignored by the 1939 session. Mind you, gentlemen, that is two years prior to the scandal that hit Philadelphia only five weeks ago.

In Chapter No. 12 of the report on page 42 the Committee found it necessary at that time to delve into the question of investment counsel such as Mr. Boltz of Philadelphia called himself.

This is what the committee had to say:

"In addition to the offering of securities of novel types, there has grown up in this State, as elsewhere, a great variety of so-called investment services. The most important rapidly growing of these services is that of investment counsel, a genuine profession with many reputable firms and individuals and a notorious racket with others."

"A great many of the individuals and firms employed as investment counsel are honest and conscientious; many are exceptionally competent, and possess wide knowledge of market conditions and wise judgment in making purchases and sales for their clients.

"On the other hand, there are many others—and this number is rapidly growing—who are nothing more or less than swindlers who gain the confidence of investors for the purpose of defrauding them. In the interest of public welfare, it is important at this time to take cognizance of these conditions.

"Investigation has shown that a great many persons who have not been successful as salesmen or dealers in securities set themselves up as investment counsel. In some instances, discharged statisticans employed by stock exchange houses, with meager qualifications, have opened offices and solicited clients for the purpose of giving investment advice for a fee.

"The Code of Professional Practice of the Investment Counsel Association of America defines the 'profession' as follows:

" 'It is the function of the profession of investment counsel to render to client on a personal basis, competent, unbiased and continuous service regarding the sound management of their investments. An investment counsel firm should devote its time exclusively to the performance of this function and services incidental thereto; it should not engage in the business of security merchandising, brokerage, banking, the publication of financial services, or acting as custodian of the securities or funds of clients; and neither the firm nor any partner, executive or employe thereof should directly or indirectly engage in any activity which may jeopardize the firm's ability to render unbiased investment advice.'

"The Commission recommends the enactment of a law for the professional licensing of investment counsel by a state board in the Department of Public Instruction, similar in general form to the boards for licensing engineers, physicians and public accountants, and the setting up of qualifications, educational standards and the conduct of examinations for investment counsel. This law should provide for the payment of a moderate license fee each year, prescribe methods of recording the transactions of investment counsel and provide for examination of the records of investment counsel by the Pennsylvania Securities commission."

Gentlemen, I read the report for the express purpose of showing the Members of this House that back in 1939 we had an Earle appointed Securities Commission who had at that time enough foresight and vision to look into the situation that now confronts us in Pennsylvania. But, gentlemen, that is not as important to me as the answer which we received from the Republican administration to the study of investment practices in Pennsylvania.

What was the answer of the Republican administration to this study of investment practices? What steps did the James administration take in order to quiet the concern of the legislature as stipulated in the resolution adopted by this House?

What steps, if any, did the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth take as a result of the urgent demand of the 1937 legislature as recommended in its report by the State Securities Commission in the early part of 1939? What recommendations did the Governor make to the incoming legislature of 1939, relative to this dangerous condition that was felt two years before by this General Assembly?

The answer to these questions is written in the political record of the Republican party, under the leadership of Arthur James, because in the Ninth Biennial Budget transmitted to this House in 1939, the Governor seemed very cool towards the continuance of a State Securities Commission. In fact, after an appropriation had been made of $150,000 for the supervision and audit of conditions such as confront us today, the Governor of the Commonwealth in 1940, in the special session, recommended to this House the transfer of Thirty Thousand Dollars out of that meagre fund, and contrary to what the Governor has said, the suggestion that the Securities Commission be abolished in Pennsylvania was not because of economy reasons, because the Securities Commission has always turned into the general fund moneys in excess of what it costs to run the department. Gentlemen, I can go further with the Republican party's attitude in regard to the Securities Commission, because I remember on the 27th day of May, 1939, in the dying days of the regular session the Republican party through its majority leader caused to have introduced into this chamber an amendment to the Administrative Code which would have abolished the Securities Commission and transferring the licensing power to the State Department of Banking.

Many of you men who were members at that time recall the heated debate on the subject, in fact there were a few Republican members of the House who resented the action of the administration, and I recall quite vividly a few members on the other side of the House who voted along with a solid Democratic block and helped defeat the very purpose which the James administration attempted to carry out in May of 1939. I remember quite distinctly that the question of unconstitutionality was raised at that time. It was clearly pointed out that in the case of Wallace v. Denver Stock Yards decided by the Supreme Court of the United States, that such a procedure as advocated by the amendment offered at that time to wipe out the Securities Commission was declared unconstitutional, but the Republican leadership in its desire to continue its effort to abolish the Securities Commission insisted upon the passage of this amendment even when its unconstitutionality was clearly advanced by the minority Democratic leader at the time.

I say to you, members of the House, that tonight we face a very serious problem. Are we to permit the same occurrences as were committed by Robert J. Boltz of Philadelphia, and this Dredger scandal which is about to be made public? Are we going to permit them to continue without a real Securities Commission in Pennsylvania to supervise and audit the actions of these investment counsel in Pennsylvania? I feel that tonight, although it may be a trifle late, nevertheless it is mighty opportune tonight that we should introduce into this Assembly legislation covering this very urgent demand of the people of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to protect once and for all the innocent investing public.

I say, Mr. speaker, tonight as a step forward in that direction I am going to file with the Clerk of the House a House bill which will tend to remedy this Boltz situation and every situation similar to it that might exist in Pennsylvania.

Vol. 25. HARRISBURG, PA., TUESDAY, FEBRUARY 25, 1941. No. 14.

SENATE

TUESDAY, February 25, 1941.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

Our Gracious Father, the members of this Senate rise to their places and humbly present the following petitions unto Thee: that this day be one of divine purpose under Thy direction; that clarity of thought and singleness of purpose may characterize their every act; that honesty in debate and the sequence of deduction may be right and true; that what we write in legislation here today may serve the highest purpose for our people and that our action be guided aright in and through momentous issues of legislation now pending in the national Congress. And all at all in favor of granting these petitions at Thy throne give their assent by adding in their hearts a silent—Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. WATKINS and Mr. GELTZ, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, in order to keep the record straight I would like to make a couple of observations on the very interesting discussion given to us yesterday by the distinguished Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro. Appreciating the fact that the gentleman from Philadelphia and I always want to keep the record straight, I want to give the Senate the benefit of my observations on the Municipal Authorities Act which cause so much discussion in the Senate and which precipitated so many bills.

Mr. President, it is true these municipal authorities existed long before I became a member of this Senate, and in discussing the act I want to assure my colleagues I am not attempting to defend directly or indirectly or criticize what happened in Delaware County.

Mr. President, I merely want to point out that in my opinion, and if I am wrong I hope the gentleman from Philadelphia will correct me—in my opinion, Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, was attempting to unload that water scandal on the doorstep of the Republican Party. In the hope I can defend the philosophy of government as well as the philosophy of politics I subscribe to, I do not think what happened in Delaware County, or what might happen in these municipal authorities is by any means the fault or the negligence, or a sin of omission or commission of the Republican party, and I, for one being only one member of that party, am proud of the fact that I am a Republican and I will not permit that to be unloaded on my doorstep.

Mr. President, in 1939 when we were fledgings in the Senate, the gentleman from Philadelphia discussed the amendment to the Municipal Authorities Act, and I am going to read from page 2764 of the Legislative Journal, the statement of the gentleman from Philadelphia, when this 1939 amendment was on the floor of the Senate. I quote:

"Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this bill originally gave the right to state authorities—to local authorities, rather, to engage in water projects and sewer projects. It was then amended so as to make the bonds of those authorities subjects of investment for trust funds. It was then amended to make these bonds negotiable instruments. And then it was amended to take out the trust fund portion, so that these bonds are no longer investments for trust funds. Now it is amended so as to include not only the purchase of water works from municipalities but also from private owners.

"Ordinarily this bill might not mean anything but if you read the rest of the bills that are coming through the Senate, there was one bill that came from the House last week which makes these bonds, municipal authority bonds, proper for deposit to secure bank deposits.

"In other words there is a bill—I think it is 1114 or 1144—coming from the House which provides that the deposits of State money in banks in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh may be secured by authority bonds or even by tax anticipation notes.—"

May I interject at this time, I have been unable to find either under the numbers 1114 or 1144 or any other number suggested to me, anything which would indicate what bill the gentleman was discussing.

I continue to quote:

"If we pass these bills and we continue to allow these State authorities to issue these bonds we will find ourselves in a position where we just as well might have permitted the amendment in the bill; and I think this bill is a bad bill because it does not stand alone but is aligned with other bills that are coming over to the Senate for passage, which will make the bonds acceptable as security—give the State a great deal of security which may turn out to be of no value, and for that reason I am voting against this bill."

And, Mr. President, the gentleman did.

Mr. President, in 1935 when this original act was passed, it provided, (P. L. 463), for the incorporation of municipal authorities and in that act they did give certain authorities powers and purposes to incorporate. "Every authority incorporated under this act," and I am reading from page 465 of the act of 1935, "shall be a body corporate and politic, and shall be for the purpose of constructing, improving, maintaining, and operating bridges, tunnels, streets, highways, parkways, traffic distribution centers, traffic circles, parking spaces, airports, hangars, low cost housing projects, parks, recreation grounds and facilities, sewers, sewer systems, sewage treatment works, swimming pools, playgrounds, lakes, low head dams, hospitals, and subways.

Mr. President, I read that list to you because there is a very interesting hiatus between the Act of 1935 and the Act of 1937 that I want to comment on in a couple of minutes.

Mr. President, according to the record, in 1935 when that bill was passed the Senate—and I read from the Legislative Journal at page 6614—the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, voted for this act, that incorporated it, the municipal authorities.

Mr. President, in 1937 the act was amended and in this amendment there were, somewhere between the passage of the bill and the amendment of the act, the passage of the bill and the printing of the act, there were changes which crept into the act which are not shown in the Act of 1935 nor in the Act of 1937 which was passed by the Legislature because we find in the Act of 1937 that the words "water supply works" have crept into the act of 1937 and they do not appear as an amendment in the act, and nowhere in the Act of 1935 do the words "water supply works" appear, but they suddenly appear in the Act of 1937, and in 1937 I note by the Legislative Journal of 1937 at page 2185 the Senator from Philadelphia, and all of his colleagues, and most of the gentlemen of the Republican party, voted for the 1937 amendment, and much to my amazement I find the only negative vote was cast by the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, whose crystal gazing seems to be a lot better than the crystal gazing of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

Mr. President, in the Act of 1939 there were some amendments, and those amendments the gentleman from Philadelphia attempts to lay at the doorstep of the Republican party.

Mr. President, I say I am not attempting to defend what has occurred under the Act of 1939 or the Act of 1937. I want to say, Mr. President, a long time ago certain distinguished gentlemen, members of this General Assembly, passed certain acts that permitted banks to be re-organized in Pennsylvania, and every now and then we read wherein the head of a bank runs away with the bank's funds but that does not mean necessarily, Mr. President, that banks are bad institutions and we should do away with them altogether. Neither are municipal authorities, Mr. President, bad institutions and neither should we do away with them.

We sometimes read where the minister of a church runs away with the soprano in the choir but we should not be against sopranos because of that.

Mr. President, in the act of 1939 under the purpose clause that the words "water supply works" were left there, the phrase that so mysteriously appeared in the act of 1937 was not in the act of 1935 and was not incorporated in the act of 1937 as an amendment but the appear in the act of 1939, the words "water distributi system" added as an amendment.

I submit, Mr. President, there was not a thing accomplished by the act of 1939 or there was not anything th occurred in the act of 1937 that made it any easier f what occurred in Delaware County than the amendme of 1937 would have provided for.

Mr. President, what we did in 1939, and I say "we" the Lindbergh sense because it has been charged t Republican party alone has been guilty of this nefario conduct. What we did in 1939, Mr. President, was mere to redefine some of the definitions under the purpo clause in the act and no where did we enlarge the powe of the purposes for which this act was created in 19 and which had been amended in 1937.

Mr. President, there was a discussion as to whether not these bonds should be sold at private or public sa and there was a question as to whether or not they shou be made legal investments.

Mr. President, without attempting to defend the po tion taken by the gentleman from Philadelphia, nor criticize him, may I suggest that with those bonds t only security behind them is a particular authority li a water supply works or a distribution system that incorporated into the authority, and that is the only curity the bondholder or the bond buyer would have the bond, and in order to give bonding houses the portunity to find a market for them, so that the autho ties created could have a chance to sell their bonds, th were made legal investments. That in itself, Mr. Pre dent, is not a crime; that was a good measure.

Mr. President, what has occurred under that act unfortunate, but bank presidents run away with a bar money and precipitate unfortunate occurrances, too, as I say, Mr. President, that still does not condemn ba and neither does this condemn the Republican party what happened in 1935, 1937 or 1939.

Mr. President, I want to say, in answer to the challe made to the Republican party by the gentleman fr Philadelphia, we are going to do something about it, we are not going to rush in primarily and just rep the act of 1935 as amended in 1937 and 1939, beca these authorities can accomplish the good for which t were originated. They can be a benefit to the people Pennsylvania and in many instances they are a ben to the people of Pennsylvania. Right now, Mr. Pr dent, many small municipalities are having a chance work their way out from under privately owned wa work plants and electric light plants and many ot community projects, for which the authorities were o inated. I say, Mr. President, the evil that occurred this thing cannot be laid at the doorstep of the Republi party. If the system were bad, then I would apolo for the legislation of 1935, but I see no cause to do so cause the system was good, the act in its origination good.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia n not feel ashamed of the vote he cast for the act of 1 nor the amendment of 1937, and I am not ashamed, President, of the amendment we put in the act of 1

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am sorry but that calls for an answer, first of commendation, because I am glad to see the work I did to prepare this information for the benefit of the Senate has taken root and will bear some fruit. It has already borne fruit in that the gentleman from Allegheny has made it his business to inquire into the picture and has begun to think about what I have spoken of.

Mr. President, I want to say I feel much more comfortable at all times in discussing matters when I do not have a paper in front of me, but I purposely had a paper in front of me yesterday because it was the kind of a subject when I might inadvertently use a word here and there which would convey an intention which was not in the mind of the speaker and so I had very carefully reduced to writing the facts, which I knew and could have recited, having gone over them carefully, for the very purpose of avoiding of what has just occurred.

Mr. President, I call attention to the fact that nowhere in this statement yesterday did I lay this matter at the doorstep of the Republican Party. All of us in life find that certain ideals are great ideals and we would like to fight for them, yet we find that the leaders who have promulgated or fostered or encouraged those ideals do things with which we do not agree.

Mr. President, that is true of parties, it is true of unionism. I do not believe I am using my imagination when I say I believe all of us have come to the definite conclusion labor unions have a real place in our form of government and in our social welfare but many of us, however, complain about the fact that leaders who became leaders for their own selfish purposes lead astray or carry or convey wrong impressions of the principles and ideals of the party or the union.

Mr. President, my distinct statement was that I laid this situation, and responsibility for it, on the doorstep of the Republican Party leaders, because there are so many men in this Senate who voted for this bill, for whom I have such a high regard, that I would be careful in any phrase that I used so that I would not by any word or impression convey the thought that I charged the Republican party as such, because many of them are members of that party.

I once was a member of the Republican party myself. My quarrel with the Republican party is not with the party but with its leaders; my charge is not against the Republican party but against the leaders; my quarrel is not with the act of 1935, for which I voted, or the amendments of 1937, for which I voted, because you must remember basically the authorities were formed for a specific purpose.

Mr. President, many localities, most localities, particularly in the larger cities like Philadelphia, had borrowed money up to the limit of their borrowing capacity. There were many improvements which were necessary which could have been made if the municipalities were permitted to borrow the money. If those ventures were chargeable against the borrowing capacity it would have far exceeded their ability to lawfully create them and so authorities were created for the purpose of having a new person or a new interest responsible for the obligation which was said to be self-liquidating.

Mr. President, the Supreme Court has said that an authority acting by itself, although engaged in a municipal purpose, when it issued bonds, that would not affect the bonded indebtedness of the particular community in which it was working, so we created authorities for that purpose, plus the additional purpose and for the additional reason the Federal Government was lending money and helping to advance these projects. It was therefore a timely and proper piece of legislation.

If you look at the original act you will find that originally it was so written that there was a great deal of difficulty to accomplish a scheme such as was planned in this instance.

Mr. President, my friend has read part of the record but he has missed what in my opinion is the most important part, and that is section nine. Under section nine there could have been no such scheme as was carried out here. Section nine of the act deals with existing projects. In other words, there were many projects which a municipality owned which it could not enlarge or which it could not improve because it did not have the money, and section nine provided for the transfer by the municipality to the authority of the existing project?

Now, Mr. President, as long as section nine stayed as it was the scheme that was perpetrated and carried out here could never have been consummated. The vice in the whole situation was the dealing with section nine and what I point out is this, if you picture in your own mind what has happened you come to this conclusion—if you take a jig-saw puzzle you get the picture of it, you have a finished picture, you have the small pieces and all the small pieces are eventually gathered together to form the picture, and what have you in this, Mr. President?

Somebody had a picture in mind. Did he proceed in one place, at one time, to put into effect the picture? Oh no, because that might have directed attention. What does he do? He proceeds backwards, Mr. President. He has in mind the establishment of a water works system, a water project. He has in mind not the establishment, but he has in mind the purchase of a privately owned water system. That is what he has in mind. Does he prepare amendments to the bill so that any privately owned water system might be purchased by a municipality? Oh no. He proceeds to get a Philadelphian, who has no interest in the plan, to introduce a bill authorizing, as an additional project, gas and gas manufacturing—nothing to do with water—Does he proceed to provide that it may be purchased by private owners from a private owner? Oh no. He does not pay any attention to that.

First he deals, Mr. President, with the gas works. He then makes the bonds municipal authority bonds a subjects of legal investment so that administrators, banks and others may buy them. He prepares the whole scheme step by step and when he has all the provisions ready he then makes it a water works bill and takes out the gas works.

Mr. President, I am sure no Senator in this room, I am sure the Republican party as such did not plan that, but I have not any doubt that certain Republican leaders must have been in on it, or it would not have been accomplished. I do not charge anybody in particular with having planned it, I do not know who did it, but certainly we do not close our eyes to what we see in the newspapers, and so I said this: this is a situation which if presented to the Senators on a non-political basis, may have some value.

Mr. President, I am glad to see that the gentleman from Allegheny has made a study of it, a partial study and I hope he will finish it, and if he does, I hope he will carry out what he says will be carried out, that something will be done about it; but what will be done about it? It does not make any difference whether a man or two men go to jail, for the purpose of my argument.

What I am interested in is that when a legislative body has before it sixteen hundred or seventeen hundred bills in a session, it is physically impossible for the Senators, for every Senator to follow the machinations of the people behind the legislation, but it certainly is not impossible to treat legislation, where it is a non-party matter, non-political, to treat it as such, and to find out just what is back of each piece of legislation.

Mr. President, I have read every bill that ever came into this Senate, and many others probably have done the same thing, but I do not claim because I have done that, that I can ferret out and follow the scheme of every individual who has some personal axe to grind or some personal accomplishment to get through by means of the Legislature, but I do feel and I do repeat that we have the ability, all of us collectively, and many of us individually, to see to it that when we vote on legislation that our vote is not used for the benefit of a personality, for persons who have a personal desire. Now, Mr. President, let me suggest this to the gentleman from Allegheny, I may not, human frailty being such as it is, have given the exact accurate picture of the situation. I know I have not told all I know about it. If I told all I know about it, it would become political and it would become personal. Mr. President, I read yesterday the very excerpt which he read and if you will listen to that excerpt you will see what I was trying to say was there is no control over the price that is being paid for these bonds, and since there is no control over it, we are liable to get a lot of worthless security, which worthless security will be used to guarantee bank deposits of state funds, and which worthless security will be used to invest fiduciaries' money. Now Mr. President, that is what I said.

I did not know this and if I had known this was a scheme of somebody out in Delaware County to do this, I would have said so when I made the statement but when I saw a bill start out as a gas works bill and turn over into a water works system, then I became suspicious and I had many conversations, which I have not discussed for the very reason I did not want to get personal, but which indicated to me that somebody was back of this, and that is why we find twenty votes on the Democratic side—every Democratic Senator who would be called a Democratic Senator—voting against it, because we felt in our Caucus when we discussed it there was something wrong about that bill, and that is why you find on the other side there was a unanimous vote on the Republican side, because the Republican floor leader on the other side felt that bill ought to be passed. As I said yesterday and repeat today I do not charge him with participating in this thing. It was not necessary; he got his ideas the same as I used to get mine—he went into a Republican Caucus and somebody read a bill and you raised an objection and somebody said Organization was for it, and when you went to see who this fellow Organization was; who is this man Organization?—he never came around—that man organization zation?—he never came around,—that man organization is the leader or those leaders I am talking about who take an organization and use it for their own purpose—If anything comes out of this, as I now hope and feel sure it will, it can only be and should only be because of more careful and less political discussion and treatment on a non-political basis than we have ever had before.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I should like to make a few comments in connection with the statement made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro. I do want to say I appreciate that the gentleman from Philadelphia has aroused in me the incentive to think and I also want to point out I believe we might still settle this thing before we adjourn sine die, because the ideas I have gathered from the Senator's remarks on the floor yesterday, and as he read them from a prepared paper—I want to say I am not a member of the press and I did not receive a copy of the statement. but some of the representatives of Philadelphia papers did get a copy and the Philadelphia Record, in the issue of February 25th, had a headline, "Shapiro Places Chester Scandal in the Lap of the G. O. P."

Mr. President, I appreciate the fact that the gentleman from Philadelphia is not responsible for what the newspapers print and I am glad to say I know my colleagues on the right will rest easier since we have been assured by the Senator from Philadelphia that it is not the fault of the Republican party—we appreciate the clarification of the issue raised yesterday.

On the question of legal investment, Mr. President, there was nothing in the amendment of 1939 which made these bonds legal investments that was not contained in the acts of 1937 and 1935. However, Mr. President, there was a very subtle amendment in 1937 and perhaps some of the gentlemen who were here—and I get a kick out of discussing legislation which was passed when we were children in the Senate in 1935, when the act was passed containing a two year limitation. In 1937 that was stricken from the act. Perhaps gentlemen in Delaware were responsible for Democratic controlled legislation—and in 1937 the Democrats controlled both the House and the Senate, and they struck from the act that two year limitation. I can see the nefarious hand of some schemer in that—years ago someone prepared for this.

Mr. President, I want to warn my colleagues they will have to be very careful hereafter in voting on legislation, as we will have to go back at least twenty years to make certain we are not fooled by something which was passed long before we became members of this Senate.

Mr. President, my purpose in rising to discuss this issue is to say merely I am sorry when I voted for the act in 1935 I was not a crystal gazer and could not see all of the objections that might accrue by reason of the fact that we clarified an act that had been in operation for years. There had not been any public scandal up until that time, Mr. President, and I appreciate the fact that my colleagues, after all, were only ordinary citizens and we have not had the opportunity, and I want to point out to the gentleman from Philadelphia that my association with him at that time had only been a matter of a few months and so he had not aroused in me at that time this important desire to think or I might have seen what he says he saw in 1935 and in 1937 when they struck out the limitation.

However, Mr. President I am glad the gentleman from Philadelphia cleared the Republican party of the charge he made yesterday and I hope the newspapers which misinterpreted the statements which the gentleman made yesterday have now been aroused to the fact and they will see to it the Republican party is cleared from those charges.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Warren, Mr. Chapman, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, we take the following from the current issue of the United States News:

> "Defense picture for the United States now looks like this . . .
> "Industry in this country is making giant strides; is breaking all records in preparation for huge output of war materials. January production of 1,000 military planes is above expectations; is a sign that aircraft industry is getting into stride. Same is true all along the line. But: period just ahead represents an in-between stage, a stage in which industry is completing preparation for large-scale production of most military weapons, without actually turning out weapons in large quantities.
> Over-all government direction of this defense effort, over-all planning and co ordination, still falters, still suffers from divided authority at the top. Business-as-usual psychology continues to dominate in most lines; continues to delay decisions on basic labor policy, on basic price policy, on basic priority policy, on other basic policies. The result: Industry is carrying the load. Government is on the sideline giving some advice, but not a great deal of help.
> The meaning? Simply that it's difficult to work up a wartime attitude in peacetime; it's difficult to streamline the nation's effort into a war pattern when there is no war."

It may be difficult to work up a wartime attitude, but to our way of thinking the chief difficulty is to make the government in Washington realize that this country cannot build up her needed defenses and be the arsenal of Britain, China and Greece, and continue to do business as usual.

Much as we hate to admit it, this country cannot live on its present exalted plane and compete in the manufacture of armament with the slave labor of Europe and Asia.

This does not mean to say that we have to get down to their level, but it does imply that we must cultivate a willingness to accept unpleasant facts and a readiness to make whatever social and economic sacrifices are necessary to speed up production and reap something like a full result from our efforts.

If we are to get closer to this war—and this is the evident intention of our government—we had better learn what war means. A new generation has come along since the last war. It has not as yet begun to realize what it means to break the home ties, to sail thousands of miles from home, to march 30 miles a day with heavy kits and rifles, to live in the mud and vermin of the trenches, to obey the order to go over the top and to face machine guns and shrapnel.

In the face of these imminent possibilities citizenship acquires a new value and importance. If we are going to let our government do the thinking for us let us be sure that it is intelligent and efficient thinking. In the face of a common danger it is not the individual or the group or the class that counts. It is what is going to happen to one hundred and thirty millions of people and their homes, their families, their savings and their properties.

This is a problem in management, and the politicians, the mediocrities and the self-seekers should be told to take a walk.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, not to detract from the very patriotic utterance of the gentleman from Warren, I would like to say a few words with reference to the discussion which was going on when I came into the room, being a little late, the discussion between the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker.

Mr. President, I am not so particularly interested in the antecedents of the bills, and more particularly the history of them, but I am quite certain it was the original authority act which was vicious because it was not carefully prepared. I may say, Mr. President, that the proposition for amendment which is now pending before the Senate involves these points:

First: When an authority buys a utility, whether from public or private sources, the transaction ought to be subject to the regulation of the Public Utility Commission, because that Commission has the facilities for estimating prices, for considering all of the elements that enter into the transaction, and the entire transaction ought to be subjugated to that Commission.

Secondly, Mr. President, the proposition has been made that the rates ought to be also subject to the Public Utility Commission. I have one thought about that in my own mind although the bill the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Walker and myself introduced the other day, provided for the supervision of rates, which must be enough to support the bond issue, if a rate of one dollar was needed to support the bond issue and a rate of fifty cents appealed to the Public Utility Commission as wise there would follow a suspension of credit on the bonds, which would inure harmfully towards Pennsylvania, so I am reserving my judgment at the present time on that question.

Certainly, Mr. President, there ought to be provision for the public sale of the bonds and for some provision for advertisement so that everybody may know the terms the bonds contain.

Fourth, Mr. President, there ought to be a provision, which we should be easily able to determine, to find out how many authorities there are and what they have done, and we cannot find that out today because there is no organization in our State that has supervision over them and therefore that supervision must be provided for.

Further, Mr. President, I would like to see them file annual reports, which I think might be well kept in the Department of Internal Affairs and the Department of Internal Affairs report to the General Assembly each year.

In those reports, Mr. President, I would like to see every salary or commission that is paid for personal services set forth in full and also have a copy of the report filed with the municipalities, so that the municipality might know how the money the authority is getting in is being used.

I am inclined to think, Mr. President, that legislation along this line would appeal to the members of the Senate, the gentlemen to the left as well as those on this side, and I believe it will come before us in not a very long time, so that we may record what is our opinion on the subject.

Mr. President, a new experiment was tried in Pennsylvania and that experiment has done good in a great many places and I do not think it would be fair to say it can be universally condemned or commended.

However, I might say, Mr. President, if I had been a member of the General Assembly in 1933 or 1935 I probably would have cast my vote against this legislation because it seemed to me then and it seems to me now to be an indirect method of allowing the local government to borrow money when they have exceeded their borrowing power, through improvident management, and it seems to me that kind of thing does not commend itself, but they have come into existence—there are ninety-three of them on the table the Secretary of the Commonwealth has given us and they have been working with water companies, sewage and sewage disposal plants; there are many needs for the good of the community.

Mr. President, it seems to me it is our clear function to see that there are established such regulations as will enable those who have the right to administer this to document it in a clear-cut way, without there being any charge of bad faith.

Mr. President, if legislation along that line can be produced, and I think it can be produced, I hope very much it will appeal to my friends over there as I am sure it will appeal to my friends here on this side.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to address the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland yield.

Mr. DENT. I will, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Montgomery permit himself to be interrogated by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

Mr. EDMONDS. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, speaking of control of rates by the Public Utility Commission, does the gentleman from Montgomery know that the Public Utility Commission in Executive Session postponed on several occasions a rate fixing hearing in Chester County at the request of the municipal authority, on their statement that the municipality was going to buy the water works in question.

Mr. EDMONDS. I did not know that, Mr. President, no.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, when I said Chester County, I had reference to Delaware County.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I am not familiar with what occured in Chester County.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I point out to the gentleman from Montgomery, that on the question of fixing rates the Public Utility Commission on several occasions, at the request of the municipal authorities of Delaware County postponed a hearing which the Utility Commission itself had fixed to determine the rates on this water works, and postponed it upon the premise that the municipality was going to buy this water works, and the same is true in the situation in Beaver County, and I therefore suggest to the gentleman from Montgomery, when he is dealing with the question of the fixing of rates by the Public Utility Commission, that he bear that in mind.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. DENT. I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to inject myself into this argument, but last night we went witch-hunting for about three hours, but today we are snipe hunting. In the statement made by the gentleman from Montgomery he said if he had been a member of the Legislature in 1933 or 1935 he would not have voted for the legislation, but the gentleman forgot to mention if he were a member in 1939 he would have voted for it.

Mr. President, the Committee on Judiciary General is meeting this afternoon and if you are interested at all in some of the affairs bothering the people of Pennsylvania today and the problems which are besetting the poor taxpayers I hope you will take that into consideration as well as the argument as to who is to blame for what happened in Delaware County or Chester.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege for the purpose of making a statement and interrogating the Gentleman from Montgomery in a matter that I think is of interest to all of us.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia may proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, there is now pending in the House, lying on the table, a bill appropriating $14,500,000.00 for relief. That bill is lying on the table because, as I understand it, when I made inquiries, as the result of a difference which exists between the Treasurer's office and the Governor. I want to state the difference, and then get the gentleman from Montgomery's information.

Mr. President, there was allocated in the 1939-1941 appropriation bill the sum of one million dollars to the Treasurer and the Auditor General, or the Treasurer above I think for the purpose of mailing these checks, and as I understand it, there has been spent of that sum all of the money except $153,955.

Mr. President, there was appropriated in 6-A of the 1940 session or allocated to the treasurer, $550,000, of which $490,000 has been spent.

Mr. President, I understood yesterday the gentleman from Montgomery to say, and I would like him to answer that question, if it is correct there is therefore available to the treasurer the sum of $213,000 for the purpose of carrying into effect his function of the relief program for the balance of the term. Is that the statement of the gentleman from Montgomery made yesterday.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, that is substantially correct. I have the statement made by the Department of Public Assistance showing the allocations made to the Treasury Department for administrative expenses in disbursement expenses in the Department of Public Assistance. It shows that in 1939 session, Act 28-A, one million dollars was appropriated for this purpose, and of that amount, up to August 22, 1940, $846,045 has been allocated, leaving a balance of $154,000.

Mr. SHAPIRO. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. EDMONDS. Now, Mr. President, at the same time, under 6-A of the session of 1940, $550,000 was set aside to the treasurer, and of that amount $490,000 was consumed up to the last part of January 31, 1941. That means that there is a balance of $154,000 on the first item, and a balance of $60,000 in the second item, and that makes a total of $213,955.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Will the gentleman from Montgomery state in a general way, whether it is not true that under 28-A and under 6-A of 1940, there was not allocated one million dollars and five hundred and fifty thousand dollars respectively, but there was allocated a sum not to exceed one million dollars and five hundred and fiffty thousand dollars.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I think that is correct, in the legislation of 1940. I do not remember it in the legislation of 1939.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I have looked it up and find it to be so, and I therefore raise the next question which is the cause of the difficulty, which is whether or not the total sum issue of one million dollars has not been consumed under 28-A, whether that money would be available under the $14,500,000—in view of the fact that the allocation is in a sum not to exceed one million dollars.

Mr. President, I want to say that if this can be clarified, I do not think there is any objection to the bill in the House, but the difficulty arises from the fact that there is a legal question as to whether or not, under the wording of 28-A and under the wording of 6-A, these monies can be now used, if they have not been used during the term and for the purposes of the particular appropriation.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, speaking for myself, and I am glad to speak on this subject, the State Treasurer has had in the last six months, roughly $50,000 a month. It was $55,000 in September, $55,000 in October, $50,000 in November, $50,000 in December, and $50,000 in January, on the first of January, 1939.

Mr. President, if the state treasurer is satisfied with fifty thousand dollars a month, I would have no objection to having it specifically inserted in the transfer bill, but I do object and I object very strenuously to making the Governor one of the three, the other two being fiscal officers of the State, who could take the whole appropriation, if they decide to add to these expenses. I feel these expenses that are taken out of Assistance money ought to be scrutinized by the Legislature. We should be very careful, we want to make certain that the money goes for the poor and not for somebody who might be in a position to submit a bill for services, and I would say to the gentleman over in the House, if they amend this bill by putting in fifty thousand dollars a month during the three months that remain in this biennium, I personally would be satisfied to go along.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I want to say further that I have conferred with the treasurer and several of his deputies in order to find out the facts and I find that while the treasurer has accepted fifty thousand dollars a month, it is not what the treasurer was satisfied with and the fact is that they got to the point, between the treasurer's office and the Governor's office, at one stage in the proceeding, where the treasurer had all of the checks written up and ready to disperse, but he did not have money, because he had requested sixty thousand dollars out of that fund and the Governor had refused to give him the sixty thousand dollars, and it required something like sixteen thousand to eighteen thousand dollars a month for postage alone, and therefore, Mr. President, I made it my business to find out what the real picture was and it is that the treasurer will require approximately one hundred and eighty thousand to one hundred and eighty-five thousand dollars for stamps, salaries and expenses in distributing the balance of the money for the balance of the term, and to pay a bill of fourteen thousand dollars which has been left unpaid because the Governor would not give the sixty thousand dollars, so they used the money for stamps instead of using the money for paying bills.

Mr. President, the situation got to a point where the treasurer was threatening to call in photographers and have them take pictures of the checks and advise the public that there were the checks but there were no stamps.

Therefore, Mr. President, we find ourselves on the relief proposition in this situation; there is $185,000, approximately, needed to carry out the function of the treasurer's office for the balance of the term.

Mr. President, there is the legal question as to whether or not the money which the gentleman from Montgomery assumes is available, and which arithmetically is still unspent, whether that can be used legally under the provisions of the $14,500,000 appropriation act, which is Bill No. 262 of the House.

Mr. President, it seems to me that we as Legislators rather than to allow this matter to get into a snarl should proceed to find out what are the facts, and if the gentleman from Montgomery agrees that there shall be a definite allocation, we should definitely allocate that, if it is necessary to accept that kind of an arrangement, to prevent that kind of a situation, we should put into that bill that there should be made available that much money, because in my opinion, as I have ascertained the facts now the whole difficulty is just what I have stated. There is no intention on the part of anybody to hold the bill up and I am now suggesting that the Senate take a recess for ten minutes and that a committee of three be appointed by the floor leader, and that we proceed to find out what the difficulty is and to clear it up.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, before we take a recess I would like to say a word or two.

Mr. President, what I have been interested in for the last two sessions, the thing that has impressed me, was that the State Treasurer was lacking in willingness to cooperate with the Act of Assembly of 1939 directing that the Department of Assistance should send out the checks.

Mr. President, in January of 1939 he had 269 employes charged to assistance and in December of 1940 he had 279 employees charged to assistance, and yet in the meantime, as we all know, the assistance bills have gone down, the expenditures have gone down about four millions a month.

Mr. President, I think the State Treasurer has not looked upon assistance in the same light that I think we have done over here, namely, we have regarded that as a sort of a trust to be administered for the people of the Commonwealth. Mr. President, it looks to me as though 269 and 279 employees are entirely too many for the State Treasurer's part in the matter.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, the gentleman from Montgomery may be right and I may be wrong bu there has been so much discussion about this matter I think we ought to see both the Governor and the Treasurer to find out what are the facts and therefore while I previously made the suggestion that we should take a recess now, it has been suggested to me we can clear up the work now before us in a very short time and we can take this matter up immediately after a recess.

For myself, Mr. President, I say that I am ready to stay here and give the matter such attention as it requires because I know it deserves all the attention we can give it and I should be very glad to join in on this proposition, on a purely non-political basis, because I do not think as yet there are any politics in it as far as the members of the House and the Senate are concerned.

However, Mr. President, I am afraid there may be as far as the Treasurer or the Governor or anybody else is concerned—I do not know—but if there is we should know and take a statesmanlike attitude about the matter and before this bill goes into conference try to find out the facts and try to prevent it going into a conference if we can do so.

REPORT OF JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, as amember of the Joint State Government Commission, it is my privilege to submit to the Senate for its study and consideration the completed report on the tax and financial problems of Pennsylvania.

In pursuance of House Resolution No. 133 of the regular session of 1939, the commission was authorized to conduct a comprehensive study of the tax structure and financial problems of the Commonwealth.

As you will note, this work is the product of extensive research, surveys, conferences and technical studies. It has been compiled in book form and it is the sincere belief of the commission that this document represents one of the finest contributions ever made to guarantee a practical, provident course of action in determining Pennsylvania's future tax and financial destiny.

The first report on the tax and financial problems of this state has reason to deplore the decline of income levels as contrasted to the rise of public expenditures.

The report is supported by tables which show exactly how Pennsylvania's economic trend, since 1930, has been consistently downward and how this trend only recently has been checked.

The report consists of seven chapters, each backed by solid fact, and among the subjects covered are economic and population characteristics of the Commonwealth; basic productive activities of Pennsylvania; importance of manufacturing, decline of state mining, place of the farmer in economy, state government expenditures and the income of Pennsylvania, general fund expenditures, financing of general assistance and public education, state and local tax bases and yields, principal revenue sources, Pennsylvania taxes as compared to those of competitive states, motives and mechanics of industrial migration from the state, taxes desirable from the standpoint of attracting industry, taxes paid by individuals in different income brackets, summary of revenue bills and a list of tax law sitations dating back to 1840.

We all know, or should know, that future levels of social and economic welfare depend largely upon the expansion of manufacturing enterprise. Any effort, however, interpreted, to hobble the work of restoration so far as industry is concerned will strike a demoralizing blow at the entire foundation of trade and commerce.

Whatever our political beliefs, none of us can challenge Pennsylvania's rightful place in the national realm of industrial mineral and agricultural progress.

One thing is certain, and that is that any state fiscal policies which place Pennsylvania's factories, mines and farms at a competitive disadvantage with other states seriously jeopardize the level of living of all Pennsylvanians.

While Pennsylvania has seen its economic resources badly shaken during the last decade, developments of late have supplied a note of optimism that was not discernible before.

You will note, upon study of the commission report, that emphasis has been placed on public assistance as one of the major problems which have complicated the financial picture of state government. We all are solemnly aware of the gravity of relief and its place in combating the hardships of emergency years.

We are also acutely interested in the status of education for here is the molding or testing ground of future generations who will someday assume the reins of government.

The commission believes that the problems of distressed school districts are dangerously close to affecting the educational opportunities which tend to sound, progressive and practical nourishment of young ideals and hopes and that improvement is needed.

Likewise, you will note that the commission, in probing the question of tax problems, urges the legislature to consider the creation of an independent tax appeal body to provide an equitable method for determining tax liability.

The commission's research experts have carefully scrutinized the history of tax imposts and excises to show, in easily comprehended tables, precisely how the burden of state government is distributed.

Thus, through this research, the whole system of tax allocations and disbursements as balanced against the sources of revenue in all brackets, paints a very careful and indiscriminate picture of Pennsylvania's financial assets and liabilities.

It is a picture which the commission commends to your study and attention because we realize that the entire perspective of Pennsylvania's future course, must be determined by your voice in creating laws which will meet the requirements of the times.

We believe that this work, in its many and unusual features, will throw an enlightening beam in the darkened corners of Pennsylvania's tax and financial reservoirs and help to build a constructive program of economic policies as a pattern for legislative action today and in the years to come.

As a member of the Joint State Government Commission, I believe I am justified in saying that the tax and financial report as prepared here meets a definite need and that it will establish a precedent in legislative practice to attain far-reaching significance in the years to come.

In behalf of the chairman of the commission, I wish to thank my colleagues who were a part of this work and whose conscientious efforts should help to promote a new and brighter era of social and economic progress in line with the findings and recommendations of this all-inclusive report.

It is also especially fitting that a special commendation be given the director of the commission, Mr. A. Alfred Wasserman for his extensive contributions to this work. Around him evolved the entire responsibility for compiling the wealth of facts placed at your disposal.

The story of Pennsylvania's economic decline is one which belongs in the past and if the gains which lately have been recorded by industry are an indication of restored income levels of the future, the efforts of the commission will have served their original purpose.

Mr. President, I should like to ask that these reports be distributed to the Senators at this time.

The PRESIDENT. The report of the Joint State Government Commission will be noted in the journal and printed copies will be distributed to the members of the Senate.

RESOLUTION URGING PROPER SHELTER ALLOWANCES

Mr. KEPHART offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate, February 18, 1941.

Whereas, The present maximum monthly shelter allowances to families receiving public assistance in Pennsylvania is $5.85 for families of one person, increasing to $9.75 maximum for families of three persons or more, and

Whereas, Recent surveys have conclusively shown that there is a gross insufficiency of dwelling accommodations renting within the amount of the allowance, and

Whereas, The report of the survey of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance published in 1939 entitled "Current Living Costs as Related to Standards of Public Assistance in Pennsylvania" shows that the actual minimum costs of shelter greatly exceeds the present shelter allowances, and

Whereas, The Department of Public Assistance is charged by law to provide sufficient assistance to relief families to "enable them to maintain for themselves and their dependents a decent and healthful standard of living," and

Whereas, The present inadequate shelter allowances make it impossible to carry out the provisions of law, therefore be it

Resolved, That the Senate of Pennsylvania hereby goes on record as favoring and urging that sufficient funds be provided to the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance to enable it to make shelter allowance to families receiving Public Assistance in an amount sufficient to cover the actual costs of shelter as determined by surveys, and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania, and to the Secretary of Property and Supplies, and to the members of the Pennsylvania Board of Public Assistance.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution will be referred to the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I have at hand a resolution relating to relief. I might say, Mr. President, the meaning of the word "assistance" in the relief law is assistance in money, milk, goods, shelter, service and so on. so as to enable persons on relief to maintain for themselves and dependents a decent and healthful standard of life.

Mr. President, at the present time the shelter allowance for families on relief varies from $5.85 a month for a single person to a maximum $9.75 a month for families of over three persons. Mr. President, that sum is inadequate to shelter these families which are on relief and as a result they use their food allowance to pay for shelter and have insufficient money to buy food or to engage in the food stamp plan which is in force in Philadelphia.

As a result they become undernourished and they live in houses and under conditions which are not healthy and not sanitary; there are as many as fifteen persons living on a floor of a house consisting of two or three rooms and as many as forty-five persons living in a single building that has only one washroom or toilet.

Mr. President, that kind of condition leads to vice and moral degradation and is very detrimental to the individual and to the community.

Mr. President, I offer the resolution in an attempt to correct this situation.

Referred to the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I have listened with keen interest to the resolution just read. It has a great deal of merit and deserves a great deal of consideration. Likewise, Mr. President, I might say the same for the resolution, I offered in the early part of this session.

I offered a resolution with reference to the relief bond that must be signed by a relief recipient before relief might be granted and I also offered a resolution asking for immediate action to discontinue the practice with reference to making a relief recipient assign his life insurance policy before relief might be granted.

Mr. President, at the time I offered my resolution the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Geltz, stated on the floor of this chamber that he thought it deserved some consideration but that it should go to committee, in order that the resolution might be further studied.

Mr. President, I thought I had the assurance at that time that would take place. I have waited several weeks and up until the present time there has been no action whatsoever either from the gentleman from Pittsburgh, Mr. Geltz, or from the chairman of that committee.

I was not hasty, Mr. President, I realized the importance of this resolution, and I think every man in this chamber has been contacted either by mail or in person by his constituents with reference to that resolution and every man in this chamber knows that thousands upon thousands of properties are being confiscated by the Department of Public Assistance.

I might say, Mr. President, I asked for a comprehensive report and it was given by Mr. Russell. Every member of the Senate has a copy of that report and in that report I find to my surprise and amazement that Secretary Russell states that out of fourteen persons in this great Commonwealth who applied for relief but one is the owner of real estate but he makes up his mind that one man will pay for the other thirteen—and we speak of class legislation.

For the last six weeks, Mr. President, almost everything that has been said on this floor has been in favor of the classes and very little has been said in favor of the masses.

Mr. President, I dislike to think of the thought I must rise on my feet and ask that a committee might be discharged, but, Mr. President, that might be the action in a very few days. That is the last thing I wish to do but I thought when the Senator from Pittsburgh, Mr. Geltz, told me my resolution would be studied at that time I thought he would have a report long before this.

Do you realize what has taken place. I hope I can touch you somewhat with my appeal here. Today, Mr. President, we have thousands upon thousands of aged persons who have carried life insurance for ten, twenty, thirty and forty years and now they are old, indigent, crippled, sick—never again will industry hire them. They must apply for relief and before they can get relief they must assign that life insurance policy down to five hundred dollars, and ninety-eight per cent of the life insurance policies that are carried in this country are not carried under one thousand dollars, which means when they are compelled to cancel the policy they cancel the entire amount.

Mr. President, as I stated about two weeks ago I knew a man who carried a life insurance policy for thirty-seven years. He saved, he sacrificed, he had one crippled daughter and he said to me, "John, I am sixty-seven years old, I am too old to start life anew; I have no job; I must eat and before they will give me relief I am compelled to assign my life insurance policy to the Department of Public Assistance."

Mr. President, the cash value of that policy was $138 after paying premiums for thirty-seven years and his only thought, his only hope, was to leave this policy to his crippled daughter. And now he is going on relief, at that age, and we sit here idly and say it is all right.

Mr. President, I am sincere and I hope that that committee meets today and reports out my resolution, at least with reference to life insurance, give us an opportunity to vote "yes" or vote "no"—I do not care how you vote, that is up to each and every individual—but I personally believe that a matter of such great importance should be brought out on the floor of this body and leave each and every man be placed on record so his people back home might know just how he feels about this most important issue.

So, Mr. President, I am trusting, once again before I rise on my feet the next time, the next time I rise will be with great sorrow because I will be compelled to ask that the committee holding this resolution shall be discharged.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HALUSKA. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Cambria state to the Senate whether or not the scheduled meeting of the Committee of Welfare. Public Assistance and Pensions was postponed for one week at his request on February 11.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I asked for a committee meeting for a week ago but at that time I was told that the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, had asked that Mr. Russell appear before the committee on the following Tuesday for a committee hearing and so, Mr. President, in order to expedite matters and to be courteous I then walked up to the Senator from Northampton and I admit I said rather than have two meetings we would consolidate the two meetings into one. That happened last Tuesday afternoon. I attended that meeting and I spoke with Mr. Russell, as the gentleman from Northampton knows.

Mr. President, again much to my amazement Secretary Russell knew very little of this practice and I was surprised he knew so little that he could not believe that the act was being carried out.

However, Mr. President, I spoke to the Senator Monday morning of this week and he informed me that they had a meeting scheduled for yesterday afternoon, so I waited today to hear the reports of committee members hoping that my resolution would be reported out. Mr. President, it was not reported out. That is why, for the information of the Senator from Northampton, I rose to the floor.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, for the information of the gentleman from Cambria a meeting of the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions was scheduled not for yesterday but for today. Also, Mr. President, I should like to state that the resolution introduced by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, calling on the Secretary of Public Assistance and Welfare for information specifically stated that they were to be called on two separate days.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. STIEFEL read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 249, entitled:

A Supplement to the act, approved the seventeenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirteen (P. L. 507), entitled "An act to provide revenue for State and county purposes, and, in cities co-extensive with counties, for city and county purposes; imposing taxes upon certain classes of personal property; providing for the assessment and collection of the same; providing for the duties and compensation of prothonotaries and recorders in connection therewith; and modifying existing legislation which provided for raising revenue for State purposes," providing for the assessment and collection of the county tax, in counties of the first class by the Department of Revenue, and the lien of the same, and the payment over of the proceeds thereof; imposing duties on executors, administrators, registers of wills, recorders of deeds, and prothonotaries, and on persons, copartnerships, associations, banks, national banks, trust companies, and other corporations receiving deposits of money, and on certain corporations and limited partnerships; conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State officers and departments; and imposing penalties.

Which was committed to the Committee on County Government.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President and gentlemen of the Senate, Cato in the Roman Senate used to get up and repeatedly say Carthage must be destroyed.

Mr. President, when I came to the Senate of Pennsylvania I selected the fertile field of education and repeatedly, paraphrasing the statement of Cato I say that taxes in Pennsylvania must be revised. Mr. President, one of the most pestilent defects in our system is the abundance of tax collectors and, Mr. President, the bill which I am introducing now tends to eliminate some of those tax collectors.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. COLEMAN from the Committee on Municipal Government reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 5, entitled:

An Act providing for the payment by the State Treasurer of the tax on certain Premiuns paid by foreign casualty insurance companies to the treasurers of the several cities, boroughs, towns and townships, and for the payment thereof into their police pension funds, and, in certain cases, into the State Employes' Retirement Fund for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Motor Police.

With the understanding that it be re-committed to the Committee on Municipal Government after two readings.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I wish to object to the report of that committee, that the bill be recommitted, which means that the bill shall still remain in the control of the committee. I think, Mr. President, that is contrary to the rules of this Senate. When a bill is reported from committee it comes into the hands of the Senate and it has no right to go back to committee without proper action by the Senate.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I do not want to get into any acrimonious controversy with my colleague from Fayette but I am fearful he is confusing my motion with the discussions of last evening which in effect would deny the committee freedom of action.

Mr. President, while there is no legal basis, as I understand it, for a committee to report out a bill for two readings with the understanding that it be recommitted, it has been the traditional courtesy over a long period of years that when a committee reports out a bill with the distinct understanding that it be recommitted, that action has always taken place, and I am inclined to think my good friend from Fayette is confusing my action which cannot be in any way construed as tieing the hands of any particular committee.

The PRESIDENT. Has the gentleman from Lackawanna moved to recommit the bill.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I am directed by the committee to report out the bill with the understanding that after two readings it will be re-referred to the Committee on Municipal Government.

He also, from the Committee on Municipal Government reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 34, entitled:

An Act to amend section twelve of the act approved the eighth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and eleven (P. L. 705), entitled "An act creating the office of Fire Marshal, to be attached to the Department of Public Safety in cities of the first class; prescribing his duties and powers; and providing penalties for violations of the provisions of the act; and providing for the method of appointment, compensation, and for the maintenance of his office," by imposing additional duties on the Fire Marshal.

Mr. ZIESENHEIM. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. ZIESENHEIM from the Committee on Municipal Government reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 176, entitled:

An Act for the judicial notice of the ordinances of cities, boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class, and for proof thereof; and to make uniform the law with reference thereto.

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 159, as follows:

An Act making an appropriation to the Department of Military Affairs for the purpose of erecting constructing and equipping an auditorium at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 The sum of one hundred and twenty-five thousand ($125,000) dollars is hereby appropriated to the Department of Military Affairs to be used in the constructing erecting and equipping of a suitable auditorium or assembly hall situate on the grounds of the Indiantown Gap Military Reservation The Department of Military Affairs and the Department of Property and Supplies are hereby empowered and authorized to enter into all contracts they deem necessary to carry out the provisions of this act

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to explain my vote. I am voting "aye" on this bill because it seems to be the general desire of those who know more about this proposition than I do to pass this bill, but, Mr. President, I want to place myself on record as saying I think there are more important subjects that may have to take precedence over this bill and I reserve the right to myself to have this bill given precedence over those more important subjects.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think this is an appropriation for one of the most important subjects before the United States of America—National Defense—and therefore I wish to record my vote as "aye" on the bill. Mr. President, I was absent when the roll was called.

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Fayette will be so recorded.

And the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

ANNOUNCEMENT BY THE CHAIR

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to make a statement for the information of all present. The room on the extreme right of the Senate Chamber is for the sole benefit of the Senators, in order that they may dictate letters, and it is not a meeting room for lobbyists or any other persons. employees included. It seems that the room has been a place to congregate for every person, many of whom have no right to be in there. Letters the Senators dictate are confidential and it is not fair for outsiders to be in there when Senators are dictating letters and for that reason all others will please refrain from going into that room. That means employees.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. DENT and Mr. McQUIDDY, offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, The most important problem before the American nation today is the matter of defense and defense production, and

Whereas, The subject of defense production has been extensively studied by various groups and organizations, and

Whereas, Philip Murray, president of the CIO, has submitted to the President on behalf of Congress, of Industrial Organizations. a defense plan worthy of the consideration of the Congress of the United States, and the President of the United States, and

Therefore Be It Resolved, If the House concur, that the General Assembly memorialize Congress to take cognizance of the merits of this plan and to promote the adoption thereof, and Further Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the President of the United States, the Senate of the United States, the House of Representatives of the United States, to the members of the Defense Commission, and to Philip Murray, president of the CIO.

The PRESIDENT. The Resolution is referred to the Committee on Federal Relations.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 4:30 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT PRO TEMPORE, CHARLES H. EALY. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

RECALLING HOUSE BILL No. 262, SENATE BILL No. 202, FROM THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. EDMONDS, offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, Fabruary 25, 1941.

Resolved, (if the House of Representatives concur) That House Bill No. 262, Senate Bill No. 202, Printer's No. 35, entitled "An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Public Assistance and providing for certain allocations therefrom for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine" be recalled from the House of Representatives for the purpose of further consideration.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, this resolution having carried and the procedure is started, I would like to say to the members of the Senate during the luncheon period there were a series of conferences along the line of the suggestion made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr Shapiro, conferences between representatives of the Senate and of the House, and representatives of both parties of the Senate.

Mr. President, we all reached the conclusion it would be most unfortunate if there should be any deadlock on this legislation which would leave the State Treasurer and the general fund without funds for payment of relief checks which are due this week.

Mr. President, the point in issue is this question as to whether or not the Governor should be governed in his allocation of money to the State Treasurer and the Auditor General by a committee of three, of which he would be one. Mr. President, on that point I am very glad to report that the members of the House who attended the conference felt the House could graciously recede from its previous stand and we felt it was worth while to put into the bill a specific statement as to the amount of money which should be given to the State Treasurer.

Mr. President, if this bill is returned I am prepared to offer to the Committee on Appropriations when it considers the bill again an amendment which will read as follows: Out of money appropriated by section one of this act there is hereby allocated to the treasury department the sum of $180,000.00 to pay administrative expenses of said department in disbursing the appropriation made by this act," and any unexpended balance of this allocation shall lapse into the general fund.

Mr. President, it seems to me that is a fair and statesmanlike way of approaching the subject. The State Treasurer has been receiving fifty thousand dollars a month for the past four or five months, but I understand that in addition to that he has certain unpaid bills that have been contracted during that period. This will provide a sufficient fund not only for taking care of his work but also for wiping out that unpaid balance and therefore I hope the action which I have briefly outlined here might meet with the approval of my colleagues in the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. The resolution will be sent to the House for concurrence.

Messrs. STIEFEL and COX offered the following resolution which was twice read, and referred to the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions:

Whereas, It is one of the postulates of a living and growing democracy that the health of its citizenry is both a national asset and a stimulating safeguard of spiritual buoyancy; and

Whereas, In the wake of recent depressions and resultant unemployment, there came a lowering of standards that sapped the health of an alarmingly substantial part of our population; and

Whereas, The Department of Public Assistance of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is charged, inter alia, with the duty of extending medical help to the needy and unemployed; and

Whereas, The formula heretofore adopted by the Department of Public Assistance for the compensation of physicians attending recipients of public assistance is based upon prorating of an amount computed on the basis of an allowance by the Department of Public Assistance of twenty cents (20¢) per month for each person receiving assistance; and

Whereas, Said monthly amounts are tangibly reduced by priority payments to pharmacists who are exempt from prorating; and

Whereas, With the decrease of the number of recipients of public assistance, the monthly amount available for prorating will shrink, while the number of persons who are mostly in need of medical assistance and belong to the irreducible stratum of assistance-recipients, to wit, old-age pensioners, blind and assisted mothers, will remain stationary; and

Whereas, In addition to the paucity of their fees, the physicians rendering medical assistance to the needy and unemployed encounter needless delays in receiving said fees from the Department of Public Assistance; and

Whereas, An equitable revision of the formula for computation of the pro rata fees now paid by the Department of Public Assistance to physicians attending needy and unemployed would ensue in higher standards of medical assistance; now be it therefore

Resolved, That the Senate of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania request the Secretary of Public Assistance to equitably revise the determinants guiding the prorating of fees payable to physicians attending recipients of assistance, as well as expedite the payments of amounts now due to such physicians.

RESOLUTION No. 36.

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1941.

Whereas, A period of four years has elapsed since the General Assembly enacted legislation regulating the hours and wages of women and minors employed in industry, and

Whereas, The Secretary of the Department of Labor and Industry in that period of four years has only recently set a minimum wage rate in the laundry industry and

Whereas, This apparently is the only action taken by the Department of Labor and Industry in four years relative to the enforcement of the provisions of said act, be it therefore

Resolved, That the Speaker of the House appoint a committee to investigate the causes and reasons for the Secretary of Department of Labor and Industry's failure to enforce the provisions of the law aforesaid and to report back to the House of Representative as speedily as possible with appropriate recommendations.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. O'CONNOR. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 37.

In the House of Representatves, February 24, 1941.

Whereas, the secretary of the Pennsylvania Department of Highways has made known his intention to inaugurate at an early date a greatly enlarged highways construction program, and

Whereas, State Highway Department construction specifications have recently been changed to provide for more extensive use of blast furnace slag, and

Whereas, many highway construction experts and technicians have steadfastly opposed the extensive use of such blast furnace slag in highway construction, and

Whereas, the Pennsylvania State Highway Department has purchased slag when crushed stone could have been secured at an equal or lesser cost, and

Whereas, there is reason to believe that the specifications authorized by the Pennsylvania Highway Department are designed to create a market for blast furnace slag which is a waste product, and

Whereas, there is reason to believe that the extensive continued use of slag in highway construction will result in serious loss to the Commonwealth, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a Committee be appointed which shall consist of three members of the House of Representatives to be designated by the Speaker of the House and three members of the Senate designated by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate whose duty it shall be to make a thorough and impartial investigation of the use of blast furnace slag in the construction of highways by the Commonwealth, the cost of such blast furnace slag as compared with other materials, and the durability of highways in whose construction blast furnace slag has been used,

Resolved, that the said Committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before it and to answer to such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the Committee and to produce such books, papers, records, documents as the Committee may deem necessary. Such subpoenas may be served upon any person and shall have the full force and effect of subpoenas issued out of the courts of the Commonwealth. Each member of said Committee shall have the power to administer oaths and affirmations to witnesses appearing before the Committee. Any person who shall willfully neglect or refuse to testify before said Committee or to produce any books, papers, records, or documents shall be subject to the penalties provided by the laws of the Commonwealth in such cases,

Resolved, that the Committee created by this resolution be authorized to employ, at its discretion, subject to the terms of this resolution, such legal technical clerical assistance as it may deem necessary to the successful performance of its duties,

Resolved, that the sum of Ten Thousand Dollars ($10,000.00) or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated from the General Fund for the use of the Committee,

Resolved, that said Committee shall make a report of its findings and recommendations to the General Assembly at this session.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. HOLLAND. RESOLUTION No. 38.

In the House of Representatives, February 24, 1941.

Whereas, during the interim between legislative sessions, the Governor appointed a committee, which has been generally known as the "Job Mobilization Committee," for the purpose of studying conditions of unemployment and the opportunities for occupational readjustment, which commission has recently made its report to the Governor, recommending, among other things, the conversion of State teachers' colleges into advanced technical and trade schools; and

Whereas, there has already been introduced in the House of Representatives, House Bill No. 460 seeking to accomplish this same purpose, which bill was referred to the Committee on Education and is now being considered by that committee, whose deliberations would be considerably facilitated and expedited if the studies of the Governor's Commission were made available to it; therefore, be it

Resolved, that the Governor is hereby respectfully requested to transmit a copy of the report of the Job Mobilization Committee to the Chairman of the Committee on Education of the House of Representatives for study in connection with its consideration of House Bill No. 460, entitled "An act converting the State teachers' colleges and the Cheyney Training School for Teachers into advanced technical and trade schools to be known as "Pennsylvania State Trade School Defense Training Centers," to train men for defense work, providing for admission to, and regulation of such schools, and alteration and equipment of buildings therefor, and conferring powers and imposing duties on certain State departments and agencies"; and be it further

Resolved, that the Chief Clerk of this House immediately transmit a certified copy of this resolution to His Excellency Arthur H. James, Governor of Pennsylvania.

Whereas, Thousands of our young men are now being inducted into the armed forces of the United States; and

Whereas, All selectees are examined by physicians before entering the armed forces; and

Whereas, It now would be feasible to have the blood of all these young men typed and appropriate records thereof made; and

Whereas, Such a procedure would be of inestimable value to the health and future welfare of all these selectees; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives request all the Federal agencies and State agencies involved, including the United States Public Health Service and the Department of Health of this Commanwealth to adopt this procedure of blood typing and recording immediately; and be it further

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House transmit a copy of this resolution to all such agencies.

FIRST REPORT ON TAX AND FINANCIAL PROBLEMS

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, as Chairman of the Joint State Government Commission, it is my privilege to submit to the House for its study and consideration the completed report on the tax and financial problems of Pennsylvania.

In pursuance to a House Resolution No. 133 of the regular session of 1939, the commission was authorized to conduct a comprehensive study of the tax structure and financial problems of the Commonwealth.

As you will note, the product of extensive research, surveys, conferences and technical studies has been submitted in book form and it is the sincere belief of the commission that this work represents one of the most historical contributions ever made to guarantee a practical, provident course of action in determining Pennsylvania's future tax and financial destiny.

This report on the tax and financial problems has reason to deplore the decline of income levels of Pennsylvania as contrasted to the rise of public expenditures. This, in league with the staggering load that has been imposed on trade and commerce through increased business taxes, paints a picture of Pennsylvania's economic structure which should be of vital concern to every Legislator, whatever his political convictions.

The report is elaborately supported by tables to show exactly how the trend, since 1930, has been consistently downward insofar as Pennsylvania's living standards and economic opportunities are concerned with a slight change for better recently.

It consists of seven chapters, backed by solid fact. Among the subjects covered are economic and population characteristics of the Commonwealth; basic productive activities of Pennsylvania; importance of manufacturing, decline of state mining, place of the farmer in economy, state government expenditures and the income of Pennsylvania, general fund expenditures, financing of general assistance and public education, state and local tax bases and tax yield principal revenue sources, Pennsylvania taxes as compared to those of competitive states, motives and mechanics of industrial migration from the state, taxes desirable from the standpoint of attracting industry, taxes paid by individuals in different income brackets, summary of revenue bills and a list of tax law citations dating back to 1840.

In addition to the comments on the contents of the several chapters, your attention is directed to a summarization of the contents of the chapters and recommendations on special-colored pages in the forepart of the Report and in the Appendix, a legislative history of all major taxes in Pennsylvania going back as far as 100 years or more, and their origin, their development and principal legislative changes, rates and yields over the last two decades with logical citations interpreting the construction placed by the courts on these taxes, histories of the major taxes, and a summary precedes each one of the legislative histories of the major taxes.

Also in the Appendix is contained a study on the Constitutional limitations of the taxing power in Pennsylvania.

A further excellent contribution contained in the report as the last table is a summarization of all Pennsylvania taxes and revenue sources, rates, exemptions and yield for the past decade which includes not only the taxes but numerous acts levying or charging licenses and other fees, approximating some 150 such citations.

I believe that this is the first time that such data and information has ever been made readily available.

These show, in effect, precisely how the Commonwealth's economic destiny has been hitched to a fractious legislative kite.

We all know, or should know, that future levels of social and economic welfare depend largely upon the expansion of manufacturing enterprises. Any effort, however interpreted, to hobble the work of restoration so far as industry is concerned, will strike a demoralizing blow at the entire foundation of trade and commerce.

One thing is certain, and that is that any State fiscal policies which place Pennsylvania factories, mines and farms at a competitive disadvantage with other states seriously jeopardizes the levels of living of all Pennsylvanians, including those business men whose prosperity depends upon high levels of productivity of the primary producers.

In other words, Mr. Speaker, you cannot help finding from this report and the studies made by the Committee that the question of the welfare of industry is tied up with, and is very intimately related to the whole question of productivity of our industries in Pennsylvania and their prosperity, and therefore as they have declined, there has been a decline in the standard of living, that is, in the amount of return which our people have received, and therefore the living levels in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

While Pennsylvania's economic stature has come through a troublous period, the repercussions of which have shaken the confidence and hope of its citizens, developments of late have interjected a note of optimism that was not discernible before.

There are two schools of thought on the reasons for this change in our economic outlook. One is that the economic pendulum, following the inevitable cycle of social and economic changes, began to widen its arc as business and agriculture joined hands in an assault on the binding chains of financial insolvency.

The other is that national defense lately has given industry a shot in the arm; taken the staggers out of business in general and dissipated the fear and gloom which has been hopelessly bound up in the lives of all Pennsylvanians. Statistics show, however, that the improvement trend preceded to some degree the issue of defense.

Whatever the actual reasons, we see now before us a definite course. If we can profit from the heartaches of darkened years, then ours will be a salvation of accomplishment and faith in better tomorrows.

You will note, in leisurely study of the commission report, that emphasis has been placed on public assistance as one of the major problems which have complicated the financial picture of the state government. We all are solemnly aware of the gravity of relief and its place in combating the hardships of emergency years.

We are also acutely interested in the status of education for here is the molding or testing ground of future generations who will some day assume the reins of government. The commission believes that the financial problems of many of our school districts, including the deplorable fiscal conditions of what are known as the distressed school districts, are dangerously close to disrupting the educational opportunities of our youth and that improvement is needed.

We believe that there must be a revision of the method of determining state-aid allocations so that there can be no breakdown of public education, and that teachers shall not go unpaid.

Likewise, you will note that the commission, in probing the question of tax problems, urges the legislature to consider the creation of an independent tax appeal body to provide an equitable method for determining one's tax liability.

The commission's research experts have carefully scrutinized the history of tax imposts and excises to show, in easily comprehended tables, precisely how the burden of state government is distributed.

Thus, under this research, the whole system of tax allocations and disbursements as balanced against the sources of revenue in all brackets, paints a very careful and indiscriminate picture of Pennsylvania's financial assets and liabilities.

It is a picture which the commission commends to your study and attention because we realize that the entire perspective of Pennsylvania's future course, must be determined by your voice in creating laws which will meet the requirements of the times.

We believe this work, in its many and unusual features, will throw an enlightening beam on the darkened and remote corners of Pennsylvania's tax and financial reservoirs and help to build a constructive program of economic policies as a pattern for legislative action today and in the years to come.

As chairman of the Joint State Government Commission, I believe I am justified in saying that the tax and financial report as prepared here will establish a precedent in legislative practice and that its merits and benefits will attain far-reaching significance in the future.

I wish to thank my colleagues and fellow members of the commission for their loyal, conscientious and persevering attention to detail and their unshakable determination to give Pennsylvania a factual document which will outlive them in service to the Commonwealth.

It is also especially fitting that a special commendation be given the Director of the Commission, Mr. A. Alfred Wasserman, for his extensive and tireless contributions to this work. Around him evolved the entire responsibility for compiling the facts so ellucidatingly that normally complex statistical shadings are brought within easy understanding.

Mr. Speaker, I shall offer the report and ask that it be printed in the appendix. There are copies of this report here for distribution. We have had the copies placed in envelopes with each member's name. When we distributed the other reports, we found out that there were some vacancies and some of the members complained they never received their copy. These reports are now in envelopes with the members names on them.

May I say this in conclusion, Mr. Speaker, I think the Legislature can feel proud of this report. I believe that it is going to supply a tremendous amount of information for the members, not only during this session, but during the sessions to come. The work has been well done. I am not saying that because I am a member of the Commission because the active work upon this was entirely done by others, and the work was well done. I think it has factual data and information which will interest you and work for you not only during this session, but in the future.

The report was read by the Clerk.

The SPEAKER. The report will be noted in the Journals of the House and printed in the Appendix to the Legislative Journal.

NAYS—0

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

Agreably to order,

The House proceeded to the third reading and consideration of House Bill No. 51, entitled as follows:

An Act to amend section one of the act approved the twenty-second day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 851) entitled "An act fixing the pay and mileage of jurors and witnesses" changing the pay of jurors and witnesses and the mileage of witnesses

The General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania hereby enacts as follows

Section 1 Section one of the act approved the twenty second day of May one thousand nine hundred and thirty three (Pamphlet Laws 851) entitled "An act fixing the pay and mileage of jurors and witnesses" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 1 Be it enacted &c That from and after the time this act takes effect the pay of jurors in this Commonwealth shall be four dollars ($4) per day together with mileage at the rate of six cents (6c) for each mile going to and returning from the county seat and the pay of witness shall be three dollars ($3) der day together with the mileage at the rate of six cents (6c) for each mile going to and returning from the county seat.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, as a rural legislator and one interested in keeping the administration of public affairs at the lowest possible point, I oppose this bill.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the author or sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from Cambria, Mr O'Connor.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, in the opinion of the gentleman from Cambria, would jurors render any better service if they were paid another dollar a day?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman from Wayne, I will say it is not the intention of the sponsor of this bill to pay jurors for their work. The services of jurors in this Commonwealth have always been looked upon as a patriotic duty, and the purpose of this bill is to increase their fee from three to four dollars a day, merely to cover their hotel expenses while attending court.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I will answer these questions as I go along, but I would like to further interrogate the gentleman from Cambria, Mr. O'Connor.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, has the gentleman from Cambria observed any great public or private demand for an increase in the fees to jurors.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, I have.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, could the gentleman from Cambria cite some instance in his home county?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, I will cite an instance in connection with our Grand Jury in my county of Cambria, where on one occasion at least it is reported that there was a suggestion that a member of the Legislature from Cambria county should sponsor a bill to restore to the jurors and witnesses the fees which they received before 1933.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, then the gentleman from Cambria is sponsoring this bill at the suggestion of the Court?

Mr. O'CONNOR. Not exactly, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Cambria know what it will cost his county in increased administration?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I do not, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, is it not a fact that the average jurors spend a very short time in the courthouse, some of them only 20 minutes and some of them only an hour, and that they consider it more or less of an honor to serve on the jury, especially in the rural districts? Is it not a fact that jurors regard this as a sort of an honorary vacation at public expense?

Mr. O'CONNOR. I cannot answer that, Mr. Speaker; I do not know. My experience as an attorney, however, leads me to believe that it is not a fact.

Mr. DIX. Mr. Speaker, I think the gentleman from Cambria has given us some very good reasons why the rural legislators should not support this bill. In the first place the gentleman from Cambria does not even know what it would cost his county and perhaps he does not care what it would cost. I for one am interested in keeping the cost of administration, especially in the rural counties, down to the lowest possible point. It would cost the county of Wayne at least one thousand dollars or perhaps fifteen hundred dollars for these services. The jurors in my county are not demanding it, they are not asking it. They are flocking into the office of the Sheriff and the office of the Jury Commissioners and asking for permission to have their names enrolled so that they would be called, and the Sheriff and the Jury Commissioners have told me that never once have they been asked for an increase in pay. They do not mention the amount of the fee and they do not regard it as a dollar service. I for one will not come in here under the present situation, when many of our counties are bankrupt or nearly bankrupt and ask for this additional spending for jurors who are not asking for it themselves.

Mr. Speaker, I have been around the Court house for twenty-five years off and on, I have never received a dollar for my services. I have been there as a newspaper man to call on the various officials, and in my twenty-five years experience I have never heard one juror say that he did not think he was getting sufficient pay for his services. As I said before, the average jurors in the rural district come down twenty-five or thirty miles and spend four or five days at Honesdale, and they regard it as an honorary vacation at public expense. They are mighty glad to render this public service, they are mighty glad to do it for three dollars a day and they would do it for two dollars a day if that was the price.

Therefore, I oppose this unnecessary expense.

Mr. O'CONNOR. Mr. Speaker, in 1933 when I first came to this House we reduced the fees of our assessors, our jurors and witnesses and also our own salaries as members of the Legislature. Since that time we have restored to the assessors the fees they received before 1933; we have restored to ourselves as Members of the Legislature the salaries which we received during 1933 and before, and I have heard no objection from Mr. Dix as to that. I feel, Mr. Speaker, that we are doing only what is right and something which has been too long delayed, in restoring to the jurors and to the witnesses in this Commonwealth the fees which we took from them in the session of 1933 and I, therefore, ask the membership of the House to vote for this bill.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. CORDIER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker there are several committees of the House and Senate that have measures dealing with the question of tax abatement, delinquent taxes and tax sales. These pieces of legislation have not proceeeded to move, due to the organization of these committees and numerous other pieces of legislation which they have to consider. I, myself, have presented a bill which provides for the abatement of tax sales until the first of November of this year. It provides for the abatement of delinquent taxes over a five year spread. It is barely possible that we may not be able to enact a piece of Legislation which will provide for the abatement of taxes and penalties within the short space of time before these sales will be advertised. Accordingly I am presenting a resolution which will provide for the adjournment of tax sales in the Commonwealth, predicated upon the acceptance of the provisions of this resolution by the County Commissioners in the various counties and by the courts. This will stop these sales and will denote the intention of the legislature to enact suitable enabling tax legislation.

Mr. Speaker, I offer the following resolution to be filed with the clerk and to be referred to the proper committee. I respectfully urge the members of the Committee to which this resolution will be sent to expedite it in the name of thousands of distressed taxpayers and home owners in this Commonwealth.

In my particular county this sale is about to be advertised for March tenth. We will not have time to enact suitable legislation.

The SPEAKER. The resolution will be filed with the Clerk under the rules.

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, The act, approved the first day of July, 1937, P. L. 483, provides that after July 1st, 1939, the Commonwealth shall reimburse, to the extent provided therefor, certain school districts providing free transportation to children to and from school; and

Whereas, The operation of said act was temporarily suspended, in part, until July 1st, 1941, by the act, approved the twenty-sixth day of June, 1939, P. L. 1097; and

Whereas, The suspension of said act has caused extreme financial hardship on the school districts affected thereby; therefore be it

Resolved, That it is the sense of this House, that there shall be no further suspension in the operation of the provisions of the said act of 1937, P. L. 483, and that the Governor and the Superintendent of Public Instruction, in considering the budget for the next biennium, be directed to consider the cost of the reimbursement to school districts providing such free transportation; and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of this House to the Governor and to the Superintendent of Public Instruction of the Commonwealth.

(Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 42.

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, Industrial insurance policies as presently sold do not equitably establish the rights of insured workers who in many instances accquire little benefit commensurate with premiums paid therefor; and

Whereas, Many bills have been introduced in past legislative sessions dealing with such industrial insurance; and

Whereas, There has not yet been established any uniformity in the forms of the policies or any substantial equity in the rights granted by such policies issued for such insurance; and

Whereas, By reason thereof, inequities may result and fraud may be established by insurance companies upon its policy holders; therefore be it

Resolved, By the House of Representatives of the General Assembly, that the Speaker of the House shall appoint a legislative committee consisting of three members of this House, whose duty it shall be to confer with the Insurance Department and determine upon a uniform form of policy or policies, providing for adequate and equitable rights and benefits, to be used in writing such insurance within the Commonwealth, so that appropriate legislation can be enacted at this session of the Legislature.

Referred to the Committee on Rules.

By Mr. CORDIER. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 43.

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, Under existing law, the county treasurers of the various counties will be required to hold tax sales of returned seated lands before the first Monday of May, 1941; and

Whereas, It appears that sufficient time may not remain to enact suitable legislation before said date fixed for such tax sales, to authorize adjournment or further adjournment; therefore be it

Resolved (If the Senate concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes the county treasurers of the various counties of this Commonwealth, if the county commissioners and the court of common pleas of such counties consent therto, to adjourn or further adjourn any tax sale which, under existing law is required to be held prior to the first Monday of May, 1941; and the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation to validate any such adjournment of a tax sale, and to provide by law for the holding of such adjourned tax sales at a future date, saving the lien of all taxes assessed against real estate which was to be sold at such sales.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I move that House Bill No. 262, Printer's No. 35, be returned to the Senate in accordance with the provisions of a Concurrent Resolution adopted this day, recalling said bill.

BILL RE-REFERRED

Mr. SARRAF returned from the Committee on Public Health and Sanitation with recommendation that it be re-referred to the Committee on Professional Licensure, House Bill No. 405, entitled:

An Act to amend section three of the act, approved the tenth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 485), entitled "An act to provide for the better protection of life and health of the citizens of this Commonwealth by requiring and regulating the examination, licensure, and registration of persons, and registration of corporations, engaging in the care, preparation, and disposition of the bodies of deceased persons; and providing penalties," by providing that student apprentices shall receive credit toward their apprenticeship for time spent in military training, not exceeding one year.

The SPEAKER. The bill is re-referred to the Committee on Professional Licensure.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, the Director of the Joint State Government Commission advises me that several Members of the House have come to him asking whether he has basic information which will enable them to form opinions upon bills and also help them in deciding whether they should introduce bills. I thought we had made it clear that there is a great mass of information, not only as contained in the reports, but data which has been gathered by the Commission in its work and a large number of reports and other material, and I, therefore, again would like to call this matter to the attention of the Members of the House because one of the purposes of the Commission is to supply such information. The Joint State Government Commission is in the old Treasury office on the first floor, across from the Speaker's office. If you have any problem; if you want to know whether there is certain data on a problem which you have, a legislative problem, go in there and seee the Director and you will more than likely find that he either has it or can tell you where it can be found. That service is open to the Members of the House just as is the office of the Legislative Reference Bureau, and we hope the Members of the House will avail themselves of it because I am of the belief that if you do your views a lot of times will be changed on some of the legislation that you have before you or some which you contemplate.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, February 26, 1941

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

With the dawn of each day, Our Heavenly Father, our hearts turn to Thee in praise and thanksgiving for Thy protection over us while we were unconscious in sleep. By Thy sustaining power we have been brought into this new day. Not one of us is sure of the way for today nor Thy plans for it but in faith in Thee we carry on asking Thy guidance.

All of our thoughts, words and actions will be written indelibly into our lives throughout this day. Do Thou grant us right thoughts, kind words and purposeful actions that this day's history be one of utmost service for Thee.

But how can we know Thy will for us except we pray? How can we follow Thy plans except we have faith in Thee? Or how can we have faith in Thee except we be in communion with Thee.

May Thy infinite wisdom, then, be fused with our finite knowledge that we may have understanding commensurate with our duties and responsibilities for this one day for we can have no just claim on any other. We pray in Jesus' name. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when, on motion of Mr. TALLMAN and Mr. GELTZ the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

BILL ON THIRD READING POSTPONED FOR THE PRESENT CALLED UP

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now resume the consideration of Senate Bill No. 58, on third reading postponed, entitled:

An Act to further amend section nine of the act, approved the seventh day of June, one thousand nine hundred and seventeen (P. L. 363), entitled "An act relating to the organization, jurisdiction, and procedure of the Orphans' Courts; the powers and duties of the judges thereof; and appeals therefrom," as amended on the twenty-sixth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-one (P. L. 349), by extending the jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court to supervision and enforcement of gifts for charitable uses, even though such gifts have passed out of fiduciaries now subject to the jurisdiction of the Orphans' Court directly to corporations or others charged with their administration.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 58, the bill just read, be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General, for the purpose of amendment, with the consent of the sponsor.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, ordinarily if we were to read in the papers that Captain John C. Urbitus, stationed at Fort Monroe, was the happy father of a son, we would pay no attention to it, but when we realize that the gentleman in question happens to be also the son-in-law of our good colleague from Warren, Dr. Chapman, we should take some judicial notice of it, at least some legislative notice of it, and now that the good Doctor from Warren has added to his many distinctions the proud distinction of being a grandfather, I rise in my place to place upon the record the additional achievement of the gentleman from Warren.

Mr. President, I do so with great fear and trepidation, because I understand, in some devious way I have been given notice of the fact that I too some day soon am to become a grandfather. With that thought in mind, Mr. President, I hope that same feelings that prompted me to make this statement, the same feeling of awe with which I shall now gaze upon the gentleman from Warren, considering the fact that he has distinguished himself so well in the Senate, so ably that we all thought there were no further distinctions that could come to him because of the extensiveness of his activities, we now find that our good friend is a grandfather.

Mr. President, I congratulate him, I think it is an achievement, I think it is an honor, and I ask my colleagues to take note of it and to join with me in felicitations to the proud grandfather and to wish health and happiness to the parents.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I hope that soon we may have the same opportunity of extending to Senator Shapiro the same felicitations that he has extended to me.

SENATE BILL No. 58 RECOMMITTED

The PRESIDENT. In order that the record might be clear, when the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro made the motion which was seconded by the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, the Chair did not take a vote on the motion for the reason he thought the senator from Philadelphia was going to speak on that bill. Of course, it so happened that it was on a question of personal privilege, and the Chair did not want to interrupt him.

The question before the Senate was whether the Senate would agree to the motion made by the Senator from Philadelphia seconded by the Senator from Allegheny, that Senate Bill 58 be recommitted.

It was agreed to.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of information.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, do I understand that this bill is sent back for amendment?

The CHAIR. That is correct.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Mr. BECKER, from the Committee on Military Affairs reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 152, entitled:

An Act authorizing and directing the Department of Military Affairs to compile, edit, publish, and distribute books, listing the names of the veterans of the wars and expeditions, in which the United States has engaged; authorizing said department to procure and accept a Federal Works Progress Administration grant; and making an appropriation.

HOUSE RESOLUTION NO. 19 REPORTED FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. CRIDER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred on February 19, 1941 the following resolution from the House of Representatives reported the same without amendments as follows, viz:

In the House of Representatives, February 10, 1941.

Whereas, December 15 1941 will be the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights embodied in the Constitution of the United States as its first ten amendments, and

Whereas, This date, which is ordinarily significant, assumes unusual importance at this particular period in the history of our Nation and of the world, when those fundamental rights are threatened by totalitarian forces abroad and their sympathizers at home, and

Whereas, The American Legion, Spanish American War Veterans, and Veterans of the World War and other veterans' and patriotic organizations and citizens have petitioned this General Assembly to urge suitable action to encourage the promotion of widespread observance of the anniversary, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur) That the General Assembly memorialize the Congress of the United States to designate December 15. 1941 as a national holiday and authorize the appointment of a Bill of Rights Sesqui-Centennial Commission to sponsor appropriate ceremonies and celebrations upon that day, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the President of the United States, each of the presiding officers of the two branches in Congress and to each United States senator and member from this Commonwealth.

Which was laid on the table.

Mr. COX, from the Committee on Military Affairs, rereported as committed, Senate Bill No. 66, entitled:

An Act to further amend the last paragraph of section four hundred thirty-nine of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," imposing additional duties on and providing for additional compensation of veterans' grave registrars.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,
On the question,
Will the Senate agree to the bill

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I had understood in the session of 1939 we had passed our last tax abatement bill. It may be necessary, Mr. President, to pass a bill at this time, but we have heard a good many objections from members of the Senate to the different provisions of this bill, and it seems to me we are using undue haste in passing it at this time without more fully considerating it.

Mr. President, in looking at the Act of 1939, I find it was not approved by the Governor until June. These tax sales are fixed for August, and I feel we could give considerably more attention to this bill before we take it up and rush it through.

Mr. President, I would probably vote for the tax abatement bill if it were fully considered, but I do not like to be rushed into a matter of this kind at this time.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I object to the bill in its present form, because it applies to property taxes in the City of Pittsburgh, but to the school taxes it does not apply. Therefore, Mr. President, it would be very confusing to our collectors to have it apply to half of our taxes in the City of Pittsburgh and not to the other half. However, Mr. President, I am sure this bill will be corrected in the House so that it will satisfy the City of Philadelphia and the first class school district of Philadelphia, and make it uniform in the City of Pittsburgh.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, this is a re-enactment of the acts originally passed in 1935, 1937 and 1939.

Mr. President, as far as the City of Pittsburgh's objection is concerned, I tried for hours to get some opinion from the member from Pittsburgh who handles tax matters and collects them, the city controller, Senator Frey.

Mr. President, this bill exempts the first class school districts. Pittsburgh is a second class city with a first class school district; Philadelphia is a first class city with a first class school district. Philadelphia has its own bill, and it is a companion bill to this one.

Mr. President, in the last five years that I know of, the Philadelphia bill has taken care of first class school districts and city districts. If they amend this act and take second class cities out of it, then when the Philadelphia bill passes, if it does, you will find this condition that the gentleman from Allegheny objected to, you will have the school districts with tax penalty abatements and the city proper without tax penalty abatements.

Mr. President, this is exactly the same act as was passed for the last five years. The only thing that is different in it is the name and the date.

Mr. President, I suggest we take it to a vote. Those who have not the problems to worry about at home such as I have—my county treasurer has stated he will have to send out tax sale notices on March 4, and if we pass the bill, it will be notice to all county treasurers not to send out tax sale notices.

Therefore, Mr. President, I call for a vote on the bill. Let it stand or fall on its merits.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, some years ago, I think it was about four years ago, on this tax abatement question, I called attention to the fact that a bill which was going through the Senate in exactly a similar form to this one would have the affect of not carrying out the purpose of the framer.

Mr. President, it is more than mere confusion in Allegheny county, it amounts to this, that where you say that there shall be no foreclosure on a piece of property in Allegheny county under this bill, you will stop the hand of the city from foreclosing, but you do not stop the hand of the school district from proceeding to foreclose, so that it is more than mere confusion. It means, Mr. President, that you do not affect the purpose that you are trying to accomplish.

Mr. President, four years ago when this situation occurred, we all sat down and we framed a bill which covered all districts, all cities, from cities of the first class down. That bill is still a law today, except, Mr. President, that bill is not effective for persons who have not taken advantage of the act within the time prescribed by law, so that those persons who have not by the time fixed, which was November of the year following the passage of the law which was subsequently extended for another two years, those persons who have not taken advantage can not come into Philadelphia or any other city in the state and ask for an installment plan for the payment of their taxes.

Mr. President, this bill comes along and recreates the situation by going back for back taxes and including, I think, 1940 and 1941 tax sales, and provides for installment payments of those taxes.

Mr. President, this bill does not cover Philadelphia. There is no law today which covers Philadelphia, there is no law which grants a similar right to a person living in a city of the first class, nor is there a similar law which gives the right to school districts of the first class so the school districts of Pittsburgh will be operating on one basis with authority to foreclose, whereas the city will not be permitted to foreclose.

Mr. President, that creates a confusion which I think does not look well for the members of the Senate. We are hastily passing legislation we should pass in a proper way.

Mr. President, I have great sympathy for the situation in which the gentleman from Westmoreland finds himself, and I would be very glad to help in whatever way I can to help in the situation, and I say to him, I make the suggestion that as to all cities and school districts other than first class, and that would cover the situation, leave cities of the first class and school districts of the first class out of it.

Mr. President, there is no longer in my opinion in Philadelphia a cry for any delinquent tax bill and I do not think there is any reason for it in Allegheny county. I am not so sure about that. I think you will find if you will consult with the receiver of taxes in Philadelphia he would prefer not to have this bill. As a matter of fact, at the time we passed these bills there was a great emergency situation, but I do not see, so far as Philadelphia is concerned, that we need this bill. I think cities of the first class and school districts of the first class ought to be out.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I am glad the gentleman from Philadelphia can now vote with me on the bill, because cities of the first class and school districts of the first class are out of the bill, just as he wants them.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I find enough sentiment, I think, on both sides of the Senate for an abatement act, so that I would like to ask, because of the confusion which apparently exists, that the sponsor of the bill have it go over until Monday, because I am afraid, if he calls it up for final passage at this time the bill will be defeated, and that is not the desire of the majority members of the Senate.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I was glad to have the bill go back to committee at the request of those who did not like the provisions of it and wanted to amend it, and the bill came out in identically the same form as it was sent back to committee.

Mr. President, I object to letting it go over until Monday because they will not know any more about it on Monday than they know now, and, Mr. President, if it is going to be defeated, let us do it now.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, the same condition spoken of by the gentleman from Westmoreland as existing in his county also exists in my county. I understand our county treasurer is prepared next week to send out notices.

Mr. President, I think we members of the rural counties should be given an opportunity to either vote for this bill or, defeat it. If Pittsburgh has a problem of its own they have had every opportunity, I know that personally, to amend the bill.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Westmoreland had the bill sent back to committee for that purpose and it came out of committee without any amendments. I think we members from the rural counties want this bill passed and if Philadelphia and Pittsburgh wish to oppose it, well and good, but I see no reason to delay a vote on this bill because next week will be to late and I therefor ask that this bill go to a vote today.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HALUSKA. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Cambria what notice the treasurer of his county, or the county commissioners, or whoever it may be, is going to send out next week.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I can not answer that question as to what notice will be sent out. I just read an article in the newspaper where the county Treasurer is planning a county treasurer's sale, but what the date is I do not know.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, as I pointed out awhile ago, the act of 1939 was not signed by the Governor until June of 1939. These treasurer's sales do not take place until August and I can not understand what notice is being sent out at this time.

Furthermore, Mr. President, if the treasurer of Cambria County or the treasurer of Westmoreland county sends out certain notices at this time that ought to help in getting in taxes, without affecting the sale. We can still postpone the sale after we get a proper bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, if my memory serves me correctly it seems to me we in 1939 dilly-dallied around for a long time, until we passed a resolution asking the county treasurer to stop sending out notices, and that will happen again.

Mr. President, while I am on my feet I wish to say this, it is true, however, that we passed a tax abatement bill in 1935 and also in 1937 and 1939. It is also true, however, Mr. President, thousands upon thousands of our citizens were not in a position to take advantage of that law because they did not have any employment but now within the last eight or nine months many of those persons have become employed and this is the first opportunity they have had to redeem their properties.

Mr. President, I think it is more important today than at any time in previous years because of the fact that those people are employed and are very anxious to be able to redeem their own properties.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I would like to suggest to the Senator from Westmoreland, to state rather, that in the session of 1935 I was confronted, or the legislature was confronted with this problem and I introduced a resolution which I think would better accomplish the purpose of staying any tax sales, than to vote on this bill this morning.

Mr. President, I want to assure the gentleman from Westmoreland I am very much interested in a bill of this kind. I have also listened with interest to the remarks of the gentleman from Somerset and also the gentleman from Philadelphia, and while I am in favor of the bill I think it behooves us to have a good bill and I think this bill can be improved upon.

Mr. President, I am in favor of a tax abatement bill for the reason that Blair County has not enjoyed as yet the prosperity that possibly Philadelphia and Allegheny County have enjoyed, and if the properties go to sale I feel they will simply become the properties of the County and that no great purpose will be served by having these sales.

Therefore, Mr. President, I would respectfully request the Senator from Westmoreland not to press for a vote on the bill this morning because I fear it may result in the defeat of the bill. I would suggest to the gentleman the advisability of introducing a resolution to take care of the matter.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I understood I was being interrogated.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I desired to make that statement.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, with permission of the Chair I will make a statement in answer to the statement made by the gentleman from Blair.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland may proceed.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I would like to go along with the proposition of letting the bill stay over until Monday. However, Mr. President the bill is identically the same bill and practically the same bill that every man on this floor voted for in 1937 and 1939, and those of us who were here in 1935 also voted for practically the same bill.

Mr. President, I remember in the House in 1935 we had a bill similar to what the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, asked for, all inclusive, and it took us over three weeks—over three weeks to argue the point with the Philadelphia delegation and the Pittsburgh delegation and after three weeks argument we came out with this bill you gentlemen see before you now.

Mr. President, you are not going to gain anything. If you have any suggestions that will show me right now this can be made a better bill I would be willing to have the bill go over until June, but Mr. President, this bill is identically the same bill which is on the statute books today. What suggestions have you? Show them to me.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, one suggestion is the bill might be made to apply to municipalities at their discretion. That may be objectionable but it is something that has not been considered much and if it were left that way it would leave Philadelphia out.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I share the anxiety of the members on both sides of the House, if the sponsor insists upon pressing for its passage at this time. I do not think anything can be accomplished by preventing the sending out of any notices in his particular county. That is what the county treasurer is supposed to do on tax sales.

Mr. President, with the thought in mind of the presentation of a resolution on Monday asking the county treasurers to delay sending out notices of tax sales and in order to prevent this bill from being defeated today, I desire to make a motion, in order to give the parties interested an opportunity to study the bill over the weekend.

MOTION TO PLACE SENATE BILL NO. 125 ON CALENDAR AS SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 125 be made a special order of business at 4:45 p. m. on Monday, March 3rd.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I second the motion of the gentleman from Lackawanna.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Lackawanna.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Lackawanna permit himself to be interrogated

Mr. COLEMAN. I shall be delighted, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, what is the purpose of having Senate Bill No. 125 made a special order of business on Monday? If you want those who are discontented with the bill to have a chance to amend it, you had best send it back to committee or leave it on the regular calendar without it being made a special order of business, because, Mr. President, under a special order of business you can not amend that bill. Mr. President, what is the purpose of having the bill made a special order of business?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, my purpose is that I gathered from the remarks made by both the Democratic and the Republican members of the Senate that in event this bill is pressed for passage at this particular time we do not have enough votes to pass it and my purpose in making the motion is to save the bill.

Mr. President, I am tremendously interested in an abatement tax bill and in every session of the Legislature. including the two terms I served in the house, I presented tax abatement bills. In the 1937 session the bill I presented became a law of the Commonwealth.

Mr. President, I have a fear in the event we do not make Senate Bill No. 125 a special order of business it is going to be licked. There is a possibility, however, even though the bill is made a special order of business, if I understand Senate procedure correctly, of recommitting the bill at that particular time.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President I do not intend to vote to make Senate Bill No. 125 a special order of business; I want it voted on right now.

Mr. President, I think there are enough votes right here present on the Senate floor to pass the bill now, because as I understand the act it does not affect Philadelphia and out of courtesy I think they will go along with the rural districts. Some of them will vote for the bill and others will vote against it. I ask those of you who are in favor of this bill to record yourselves by voting in favor of the bill and if you are in favor of the bill you will oppose the motion and you will vote against postponing action on this bill untill Monday.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I see in the matter now before us a question that has been a curse to some citizens of this Commonwealtth and a benefit to others. I see in this discussion that long standing difference between the representatives who come from the city districts and the representatives of those who come from the rural districts.

Mr. President, this bill is framed and drawn purposely to take care of a situtation that pertains to the rural districts of this Commonwealth and nothting else. The bill itself in its title specifically excepts cities of the first class and specifically excepts the school districts of the first class and applies solely to rural districts, rural counties.

Mr. President, I am alarmed, as I have been in sessions past, to see this either holy or unholy combination of Allegheny and Philadelphia constantly interposing themselves into legislation for the protection or benefit of those who come from rural districts.

I agree fully with the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. President, that since this bill so specifically in its provision excepts cities of the first class and school districts of the first class, I think it ought to be voted on now and not next week.

This bill is here on third reading and final passage. Everybody has had an opportunity to study this bill and I am alarmed and ashamed to hear in this body, when we examine the calendar, we have had since the opening of this Senate, to find members in this body who would say they do not know what this bill means or that they have not read this bill.

Why, Mr. President, the people of this Commonwealth ought to come down here and chase us out when they see all the work which we have done from the opening of this session in January until now, almost the first of March. Mr. President, that is too much when you count all the bills we have had on the Calendar here, we are admitting to the people of this Commonwealth we do not know anything about a bill which is now on third reading and ready for final passage, which affects so many taxpayers and home owners and farmers in the rural districts and this opposition, the interposing in the name of Allegheny or Pittsburgh and Philadelphia.

I tell you, Mr. President, it is not a holy combination; in my judgment it has been an unholy combination and very disastrous to the people of this Commonwealth, politically and otherwise. I tell you frankly, Mr. President, I think that the Republican party would have been in continous control of our Government, that the Democratic party would have never succeeded in gaining control in 1936 had it not been for the toleration given by the Republican leaders to that unholy alliance between the City of Pittsburgh and the City of Philadelphia, and I am frank to admit, as a believer in the Democratic principles of this Commonwealth, that if we tolerate that same unholy alliance we will have no hope of ever gaining again control of this state government for the purpose of applying what we believe to be democratic principles.

You can holler all you want. I have said, and I conclude by saying, there has been this unholy alliance and at this present moment in the caucuses of both parties.

Mr. President, as far as the Democratic caucuses are concerned these two twins, these two groups, this unholy combination of Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, they get together first in their communities, the members of this General Assembly and they decide on what they want done, these two groups, and they barter and trade and corrupt each other to the fullest extent and they come down to this Capitol building, call caucuses and expect the legislators from the rural districts to attend those caucuses—for what purpose—after they who control the caucus have already decided back in their own districts, in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, that they are going to vote the unit rule in caucus. What can we representatives from the rural districts expect, when are we going to get our rights, when are we going to get our consideration? You may laugh, you may think it is something funny but I tell you as the rural districts of this state have overcome the city gentleman in times past we will overcome you again some day at the ballot boxes with our ballots.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, the distinguished author Voltaire once made the statement about the Holy Roman Empire—that it was neither holy nor was it an Empire and paraphrasing the statement of Voltaire in reference to the remarks of the gentleman from Fayette I want to say this unholy alliance mentioned by the gentleman from Fayette is neither an alliance nor is it unholy.

Mr. President, I intend to vote for the bill and as one member of the Philadelphia delegation I object to the aspersions cast on the Philadelphia delegation.

Mr. President, I am very reluctant to cross swords with the gentleman from Fayette but I feel I would be remiss in my duty if did not make that remark.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, when I cast my vote I do not want the Senate to feel I have been influenced by the bombastic Senator from Fayette or that the remarks he made with regard to an alliance between Philadelphia and Pittsburgh might influence my vote, but I was afraid if the gentleman from Cambria continued in his bombard ment I might change my mind. Mr. President, I intend to vote for the bill introduced by the gentleman from Westmoreland and I am sorry the gentleman from Fayette took this occasion to take another shot at Philadelphia and I want it noted now that my vote has not been influenced by his tirade.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. DiSilvestro permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Absolutely, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, is it true or isn't it true that the legislative members of Philadelphia have caucuses or meetings in the City of Philadelphia and decide in those meetings what their action shall be in the Democratic Caucus at Harrisburg.

Mr. DiSILVESTRO. Mr. President, confronted with such a complicated question as the Senator has placed before me I feel the discussion now is on the bill presented by the gentleman from Westmoreland and I do not feel that question is in order.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President—

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President—

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette still has the floor.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of order.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, the point of order I make is that the gentleman from Fayette and the gentleman from Philadelphia, are not discussing the motion before the House.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, my remarks are on the motion.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman will confine his remarks to the motion.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. STIEFEL. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, is it true or untrue that the legislative members of the City of Philadelphia have meetings in Philadelphia and decide in those meetings what their actions shall be in the Democratic Caucus at Harrisburg?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, it is true there are conferences at which times we discuss our actions, but I state with pride that our leader, whom I consider the Gallahad of Pennsylvania's democracy, Jack Kelly, always tells each and every one of us that we may vote as we wish and we are not bound by the dictates of anybody.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, also state whether at those caucuses or meetings in Philadelphia you decide whether or not your vote in the caucus at Harrisburg shall be by the unit rule or as individuals?

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, we do not decide that. We are at liberty to vote as we deem proper and according to the contents and tenure of the bill presented.

Mr. LETZLER. Mr. President, I am interested in the passage of this bill because those I represent I feel will be benefited by its passage. For that reason, Mr. President, I am definitely interested in a postponement of the vote on this bill until Monday, if that can be effected in any way I shall be for that, but I am interested in a tax abatement bill.

Mr. President, our county treasurer has so many properties he does not know what to do with them and we hope later on there may be ways and means by which of course the people can get them back. Up until this time, Mr. President, we have not had the benefit of the prosperity we are told is prevalent in the larger cities and I believe our people will be in a better position to pay on the installment plan than they are at the present time.

Mr. President, I am therefore going to vote in favor of Senate Bill No. 125.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I want to say I do not happen to come from one of those Democratic districts—Philadelphia or Pittsburgh—either one of them; I come from a rural district.

As a matter of fact, Mr. President, I have some business, as some school districts have hired me as their solicitor and I think it is not unfair to members of the Senate if a member of the Senate says he would like to return to his district and ascertain what the facts are and what should be done in regard to this, he should be allowed to that it has been perpetuated and that it is present right have until Monday to consider this, and all this talk and blah that goes on here does not amount to anything because, Mr. President, the question before the Senate is whether or not this shall be a special order of business for Monday afternoon.

Mr. President, there ought to be some parliamentary procedure by which we could stop some of this and get through with some of our business.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Fayette complains that we are doing so little work; I think if the gentleman would give a little consideration to the reasons why we have done so little work, maybe we can get along a little faster in the future.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I wish to point out in connection with the remarks by the Senator from Fayette concerning an unholy alliance and the aspersions cast on the counties of Allegheny and Philadelphia, the gentleman from Fayette can speak only for the Democratic party on this question and not for the Republicans. The Senator from Fayette has no knowledge of what occurs in the Republican caucus but I can assure him there are no such unholy alliances as he points out exists within the Democratic party.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I have heard a number of speeches on the Senate floor replete with statements, the import of which are tremendously misleading.

I do not want to inject myself into the quarrel between the urban and the rural members of the Legislature, but I do want to make a statement about what my good friend, the gentleman from Westmoreland, says about the vote on this particular question.

Mr. President, he said in his closing remarks that if you are against the bill vote for the motion to postpone action, to make it a special order of business, and if you were for the bill to oppose the motion.

Mr. President, I think that is an unfair implication. The motivating influence behind the motion I made was to save the bill. Mr. President, I am interested in the bill and I do not think there is any basic difference between myself and the gentleman from Westmoreland, as we are both for the bill, but there seems to be some difference in the matter of policy.

Mr. President, I am tremendously interested in seeing this bill passed and that is the impelling force behind my motion to make Senate Bill No. 125 a special order of business next Monday.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I regret exceedingly to hear any Senator on this floor impugn anything improper to any other member. I was hurt to hear remarks made on this floor that impugn any other Senator and in these times especially it hurts extremely to have any person on this floor—I will say with good intentions—array class against class. Mr. President, that is an old trick of those who have torn down governments in Europe, to bore from within and array class against class.

I am sure every Senator on this floor in the years they have been here could go to Allegheny county or to Philadelphia and if they needed help for their counties and the classes of their cities or counties that they would receive sincere and honest help. I am also sure the reverse is true. Whenever the City of Pittsburgh, the county of Allegheny or the City of Philadelphia is concerned. We have a right to be concerned for our people, we represent them, and if we go to you with a proposition that affects only our municipalities we have always received from Republicans and Democrats a sympathetic ear and an honest ear and I am sure that is the feeling of nearly every Senator on this floor notwithstanding some of the remarks that I am going to apologize for in this way, I attribute to the maker of those remarks the sincerest purpose but the effect in these times is not so good.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise on a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of information.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the Chair inform this house just what is before us—passage of the bill or the motion to postpone action on the bill until next Monday.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is glad the Senator has raised that point. The question before the House is the motion of the gentleman from Lackawanna which was seconded by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, that Senate Bill No. 125 be made a special order of business at 4:45 p. m. Monday next, March 3, when it will be on final passage. This bill has already passed third reading.

Mr. HALUSKA. A further point of information: is the bill now on third reading.

The PRESIDENT. It is.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, therefore, it is possible for that motion to be in order? Is it not necessary either to postpone this bill for the present and make that motion or have the bill passed over in order? Can that motion supersede a bill passed on third reading?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands in answer to the question of the gentleman from Cambria it would be necessary for a Senator who voted with the majority to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed third reading.

Mr. HALUSKA. That is my point, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, that is exactly the reason I made the statement I did.

Mr. President, in answer to the statement of my good friend and old colleague in the House I want to say that every weekend when I go home I take with me a copy of the latest Calendar and a copy of the latest History and when I come in on Monday, during the six years I have been here I have never had to ask that any bill go over until the next week, that has been on the Calendar of the previous weekend.

Mr. President, this bill has been on the Calendar previously, over the last weekend, and every opportunity was given to every member to go home and contact those vitally interested in this question.

Mr. President, that is why when I come here today I have a legitimate argument, for my county treasurer is going to send out tax sale notices, because I went back and asked him and he is the one directly and vitally interested in quick passage of this bill.

Mr. President, we do not need to think whatever we pass here will be accepted by the House in the identical form we send it to the House, and if there is no opposition—and this has been done before when the end justified the means employed—if there are any amendments that will make this a better bill, let it be amended in the House, with the co-operation of the House, and still serve the purpose of notifying county treasurers in the State of Pennsylvania, third class counties, that this Legislature and this Senate particularly is interested enough to pass an abatement bill.

Mr. President, I have not heard one amendment suggested other than the one suggested by my sensitive friend from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis, and that is to make it optional on the part of the municipality.

Mr. President, we had that argument here during three successive sessions and if the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis, will recollect he will remember that was defeated on the floor of the Senate and also in the House after lengthy debate and I sincerely believe if we were to take a vote to reconsider passage of this bill on third reading and postpone it until Monday night we would absolutely be saying to county treasurers in third class counties of the State of Pennsylvania we do not care whether they send out tax notices or not and instead of helping the taxpayer we will be further increasing his burden by spending money needlessly.

Mr. President, I therefore oppose the motion of the gentleman from Lackawanna, that Senate Bill No. 125 be made a special order of business, if that is the motion now before the Senate. Let us pass the bill or defeat it. I stand entirely on the record as made.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, the question before the Senate is whether Senate Bill No. 125, known as the Tax Abatement Bill, shall be made a special order of business for next Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock. This seems to me like a very reasonable request because of the nature of the bill which is before us.

Mr. President, the nature and character of this bill is very farreaching and the evident sincerity of those who have debated it is clear to everyone who is here, but there is one point that is pertinent on the question of making it a special order of business that has not been touched upon.

Mr. President, a tax bill is a very necessary evil, some people call it, but it is a very necessary thing, to have the business of a county or any municipality properly taken care of.

Mr. President, we have had this Tax Abatement Bill before us, as has been said, and no party can be accused of unnecessarily delaying or should be accused of unnecessarily delaying the bill. What we should do is to try to work together to try to get as much of these taxes in as fair a manner as is possible to make our tax laws a success. The truth of the matter is that there have been too many of us in the House and in the Senate who have been catering, as reported, to people who are oppressed, to the taxpayers of this state, and they all have our sympathy, that is true, but this eternal dickering, this eternal delaying and this eternal trying to tell another district what they should or should not do, this anxiety to serve a particular class of people, has really gotten out of bounds.

Mr. President, I do feel it is the duty of every Senator to take note of this bill and to go back home and consult his constituents, consult the county commissioners who have a very great part in the collection of taxes; secondly, consult every tax collector of every county, to see, to know and find out just exactly how the other bills had worked and what the effect of them was.

Mr. President, if some of the members of this Senate had had the experience as I have had, forty-eight years of making tax duplicates, and forty-eight years of sitting behind a desk talking to taxpayers and forty-eight years coming in contact with those rural people, of whom the Senators from the larger districts take so great an interest, they would know it is impossible to tell the effect of a bill immediately.

Mr. President, I feel it would be entirely wrong to force a vote on this bill today, without knowing what the County Commissioners have to say, without knowing what the tax collectors have to say and without knowing what your immediate constitutents would have to say to you when you go back to inquire.

Mr. President, I regret exceedingly that the political situations in these different portions of the State are such that it makes it necessary that they be brought forth on a question of a tax bill which refers to tax abatement.

This is a technical matter, this is a matter we ought to see what is right to be done, not how it effects our political party, and I say to this Senate I think it should be postponed at least a week longer than March 3rd, but so far as I am concerned that will be long enough.

Mr. President, I wonder if everybody can take the bills home as has been suggested by the gentleman from Westmoreland and learn these things merely by opening books; you cannot get far doing that on a tax matter, as you ought to consult your auditors, your commissioners of the different districts, you ought to consult the tax collectors, you ought to consult the people you are hoping to serve. We want to be sure now, and because of the nature of this bill we are not sure, but you may by this Senate just debating for a few moments on the merits, prevent interference with many of the plans that have been working out at home on the new home rule and so forth and some of these present taxes you want to hold back.

Mr. President, surely this Senate does not want to do anything to discourage people from paying their taxes; on the other hand if the officials have worked out something that is all right and they believe a bill of this kind would be best there will be no question of getting it passed, but there is no necessity in hurrying it.

Mr. President, therefore I join in the motion of the gentleman from Lackawanna to make Senate Bill No. 125 a special order of business for next Monday afternoon at 4:45 o'clock, with the public assertation I think it should be one week longer and that every Senator in this room should confer with the people back home, rather than with each other on the question of political expediency.

PREVIOUS QUESTION

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I move the previous question on the motion made by the gentleman from Lackawanna, which I understand was to make Senate Bill No. 125 a special order of business next Monday afternoon.

MOTION TO READ BILLS THE FIRST TIME

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now proceed to the first reading of all bills reported from committees for the first time at today's session.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILL ON FIRST READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the first reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 152, entitled:

An Act authorizing and directing the Department of Military Affairs to compile, edit, publish, and distribute books, listing the names of the veterans of the wars and expeditions, in which the United States has engaged; authorizing said department to procure and accept a Federal Works Progress Administration grant; and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the first time,

Ordered, To be laid aside for second reading.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, on the tenth of February, 1941, the Senate passed a resolution sponsored by the gentleman from Washington, Senator Reed, requesting certain information from the records of the Department of Public Assistance.

Mr. President, on the eleventh of February, the day following an inquiry was directed to me by Mr. Russell for certain explanations in connection with the resolution and further advising the Senate that there were certain matters in the request for information which the Secretary felt possibly he should not properly under the law submit to the Senate.

Mr. President, I want the Senator from Washington to understand Secretary Russell has in no way delayed this matter, as the letter came to my office after I had departed from Harrisburg that week, and in view of the fact I was not here last week that accounts for the delay in this matter.

Secretary Russell yesterday informed me certain of this information is ready. Since he wrote that letter, he has the items which apply to paragraph A and D prepared.

Mr. President, paragraph A provides the number of employes of the state department, and paragraph D provides the number of employes that have resigned or have been furloughed or dismissed during the last year, with their names and salaries.

Mr. President, the two paragraphs which he raised some question about are, first, paragraph B, asking for the names, family addresses and salaries of all males and if available, a statement as to whether they are married or single. Paragraph C provide for all information as to the names, family addresses and salaries of all female employes, and so forth.

Mr. President, after making this explanation as to what apparently was the cause of the delay, I will turn this communication over to the sponsor of the resolution. I suggest we take it up together, both sides, and see what can be worked out.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I am glad the Senator from Allegheny called the Senate's attention to that letter, because I just started back to the stenographic room in order to address a letter to Mr. Russell asking about the delay. The information that has been requested is vital to every member of the Senate and is also of much interest to the people of Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I will be very glad to sit down with Mr. Russell or the Senator from Allegheny or anyone else designated in order to expedite the obtaining of this information. However, Mr. President, it is singular and strange to me, that Mr. Russell should not have addressed more particularly a letter to the sponsor of the bill, if he had been sincere in his endeavors to straighten out the difficulties brought about by this resolution.

Mr. President, I shall again repeat that I will be glad to cooperate with the gentleman from Allegheny in hurrying the obtaining of this information along.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I have a high regard for the fairness of my colleague from Washington County, but I think after the explanation which I made as to the cause of the delay in this matter, he is somewhat unfair in criticizing the secretary for what is not his fault, because as I explained, it was my fault. I was not here last week or this matter would have been brought to the Senate's attention last week, and I think the fact that Secretary Russell directed that communication to me the day after the resolution was passed in the Senate shows he was apparently trying to act in good faith.

Mr. President, I think possibly the criticism is correct in that the communication was not also directed to the sponsor of the resolution, but it is not fair to impugn any lack of good faith on the part of the Secretary of Public Assistance.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I repeat, I am not criticizing in any way the action of my good friend from Allegheny, but I still insist that if Mr. Russell, the head of the Department of Public Assistance, was vitally interested in hurrying the obtaining of this information along, he would have sent a copy of that letter to the sponsor of the resolution whom he knew very well—perhaps too well.

REPORT BY PENNSYLVANIA ECONOMY LEAGUE

The PRESIDENT. The Chair wishes to lay before the Senate a report made to the State Government Commission of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania by the Pennsylvania Economy League, being a study of the tax system of Pennsylvania and a comparison with systems of neighboring industrial states.

If there is no objection, it will be noted in the Journal and I understand copies of the report have been distributed among the Senators.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Montgomery will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I think the Senate will be interested to know it is always difficult to procure information.

Mr. President, about a week ago I introduced a resolution to the Senate calling upon the Secretary of Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions to advise the Senate as to the addresses of the ninety-three municipal authorities mentioned, and requesting certain information from them.

Mr. President, the Secretary did his work with commendable speed, and has advised me that eight have already been returned by the post office with addresses unknown, so that it looks to me as if we ought to inquire how many municipal authorities are in our district and where they are functioning and what are their addresses.

MOTION FOR RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, in order that the bill which was enacted by agreement, Senate Bill 202, which is the Appropriation Bill may become law, as is very necessary because of the depletion of the former appropriation, it will be necessary for the Senate to take a recess and then come back so that the bill may be signed by the presiding officer of the Senate.

Before making a motion that this recess be taken, I would like to advise my colleague that at 7:45 a. m. this morning over fifty units of the 107th Field Artillery left the western end of the Turnpike.

About twenty or twenty-five minutes ago they had arrived at Carlisle. This possibly will give us an opportunity to see the largest group of mechanized units we have had heretofore or may have for some time.

Mr. President, this 107th regiment will come through Harrisburg and should start to come through in possibly the next fifteen minutes and probably pass in front of the Capitol.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, may I ask permission to be excused for the rest of the week?

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection, leave will be granted.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 2:00 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall offered the following prayer:

Almighty God, Our Heavenly Father, Father of us all and of all mankind, we recognize Thee this day, not only as the Creator of all things but also the giver of every good and perfect gift. This day, known as Ash Wednesday throughout the world where Thy word has been fruitful, marks the beginning of a great season when men and women everywhere will once again live through to the forty days' fast of Moses, and Elijah, and of Jesus. May we not only think of their lives and their sacrifices, but may we respond by keeping watch over our lives throughout this lenten period—our every act; that it may be a worthwhile one; our every word, that it be pure and undefiled before Thee, O God. Teach us not only how to pray but likewise how to live for Thee and with our fellowmen. In Thy name, we pray. Amen.

SENATE MESSAGE

AMENDED HOUSE BILL RETURNED FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, returned bill from the House of Representatives numbered and entitled as follows

HOUSE BILL No. 262.

An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Public Assistance for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one.

With the information that the Senate has passed the same with amendments, in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives, is requested.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will read the amendments.

The Clerk read the amendments as follows:

Amend title, page 1, line 2, by inserting after the word "Assistance" the words "and providing for certain allocations therefrom;" also in line 5, by inserting after "forty-one" the words 'and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine."

Amend Section 1, page 1, line 4, by striking out after "Assistance" the words "to provide assistance and for local and certain state administrations expenses in the manner provided in the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred forty-one and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "for the payment of assistance administrative expenses and expenses of liquidating the State Emergency Relief Board as provided by the Public Assistance Law and for the payment of attorneys' fees and court costs necessary for the proper conduct of the work of the Department of Public Assistance for the two fiscal years beginning June first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine and for the payment of assistance administrative expenses expenses of liquidating the State Emergency Relief Board attorneys' fees and court costs accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine."

Amend Section 2, page 2, line 2, by striking out after the word "allocate" the following: "from time to time among the several county boards of assistance funds with which to provide assistance and administrative expenses Allocations so made to a county board of assistance shall be available for expenditure in that county for assistance and for administration expenses in the manner provided by the Public Assistance Law," and inserting in lieu thereof the following: "funds from time to time for the several assistance programs (old age assistance aid to dependent children pensions for the blind general assistance and other programs provided by the Public Assistance Law) for administrative expenses of the several county boards of assistance for such administrative expenses incurred by the department which are chargeable to such boards and for the payment of attorneys' fees and court costs necessary for the proper conduct of the work of the department."

Amend Section 3, page 2, by striking out all of said section as follows: "Section 3 out of the moneys appropriated by section one of this act the Governor Auditor General and State Treasurer shall from time to time allocate to the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department such sums as they deem necessary to pay the administrative expenses of said departments in auditing and disbursing the appropriation made by this act," and inserting in lieu thereof a new Section 3, as follows:

"Section 3 Out of the moneys appropriated by section one of this act there is hereby allocated to the Treasury Department the sum of one hundred eighty thousand dollars ($180,000) to pay the administrative expenses of said department in disbursing the appropriation made by this act and any other appropriations that may be made for assistance during the biennium. Any unexpended balance of this allocation shall lapse into the General Fund."

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I think the House should have the benefit of a complete history of the procedure under this bill, as well as a brief history of what has transpired in relation to appropriations to the Department of Assistance since 1939.

To have a basic knowledge of what occurred under this bill as it was originally introduced in the House, one must relate back to similar measures that were passed in 1937.

I wish to call to the attention of the Members of the House that a reading of the appropriation acts to the Department of Assistance, in the act of 1937, and I might say in that case the bill provided that, "the Governor, with the approval of the Auditor General and the State Treasurer shall from time to time allocate to the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department from the appropriations made by this House such a sum for as may be deemed necessary to administer the expenses of the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department."

The Members will note that in 1937 we treated the Treasury Department and the Auditor General as being duly elected officials of this Commonwealth by the majority vote of the people. We placed them on a plane where they were higher than a bureau chief; we placed them on the plane on which their office entitled them to be placed. We made no effort to play politics with relief.

Let us follow with what occurred in 1939 and the injection of politics into relief bills. In 1939, in the general appropriation act for the Department of Assistance, you will notice this change in the wording of the act. The section was changed to read: "Out of the moneys appropriated by Section 1 of this act the Governor", not with the approval of the Auditor General and the State Treasurer, but "the Governor shall from time to time allocate to the department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department respectively such sums as may be necessary to pay the administration expenses of the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department."

Now, what was the effect of the wording in the act of 1939? It compelled two duly elected officials of this Commonwealth to have recourse to the Governor's department and to become. as a matter of fact, nothing but bureau chiefs under his command. That, I say, was the first indication of the playing of politics by the Republican Governor.

Let us follow and see what the Governor did in the special or extraordinary session of nineteen hundred and forty. In that act it provides as follows:

"Out of the moneys appropriated by Section 1 of this act the Governor shall from time to time allocate to the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Departments respectively such sums as he, the Governor, may deem necessary to pay the administration expenses of the Department of the Auditor General and the Treasury Department". First of all he proceeds to take the Auditor General's office and the State Treasurer's office and by inference make them bureaus under the Governor's office, to ladle out moneys, for the disbursement of the necessary relief funds. Then finally he says, "I am going to be the man who is going to determine what shall be ladled out".

Let us follow on with what happened as the result of all these actions. We find the State Treasurer's Department curtailed, and curtailed to the point that it no longer was able to function as it should, and when I say that I say it intentionally, for the reason that we find the Auditor General was unable to meet all the expenses he had incurred in the disbursement of relief. Always heretofore the Auditor General in the exercise of his office saw fit to send into the field investigators to determine whether or not chiselers were receiving relief funds. With the advent of the Republican administration that was discontinued. The Auditor General no longer has a force to send into the field to investigate chiselers. Here is a force that has been cut more than in half and all that he can do today is to send a few men out into the offices to investigate applications for categorical relief. By categorical relief I mean old age assistance, assistance for the blind and for dependent mothers or dependent children. These investigations are purely superficial. What has resulted? This has resulted: The Joint State Government Commission, in its official report has called the attention of this House to the chiseling on the part of reliefers and they have given you samples of chiseling in the city of Philadelphia and in the city of Pittsburgh. My recollection is that they have indicated that there has been chiseling to the extent of 17 percent, and the report recommends that this should be stopped. Can we not here today add an addition to that report to say to this Republican Governor, "If you had stopped playing politics with relief, if you had given to the Departments the power that was originally vested in them, if you had given them sufficient funds to proceed with their activities and their purposes, the chiseling that the General State Government Commission found would not be in existence today." That is the politics that I am saying has been played in the appropriation bills and relief.

May I show further the state in which we found the conditions existing between the Treasurer's office and the Governor's office? We found that the Treasurer was compelled to go into the Governor's office, hat in hand asking for money to distribute the relief we had appropriated. We found that the allocation by the Governor was insufficient to properly operate the office.

We find in this bill that we are about to vote upon the Governor had made no effort to correct that condition. Finally we decided that that condition should no longer exist in this Commonwealth. We decided that this Governor no longer should make a political football of relief. So we went to the Treasury Department and we ascertained what it would cost, and here are the figures and how we arrived at the amount. We found that the payroll for the next three months will be one hundred thousand dollars; we found that the postage for the mailing of the checks would be fifty thousand dollars; we found that the traveling expenses would be seven thousand dollars we found that the maintenance expense would be nine thousand dollars, and we also found a deficit of fourteen thousand dollars which makes a total of one hundred and eighty thousand dollars, the sum which the Treasury Department has been consistently asking this Governor to furnish it. We said, "Mr. Governor, these conditions shall no longer continue, we shall put the amount in the bill, we shall stop you fro mplaying politics in relief." That is the reason we today are concurring and asking your support in this measure.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, I will say in the beginning of my talk that I propose to support the amendments which were introduced in the House. But I do want to make a few remarks concerning what has been said by the gentleman on the other side.

It was interesting to me that the floor leader of the Democratic party was pleading not for those on relief but for those people who maintain jobs in sending out relief checks. I need not say anything about the Auditor General's Department because there is no contest between the Auditor General's Department and the Governor, and there is nothing in this quarrel to regulate the amount which the Auditor General is to receive. He will receive the same amount that was given him prior to this time under the former bill. There is no dispute about that. But let me say this, since the gentleman from Monroe has injected it into this discussion. while the Auditor General's Department was making these investigations which the gentleman feels were so unfortunate, at a cost of many thousands of dollars a month, they found that the number of chiselers that they were able to expose was somewhat in the neighborhood of seven per cent while the Joint State Government Commission, at an expenditure of somewhat less than five thousand dollars was able to carry out investigations in the city of Pittsburgh and the city of Philadelphia, has shown by their investigations that relief chiselers were in the neighborhood of seventeen per cent.

Let us turn for a moment to these acts to which the gentleman has referred, insinuating that the Governor has taken, or has assumed power which previous Governors did not have. Let us look at the act of 1937 and analyze that matter which he has read to you concerning allocations from the relief fund to the State Treasurer by the Governor. It starts out "the Governor with the approval of the State Treasurer and the Auditor General". The gentleman is a lawyer and knows well what it means. It means that the governor in the first instance must set the amount, and that then the Auditor General and the State Treasurer pass upon the amount. The Auditor General and the State Treasurer have no right to determine the amount. They only have the right to approve the amount and that is the way the act read in 1937.

In 1939 it said that "the Governor shall allocate such amounts to the State Treasurer and the Auditor General as are necessary". There is no marked change in that because the procedure is exactly the same. The Auditor General and the State Treasurer can not veto the amounts that they are to receive, which right they had under the act of 1937, but which was a foolish provision because it did something which never could occur.

Then we can turn to the act of 1940 which follows in its operation exactly the same procedure as the act of 1939. Now, let us turn to the amendment which the gentleman offered to this bill and see what the intent was and what effect that would have. The gentleman on the other side, when this bill was up for second reading, introduced an amendment to the appropriation for relief, for what purpose? For the purpose of creating a board composed of the State Treasurer, the Auditor General and the Governor, to determine how much money should be paid to the Auditor General and the State Treasurer. Of course, his thought in the matter unquestionably was that there was a Democratic Auditor General and a Democratic State Treasurer and that they could take as much money out of the relief fund as they wanted for the purpose of creating jobs.

Let us look at some figures in connection with this. The State Treasurer was receiving in October of 1939 the sum of sixty thousand dollars; in November and December of 1939 and in January, February, March, April and May of 1940 the same amount. At that time he had accumulated a deficit in the sum of forty-five thousand six hundred and nine dollars for which it was necessary for him to receive funds from the Governor. The Governor gave him those funds, but when he was expending approximately the sum of sixty-five thousand dollars, including the deficit, the relief rolls were three hundred and seventy-five thousand five hundred and twenty-one dollars. In January of 1941 the Governor allocated to the State Treasurer fifty thousand dollars, and at that time the relief rolls were down to three hundred and six thousand dollars. But not only that, in the mean time the State Treasurer had ceased to write checks. That function was being carried on by the Department of Public Assistance. Therefore it was not necessary for him to have the same amount of money per case as he had before. Under these circumstances, Mr. Speaker, I think it is perfectly evident that what was intended by the amendment that was put in by the gentleman from Monroe, and which was taken out by the Senate, and this provision substituted, indicates that they wanted to make sure that these jobs would be protected.

The pleading which the gentleman on the other side has been doing is not being done for the people on relief, and has nothing to do with the playing of politics with relief, because playing politics with relief I think is when you take money out of the relief fund for the purpose of spending it on jobs. That, it seems to me, is playing politics with relief, but when you keep them from taking money out of the relief fund for creating politicial jobs, I do not think that is politics.

So there may be no misunderstanding on this other point, a great deal was made at the time this bill was on second reading with regard to the fact that there was no provision in it for of a certain sum, and I suggested at the time that the reason was that there was sufficient money out of the other appropriation for the payment of the necessary expenses of the State Treasurer and the Auditor General. That there may be no mistake about that, let us refer to the funds available for allocation to May 31, 1941, out of act 28-A of the regular session of 1939, and out of act 6-A of the special session of 1940, they being the only acts which made appropriations for relief. Out of act 28-A, there was a possible allocation of one hundred and fifty-four thousand dollars to the State Treasurer, and out of act 6-A there was a possible allocation of sixty thousand dollars, making a total of two hundred and fourteen thousand dollars for allocation to the State Treasurer to carry on the work, February 26th to May 31, 1941. That is an amount of over seventy thousand dollars per month, which is even in excess of the amount which the Legislature is now allowing them.

There was allowed to the Auditor General out of act 28-A the sum of five thousand and one hundred dollars, and out of act 6-A the sum of thirty-seven and five hundred dollars, or a total of forty-two thousand and six hundred dollars, for three months to the Auditor General which was generally in accordance with the previous amount which had been allocated to the Auditor General in the sum of thirty-seven thousand and five hundred dollars, so that there was sufficient allocation to the Auditor General as well as to the State Treasurer.

Now, I want to call to the attention of the Members of the House another thing. I haven't had time to look up the figures on it, but I know when the amount of one million dollars was set in act 28-A as the amount to be allocated to the State Treasurer in 1939, that was a larger percentage of the amount to be spent than has been allowed to the State Treasurer under the prior administration, when the Governor and the State Treasurer were of the same party. I merely point that out to the Members of the House in order to show you that this was not a matter of playing politics or trying to keep the Treasury Department from receiving the necessary funds to carry out the necessary functions of the government.

After a meeting with the representatives of the State Treasurer in which they stated, and we took their word for the fact that it was necessary to have one hundred and eighty thousand dollars to carry out the functions of that Department for the balance of this biennium and to pay a deficit in the neighborhood of fourteen thousand dollars, and facing the danger of those people on relief not receiving their checks that should be mailed out on Friday or at least on Monday, the Senate agreed to make this one hundred and eighty thousand dollars a specific amount allocated to the State Treasurer for the balance of the biennium. I think it was a reasonable compromise and I suggest that the members on this side of the House go along, but I thought it important to call their attention to some of the things which were brought out by the gentleman on the other side and some of the facts which he did not bring out, which have a very direct bearing on the issue.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Dauphin permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WOODSIDE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Dauphin, Mr. Woodside.

stood him to say that the Joint State Government Commission had ascertained that seventeen percent of the people on relief in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia were chiselers.

Mr. WOODSIDE. I think I did say seventeen percent, but I understand that that was erroneous. It was between fifteen and sixteen percent of those investigated who were discovered to be chiselers.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, do I understand the gentleman from Dauphin to say that that percentage applies only to cases that were investigated.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, that is certainly true. We did not investigate every case in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania nor did we investigate every case in the city of Pittsburgh. The figures which I have given you related to those cases which were investigated but I think those investigated comprised a fair sample.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Dauphin whether or not the cases that were investigated were cases concerning which complaints had already been made.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, at the request of the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, I am going to yield to him as he was the Chairman of the Joint State Government Commission, and ask him to answer the questions. I think I know what he is going to answer, but I think perhaps it would be more advisable for Mr. Turner to answer it.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I am willing to accept the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Turner whether or not the cases that were investigated by the Joint State Government Commission and upon which the percentage referred to by Mr. Woodside was based were not composed of cases concerning which complaint had been made either to the Department of Public Assistance or to some other agency.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny I will say he is raising a question which has been raised in a report, or in a memorandum filed, by some group from Allegheny County. It is not true as stated in that report, that the cases that were investigated were only cases concerning which complaints had been made to either to the Department of Public Assistance or to the Allegheny County Board. The cases in Allegheny County that were investigated by the Joint State Government Commission were a sampling of cases picked out at random without any relation to complaints or anything else. They were picked at random from the files of the Assistance Board of Allegheny County, and the same thing was done in Philadelphia.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, do I understand that in the best judgment of the gentleman from Delaware there is a percentage of nearly fifteen which is the same percentage as stated by Mr. Woodside, and that that percentage is a correct percentage of the people in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh who are on relief and who are in some way or other chiselers?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny, I would say that while our report shows somewhere between fifteen and sixteen percent, as I recall the figures,—I think Philadelphia was a little higher than Allegheny County, my own belief is that that figure is low, and that the percentage of chiselers we could find by the kind of investigation and the facilities we've had,—if we could find fifteen percent of chiselers, I would say that the number chislers and the percentage of chiselers is far in excess of that amount.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I take it then, Mr. Speaker, that in the judgment of the gentleman from Delaware the random sampling or whatever it was, used by the Joint-State Government Commission, was a truly scientific manner of sampling of all the people on relief in Pittsburgh and Philadelphia?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny I would say that I do not think it is a perfect method, because the perfect method would be to investigate every case. The next method would be, of course, to investigate a greater number of cases over a very much wider area in the state of Pennsylvania, but I think that for the purpose of determining whether there is chiseling, for the purpose of determining whether our investigation is right, for the purpose of determining whether our visitors are effective, the method we employed of taking at random, cases without any effort to select them for a particular purpose or because they showed particular things, and then investigating them with the kind of investigators we put on, who were not trained as social visitors but were men of business experience, or were men of some investigating experience, if we turned up the fifteen percent, there is reason to believe the percentage is far more than that.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I take it from the gentleman's answers that he is stating the method used was a scientific procedure.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think it was a scientific procedure, yes.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I take it that the statement referred to made by the group of Allegheny County Social Workers with respect to the fact that the cases investigated were only cases concerning which complaints had been made, is absolutely incorrect and false?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, that is true. It is incorrect.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would further inquire of the gentleman from Delaware just what explanation he would make of the term "chiseling." In other words, did you receive only cases in which prosecutions have been brought, or cases in which the Department itself decided someone had paid more money than he was entitled to, or would the gentleman from Delaware also include cases in which the Department through error had made an over payment?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would think if the Department made an error that that would not affect the question of chiseling one way or the other, the fact that the person who received it was not entitled to it. I think my own definition of chiseling would be the same as any other person's, whether they are cases in which prosecution has been brought or not. We did not find that any of these cases were under prosecution, nor did we find that the assistance board or the visitors had turned up any of these cases as being chiselers. As a matter of fact, when we produced the evidence that they were chiselers they never yet have given us a complete answer. They made alibis and sent some investigators out but they have never yet given us a complete answer, according to my understanding, to the report of the Joint State Government Commission.

What is a chiseler? To my mind a chiseler is a person who under law and under the regulations laid down for assistance and who should not receive assistance, is receiving assistance. We found a man, for instance, who had made, or earned the sum of twelve hundred dollars during the period of time he was getting assistance. We found a man who paid one thousand dollars down on a house during the time he was getting assistance. We found people who were in business earning money during the time they were getting assistance. We found a man who was running one of these push-carts around the city of Philadelphia earning twenty-five to thirty dollars a week, getting assistance. I do not know, may be you believe that they are not chiselers. May be you think they are entitled to assistance. In my view they are not entitled to relief, but if you want my definition that is my answer.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I thank the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Turner. I am only asking the gentleman for information because I want to get the percentage correct, as to what the majority party felt, or what their leaders felt with respect to the percentage of people in Philadelphia and Pittsburgh who were on relief and who were chiselers. ,

I desire to inquire of the gentleman from Delaware Mr. Turner if it is not his opinion then that a relief chisel is someone who obtains assistance by misrepresentation, and who is not entitled under the law and under the regulations of the department to obtain that relief.

Mr. TURNER. I do not know, Mr. Speaker, any other way in which you could define it, because truly a man or woman is not a chiseler who is getting relief within the rules and regulations. I think there are no doubt a lot of malingers, I do not know that the percentage is so high, but there are a lot of them. I also think there are a lot of people who for their own good would be better off if they were taken off relief, but in my opinion a chiseler can only be qualified as such when he violates the rules and regulations.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I would inquire of the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, what his estimate or percentage is, as he recollects it, whether it is fifteen percent?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, my recollection is that it ran something like sixteen percent in Philadelphia and about fifteen percent in Allegheny County. It is not below fifteen percent and it is not above seventeen.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, am I correct then in assuming from the remarks of the gentleman from Delaware that he feels the percentage is higher?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I believe if we can find fifteen percent on an investigation of a cross section picked at random, that the actual percentage is still higher.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I was very much interested in learning the percentages expressed by the gentlemen, both Mr. Woodside and Mr. Turner. I offer no brief or defense for a relief chiseler. I am surprised to learn that the group of people who are supposed to have some knowledge of the relief set up in Pittsburgh, have sent to the Members of the Assembly a statement indicating that the cases investigated by the Joint State Government Commission were cases concerning which complaints had already been made. I was particularly interested in the statement that the gentlemen from Delaware made to the extent that that is not so. I propose to inquire of those people so that they will have the opportunity to answer definitely the statement by the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, because I think it should be a matter of record, if a particular organization puts out information and a circular, they should know that their remarks or their statements are absolutely contradicted by the Chairman of the Joint State Government Commission.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would just like to say in reply to what the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Harkins, has said, that it is our intention, and it has been our intention ever since the publication of the report by the group from Allegheny County, to give an answer to it. Unquestionably the members of the commission have been so jammed with reports, which we are trying to clean up, we haven't had an opporunity to make a reply, but it is in the course of preparation. The statement which I have made are based not only on my own knowledge, but on information which has been given to me. I am also advised, for the benefit of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Harkins, that during the year 1940 there were some five hundred and seventy-six prosecutions in Allegheny County for chiseling; there were in the neighborhood of one hundred and twenty during the month of January of 1939. I do not think all of those prosecutions are things which show that there is a certain amount of chiseling. Certainly they show that there is chiseling, but whether it shows the extent or not is another question.

I might also say that I believe the investigations made by the Auditor General Department have a value. Those investigations were made on an entirely different basis than those made by the Joint State Government Commission. What we sought to drive home, and what we are trying to drive home in the relief report is this, that the very foundation of the whole problem of administration, the whole basis of the administration of relief is the efficiency of the investigation and of the visitor. That is what we tried to say in the relief report, and that is what we are trying to show now, and we are here trying to show the basic of value of it. That is the place where you are going to save or not save money; that is the place where the people on relief are going to get a just and fair amount of relief, those who are entitled to it, and those who are not entitled to it are going to be cut off. The investigation by the Auditor General's Department is important, but it seems to me in the past we have spent too much money for the kind of investigation we got and the results we got. I think the little experiment in the Joint State Government Commission was well worth while, and for a very small amount of money we produced very large results.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. Mr. Speaker, I desire to bring to your attention some information that I consider quite relevant to the discussion before the House today. In the report of the Joint State Government Commission, there is a statement to the effect that there is no politics in relief. It is evident that this Commission failed to investigate Lawrence County because we in Lawrence County, in the city of New Castle, know and feel positively that there is politics in relief. We, therefore, offer this information to you. This information was brought to the attention of the people of Lawrence County on October 21, 1940, in answer to the challenges as to why the Executive Director had been fired.

To the People of Lawrence County:

"It is with reluctance that the former Executive Director of Assistance in Lawrence County for six years, must resort to a publication of facts concerning his administration during the past two years when he believes that his record speaks for itself.

"Many statements insinuating inefficiency and so forth, have been circulated in an attempt to justify the injustice done by the newly appointed County Board of Assistance.

"The many friends of the former Executive Director resent such unfairness and have insisted upon a reply from him in order that the facts may be made known to the people and the situation clarified once and for all.

"The facts contained herein are presented in a manner as non partisan as is possible under the circumstances.

LAWS

"The last Democratic Administration in Pennsylvania passed a law, based upon the Goodrich Plan, that placed all employes in the Department of Public Assistance, including the Executive Directors, in civil service.

"The former Executive Director was one who passed the necessary examinations and was permanently appointed by a former local Board.

"One of the first acts of the first Republican Legislature in 1939, under Governor Arthur H. James, was to pass the Van Allsburg Ripper Bill which ripped all Executive Directors out of civil service. Some of these positions have since become the footballs of political patronage. This action gave the County Chairman of a political party the power to control local administration through a personally conducted local board and the appointment of the Executive Director.

FORMER LOCAL BOARD

"From February 17, 1939 to June 9, 1939 there was no local board in Lawrence County. During this period of nearly four months, it was necessary for the Executive Director and his staff to carry the full responsibility for County Administration. They were short of staff because of increased unemployment but no personnel could be appointed in the absence of a County Board.

"Mr. Roger W. Rowland, County Chairman of the Republican Party in Lawrence County, submitted the names of Mr. R. H. Kirkpatrick, Dr. Frederick Taylor, Mrs. Blanche Sampson, Mrs. Bernice Shannon, Mr.

Harry Davies, Mr. Preston Flaherty and Rev. Charles Z. Bell, to the Governor and he appointed this, the former Board which met first on June 9, 1939.

"All went well for the remainder of the year except for agitation by the Republican Chairman and his patronage committee that the Executive Director be dismissed.

"This former representative County Board continually refused to obey the demands of the County Chairman because they believed in a non partisan administration of public assistance.

"Mr. William D. Hughes, 453 East Long Ave., New Castle, Penna., came to the home of the Executive Director on the evening of August 9, 1939. He stated that he had attended secret meetings held by some members of the former local board in the home of Mr. Oliver J. Shannon, 224 Fairfield Ave., New Castle, Penna. Mr. Highes wrote a statement containing what he termed important information, obtained at these meetings, that the Executive Director should have.

"The information contained therein referred to proposed changes in personnel and control of Relief Administration in Lawrence County. It was definitely political. Although the Executive Director knew the desires of the Republican Chairman regarding these matters, he temporarily discounted the statement of Mr. Hughes because both the Governor and the Secretary had made public statements as follows: 'There will be no politics in relief and no relief in politics.' Honorable Arthur H. James, Governor of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania; 'I know that the Governor will not be the tool of any County Board that attempts to use the dismissal power for political reasons.' Honorable Howard L. Russell, Secretary of Assistance, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

THE SECRETARY

"Secretary Russell came into the picture in January of 1940. He and Mr. Rowland, both members of the Governor's Cabinet, appeared at a dinner held in the basement of the Presbyterian Church, New Castle, Penna., to which all politicians were cordially invited. Mr. Russell gave an address on the subject of Public Assistance in Pennsylvania. Before he concluded, however, he threw out the suggestion that Harrisburg was not entitrely satisfied with the local Administration in Lawrence County.

"This was the first intimation that either the local Board, or the Executive Director had that such a feeling was being being created in Harrisburg. When asked by the local Board what was meant, Mr. Russell stated that his representative would make a report to them at their convenience. The local Board set February 29, 1940 as the date for delivery.

REPORTS

"The report was prepared for the Secretary by a professional social worker who brought his superior with him to New Castle, Penna., on the above date. Before the meeting with the local Board, he called the Chairman of the Board from the Castleton Hotel and requested that the Executive Director be excluded from the meeting. When the Chairman told the Director of the request, he agreed to withdraw providing he be given a copy of the report and the opportunity to reply. The request was granted by the Board. The report was exaggerated for the purpose, faulty and vicious. The following inscription, signed by the Secretary, appeared on the frontispiece: 'Administrative Information; not for release. May not be reproduced in whole or in part except by special permission of the Secretary of Public Assistance.'

"Following the receipt of the report, the local Board adopted the following resolutions:

" 'First, that Mr. J. W. Moorehead, Executive Director, be granted the opportunity to reply to the report of the Secretary.

"Second, that the local Board investigate the operation of the three Departments of the local Administration.

"Third, that appropriate action be taken, based upon the facts contained in the report, the reply, and as revealed by the investigation.'

(signed) Chairman,
Lawrence County Board of Assistance.

"Because the Secretary had banned the repreduction of the report in whole or in part without his special permission, it was necessary for the Executive Director to get it before his reply could be written. Special permission to "use the report or quotations from it in anyway consistent with its purpose" was received and the reply prepared.

"An extra special permission must have been granted another by the Secretary, because there is a copy circulating within the county in a further attempt to prove inefficiency. No one has reported having seen a copy of the reply. However, the one who owns the report also has a copy of the reply.

"Following the completion of the reply and the investigation of the local Board, the following action was spread upon its minutes of the meeting held April 11, 1940:

" 'Motion was made and seconded that, on the basis of the findings of this Board, the reply by the Executive Director dated March 15, 1940 be adopted because it is found to be fair, definite and accurate.' Motion was carried unanimously.

"The former local Board of Mr. Rowland's choosing and reperesentative of the people of Lawrence County, by the above action, demonstrated that they had seen the picture and also the 'frame'.

"The vindication of the Executive Director by them marked the finish of the Board, because it was at this point, that the Republican Chairman told a County Board Member that if they did not fire Moorehead as Executive Director, that he (Rowland) would fire the Board and appoint one that would. The statement was made to others and it soon became generally known.

"Mr. William D. Hughes came to the Executive Director's office May 23, 1940, stated that he had heard the reports, that they checked with his former statement, and he wished to make affidavit to the facts as he had heard them.

"Note the date of the affidavit, May 23, 1940. Many of the statements contained therein have become facts. A copy of the affidavit follows:

"Commonwealth of Pennsylvania }
County of Lawrence } ss:

"Before me, the undersigned authority, personally came William D. Hughes, who being duly sworn according to law, deposes and says that he is of the age of twenty-four years, and that he resides at 453 East Long Avenue, Fifth Ward, New Castle, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania.

"On several occasions I was asked by Mr. Harry H. Davies, member of the Lawrence County Board of Public Assistance, to drive his car to meetings held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Shannon, 224 Fairfield Avenue, New Castle, Pennsylvania. I was privileged to attend these meetings held between Mr. Davies and Mr. and Mrs. Oliver J. Shannon, the latter also being a member of the Lawrence County Board of Assistance.

"In one of these meetings held in the home of Mr. Shannon in the year 1939, organization of the new Board was discussed. Mr. Harry H. Davies expressed himself as wanting to be Chairman, but Mr. Oliver J. Shannon told him that he could operate more effectively from the floor, if Mr. Kirkpatrick was made Chairman. By doing this, Mr. Shannon stated that Mr. Davies and Mrs. Shannon could depend upon the support of Mr. Kirkpatrick and control the Board with four votes.

"Mr. Oliver J. Shannon stated in my presence that the plan agreed upon between him and Mr. Roger W. Rowland, Chairman of the Lawrence County Republican Committee, was to fire Mr. J. W. Moorehead, the Executive Director and replace him with a politician of their choice, also fire four supervisors: namely, Norris, Hamilton, Sargeant and Gold and oppoint four people favorable to Mr. Shannon, Mr. Davies and Mrs. Shannon. One of the supervisors to be appointed was a man by the name of Perdue. Mr. Shannon further stated that they could thus control the operation of the administration of relief in Lawrence County and build their political fences.

"I also heard Mr. Shannon say that when the top jobs of the local relief offices in New Castle were cleaned out, Mr. Davies was to get an appointment from Harrisburg, and that Mr. Shannon was to be recompensed by receiving insurance business from the Department of Purchases and Supplies in Harrisburg.

"In all of the meetings that I was privileged to attend, Mr. Oliver J. Shannon gave the orders and Mr. Harry H. Davies and Mrs. Oliver J. Shannon agreed that they would see to it that they were obeyed. Mr. Oliver J. Shannon further instructed Mr. Harry H. Davies and Mrs. Oliver J. Shannon, in my presence, that they must control the appeal Board and thereby decide who would and who would not get relief in Lawrence County when cases were appealed from regular decisions made by the local administration. Mr. Shannon further stated that if his instructions were not fully carried out as authorized above a new Board would be appointed.

"All of the above statements have been made of my own free will and accord and without any influence or promise of gain to me.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his point of order.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, we have already had a great deal of latitude on the question before the House pertaining to this particular bill. The question arose as to the amount of money expended by the Auditor General and that led into the discussion on chiseling. The gentleman is going very far afield, and while I did not want to interrupt him, as I think this is his maiden speech in the House, and while I do not want to interrupt or check his maiden speech, yet I do think he ought to get down to the subject and stick to the subject that we have before us.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will please confine his remarks to the question before the House, which is on the amendments inserted by the Senate. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. "Many representive citizens called upon Mr. Rowland. Republican Chairman, and requested the retention of the former Board but of no avail. Others wrote to Governor James and Secretary Russell, organizations sent resolutions, board members wrote for a hearing in Harrisburg to explain the politics in it all, but no one received a satisfactory reply or hearing from any of them. The Republican Chairman had evidently ruled otherwise. Lawrence was his county and he was granted the courtesy of a Cabinet Officer by the Governor and the Secretary of Public Assistance.

"The former County Board was out at the adjournment of the last session of the Senate, May 16, 1940. Not a former member was to be reappointed.

FIELD SERVICE

"All counties in the Commonwealth are entitled to Field Service under the system. The professional social worker, known as the Field Representative in Lawrence County, acts as a liaison officer between Harrisburg and the County Officers. An Executive Director finds it very difficult to operate a local administrative office without such service because it places his office out of touch with headquarters. Nevertheless, Field Service was discontinued to Lawrence County, effective February 15, 1940 and was not resumed until four months later, after the Executive Director had written a memo to the Secretary under date of June 3, 1940 in which he protested the action of the Secretary as follows:"

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his point of order.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman is not speaking upon the question.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken. The gentleman will confine himself to the question before the House, which is on the amendments inserted by the Senate.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman no doubt realizes that chiseling in the minds of all of us is really as bad as fifth column work. I say definitely that when you are speaking of chiseling those people that have chiseled have been placed on there no doubt by some of the members of the county boards for political reasons, therefore, I say this definitely ties in with chiseling.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the alibi prepared by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Moran, and given to the gentleman from Lawrence will be accepted.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. Mr. Speaker, nevertheless, field service was discontinued in Lawrence County, effective February 15, 1940, and was not resumed until four months later.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TURNER. Is the gentleman from Lawrence speaking for the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Moran?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Lawrence will have to answer that question himself.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. Mr. Speaker, may I address my remarks to the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, may I request that Edgar Bergen Moran return to his seat.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will return to his seat.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I desire to have the gentleman from Lawrence proceed a trifle more slowly because I think it is a very valuable address.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Lawrence proceed more slowly so that the Members can understand what he is saying.

Mr. PRESLEY N. JONES. Mr. Speaker.

"There has been no Field Service in Lawrence County since February 15, 1940, or for the past three and one half months, and no local Board for the past three weeks.

The policy of your Department has always been to furnish Field Service to all Counties within the Commonwealth and, to the best of my knowledge, there has been no request from either the local Board or myself for discontinuance.

In view of your report dated February 29, 1940, it would seem that the County should have had all of the service possible to make for a better administration of assistance, rather than to have had it withdrawn under such circumstances, when it is available to all others.

Since the entire responsibility for the Administration of Public Assistance in Lawrence County now rests upon me, I am particularly interested in learning the reason for your action and if and when Field Service will be restored."

(Signed) Executive Director.

There was no reply received from the Secretary but on June 17, 1940, the Field Representative, who had made the February report for the Secretary, came to the Lawrence County office to restore field Service after four months absence.

Apparently, it was a deliberate attempt to strangle the Executive Director and his administration in Lawrence County.

AUDITS

A representative in Resources Investigation called at the New Castle office May 21-22, 1940 and completely checked that department. The report of his investigation was very satisfactory and he made no suggestions.

A statistician and specialist in office methods and system was sent to the New Castle office from Harrisburg. He conducted an investigation June 3-7, 1940 and the report he made to headquarters was very satisfactory.

The favorable results of these audits confirmed the justfication of the action taken by the former local Board when it approved the reply of the Executive Director.

BOARD RIPPED

Then the former local Board was ripped out. The Pittsburgh Post-Gazette of August 13, 1940, carried the following news item: "Board Ripped in New Castle." "Every member of the Lawrence County Board was dropped today."

This was the answer given by Governor James and Secretaries Russell and Rowland to the people of Lawrence County who had pleaded and urged that a non-partisan administration of relief be continued.

NEW BOARD

The present County Board was suggested by the Republican Chairman and appointed by the Governor, August 13, 1940. Their names are as follows:

Mr. Lloyd W. Strayer, Chairman; Mr. Fred Vaughn, Mr. Scott Brest, Mr. Ray Johnstown, Mrs. Rose Fazzone, Mr. Sam Taylor and Mr. Ivor Richards.

The members of this new Board had held two meetings when at 11:45 p. m., September 17, 1940, they called the Executive Director before them and demanded his resignation immediately. He, therefore, did not return to the office after that night but was paid to October 1, 1940 because of vacation on his own time.

The reason given by Chairman Strayer was, "you are not satisfactory to Harrisburg."

Such was the treatment accorded to one who had ten years experience in the work, six of which had been served in the interests of the people of Lawrence County.

SUMMARY

February-June 1939 ...	4	Months No Local Board
February-June 1940 ...	4	Months No Field Service
May 16-Sept 1940	3½	Months No Local Board
Total	11½

February 1939 to September 1940 .... Nineteen Months

During 11½ of the last nineteen months, the local administration was without either Field Service or a Local Board.

A severe staff shortage was experienced during several months of that time, but nothing could be done about it locally.

CONCLUSION

Regardless of these severe handicaps, the Executive Director stands on his record of services rendered, and leaves the verdict to the thinking people of Lawrence County.

These facts are presented to the people for their consideration regarding the operations of a political party in power, when it means to put politics in relief and relief in politics; the quotations of Governor James and Secretary Russell, to the contrary, notwithstanding.

J. W. MOOREHEAD,
Former Executive Director,
Lawrence County Board of Assistance."

It was not my intention, Mr. Speaker, to confuse the matter brought before the House today. I am concerned with the problem of relief in my County, inasmuch as we have close to seventy per cent of our people on relief, or substantially so. We do not and will not see the hearts of these people tortured by being made political footballs any longer. If it is the plan of the Governor and his aides to bring about measures such as were enacted in 1939, which I know emasculated some of the provisions of prior years, evidently he feels that the people of the Commonwealth should be reduced to economic servitude reminiscent of the Dark Ages.

I came here to work and I hope to work, and I think it is about time that we work for the people of the Commonwealth instead of working against them.

Mr. BENTLEY: Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

Mr. SPEAKER: Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman from Delaware to say that in this opinion, based on his investigation and as Chairman of an investigating committee, that there were many malingerers on relief.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, it is my opinion that there are many malingerers on relief.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman from Delaware have any statistics as in the case of chiselers, on the subject of malingerers?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think that would be a very difficult investigation and a rather expensive one to determine that all over the State.

Specifically, in answer to the gentleman, I have no figures and we did not attempt to make any study of that problem. However, I might say that the Delaware County Relief Board has recently been making a very intensive study of all the people on relief. I do not know what the percentages are, but I do know that at one time the Board of Delaware County took off the relief rolls about seventy-four cases of individuals who they believed had been either on the rolls so many years that they had to find some way of getting off, or they believed the relief rolls paid them so low that they should be able to earn that amount. The Joint State Government Commission report shows an investigation of those cases made by the Joint State Government Commission to learn what happened to them. In other words, we were interested to know whether that board had been correct in its action and to determine what had happened to those people. It is amazing, and if you will turn to the pages,—I cannot keep these facts in my mind, but if you will turn to those pages in the report of the Joint State Government Commission and read that Delaware County investigation you will find that there were not very many of those seventy-four that turned up, in fact they could not find most of them. They found some of them. Some of them had gotten jobs, some of them had gone back to live with their families, and so forth. I think there were only two or three cases that they thought were in any way entitled to relief. I do not know what the percentage of those seventy-four were to the number of cases on relief in Delaware County.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman state, based on his investigation, his observation, and his experience with the Joint State Government Commission whether or not malingering is as common as chiseling, as he defined it.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I really have no facts upon which I could base that. I never attempted in my own mind to determine how far that may go.

I would like to give you this example to show you what I mean. A man told me the other day of a man who worked for him for a number of years. He said he was a fine mechanic, one of the finest mechanics he knew of and one who could get a job anytime he wanted. This man got out of work during the depression; he got on relief and then on W.P.A., and he finally sank so low that when the upturn came and there was employment, which a man of his calibre and his attainments could have secured, this man had lost his grip so he just couldn't seem to get anything to do. He was practically down and out. Some of the men in that neighborhood got hold of him, got him bucked up, and finally he is back in harness, back to a good living. I am confident that those cases are manifold and that there are plenty of them.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Delaware state whether, based on his observations and experience, as the Chairman of this Committee, it is as easy to be a malingerer as it is to be a chiseler?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, under the law and under the rules as they exist it is pretty difficult to say that a man who is malingering is not legally entitled to relief. I am speaking from the standpoint that is best for the individual. We all know that a real job is what the average citizen wants. I think the Pierson relief act demonstrated very clearly that the majority of people on relief really want to work. I think we have many, many cases where that was shown, that the people who were on relief, and got jobs under the Pierson relief act were willing to work, they took an interest in the job they were doing, whether they were painting a school house, or fixing something in their little towns. Those people came back and offered to work. I think that demonstrates very clearly one thing, that is, that the majority of American citizens on relief are anxious to work or have some form of work. We all know too that it is human nature to be either a little lazy or it is human nature to take it easy when helped. It is human nature to go along with something that provides an easy means to get by, when you get right down to it.

For instance, the other night a man told me of some one, speaking of a certain individual, he said this man has five children and he earns thirteen dollars and sixty cents a week on W.P.A. and he does not want any other kind of employment; he is satisfied. We do not want people satisfied with thirteen dollars and sixty cents a week. That is a sub-standard of living as we know it in America. It is the purchasing power of the vast majority of our people that makes the wheels go round in business. When they go around there is employment, and when there is employment we do not have any unemployment problems. Therefore, it is our duty to raise that standard of living as far as it is possible to raise it. We do not want people on W.P.A., we do not want people on relief, not alone because it is a burden on the state, not alone because it is a burden upon the Nation, but because economically and morally it is not a good thing.

Mr. BENTLEY. Mr. Speaker, out of the wealth of remarks made by the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, I have gathered, perhaps erroneously, but certainly the tenor of his remarks indicated to me that he felt there were at least as many malingerers, as he called them, as there are chiselers,—accepting relief in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, in the counties of Allegheny and Philadelphia. I think that can be justly drawn from his remarks. That indicates, on the percentages which he has given us on chiselers, that there are in Allegheny and Philadelphia Counties something in the neighborhood of thirty per cent or better of relief applicants, whom he dubs either as malingerers or chiselers. That indicates but one thing to me, either a total lack of sympathy, or a misunderstanding, of the problem of relief applicants. I wish to go on record here and now as expressing my entire disagreement with such an attitude of mind and such an expression.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Allegheny is entitled to his own opinion. I have no quarrel with that. In fact I never have any quarrel with any man for having his own opinion, but the way the gentleman endeavors to interpret my opinion and then rises to the defense of some group, I can only think from his attitude that he is trying to place me on the spot, and I must, therefore, answer the gentleman in this way. In the first place, I did not say, and I was very careful to say that I had no idea and no estimate of the group of malingerers on relief; I had no idea of the percentage.

As to the question of sympathy with relief, Mr. Speaker, I have, I think, a record which speaks for itself, but for the benefit of the gentleman from Allegheny who is seeking to interpret my meanings and my opinions, I would say that in 1931 I was one of those who drafted, or helped to draft "The Talbot Act," under which all relief in Pennsylvania has been given since that time. I would say, Mr. Speaker, that since 1931, and you will recall the history of 1931, we had a very difficult battle to put across the Talbot Act. It was carried to the Supreme Court. Since 1931 I have actively studied the question and have spent many hours upon it. I would say, not only as Chairman of the Joint State Government Commission, and a member of the committee on relief, I have been in addition to that a member of a nationwide committee appointed by the Council on State Government to study the question of relief. I have given may hours, and a great deal of time and effort to the study of this question which I consider to be a most vital question to the American people. I have voted for relief appropriations; I have favored the giving of relief to those people who need it, but that does not blind me, nor do I think I would for a minute endeavor to set up any alibi or any defense for my efforts to in seeing that the many millions of dollars, which are a great weight around the necks of the taxpayers of Pennsylvania, which has prevented us from spending money that is needed for public schools, which has prevented us from giving moneys that are needed by our political subdivisions, which has prevented us from carrying out many other activities, which has put a burden upon the industry of Pennsylvania, as shown by the report presented to the Legislature yesterday, are properly expended. Those are things which are vitally important, and it is the duty of every legislator to forget for the moment his instincts for charity and kindness, when it pertains to the improper application and the improper securing of relief funds.

One of the quarrels I have, and I find that I am not alone in this, because I have met Democrats and Republicans from all over the state, I find that Legislators from everywhere, no matter what their political faith is, are all in agreement upon this question: to reduce the amount of the relief burden in every way possible, to reduce that burden and at the same time take care of those people who have gone on relief.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I shall stand here as long as I am a Member of this House, as long as I am here as a representative of the people of this Commonwealth, and battle against any improper application of the funds, whether they be given to chiselers or given to malingerers. I started out to say that my whole quarrel as to the administration of relief, not only in Pennsylvania but elsewhere, is that in the administration of relief the psychology has been wrong; the approach has been from the social service view point rather than from the viewpoint of the need of the people and the burden which you are placing upon the taxpayers of the Commonwealth. The school teachers are struggling in the various schools of Pennsylvania because they are not paid. There are school teachers, who have not been able to receive payment because the state has not been able to help any of our school districts. There are many other activities that need our charity and our good feeling as much as does this question of relief. So I would answer the gentleman from Allegheny by saying it is unfair and improper to say that I have established any percentage or that I have indicated or said in any way that there was any great percentage of those on releif that were malingerers, because I distinctly said I have no information upon it and have never given it very much thought. If I find there is one out of three I will state that fact. Whether it be popular to say it or whether it be wise to say it from a political viewpoint, because in the end I owe a higher duty than that pertaining to politics or any group of people.

Mr. LEVY. Mr. Speaker, I have been in this Hall with the gentleman from Delaware for quite a few sessions, and I believe what he says, but I do not think the arguments coming from the Democratic side of the House have been interpreted by the gentleman from Delaware in the light they have been given. Our quarrel is not with the interpretation of the Public Assistance Law by Republicans or Democrats. I sincerely believe that Mr. Turner and the members of the Joint State Government Commission have spent many hours in attempting to find a solution, and to bring some recommendations before the House of Representatives that might improve the Public Assistance Law and the administration of public assistance in Pennsylvania. I do say, however, and I insist upon it, that the Joint State Government Commission originating as it did out of a Commission appointed with so many members of one political party, and so few members of another political party, that naturally the attitude and principles and ideals that eminated from the Republican side of the House must have been inserted in the Commission's study. I say to the gentleman from Delaware that I have no quarrel with him as to chiseling. Every man in the House detests it and certainly we have attempted to Legislate against it. I do say this, in the appointment of investigators, in the drawing of conclusions as to what constitutes chiseling and what does not that certainly the Republican members who dominated the commission, placed in the report their attitude on the administration of relief.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware in the investigation by the Joint-State Government Commission whether they accepted the reports of the Board of Assistance of Delaware County or whether they investigated the cases themselves?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in reply to the gentleman, the investigation, and I presume he refers to the group of cases I mentioned and which are mentioned in the report, was by our own investigators. We took no statement by any relief board on any question, that is any question pertaining to the individual case.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware if the cases that he spoke of as being dismissed from relief in Delaware are the cases that were dismissed in October of last year?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I really do not remember when they were dismissed.

Mr. RUSH. Mr. Speaker, I hesitated to get into this discussion at this time because I know it has gone far afield from the original subject under discussion. However, since the question of relief chiseling and malingering has been brought into the discussion by Mr. Woodside and since Delaware County has been mentioned, I feel I would be lax in my duties if I were to let it pass without making a few remarks.

I understand by reports that have been issued by the Department of Public Assistance, the relief board in Delaware County is held up as an example all over the state because of its efficiency in Delaware County in handling the relief cases. I have before me here a number of letters, some of which I have personally investigated, and others that I intend to investigate, where persons who were receiving relief were cut off. I have many other cases that I have personally investigated in Delaware County and I would just like to cite one for the information of the Members of this House.

I might say that we have in the city of Chester a gentleman who is receiving old age assistance, who has not been physically able to work for a number of years; seventy-four years of age at the present time, and receiving old age assistance. The Relief Board suddenly decided he was not entitled to old age assistance. They said his children were able to take care of him, and after months of investigation, after he had been cut off of relief, they finally decided that this gentleman had a son living in Pottstown, Pennsylvania, who was able to take care of him. They brought him before the Court in Delaware County to compel him to take care of his father and mother and one minor child in the city of Chester.

After the Court had made an investigation it handed down a decision on the first day of November, stating that the son in Pottstown was not able to take care of the father, that he was hardly able to take care of himself and that the relief board should return the old age assistance.

This gentleman was told by the investigator to appear at the office of the relief board on the following Thursday a week, and make another application for old age assistance, and after an investigation if they found he was entitled to it he would be given old age assistance. Now, mind you, they dragged this case through the Courts of Delaware County and were ordered by the Court, and it was suggested by the Court that they return the old age assistance, and then they had to go through two investigations, and old age assistance was not returned until January of this year.

I have another instance of another gentleman who was receiving assistance in the amount of four dollars eighty cents a week and required to work one day in the Crozer Hospital to earn a part of that old age assistance. Because he lived with a young man who was married and had a child, the relief board—and I might say that the young man with whom he was living was no relation, he was only living there out of the goodness of heart of this young man and his wife—the relief board came in there and demanded that this young man surrender the insurance policies that he had on himself, his wife and child before taking relief—that is this man that was living with him. They took the relief away from him, and then they discovered that he was entitled to it.

I could stand here for hours and tell you of cases that were handled by this board in Delaware County which has been held up as an example in Pennsylvania, but I will not take the time to do that. However sometime later on when the question of relief is up for discussion, I will have more to say.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am pretty hungry but I will answer the gentleman.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman from Delaware, in reply to a question from the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Harkins, and in line with the recommendations of the Joint State Government Commission, to state that he thought it would be better to use men of business experience to carry on investigations of recipients of relief rather than use what he termed "social workers."

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think I can answer that very quickly by suggesting that the gentleman read the report of the Joint State Government Commission which is quite specific and extensive on the question of investigators.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman say yes or no?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman will not say yes or no.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I would ask the gentleman from Delaware whether in his opinion he could obtain a man of business experience to carry out the duties now being carried out by our visitors at the rate of compensation which the visitors receive, which incidentally starts at about eight-five dollars a month and runs up to about one hundred dollars a month?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am very glad that question has been raised because we specifically state in our report that we believe they should receive more money. This is my personal opinion, and please do not get it mixed up with the opinion of the Republican party or the opinion of the Joint State Government Commission. I do personally believe that the amount of money paid for an investigator should be more than is paid, because, as I said, that is the very foundation of this whole question. It is like the man whom you are going to send out to different people to meet and sell your product, he ought to receive compensation commensurate with his ability and training. I do believe they should have some business experience and I do believe investigators should receive more money because I do not see how you can expect to secure the proper kind of investigators for the amount of money the Commonwealth is spending.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, if we were to adopt the recommendations of the Joint State Government Commission with respect to the substitution of men of business experience as visitors rather than social workers which the Joint State Government Commission was so much concerned about, would the gentleman from Delware be willing to go along with an increased appropriation at this time to better compensate these business men whom he would use as investigators and thereby disrupt the Governor's budget and recommendations?

Mr. TURNER. That is a rather long and involved question. I cannot answer as to what the members of the Joint State Government Commission would do, but I understand the gentleman's final question was as to whether or not I personally would go along in favor of an increased appropriation. Let me keep the record straight, as one of your most famous Democrats used to say. First of all, I do not want to leave the impression that I think business men are the only ones who would make good investigators. I think there are many women who are good investigators and who possess the proper training and experience. I do not think business experience is the only qualification because that again would be a wrong angle. I do think it is one of the qualifications, but not the only one. The trouble is at the present time the emphasis on examination is mainly placed upon social service training. Your social service training is a fine thing, and is one of the things to be considered in getting the proper kind of investigators.

The gentleman asked me whether I would go along with an appropriation which would increase the amount of pay that will be necessary to secure the right kind of investigators and thus disrupt the Governor's budget. I do not know that it would be necessary to disrupt the Governor's budget. I do not know how much money would be required to increase the salaries of investigators. I say this, that the question of disrupting the Governor's budget is not so important in my mind as getting good investigators, and if I were convinced that it were necessary to appropriate more money for the purpose of getting good investigators I personally. and let us understand, Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I personally would be in favor of such an increase.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I am very glad to get the opinion of the gentleman from Delaware on that matter as it will assist me materially in my study of this question.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his point of information.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, Edger Bergen Moran, is in again.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware is right. Charlie McCarthey will go to the rear of the hall.

Mr. TURNER. On second thought, Mr. Speaker, I will take on both of them.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I might state here that the gentleman from Philadelphia does not need any aid from any other quarter. They might do that in other sections of the State but he does not need it. I want to question the gentleman from Delaware.

In his opinion would the gentleman from Delaware agree at this time to provide better compensation to the visitors now being employed if he were of the opinion that granting higher compensation to such visitors would result in more efficiency and result in a better conduct of their duties.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I am not convinced that money question is the sole question. If the gentleman asked me whether I would be willing to increase the pay of the visitors, I would say, if he is asking me, as a Mother Hubbard to cover the whole group I would say. no. If he is asking whether after proper investigation to determine the qualifications of the visitors I would be in favor of increasing their compensation, as they prove their efficiency and so forth, yes, I would.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask one more question of the gentleman from Delaware.

In his reply to previous questions by Members of the House on the occasions when he was addressing the House, he referred to the social workers who are being employed by the Department of Public Assistance to carry out their investigations and I would like to get from the gentleman from Delaware his definition as to what constitutes a social worker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think we ought to try to find that out. I presume the gentleman is referring to the remarks I made in reference to the social service viewpoint. I did not say anything about social workers. As far as the social service viewpoint is concerned I did not say that in itself there was anything in that which argues against the administration. I said that the quarrel many of us have had with the administration is that the administration of relief has been entirely from a social service viewpoint. I think the social service viewpoint has been that which is applied to the question of relief, those regulations or rules of investigation and rules for determining relief which were applied to small community relief, where they were confronted to a great extent not only with the question of aiding families but in all of the family problems that entered into it. I think our great difficulty, and I have talked a great deal to social service workers and people in the National Association of Social—I do not remember what they call it, but they have headquarters in Chicago, and I have attended some of their conferences. I think they admit that one of the great difficulties is that the ideas of the plans and ideals of the social service group as it applied to community welfare and community agencies was carried into the larger problem which was a bigger problem and which had other values and other connections which should have been considered.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I still do not think that the gentleman from Delaware has given me a definition of what constitutes a social service worker. In view of the fact that he has made huge studies of this problem I will appreciate the gentleman from Delaware giving me his definition.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I do not think it is the proper thing to do at this time, that is, take up the time of the House in obtaining my definition of a social service worker. Is that the question you are asking?

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. That is correct, sir.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that my idea of a social service worker is one who takes a course of training in some of these institutions which have been set up for training social service workers, that deal in the field of human relationship, that deal in the field of groups who either are of sub-income or because of no income, have become a problem in the community. They are that group of people who first started in settlement houses in the different large cities of the country, such as the one in Chicago,—I cannot think of the name of it, but it is a famous one in Chicago. That perhaps is an inclusive definition.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. SPEAKER. The gentleman from Blair will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, would it be permissible for a member of the House to request the Speaker to admonish the members who are speaking presently to confine themselves to the matter before the House?

The SPEAKER. In answer to the question of parliamentary inquiry of the gentleman from Blair, the question before the House is on concurrence in the amendments made by the Senate.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Blair will state his point of order.

Mr. AUKER. The gentleman is not talking on the point at issue before the House.

The SPEAKER. The point of order is well taken.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, we have before us the question of concurring in the amendments submitted by the Senate, and this discussion concerning the relief situation was commenced by the members on the opposite side of the House, and as one interested in acting upon appropriations and upon legislation before us at this time I am very much interested in getting the views of those who are much better acquainted with this situation than I am. I feel that the interrogations I have been submitting to the gentleman from Delaware will aid me considerably in considering this particular measure.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman must confine his interrogations to the subject matter before the House.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I have but one other question which I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware.

The gentleman from Delaware has just said in his opinion a social worker is one who has received training from some of the schools set up to better train them and equip them to serve as social workers. I would like to ask the gentleman from Delaware whether he has any idea as to the number of social workers being employed by the Philadelphia County Board of Assistance as visitors.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I have no knowledge off hand.

I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Philadelphia.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Rose, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know what his definition is of a social worker.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, frankly, I do not have the experience of the gentleman from Delaware, but it was always my opinion that a social worker was one who was interested in the problems of those individuals for whom special institutions have been set up, as well as the general problem of human welfare.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to add one word. I do not want to leave the record wrong. When I said institutions were set up for training, I was not only thinking of special institutions, such as were set up by some of those interested in relief in Philadelphia, and out of which I think have come most of the social service workers in at least the eastern part of the state, but in many of the colleges. I know that girls from Vassar, Bryn Mawr and Wellesley have been trained as social workers, so that includes other institutions than those specifically set up.

Mr. SAMUEL ROSE. Mr. Speaker, I do not know much about the girls from Vassar but I do want to say now that I appreciate the replies made by the gentleman from Delaware and I am certain that they will aid me in better considering this particular amendment.

On the question recurring,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken and were as follows, viz:

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

BILL SIGNED BY SPEAKER

Bill numbered and entitled as follows having been prepared for presentation to the Governor, and the same being correct, the title was publicly read as follows:

HOUSE BILL No. 262.

An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Public Assistance and providing for certain allocations therefrom for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine.

Whereupon,

The SPEAKER, in the presence of the House, signed the same.

SENATE MESSAGE

CONCURRENCE IN HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 19.

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced, informed that the Senate has concurred in the resolution from the House of Representatives as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 10, 1941.

Whereas, December 15, 1941, will be the 150th anniversary of the adoption of the Bill of Rights embodied in the Constitution of the United States as its first ten amendments, and

Whereas, This date which is ordinarily significant assumes unusual importance at this particular period in the history of our Nation and of the world when those fundamental rights are threatened by totalitarian forces aboard and their sympathizers at home, and

Whereas, The American Legion Spanish American War Veterans and Veterans of the World War and other veterans' and patriotic organizations and citizens have petitioned this General Assembly to urge suitable action to encourage the promotion of widespread observance of the anniversary, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly memorialize the Congress of the United States to designate December 15, 1941, as a national holiday and authorize the appointment of a Bill of Rights Sesqui-Centennial Commission to sponsor appropriate ceremonies and celebrations upon that day, and be it further

Resolved, That copies of this resolution be transmitted by the Chief Clerk of the House to the President of the United States each of the presiding officers of the two branches in Congress and to each United States Senator and member from this Commonwealth.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. SHAW, asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, due to the fact that the agreement under which the sewing projects were continued for two months was not reached until after the adjournment of the House last Wednesday and in order to prevent Members of the House from going to members of the Committee to ask about it, I think a brief statement is in order.

Due to the cooperation of all the parties concerned, an agreement was reached on last Wednesday, the terms of which provide that the sewing projects are to be continued for two months. During that period the Master Highway Project which is designed to act as a cushion and permit Pennsylvania to receive the benefit of an over-all computation and its contribution to WPA Projects, will be in operation. The members of your committee are quite confident, that there will be no further interruption of the sewing projects.

In order to satisfy a few complaints which have reached me within the past day or two, I have a further statement to make: In Philadelphia some of the people were told that certain projects were to be given up. That is not true. The WPA Deputy Administrator advises me to-day that in order to keep from paying exhorbitant rent, certain projects are being combined in one buliding but the projects will not be given up. They are to continue just as they have been.

RESOLUTION

Mr. TURNER offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, February 26, 1941.

Whereas, The Joint State Government Commission of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania has, within the past few days published its "First Report on the Tax and Financial Problems of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the General Assembly," which contains information and studies of great value to the General Assembly and to the people of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The appropriation made for the use of the Joint State Government Commission permits the printing of a limited number of copies only of this report, which will be greatly inadequate to meet the demand for the same; therefore, be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes and directs the printing of 2500 additional copies of the "First Report on the Tax and Financial Problems of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the General Assembly by The Joint State Government Commission of The General Assembly," and directs that the cost thereof be charged against the appropriation for printing required by the General Assembly.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. AUKER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I ask the indulgence of the Members of the House for about five minutes of their time. I know they are anxious to get out but I have not had any hand in delaying the session this afternoon.

In submitting to the members of the House this Brief against the Rugg books, it is the desire of the Honorable George E. Jones and myself that the members of the House be brought to a full realization of the dangers inherant in these books by allowing them to be used in our public schools and especially in the Junior High schools.

It must be borne in mind when we speak of the Rugg books that they take the place of History, Civics, and Geography in the Junior Highschools and are used as a rule, in series of 3: as a textbook, a reading book, both of which the parents can see if they so desire, and a so-called teacher's guide, which only the teachers see. It is in the teacher's guide that the instructors are taught how to lead the pupils using the text and reference books in thoughts and in ideas which will very strongly tend, if not altogether so, to have a realization or conviction that our form of Government is not of the right kind; that a new social order should be created, based very strongly on the collectivistic form of government; the principles, concepts and forms of which are so amply and aptly illustrated in the world today by the so called totalatarian states.

It is further the thought of the sponsors of these Bills to bring the House members to an awareness of the fact that the use of these books and all books of a similar nature, or series of books such as Dr. Rugg's "Social Science Series" is particularly dangerous at this time. And, too, it possibly may seem more or less of a paradox that Dr. Rugg and his colleagues in the "Progressive Educational Association of America" should be advocating at the time their text and reference books and their "teachers guides." Courses and teachings, which it is contended, will break down the American Democratic way of life and create in the minds of students a prejudice against the United States Constitution; against its system or checks and balances which is so fundamental for the protection of minorities in this country, and would pave the way for a collectivist social order. And that further bringing a conclusion in the student's mind that social, economical and political conditions in these United States are so bad that honesty, frugality and thrift rarely bring rewards, I say at this time, paradox, when the totalitarian states are seeking and using every means in their power to create in the minds of people and school children of the democracies, ideas and conclusions that their own form of government and school systems and economic life is a failure and this for the purpose of hastening the down-fall of the democratic governments of the world and creating universally throughout the world their own system of totalitarian government with all powers of whatsoever nature supreme in the state and with the state having control of the economic life, individual and civic, and religious life of the people.

Dr. Rugg has stated that he did not believe that an educator should not belong to any political party. We contend that such a statement is un-American and that in making such a statement he shows very strongly his weakness to acclaim that he is a good American. Most certainly, educators should of a necessity ought to belong to at least if not in a minority party, then assuredly in one of the major political parties. For we believe that it can be taken as a well proven fact that the safety of our form of Government and the continuance of the same rests upon the fact that there are two major political parties in the Country and have always been two such parties.

The sponsors of this Bill are not acting for the American Legion. Dr. Rugg has dared the critics of his books to state in what particulars they are objectionable. The sponsors of these two Bills, to wit, the Bill to remove the Rugg books from the schools of Pennsylvania and the Bill to investigate all books which tend to create un-American or un-Democratic ideas in the pupils minds, accept that challenge. As stated in the Brief, much more material is available. We believe that the situation is so critical in our schools at this time that an immediate investigation should be started seeing whether or not the allegations made are true or not true.

Dr. Rugg in a brief public address or press conference fell back on the American Constitution and the Bill of Rights as part of his defense. We say to you that in the fear of infringing of civil liberties the American people have coddled our un-American foe at every turn. We further allege, that the people who are trying to instill into the peoples' minds and especially into the minds of susceptible school children who are not mature enough to be able to evaluate different opinions, that the proponents of such teachings and such ideas are deliberately using our Constitution and our Bill of Rights as a convenient shield for their subversive aims. We believe that it is high time that some action be taken to correct these conditions as they do exist and that the time to act is now, and as quickly as possible, and that we show to these people if such conditions exist that we are not going to allow such conditions and teachings in our schools and allow our pupils, especially in the Junior High school grades, to be lead astray by such teachings.

In conclusion, therefore, we respectfully ask this House and the Committee which hold these bills to act as quickly as possible in order that action may be started.

INTERROGATION

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair, Permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I shall.

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman how long the Rugg books have been used in Pennsylvania.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shepard, I cannot say the exact number of years. I would say somewhere between seven and ten years. I might add further that I do not believe, while I am perfectly willing to submit myself to questioning at any time, we should prolong the session this afternoon by going into this matter. When there is a bill in the House to appoint an investigating commission whose function it will be to investigate thoroughly all questions raised on matters of this kind that discussion may come before the House.

Mr. SHEPARD. I would like to know, Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know the number of Rugg books which are used in Pennsylvania in our schools, and how they are distributed.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I do not know.

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, does the gentleman know in just what grades these books are being used?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would say as I said in my statement, that they are used in junior high school grades mostly. However, if the gentleman read the brief that was laid on his desk, the question is answered in there. Some are being used in the elementary grades and some in high schools. What proportion, I cannot say at this time.

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, may I interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Charlie McCarthy Turner?

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, may I say that the gentleman from Blair is well able to take care of himself on the floor of this House.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I presume the gentleman refers to me.

Mr. SPEAKER. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. TURNER. No, Mr. Speaker, I want to answer his question, but before I agree to be interrogated I would say that I presume that the gentleman from Philadelphia is speaking of his desire to interrogate Charlie McCarthy Turner, as I am the only Turner in the House he must mean me. However, I would say, Mr. Speaker, I would not be willing to be interrogated as Charlie McCarthy Turner because there would be nothing coming from Charlie McCarthy.

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, my only observation would be that since the gentleman who read the statement does not seem to know much about the books and use in the schools, my association and knowledge of the children in the public schools during the last ten years, is that they do not seem to know much about what is in any book. However, I do think, Mr. Speaker, in reference to this statement, that the gentleman ought to furnish us with direct quotations from these books, rather than from this quotation that has been deduced by somebody who has perhaps not read the Rugg books, and I ask that he give the House a little more enlightment on the material in these books rather than just introduce it through someone who may or may not have read the book.

CONSENT TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I understood the gentleman from Philadelphia to say that from his observation of the children for the last ten years, they did not know what was in the books. Mr. Speaker, I would say from observation of my colleagues in the House that goes back further than ten years.

COMMITTEE MEETING

The following Committee meeting was announced:

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. TAYLOR. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Monday, March 3, 1941, at 9 p. m.

SENATE

MONDAY, March 3, 1941

The Senate met at 4:30 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS, offered the following prayer:

O Thou Blessed God of us all, what can we render unto Thee for all Thy benefits? Or what can we do but give or what can we do but receive since all we call our own is totally Thine? Then make us humble and devout in all our living that we may choose the right having open minds to receive the truth and willing hearts to respond.

With each succeeding day international relationships grow yet more sinister and the citadels of democracy yet more endangered. Avaricious and subversive forces to our way of government become more evident daily within our own gates. Can it be that men will make their own personal aggrandizement to be tantamount to the urgency of national defense? Can it be that Thou art sorely trying our faith and spiritual stamina in Thine own ways of testing?

Whatever may be the answers may they be made out of true and honest American hearts that whatever may be the testing, whether it be another Lexington or Sumter culminating in a Yorktown or Appomatax, they may be by and through Thy holy will. Grant that this nation shall live to be a blessing to the nations of the earth.

Give us true courage and abiding patience faithfully to discharge our duties devolvent upon us this day. As we record the result of our labors today may they be pleasing to Thee as well as to us in that we have kept our trusts unbetrayed in Thy sight. We pray in the name of Jesus. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, before the Journal is approved, I desire to call attention to an error apparently in the Journal or History. Senate Bill No. 125 appears in the History and on the Calendar as on final passage and as having passed third reading. It is my recollection Senate Bill No 125 did not pass third reading.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is of the opinion it did.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, that was the bill on which we had such a lengthy discussion, as to whether it should be a special order of business for today. It was on third reading and I am quite sure it did not pass and was not acted on.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is of the impression Senate Bill No. 125 did pass third reading, and was on final passage. The clerks are of the same opinion.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does the record show Senate Bill No. 125 passed third reading?

The PRESIDENT. The Clerk informs the Chair the record is correct.

On motion of Mr. LETZLER and Mr. GELTZ the further reading of the Journal was dispensed with.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Edmonds asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Philadelphia, Dr. WOODWARD.

LETTER MEMORIALIZING SENATE

The PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a communication from the Fire Chiefs Association of Allegheny County, Inc., which the Clerk will read.

The communication was read as follows and referred to the Committee on Finance.

FIRE CHIEFS ASSOCIATION OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY, INC.

Feb. 10, 1941.

To the Senate,
To the House of Represensatives,
State of Pennsylvania,
Harrisburg, Pa.

Honored Sirs:

Now that the budget for 1941 and 1942 has been presented for your action, also a bill for the return of money borrowed from the 2% Foreign Fire Insurance Fund, we would ask that this bill have your support.

We trust that in the future it will not be necessary to borrow from this fund, as some companies were compelled to suspend coverage on their members for one year, as they had no money to pay for the insurance, placing a rather hardship on the men, who get nothing for their service in protecting life, limb and property for their communities, and as our Country is making a great stride for defense and home protection, and what more greater protection can you get than the fireman, and therefore we are entitled to the money for protection of those who give this wonderful service without compensation.

Trusting that this bill is passed and the money turned over to the companies at an early date, we remain,

Very truly yours,

Fire Chiefs Assn. of Allegheny Co.,
(Signed) G. W. COOK, Secretary

Pennsylvania Senate
Harrisburg, Pa.

Dear Sir:

The enclosed resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote at the last meeting of the Steel City Industrial Union Council.

Very truly yours,

DAVID J. McDONALD, Secretary

Whereas, Government employes have been organized for a number of years in Pennsylvania under the State, County and Municipal Workers of America, CIO, and

Whereas, The union has worked for the improvement of wages and working conditions and has brought many benefits to these employes, has further good administration in the public service and has cooperated with officials who are interested in good administration, and

Whereas, The Joint State Government Commission has recommended to the Legislature that State employes should not be affiliated with labor organizations but instead should be confined to forming company unions, and

Whereas, Secretary of Labor and Industry Lewis G. Hines used the report of the Joint State Government Commission as a springboard for continuing his attack against the State, County and Municipal Workers of America,

Therefore, be it resolved, That the Steel City Industrial Union Council look upon the recommendation of the Joint State Government Commission and the statements by Secretary Hines as attacks upon the legitimate rights of State employes and upon organized labor, and

Be it further resolved, That Steel City Industrial Union Council make known these views to the legislature and the Governor, and take whatever other steps it deems necessary to protect the rights of Government employes to affiliate with the Congress of Industrial Organizations.

Steel City Industrial Union Council, CIO

SPECIAL ORDER OF BUSINESS—4:45 P. M.

BILL ON FINAL PASSAGE

SENATE BILL NO. 125

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I call up at this time Senate Bill No. 125, on the Calendar as a special order of business for today at 4:45 p. m.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair was just about to do that. The hour of 4:45 p. m. having arrived, at which time consideration of Senate Bill No. 125 is set for a Special Order of Business, the Chair recognizes the Senator from Jefferson, Mr. Henry I. Wilson.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, it will be remembered last Wednesday the question of further postponing consideration of Senate Bill No. 125 was decided and it went over until today as a special order of business at 4:45 p. m.

Mr. President, that time having arrived and having analyzed this bill and having found so many mistakes in it I feel it would be necessary to have further action of the committee.

RECONSIDERATION OF SENATE BILL NO. 125

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now reconsider the vote by which Senate Bill No. 125, entitled,

An Act abating certain tax penalties and interest on county, city (except city of the first class), borough, town, township, school district (except school district of the first class), and county institution district taxes; prohibiting the sale of real property for the nonpayment of any such taxes for a certain period; and preserving certain tax liens, and providing for the extension thereof passed third reading.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I move to reconsider the vote by which the bill passed third reading.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. How did the Senator vote?

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I voted "aye."

The motion was agreed to.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading?

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, before I move to have Senate Bill No. 125 recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General for further consideration and possible amendment I wish to extend the courtesy to the author of this bill, or the sponsor of this bill, so that he will know the reasons for it, or at least a few of them in advance.

In making this motion, I want to disclaim any opinion that might pertain to politics and I do feel that we should right now take enough time to see that the matter can be intelligently considered by the Senate Committee. I am not a member of that committee. The Senate now assembled, I believe, has a duty to prform; if an abatement act is to be passed it should be passed in proper form so that everybody considering the bill will know it is right.

Mr. President, a brief history of tax abatement might be well put on the record at this time. It will only take a few minutes to get this properly before the Senate before I move to recommit Senate Bill No. 125.

Mr. President, the first act of abating certain tax penalties in this state applying to cities of the first class was the act of December 7, 1933, at the Special Session, P. L. 66.

The next act to abate taxes outside of cities of the first class was the act of May 1, 1935, P. L. 129. Under that act the taxpayer had to pay the 1935 taxes in order to be under its provisions.

The second act was June 2, 1935, P. L. 444, amending the act of May 1, 1935 and placing additions thereto in the act. That would indicate the legislation was made somewhat in haste.

Mr. President, the third act was June 4, 1936, P. L. 10. It was the same kind of an act as was passed in 1935.

The fourth act was passed April 14, 1937, P. L. 302.

Under those last two acts, the act of 1936 and the act of 1937 payments had to be made on or before November 1st in all of those years.

The fifth act was passed October 25, 1938, at the Special Session, P. L. 84; that act allowed the taxpayers to pay on or before December 31st.

Mr. President, the sixth act was of June 19, 1939, P. L. 404. That act abated penalty on the 1935 taxes and up-to-date—where payments were due August 1st, unless the county treasurer extended the time by public announcement; however, that was not to be before November 1st.

Mr. President, as to Senate Bill No. 125, the bill on the Calendar for special considertaion today, note well these words and see if they are correct—the word "41" on line 23, page 2, should be "40" for the following reasons: it is my opinion that in order to receive the benefits of the act taxpayers should be compelled to pay the current year's taxes when they start on the plan instead of just the current year's tax beginning the year after they started the plan. Otherwise the tax for the year 1941 could run on indefinitely without payment and the payment of the same never be required, to obtain the benefit of this bill.

Section 2 of the bill is bad, and if it is to stand, payment of the 1941 tax should be required for this reason, namely, when a property is sold at a county treasurer's sale and the same is purchased by the county, the county enters this on its land docket, and is required to charge the land with its respective tax by entering the same on said docket each year, and during the time that it is on the county land docket it does not appear on the assessment records and when a property is redeemed it is not placed on the assessment records until the following year, and if the payment of the 1941 tax is not required it will never be collected, or else the redemption would never be completed, one or the other.

For example, Mr. President, a property was sold by the treasurer in 1936 for 1934 and 1935 taxes and it was placed on the commissioner's docket and each year during the period of redemption, that is 1937, 1938, 1939, 1940 and 1941, the land was charged with its respective taxes by entering the same on the land docket. Under the present law, to make a complete redemption, it would be necessary to pay all the taxes shown on the land docket and if that redemption were made in July, 1941, it would not be placed on the assessment books until 1942. Under the provisions of Section 2 a property owner could pay all the old tax at face and not be required to pay the 1941 tax. In other words, it is my opinion he should be forced to make a complete redemption or else not be entitled to the benefits of the act.

Mr. President, Section 4 of the act should be reworded. Under its present wording it is not clear as to whether the 1941 tax would have to be paid or not and if they are not paid the sale would divest them.

Section 6 is bad for the reason it changes the time of a treasurer's sale. If Section 6 were adopted as legislation, the county treasurer would be forced to advertise a sale for the first Monday of August but the law would not let him hold the sale and it would have to be adjourned and readjourned upon petition by the treasurer and county commissioners and approved by the court until after November, and when a sale is held in November it does not give the county treasurer sufficient time to properly prepare his accounts by the end of the fiscal year. At this time of year sale of hunters' licenses is at its height and at no time should an officer be forced to advertise a sale that he could not hold. See Section 4 of the act of 1939, P. L. 498.

Mr. President, the provisions from line 19 to 28 inclusive on page 6, under Section 6 are bad, and can easily be subject to misinterpretation. Various laws specifically provide for the duration of a tax lien; as the law now is a tax lien can not be revised, that it is only good for five years. The provision in lines 19 to 28 would certainly mix up liens and titles.

Mr. President, we have heard from the floor of this Senate that this bill was identical to bills which have been passed at prior sessions. That, of course, you see could not be correct. It is not the fault of the sponsor of the bill, it is the fault of those who prepared the bill, those who prepare tax bills at times like these should be those who understand the tax business and I therefore feel that this bill should be corrected.

You read it over very carefully and you will see it will continue what was started from 1935 to 1939, a necessary practice, and I want to offer in addition to the reasons that I have mentioned here that there are many other wordings that ought to be changed, even wordings that come from the act of 1939. There are too many to cover here but they can be discussed in committee and I would take pleasure if the committee would give me permission to come before them to tell them about these things but I do want to say in conclusion, before I make a motion to refer this back to the Committee on Judiciary General, I would like every member of the Senate if he would, without politics, any way at all get in touch with the tax collecting authorities, if they have not already done so.

It seems to me that conditions are so different from conditions of all prior years since 1935 that we should not jump to the conclusion that it should be done in this manner. There may be some other way of doing it. Some have mentioned it would be proper to put in an optional provision, which might provide for accepting of the act or not accepting of the act. Some counties might feel that would be right for them. Others would like to have the thing made mandatory.

Mr. President, those conditions have so changed that it would seem proper and right to go into the matters fully and to allow those who are tax specialists to appear before the committee on Judiciary General. If there is anything in the world that is disheartening to a municipality it is the failure of the tax collecting authorities in the securing of their money. If there is anything that ought to be done right it is the preparation of tax bills. If the law-making body of this State is confronted with any problem at all the tax problem is one of the greatest. With me I think the relief problem comes first but the tax problem comes next and I think every member of this Assembly should cast aside anything which might be called partisan politics.

Surely, Mr. President, every member of this Legislature wants and wishes to deal with those things that are right; every member of this Legislature should consider what is right.

Now, Mr. President, I have taken the pains, like I requested last Wednesday afternoon of other Senators, to take home and make inquiries among those who have these matters to take care of, and I want to pass on to those who are considering this bill that there are serious questions on many of the things provided in this bill.

For instance, in the County of Indiana the entire body of the County Commissioners, after analyzing this bill for some time, are against this bill and there are many people who have to do with municipal affairs, not knowing how much money is going to come in, feel they are unable to make up their budget and that they would be better prepared to do that if the bill was made certain so that they would be willing to accept it and could work it out.

Mr. President, different conditions exist in different counties and therefore there ought to be a provision in some way to take care of all counties.

Mr. President, I feel sure the sponsors of this bill had only the desire to help somebody who needed to be helped. I just feel sure of that and I feel sure if the bill went to a vote today every man in this Senate who would vote for it would feel he was doing something to help somebody who merited such an action, but if this is to be done ought it not to be done scientifically, ought it not to be done properly, and ought it not be considered in a manner that would do the least damage to the municipalities of this commonwealth who have so many serious questions?

Now, Mr. President, far be it from me to make a speech at this time, but there are some very serious questions involved in the matter that is before the Senate and in order that the whole question may be considered properly and that experts may be called in to help prepare the right kind of a bill, if such a thing can be done, I make the following motion:

MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL 125 TO COMMITTEE ON JUDCIARY GENERAL

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I move you now that Senate Bill 125 be rereferred to the Committee on Judiciary General for further consideration and possible and I will say probable amendment.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President and members of the Senate: I thought we had hashed out most of the difficulties surrounding this bill last week. I can agree in part with what the Senator from Jefferson has said but I just want to inform the members of this Senate when the gentleman from Jefferson finished his talk, after he gave some very good reasons why the bill should be amended, I think he gave very effective argument against the bill itself.

Mr. President, to my mind I think that is the plan behind this motion to send Senate Bill 125 back to Committee. I am a little bit leary towards that because if this bill goes back to committee that is where it will die.

Mr. President, when the gentleman from Jefferson says it is the sort of a bill covering a serious subject he gives me and every other member of this Senate all the more reasons for not sending it back to Committee than I possibly could give you if I talked for an hour. It is a bill which is necessarily a part of the business of every man on the floor of this Senate today.

We should take the bill before us today and if amendments are to be offered let's offer them here today, let's not send the bill back to Committee because it was sent back once to Committee and it came back exactly in the same form I had originally sponsored.

In so far as authorship of Senate Bill 125 is concerned, Mr. President, I disclaim writing it, of course. I do not think any Senate member here writes many bills. The Legislative Reference Bureau is paid to do that work and they naturally wrote the bill at my request. Any errors that may be in it can possibly be attributed to human nature.

However, Mr. President, let me say this, this bill, I repeat, does identically the same thing that has been done since 1935 in the matter of delinquent tax penalty abatement; does not do anything else and there is no difference in Section six today than what it was in the last bill; there is no difference in Section eight; there is no difference in Section seven.

Regarding the matter of line 23, the word "4," amendments are already prepared and they are here. Senator Cox will present amendments to take care of that objection, I mean the typographical error because the word "4," was inserted instead of "40". The amendments are all prepared for page 2, line 25, and the specified date and time.

Mr. President, you will find if you will give us the opportunity here today we will present amendments so that the entire Committee of the Whole can know what they are and can vote intelligently upon them.

Mr. President, the question in my mind is this: do the Republicans on that side want a tax abatement bill or don't they want a tax abatement bill and I repeat today what I said last week, your vote on this particular motion is a vote on what you want in this type of legislation.

The gentleman from Jefferson says the entire body of officials back home in Indiana County are not in favor of the bill, they are against it; therefore the gentleman from Jefferson can vote against the bill; nobody is asking him to vote for it. Mr. President, I say I want to vote for this bill and I want to vote for this bill on the floor of this Senate; I do not want it to go back to committee and be pickled.

I am sincere when I say I agree with the gentleman when he says times are different today than they were in 1935 and that is why I put the bill in, because more people are equipped to take advantage of this bill today and will be for the next five years. With governmental spending for defense, with the improved industrial activity in the State of Pennsylvania, a lot of home owners will be able to pay back taxes, and I say we ought to give them opportunity to pay back taxes. The way to do that, Mr. President, is to do it right now here today. If we have any amendments bring them out on the floor and let's hear them. We will give them intelligent consideration—I believe it will be intelligent consideration; at least it will be honest consideration—and so I say to you I am against this motion. Mr. President, I say any person who votes to send this bill back to committee is voting to send it to the graveyard, because that is where it will go and that is where it will stay.

Mr. President, my friend on the other side took exactly eight minutes to tell us what was wrong with the bill, what ought to be corrected, then he took over twelve minutes telling us why we ought to kill the bill, and if it goes back to committee I say it will die in committee or come out in such mutilated form it might as well be dead. I oppose the motion to send Senate Bill No. 125 back to committee.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Jefferson.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Jefferson permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Jefferson whether or not he is against the general principle of abatement and penalties and interest on taxes.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, as far as I am concerned I want to do that which the majority of this Senate wants me to do. I will say to the Senator from Lackawanna so far as the general abatement matter is concerned I want to get rid of it as soon as possible. I say this, Mr. President, I do not think this bill is effective and this bill is different from the other bills and if it is not properly amended it will not take care of the taxes of 1941 and, Mr. President, it is not betraying any confidence as far as the Caucus of the Republican party is concerned on the merits of the bill, when I say that their attention having been directed to this matter many proposed amendments were discussed. I am satisfied the hope of passage of this bill depends upon it going back to committee and having these matters taken care of in committee by discussion among the people rather than too hastily try to prepare them on the floor of this Senate. And I am wondering, Mr. President, in further answer, why it should be hurried, why we should be hurried.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, is the gentleman from Jefferson interrogating me I do not think the gentleman from Jefferson gave me a direct answer to my question but I would like to ask the gentleman one more question if I may.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Jefferson permit himself to be further interrogated

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, whether I am for a tax abatement bill as a general principal or not depends entirely on how this thing is formulated. As it stands today and as it was passed in 1939 I am against that principle. Why, Mr. President? Because you charge the people who try to do things, and give that to somebody who does not, plans have been proposed that will not necessarily do it, but if such a plan will come forth in this body I will be very glad to go along.

Mr. President, in making my decision I am against that in principle. I believe the time must come if this state is to thrive we must get rid of the abatement bill, it must not come back as a matter of habit every two years but we must be careful that the time is propitious, and I claim the time is propitious. Every paper, every word of news I get indicates since last October 1st unemployment is decreasing, there is some work and more business and it is going on, so that if there ever will be a time tax abatement can be done away with entirely personally I think it is now. It may be and I hope it may be, if this Senate thinks so, that the work which will be done before the committee will commend itself not only to the Senate but to the House and some bill will come out of it.

Mr. President, I might say if conditions justify voting against any amendments I want to hold myself so that I can do it and I feel every Senator should do that and decide the question for himself, but I will not do it haphazardly and I will not do it without training and experience to do it, without knowing what I am talking about, I will not do it without having it based on years and years of experience, years of experience telling me conditions have changed. It still may be necessary to pass an abatement bill but I want to say it must be prepared, whether at this time or some other, but I hope it will not be necessary to do it, but if it is I do hope that you take sufficient time and find out about the way it should be done. Ask the county commissioners, the taxing authorities of those different counties, the tax collectors, ask the county commissioners, ask the county solicitors, ask the county treasurers, ask all those people why they are not in favor of a tax abatement bill or why they are for it.

The truth of the matter is, Mr. President, all these bills have been a little different, nearly all except two, and it has been difficult for the delinquent tax receivers to keep their records correctly under tax abatement. You have called it up and asked my opinion and under tax abatement I say many people are induced to endeavor to do a thing they can not do and it sinks down and it is not a success in most of the rural counties, and I challenge you to inquire, but if we can get a bill that will be acceptable —and it may be we can—under those conditions I will be glad to go along with the Senator.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I am assuming I am correct in my assumption the gentleman from Jefferson is against the principle of abatement, penalties and interest and taxes and that his argument, his complaint about the faulty draftsmanship of the bill is a spurious argument.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I do not want to add any wood to the fire but I want to comment on one or two things I gained from the answer the gentleman from Jefferson gave to the question which was asked of him.

Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Jefferson and I do not work along the same line. I do not care what my taxing authorities think about this or any other bill back home. The people I am trying to help are the people that have delinquent taxes and I do not care whether my officers, the county treasurer or the county commissioners, I do not care whether they like the method under which the legislation was done as long as we are doing a thing I believe to be right and a thing that is an honorable thing to do.

Mr. President, I do not believe a pool of bankers or a pool of home loan corporations should step in and take properties that belong to people, on which persons have paid for years and years and own those properties, but because they owe five or six year's taxes they are sold at a tax sale and along comes a mortgage pool or a group of other financiers who take the homes that belong to individuals, family people of this state. Mr. President, those are the ones I am interested in and I do not care whether the county commissioners like the plan or not, I do not care whether my commissioners like it, but I know that the man that has money and has now for the first time in ten years a job where he can pay his back taxes, or part of them, and pay the present taxes, I know that man likes this bill because that man and many, many thousands like him have taken advantage of this type of legislation in the last five years. Mr. President, that is who I am interested in and I am not a bit interested in what my authorities back home think or whether they like it or not. They attend to their business back home and I try to attend to my business here.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I would like to say just one more word. I think it is the province and duty of the Senate and members of the House of Representatives to try to legislate for all people. I feel that is why every phase of this matter should be considered. I feel it is decidedly improper for me to say, because I am against under certain conditions a certain abatement bill and criticize somebody else because he takes the opposite view, but I do feel like criticizing him when he says I want to legislate for this particular citizen or that particular citizen.

When he tries to do that and presents a bill that is full of errors as was clearly demonstrated before the Republican Caucus today we feel he has not approached the question in a manner which would merit confidence even by the people whom he desires to serve and I want to say to you if he leads people into a bill that is not proper and right, if he leads people into a bill that requires amendment on third reading, such as this bill does require, and hurry it through and we have not been given the opportunity of putting in proper provisions which are required, that certainly would not be good management. I want to disclaim any idea of trying to put a bill back to committee in order to kill it. Mr. President, the way to kill it is to vote on it today—and you will not have intelligent consideration of it. I ask every member of this Senate to get up and discuss and tell what you know and tell how you know it, and when you have done all those things, tell why you have allowed this bill to be drawn so that you lose 1941 taxes. I ask why all this hurry, and all I say is I reserve to myself the right to finally, when this bill comes up for final passage, to vote as I think proper and I hope every Senator on the floor of this House will do the same thing.

Mr. President, I hope this motion will be put to the Senate.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am going to further violate the rule which provides that a motion to recommit a bill is not debatable by further discussing this bill.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is aware of that but when there is no objection he assumes that it is by unanimous consent.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, my objection to recommitment of this bill is basically one which I hope will tend towards better legislation. If you look at the history of the Senate and look at the record of this bill you will understand why some people view with suspicion the motion to recommit this bill. I do not, Mr. President. I do not view it with suspicion and I take it is with a good intention.

Mr. President, this bill was introduced on February 3rd, it was reported as of February 18th, it passed first reading on February 18th, it passed second reading on February 19th, it was recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary General February 24th, it was rereported as committed on February 25.

Now, Mr. President, if it was recommitted and it was rereported as committed, I take objection to recommitting this bill to the Committee on Judiciary General for the purpose of amendment and I do not blame some of the people for suspecting the motive back of it. Either the Committee on Judiciary General does its work or it does not; either when it is reported back for the purpose of amendment it should be amended, or if the Committee feels it should not be amended then this bill should be finally disposed of. This business of sending a bill back and forth to suit the whims of some particular person or some friend is going to get all of us in trouble.

None of us who realize this is an important piece of legislation could vote honestly to commit this bill back to the Committee on Judiciary General. Why is it to be sent back to the Committee on Judiciary General? It was back there before and it was not amended and if all these defects appeared in the bill, then why do they suddenly come to the surface now? Nothing was said about it last week when this bill was placed on the Calendar as a special order of business.

Mr. President, personally I have no hesitancy in saying I am opposed to this bill, as far as first class cities are concerned, because I do not see any occasion for it. Our situation in Philadelphia has improved to such an extent where I can say, when we first started to pass this bill there were twelve hundred properties listed by the sheriff for sale every month and now there are less than two hundred; some months there have been less than a hundred and fifty, and that indicates to me that people are paying their taxes, people are able to pay their taxes.

Mr. President, in discussing this question with the Receiver of Taxes in Philadelphia I find no inclination in his mind that such a bill is necessary nor do I feel the people of Philadelphia are clamoring for it.

That is one of the reasons why I suggested we were prepared to offer amendments today to make this bill apply only to cities other than cities of the first and second class, because in those cases there are individual situations, there are situations which may require some attention, about which I know nothing at all because I do not come from those counties.

I do not understand and it does seem strange to me a bill which has been in Committee and out—in for the purpose of amendments—should be recommitted again.

Mr. President, all of the things the gentleman speaks about are matters of draftsmanship and matters of principle. The question of whether 1941 taxes should be compelled to be paid in order to take advantage of this abatement bill was discussed before the committee when the bill was in committee.

Mr. President, many of us have objected every time this bill came out. This is not a new question.

In 1937 when the bill was up the question was raised: shall you compel the payment of current taxes or not? arguments were given if you do not you give the slow man an advantage over the man who pays the taxes on time; arguments were made if people pay their taxes or anticipate the payment of taxes they should be paid interest, if they pay them on time and are not charged interest, others allow their taxes to run and are fined and do not pay the interest, and then you come along with an abatement bill and you give them a chance to get the same advantage, you put a premium on laxity instead of enforcing payment. Frequently there was argument and discussion over that question and in 1937, the Committee cut it out.

Now the tax receivers come around and argue if we put this bill through we are going to prevent them from collecting 1941 taxes; they will only get a portion. Every one of those amendments were considered.

The people who framed this bill came to the conclusion that persons who are to be helped by the bill are those persons who are now about to get a job or have just gotten one, they have made some money which they can use to pay off the taxes and stay the sales, but they do not have enough money to pay the 1941 taxes before they become delinquent and therefore they allow the 1941 tax proposition to go along on the basis of an abatement which will not require it to be paid.

Mr. President, these are emergency situations. You heard it last week. How true it is you know better than I do. You know your own situation.

I am told March 1st is the dead line, is the line of demarcation in some communities. I am told certain sales will be made within the next few days—to send this bill back to committee—which already had it for amendment and did not amend it—I say, Mr. President, you have either got to stand by that proposition or raise your question with your respective members of the House to correct these things, and let the bill get through once and for all. If you deny the Committee has done its work properly in that event it seems to me the practical proposition is to let this bill go through to the House and let the House discuss the same questions we have been discussing here, as to whether 1941 taxes should be paid or not and the typographical or printer's error could be taken care of over there. For that reason, Mr. President, I shall object now to the recommittal of this bill.

Mr. HENRY I. WILSON. Mr. President, I just want to make a few comments in answer to the splendid statement of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro. However, I think the gentleman ought to know I was not a member of the committee which had this bill under consideration and to the other members of this Senate I should like to say the first opportunity I had to know about what this bill contains was on last Wednesday when it came up for discussion on final passage.

It seems to me, Mr. President, it was the proper time then, but we were hurried, and these matters have been brought up since and I am asking the sponsor of the bill and I am asking every lawyer in this Senate and I am asking every person that knows anything about taxation: is this bill proper or not? As I have previously said, I think the objections I have raised in this discussion are too vital to undertake making amendments to that bill today.

If they are it should be recommitted and if they are not you can recall the vote and I do not care which way you do it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I agree with the gentleman from Philadelphia that the narrow limits of debate on the motion to recommit a bill are somewhat fine. However, I feel we have unanimous consent to discuss everything from the weather to the bill under consideration.

I want to point out on behalf of the Committee on Judiciary General that this bill was in that committee and languished there for weeks. I assumed when the bill was printed in pink it would be read by everybody.

Mr. President, the bill was considered by the committee and reported out. When it came up the only suggestion was made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Frey, and there was then a request that the bill be returned to committee for amendment. After the bill was returned to committee there was a discussion between the sponsor of the bill and the gentleman from Allegheny as to whether or not these amendments should be placed in the bill and it finally came to be the concensus of opinion that it should not be placed in the bill and we reported the bill out. If it is now returned to Committee on Judiciary General, I want to suggest to the gentlemen who are just now starting to read the bill that if they have any suggested amendments that they give them to the committee before the bill is reported out on the floor for the third time, because in any league three strikes and you are out.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I wish to interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, will the gentleman state whether or not I am correct that I understood the Senator to state both Wednesday and today, that this bill is exactly the same as the bill of 1939.

Mr. DENT. Not 1939, Mr. President. No. In the 1939 bill it was optional and the optional bill created more trouble than it did good. You see, Mr. President, in some communities where you have a situation where the school board did not agree with council, the council would agree on abatement of penalties and the school board would not. Not the 1939 bill.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, the Senator from Westmoreland does know the 1939 bill did not abate interest payments.

Mr. DENT. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I want to make this statement. I took this matter up over the weekend and while I stated I think on the floor of this Senate I am in favor of a tax abatement bill I likewise wanted to check up and find out what our county commissioners and other officers thought about the matter. They suggested amendments, however, and I have amendments prepared and have them here to make the bill comply with the act of 1939.

Mr. President, the county commissioner with whom I had this conversation stated that if the bill were not made to comply with the 1939 act people who are now paying delinquent taxes under the 1939 act would quit and take up under the act such as is before us, if it were to pass in its present form.

Mr. President, I am in favor of a tax abatement bill, briefly, for this reason: as a understand it those who took advantage of the act of 1939 had to do so by November of 1939 and I think it is only fair to state that since November of 1939 many people have obtained employment who did not have employment in November of 1939 and I think it is a lot better to give these people an opportunity to save their homes, who have obtained employment since November of 1939, than it is to have this property revert to our municipalities and sold to some one who has a lot of loose money and would therefore be able to profit at the expense of a man who has for years endeavored to own his own home.

Mr. President, I am in agreement with the idea that we should make the best possible bill that it is possible for the Senate to enact, and not the House to correct what we in haste here admit is not in the best form it is possible for us to put it in.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, in order that there may be no misunderstanding there are amendments prepared and that is why I do not want the bill to go back to Committee. It seems to me every person here has an interest in this bill. Let's offer the amendments on the floor of this Senate. Personally I do not agree with reenacting the act of 1939, but I can readily see if a majority of the Committee and a majority of the Senate so decide we will get that bill. I can see that and that is why I would rather have it acted on here. Let us all have a word on the merits or demerits of the 1939 and 1937 and 1935 acts.

Mr. President, you have two schools of thought in this matter. Some persons want to do for the taxpayers as much as possible and want to help clear up this situation. The banks do it and business houses and manufacturers do it. They take a good customer that has paid his accounts for years and years and years and when he hits a depression or a bad slump in business and does not have the money they discount a certain amount in order to keep his business. We ought to keep the business of anyone who keeps us, the State of Pennsylvania, this great democracy we hear so much about on the floor of the Senate, we ought to help them all we can and that is why we enacted the bills of 1935 and 1937 and 1939 and that is why you have had lots of people take advantage of the act since 1939.

Mr. President, I want to say I will vote against sending this bill back to Committee.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I would like to offer an amendment to the motion made by the gentleman from Jefferson.

MOTION TO AMEND MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL 125

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I will offer an amendment to the previous motion to recommit Senate Bill 125, to carry that after the Committee of Judiciary General has made the necessary corrections and amendments that the bill shall be returned to the floor of this Senate for final action.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, the motion made by the gentleman from Fayette is out of order.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I am in order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette is not out of order in rising to make a motion, but his motion is out of order.

Mr. GELTZ. That is right, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I beg your pardon, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair rules the Senator from Fayette, is not out of order in his motion but the amendment is out of order, and the Chair so rules. A similar point was raised last week and the Chair so ruled.

The Chair wishes to make a statement and it is relative to abatement. The Chair is perfectly familiar with the fact that during all our sessions we have not strictly adhered to parliamentary rules and regulations. In order to justify the Chair's position in permitting anything of that kind the Chair has assumed where there has been no objection there has been unanimous consent. The Chair wants to continue that and wants to be just as liberal as possible in order that we may have as free debate as we can, but should the question be raised the Chair would be required to rule that such debate was not in order.

Particularly the Chair wants to call the attention of the Senate to this question of personal privilege, which has been abused repeatedly. The only reason the Chair has tolerated such action was in order to permit the Senators to give vent to their feelings and get something off their chests.

The Chair would ask the Senators to read from Page 846 of the Manual, on the question of Personal Privilege, Sections 154, 155, 156 and 156a.

Notwithstanding the fact that this question of personal privilege has been abused the Chair proposes to be lenient unless there is objection. After all this body is able to take care of itself and I think the use of unanimous consent can control its proceedings, and unless there is a question raised as to some irregularity that is what the Chair proposes to do.

The Chair desired to explain why he has been as liberal as he has, knowing he has permitted action which should not have been permitted.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion to recommit Senate Bill 125?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CAVALCANTE and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—30

Bartlett,	Edmonds,	Miller,	Tyler,
Becker,	Farrell,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Carr,	Geltz,	Snowden,	Walker,
Chapman,	Heyburn,	Stevenson,	Watkins,
Crider,	Homsher,	Tallman,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crowe,	Kephart,	Taylor,	Wilson, T. B.,
Deitrick,	Letzler,	Thomas,	Ziesenheim,
Ealy,	Mallery,

NAYS—18

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	Lanius,	Reed,
Cavalcante,	Frey,	McCreesh,	Ruth,
Coleman,	Haluska,	McGinnis,	Shapiro,
Cox,	James,	McQuiddy,	Stiefel,
Dent,	Jaspan,

So the question was determined in the affirmative.

The PRESIDENT. The motion prevails and Senate Bill 125 is returned to the Committee on Judiciary General.

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING ADJOURNMENT OF TAX SALES

Mr. COLEMAN offered the following resolution which was twice read as follows:

In the Senate, March 3, 1941.

Whereas, The economic emergency of the past several years has not entirely ended; and

Whereas, The present forced sale of real property for the nonpayment of taxes would work tremendous inequities to the persons owning such properties and yield a minimum of satisfaction to execution creditors and taxing authorities; and

Whereas, Under existing law various sales of real property will soon be held for the nonpayment of taxes; and

Whereas, It appears that sufficient time may not remain to enact suitable legislation before the dates fixed for such tax sales to authorize the stay of such proceedings and the adjournment or further adjournment of such sales; therefore be it

Resolved (if the House of Representatives concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes the various courts of common pleas, upon application of interested parties, to stay any writ of execution or proceedings for the sale of real estate for the nonpayment of taxes, and the county treasurers of the various counties if the county commissioners and the court of common peas of such counties consent thereto, to adjourn or readjourn any tax sale, which under existing law was to be held or is required to be held prior to the thirtieth day of June, one thousand nine hundred and forty-one, and the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation to further provide for the stay of such writs and proceedings for the sale of real property and for the adjournment and readjournment of such sales of real property for the nonpayment of taxes, and to validate any such stay of execution and such adjournment or readjournment of tax sales and to provide for the continuance of such writs and the holding of such sales at a future date, saving the lien of all taxes assessed against real property which was to be sold at such sales.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask immediate consideration be given the above resolution.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I object to immediate consideration.

The PRESIDENT. There is objection.

The resolution is referred to the Committee on Judiciary General.

MOTION FOR RECESS

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess of ten minutes, to give the Committee on Judiciary General an opportunity to meet and act on the resolution.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I suggest that as Chairman of the Committee on Judiciary General I will call a meeting of that committee when I choose. The gentleman from Westmoreland is not a member of that committee and he can not call a meeting.

The PRESIDENT. It has been moved by the Senator from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, and seconded by the gentleman from Lackawanna, Mr. Coleman, that the Senate do now take a recess of ten minutes.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. WALKER. For what purpose, Mr. President?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, for a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary General.

The PRESIDENT. The motion is out of order. The gentleman can not direct a meeting of the Committee on Judiciary General or any other committee. It is for the Committee to determine whether a meeting shall be called.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I beg to differ with the Chair. Every committee appointed by this body is under the direct supervision of this body. Mr. President, when a committee of this Senate gets to the point where it does not take direction from a majority of the Senate then it no longer serves the purpose of the Senate.

The PRESIDENT. Proper procedure would be to move to discharge the committee from further action.

Mr. WALKER. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, a committee can meet if directed by the Senate. I still maintain that point.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I very reluctantly take issue with the President of this body but this ruling just made has been also made in respect to practically the same question raised by me on previous occasions.

I must differ with the Chair on a matter of parliamentary procedure. Mr. President, I submit this body may direct any standing committee of this Senate to perform special duties but in doing so the motion must be carried by the necessary majority. Prior to the present rules of the Senate it would have required a two-thirds vote to impose special duties on a standing committee.

However, Mr. President, as the rules now stand it only requires a majority of those elected to the Senate to place any special duty on any standing committee. As I have stated in the opening, Mr. President, I say very reluctantly but I sincerely and honestly believe that the Chair is mistaken in that decision on parliamentary law.

I agree fully with the gentleman from Westmoreland, it is within the power of this body, as we are meeting at this very moment, to place additional duties on a standing commtitee if we so desire, conditioned however, that that duty is imposed upon them by a proper vote and in this case it would be by a majority of those elected to this Senate.

POINT OF ORDER WITHDRAWN

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I withdraw my point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny may.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I raised a point of order which I would like now to withdraw. I am perfectly willing to vote on this question.

The PRESIDENT. The question would then be on the opinion of the Chair.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, there is no appeal from a ruling of the Chair.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I suggest the question would be on the motion to take a recess, moved by the gentleman from Westmoreland, directing the Committee on Judiciary General to hold a meeting to consider the resolution just presented to the Chair by the gentleman from Lackawanna. Is that correct, Mr. President?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, that is correct. However, Mr. President, I made no appeal. I will say the vote will be 30-16.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I suggest it will not.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I do not like to vote on this motion in the form it has been submitted because while I believe the Senate has the right to vote on a motion to adjourn I do not believe the Senate has a right to vote on a motion to adjourn which directs a committee shall hold a meeting. I think, Mr. President, the Senate can vote on a motion to adjourn for the purpose of giving a committee an opportunity to meet if they want to but if the committee does not want to meet anybody has the right to move to discharge the committee from further consideration of the bill.

Mr. President, I do not feel I should be called upon to vote on this motion because it is an inconsistent motion in my opinion. I am in favor of a motion that there be an adjournment of the Senate so as to give the committee an opportunity to hold a meeting. If, after that committee does not hold a meeting, I am prepared to vote on the matter that comes before me, but I am not prepared to vote on the motion in its present form.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, we did the same thing last week. We recessed for ten minutes in order that a committee might meet. It does not matter whether the chairman of the committee feels it is time to hold a meeting or whether I feel it is time for the committee to hold a meeting, but yet I feel I am still a member of this Senate. Mr. President, I only ask the same privilege given to the chairman of that committee last week, when we voted on the self-same motion now before this Senate and the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, did not reserve any rights then. The motion was identically the same and in exactly the same wording, because I wanted it that way. Exactly the same wording was used, Mr. President.

MOTION WITHDRAWN

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I withdraw my motion because there is no use dilly-dallying, wasting any more time. We know what the vote will be.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I just wish to call the Chair's attention apropos to the remarks I made a little while ago, to page 728 of the Manual, decision No. 104 of this Senate, which deals with when a two-thirds vote is necessary, and there this Senate body has decided that when a motion places additional duties upon a standing committee, that it requires a two-thirds vote.

Mr. President, that was true when the rules of the Senate required a two-thirds vote to suspend those rules or to amend those rules but I wish to again state that I think the Chair has been honestly mistaken in that ruling and that any motion that is in order, even a motion that adds additional duties upon a standing committee, if the motion passes then it will require the necessary vote, which prior to this session was two-thirds but now only will require twenty-six votes.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair suggests to the gentleman from Fayette that he read the heading of that particular section, which reads, "Two-thirds vote necessary to pass resolution changing rules by imposing special work on a standing committee."

Mr. CAVALCANTE. That is correct, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. But the motion was not that. The motion of the gentleman from Fayette was not to change the rules but the motion was to direct a committee to do certain things.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, it does change the rules because a standing committee is only required to do certain work according to the rules of this Senate but when a motion or a resolution is introduced which change the duties imposed upon a standing committee, by the rules of this committee then it requires a different vote than when a vote on a motion is in order.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of information.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, there is now nothing before the Senate, because the motion has been withdrawn?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, there have been several hearings held in respect to the resolution which I introduced in relation to the Committee on Welfare and there will probably be others held in the near future dealing with the subject matters of the budget. I have felt since all the members of the Senate have not and could not attend these meetings there should be some record made on the information obtained for the benefit of the Senate, which was received at those meetings.

Mr. President, I should like now to give a short resume of the last meetings of the Committee on Welfare.

Mr. President, as a result of that hearing I should like to state to the Senate that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania operated 9 mental hospitals until the year 1938. Since that time the mental hospital in Philadelphia, known as Byberry, has been taken over under the Mental Health Acts of 1938, so that the Commonwealth now operates 10 mental hospitals.

In addition, the Commonwealth operates three institutions for the mentally deficient and one for epileptics.

The several counties in the Commonwealth own and operate 12 mental hospitals. There are also several privately owned institutions for the care and treatment of the mentally ill.

In the special session of 1938 the Acts of September 29, 1938, P. L. 53; October 11, 1938, P. L. 62; October 11, 1938, P. L. 63; and November 29, 1938, P. L. 92; were passed under the provisions of which the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania assumed full responsibility for the care and treatment of the mentally ill and deficient and prohibited the operation of institutions for that purpose by counties. (A short review of the provisions of these acts appears as a footnote to this discussion.)

Prior to the passage of those Acts Pennsylvania was one of the few states which had not assumed full responsibility for the care and treatment of mental patients. It is believed by and has often been expressed as the opinion of those who have made thorough studies of this subject that the state care and responsibility is the only way to obtain the best results. This is especially true because the local counties are unable financially to develop the institutions to the highest degree of efficiency; and the standards of operation which will be possible under state control are conceded to be the forerunner of efficiency.

Up to that time (1938) Pennsylvania had exhibited a paternalistic attitude towards the mentally ill by making contributions to counties on the basis of $2 per week for each patient in a county institution; and by charging the counties for patients in state institutions originating from the county a fixed fee of $3 per week for each patient, which represents about three-fourths of the actual cost of maintenance to the State.

The demands upon the county institutions are continually increasing and the patient population in the local institutions equal and more often exceed their bed capacity. To meet this situation local authorities send their patients to the state institutions with the result that the patient population in state institutions has reached a point way beyond the capacity of the respective institutions.

This situation, as well as the proved experience of other states that the state can do a better job, had a great deal to do with bringing about the passage of the Mental Health Acts of 1938.

The following figures submitted by Mr. Sweeny, Secretary of the Department of Welfare of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, discloses the deplorable situation which exists today in both the State and locally operated institutions:

State Mental Hospitals	Capacity	Population	Percentage
Allentown	1494	1632	109.2
Danville	1947	2043	104.9
Farview	708	997	140.8
Harrisburg	1921	2132	111.0
Norristown	3407	3687	108.2
Philadelphia	3500	5720	163.4
Torrance	1217	1895	155.7
Warren	1673	2437	145.7
Wernersville	1466	1533	104.8
Total	17333	22076	127.4

As will be seen, the population in these state institutions run from 4.8% to 63.4% above the patient capacity. Can anyone argue that this condition is productive of efficiency in management or health and comfort for the patients?

The situation in the county mental hospitals differs only in the degree of overcrowding. Their capacity and patient population is as follows:

County Mental Hospitals	Capacity	Population	Percentage
Allegheny	2294	2238	97.6
Blair	375	353	94.1
Blakely	154	149	96.7
Chester	343	330	96.2
Hillside	940	924	98.3
Lancaster	428	427	99.8
Mercer	250	231	92.4
Pittsburgh	3242	3109	95.9
Ransom	386	370	95.9
Retreat	1175	1124	95.7
Schuylkill	540	570	105.6
Somerset	500	486	97.2
Total	10627	10311	97.0

While it is true that the populations run from 97% to 105% of capacity, anyone familiar with the operation of any hospital will quickly realize that even capacity population in any hospital is not a healthy situation, and this is particularly so in mental institutions. The condition becomes aggravated according to the physical condition and age of the institution itself.

In the institutions for the mentally deficient the situation may be said to be equally bad, if not worse. There are three state institutions, and the statistics relating to these institutions are as follows:

Institution	Capacity	Population	Percentage
Laurelton	656	695	105.9
Pennhurst	1746	2075	118.8
Polk	2632	2945	111.9
Total	5034	5715	113.5

What makes this situation more aggravated is the fact that in this type of cases there is very little turnover. These patients start out mentally retarded, whereas the mentally ill have in most cases been well and there is hope for their cure (where the case is curable) depending largely upon the treatment they receive.

There is one institution for epileptics in Selinsgrove, which is operated by the State and has a bed capacity of 442 with a population of 388.

At the hearing before the Welfare Committee, Mr. Sweeny, the Secretary of Welfare, acknowledged the fact that there are patients waiting to be admitted in all of the hospitals for the mentally ill, the mentally deficient and the epileptics. There are over 500 mentally deficient patients waiting to be admitted.

With the advent of the General State Authority, programs have been initiated to enlarge the bed capacity in all State mental institutions. At Norristown additions have been completed and are in use, and they have increased the bed capacity by 325 so that the percentage of occupancy has dropped from 108.2% to 98.8%. With all that it must be remembered that at present the patient population exceeds the capacity in these 10 institutions by 4743; and that after all the additions have been completed the population will still exceed the capacity by 1864.

In the institutions for the mentally deficient the State has also inaugurated a program under the sponsorship of the General State Authority which will provide an additional bed capacity of 984, so that when completed this program will increase the bed capacity to 6018. While that will reduce the overcrowding, it will not take care of the 571 urgent cases now on the waiting list. In addition to the urgent cases now on the waiting list, according to figures furnished by the Department of Welfare, there are 2606 additional cases on the waiting list, and even after completion of the full General State Authority program for mentally deficient, if all the cases were to be admitted the population would exceed the bed capacity by an average of 47.7%.

At Selinsgrove, while the patient population represents only 87.8% of the capacity, there are 223 urgent cases waiting to be admitted and 230 additional cases not classed as urgent by the Department, but on the waiting list.

Since the crowded condition of all of these institutions has existed for a great many years the waiting list can be assumed to have existed for the same period of time.

With respect to the county mental institutions there are no programs for increasing the bed capacity. There are only three avenues of hope for patients to be admitted to county institutions, (1) discharge of patients as cured, (2) the death of patients, and (3) the acceptance of county patients by the State in State institutions. The last two avenues do not offer a cheerful or inviting prospect. Since there are not many patients discharged as cured, the turnover is very small; and the tragedy of this is that in modern institutions with the application of modern scientifice and medical discoveries and the installation of modern methods the patient cure is increased and the discharge accelerated.

Experience has shown and the Secretary of Welfare, Mr. Sweeny, agreed, that the State is in a much better position to provide these facilities and the State can do a better job.

Bringing the situation down to the condition with which we are confronted, it must be recognized that the longer the effective date of these bills is postponed, the more aggravated will be the condition. No county will spend any money for improvement of its institutions while it is faced with knowledge of the fact that those institutions will be taken from them by the Commonwealth. That condition certainly does not help the patients, nor does the State help the fiscal situation of the counties who maintain mental hospitals.

Obviously these institutions should be taken over or the Acts directing that this be done should be repealed. Dilatory methods are unwarranted and unfair. I feel that the question of whether the State should or should not assume the complete responsibility for the care of the mentally ill in Pennsylvania is now a closed proposition. This administration does not contend otherwise. It is not the Governor's position that the State should not assume the responsibility, but only that the assumption of responsibility ought to be postponed, and the only reason advanced for that is that it will cost $11,000,000 per biennium.

I submit that this is a very poor basis upon which to argue that the State should postpone the assumption of an important governmental function. I don't want to raise a controversy by using my experience in the examination of many of the institutions in Pennsylvania and elsewhere as authority for the statement that the condition of patients in local institutions is, in the majority of cases, appalling.

I think it is sufficient to say, and after the hearing before the Welfare Committee no one will deny, that the State can go far towards relieving the overcrowded and the underprivileged condition from which these patients in all county institutions suffer.

I should also like to submit to the members of this body the following statistics dealing with the admissions, discharges and deaths in the state mental hospitals, the county mental hospitals, and the institutions for the mentally deficient and epileptics, furnished by the Department of Welfare, for the year ended May 31, 1940:

In the penal and correctional institutions the picture presented is not any more pleasing. The statistics furnish some explanation for some of the things we have been reading about.

Overcrowding in a penal institution is something to give us pause. In the Eastern Penitentiary in Philadelphia the capacity is 944 and the population is 1340; in Gratersford the capacity is 2000 and the population is 1939; in Western Penitentiary at Riverside the capacity is 1140 and the population is 1159; in Rockview the capacity is 1012 and the population is 970; at Huntingdon the capacity is 1199 and the population is 1268; at Muncy the capacity is 247 and the population is 284; in Morganza the capacity is 578 and the population is 593.

These are startling figures. Their mere disclosure to any person experienced in penal institutional work would evoke a prompt warning that this is a dangerous condition. Its evidences have been quite apparent in the Eastern Penitentiary for some time.

The Department of Welfare tells us that additional capacity is being provided in all of these institutions except Gratersford. The numbers, however, seem to bear no relationship to the necessities. The addition of a capacity of 37 in Eastern Penitentiary, a similar amount in Western Penitentiary is a mere drop in the bucket. Even the 256 at Rockview is not encouraging. However, we were told that Whitehill will be opened shortly with a capacity of 1400. But it must be remembered that the total capacity of all these institutions is 7120, and the occupancy is 7553. With the use of the institution at Huntingdon about to be restricted, the total improvements will add little relief to the condition or comfort to the public.

This picture should raise a grave doubt as to the wisdom of the abandonment of the Maximum Security Penitentiary, which was begun under the General State Authority and which was abandoned by this administration in April, 1939, with a total cost to the General State Authority of $600,000, representing work done and consideration paid to the contractors for the cancellation of their contracts.

I express, as my honest conviction, that the great majority of the members of this Senate are convinced that the assumption by the State of full and complete responsibility for the care of the mentally ill is the most efficient method of dealing with this situation. I am convinced that it is an important governmental function, which should be and can be performed only with the highest degree of efficiency under state supervision. It is a state obligation which I feel should not be shirked and I shall do all in my power to see that the obligation is assumed, because I believe in it and I am convinced that my position is justified.

The facts produced at the public hearings when these bills were before the Senate for consideration in the special session of 1938, proved conclusively that every county presently owning and operating an institution for the mentally ill will save money when the State takes over these institutions.

Much of the opposition from the counties to the State's taking over complete care of the mentally ill can be traced to politics. It is true that a number of local employes will be replaced by State employes. But in Philadelphia most of the employes were chosen locally, and they usually will be so chosen. The only losers will be those politicians who will be deprived of their appointing power. But that will equalize itself because some other politician will, in turn, acquire the same power. I suggest the consolation that it is "in the family" in any event.

On the financial end, Mr. Sweeny stated that the Department of Public Welfare estimated that the cost of the assumption of liability by the State for the care of all the mentally ill in Pennsylvania would amount to a net of $5,000,000. This figure is based on a cost of 83 cents per day per patient, to which should be added the maintenance cost of the institution. The operating and maintenance of the State institutions per biennium is $15,250,000. The population in the State institutions is 22,000; the population in the county institutions is 10,000.

The State today pays out approximately $2,000,000 to the counties on the basis of $2 per week per patient. Under the 1938 Acts this will be eliminated.

The contention is made, however, that in addition to this cost the State will lose approximately $6,500,000 which it receives every biennium from the counties, which represents the $3 per week per county patient in state institutions. However, approximately $1,000,000 of this income has already been lost to the State by the taking over of the Philadelphia Hospital.

But it seems to me that this is quite different from the statement in the Governor's budget message that it will cost the State $11,500,000 to assume its obligations under the 1938 Mental Health Acts. In any event I reiterate that in my opinion the cost is no excuse for the State to shirk its solemn obligation.

The Act of September 29, 1938, P. L. 53 is the principal Act. It vests in the Commonwealth title to "all buildings acquired or erected by any county, city or institution district for the care, maintenance and treatment of mental patients, the personal property within such buildings or incidental thereto, and any and all other grounds and lands connected therewith or annexed thereto . . . except that where any such buildings for mental patients are operated in conjunction with buildings dedicated to the care and maintenance of indigent persons who are not mental patients, the buildings used for the care of such persons, the land actually occupied by such buildings, the lands or yards presently set apart for the use of the indigent persons cared for in such buildings, and the lands necessary for ingress and egress . . . shall remain vested in the county, city or institution district as theretofore."

The Act also makes provision for setting aside to the institution district such farms or woodlands in connection with buildings dedicated to the care and maintenance of the indigent persons who are not mental patients as the Department of Welfare and the authorities of the institution district may agree upon. In case of their failure to agree, provision is made for appeal to the courts.

Provision is also made for auxiliary structures and for facilities furnishing light, heat, power, water, laundry, kitchen, sewage treatment services and coal supply used in common for buildings devoted to mental patients as well as buildings devoted to indigent persons, so that the Commonwealth shall thereafter continue to furnish such facilities to the institution district at actual cost.

Within one year after transfer of such property to the Commonwealth occurs, under the Act, the Commonwealth may abandon the property as a state mental hospital, in which event if no substantial improvements (in excess of $250,000) have been made, the property shall revert to the institution district.

After the Act goes into effect it will be unlawful for any county, city or institution district to operate or maintain any institution for the care of mental patients, but any general hospital may maintain, or set apart wards or departments for the temporary care of mental patients under licensure of the Department ot Welfare.

After a survey by the Department of Welfare a report shall be made to the Governor setting forth the findings and recommendations of the Department of Welfare with respect to the institutions deemed necessary and suitable, as well as those deemed unnecessary or unsuitable for the care, maintenance and treatment of mental patients. The Governor shall then, by proclamation, set forth which institutions shall be operated and managed by the Commonwealth as state mental hospitals and which, if any, shall be closed. After the taking over, each such institution shall be managed and operated by the Department of Welfare as a state mental hospital.

When the Commonwealth assumes control and management of any institution the terms of all officers and employes and of the local management of the institution ceases and the officers and employees thereupon become employees of the Commonwealth, subject to removal by the Secretary.

Where an institution has been closed with the approval of the Governor the institution and its grounds may be turned over to the Department of Property and Supplies for its use for any other state purpose unless it has theretofore been abandoned under previous provisions of the Act.

The Act of October 11, 1938, P. L. 62, makes the Commonwealth responsible for the care and treatment of insane, feeble-minded, and epileptic persons who are returned to this Commonwealth by the authorities of another state, instead of placing the cost on the county from which they originated, as is presently the law.

The Act of October 11, 1938, P. L. 63, embodies the amendments to the original Mental Health Act of the Commonwealth made at the special session of 1938, imposing the costs for the care of mental patients upon the Commonwealth.

Under the Act of November 29, 1938, P. L. 92, the administrative code was amended so as to create boards of trustees for every county mental institution taken over by the Commonwealth under the provisions of the Act of September 29, 1938, P. L. 53, and gives to those boards of trustees, when appointed, the same powers as those residing in the existing boards of trustees of existing institutions.

Mr. President, I have appended to this statement a brief resume of the three acts because many questions were asked at the hearings. Certain institutions asked what would be done with combined institutions which most only took care of mentally ill but also indigent; what would be done in the case of two institutions being run under the same heating plant or the same laundry plant. Appended to this statement you will find a resume of those acts which will indicate that the Department of Welfare should make a report to the Governor and the Governor, after reading the report and recommendations which must set forth which institutions they think should be operated, should make proclamation of the institutions which will be operated, and those that will not be operated will be taken over by the state for state purposes and if there are no state purposes available they will be returned to the county and after institutions have been operated within the first year, if the state abandons an institution, it goes back to the county which built the institution.

With respect to the operation of the two kinds of institutions on one ground there is a provision made for the Department of Welfare and the institution to agree upon the division of the ground and upon an arrangement for the furnishing of heat by the State to the local institution for the other home upon a cost basis so that all of those situations in my opinion have been covered by the act and the counties can not be hurt in the operation of the institutions themselves.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, on Thursday, February 27, the following editorial appeared in the Pittsburgh Press. The editorial is entitled "A Chance to Save Money."

A CHANCE TO SAVE MONEY

"SENATOR ANTHONY CAVALCANTE has introduced in the Legislature a bill to repeal the law requiring publication of the annual lists of mercantile licenses, made by appraisers of the Auditor General, in at least two newspapers in every Pennsylvania county.

"Since there is only one paper in some counties, it has been impossible to comply strictly with the requirements.

"Last year these official advertisements were published in 130 papers at a cost of $141,582, and the year before the cost was $142,109. Thus there is a biennial expense of nearly $300,000 for these lengthy publications of names.

"Senator Cavalcante says this is unnecessary and serves no useful purpose. We are inclined to agree with him. If any useful object is attained by this particular official advertisement, we have never heard it explained.

"There are many other forms of public advertising, and most of them probably serve a good purpose.

"But while looking into the matter of the mercantile licenses, the state administration and Legislature might well make a study of the entire subject of official publications. If any money is wasted thereon, it should be saved. And newspapers, which chronically yell about economy and taxes, should be the first to welcome such savings—even though they might come out of their own tills."

Mr. President, I have read this editorial for two purposes, first, I want to call attention with pride to the fact that three great daily papers which we have in Pittsburgh, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Pittsburgh Press, have always been in the front in the fight for efficiency and economy in government and, secondly, to bring again to your attention the bill introduced by the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, which I feel sure we are all in accordance with.

Mr. President, you will recall the Committee on Military Affairs presented to this body and this body passed a bill setting up an appropriation which would build a much needed auditorium at Indiantown Gap, the gentleman from Fayette provided that that money would come out of savings from this fund and I feel, with the Pittsburgh Press, there are many other forms of efficiency and economy in our publications which are well deserving of the greatest study.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Warren will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CHAPMAN:

WHAT'S WRONG WITH THE UNITED STATES

On the horizon, we hear the din of martial music signifying the near advent of war and every state of our great Union vieing for ways and means of aid to keep the Nation safe from threats of aggression. Pennsylvania, the Keystone of them all, must stay in the forefront. Known as "the arsenal of the nation," Pennsylvania must live up to that reputation.

Despite efforts made to move industry to the solid South through cheap power, free sites and cheap labor, Pennsylvania still marches on. Figures recently made public by our Department of Commerce show a gain in the number of industries and in payrolls in our State. These must be increased and the great advantages of Pennsylvania to manufacturing must be ever kept before the people of this State and efforts continued to attract in an ever increasing number of industries.

Located in touch with the Atlantic seaboard and with the great port of Philadelphia ever expanding her dock facilities, Pennsylvania is most strategically situated. The goal now should be to secure by all possible means methods whereby the products of Pennsylvania factories and farms can be moved to the seaboard and to the cities and strategic points in the East. The various methods of transportation must be looked into and expanded. Our rivers and highways must be second to none. Germany with its terror inspiring war machine has not in any way overlooked the use of her streams and highways.

Like ancient Rome, Germany is building roads. Not puny two-lane roads but heavy hard sufaced arteries that bind to Berlin the various portions of the Hitlerized nation and the territories conquered. Men of the nations under the Hitler heel are forced to work like slaves in road building, at farming and at the forge to make more complete the Hitler machine. We must take heed from the lessons to be learned from the dictators.

Already with more miles of hard surfaced roads than any state in the Union these roads must be scanned for possible war use. Routes from the western end of the State, routes from the northern border to the southern, routes that tie sources of supply to manufacturing plants should be studied and built. The turnpike from Irwin to Carlisle should be extended from the Ohio border to Philadelphia, should be rushed to completion with no delay; Route No. 6 from the Ohio border to Port Jervis should be rebuilt and widened to a six-lane highway over which farm and manufactured products could be moved rapidly and safely. Grades should be eliminated. Route No. 6 is an important route carrying traffic from Cleveland to New England. The great submarine, airplane and munitions factories in the New England states must be maintained and given supplies. The great airbase at Hartford being built by the United States will need supplies and ammunition. Cleveland, Erie, Sharon, Warren, Kane, Scranton must all have unimpeded highway routes —fast, safe routes—to uphold the hands and fulfill the needs of the great population in the East. Delay should not be countenanced. Surveys should be started at once and work rushed. It is only one of our contributions to the nation's defense.

Our rivers must also be given attention. Movement of supplies and freight must not be impeded. Pittsburgh with more tonnage being moved through the port than through the Panama Canal must be given aid. The great flood control program under way on the State's streams must be furthered and at once. While distinctly a national movement, it should have all possible aid from this State. Devastating floods causing millions in damages and slowing down the wheels of industry must be halted. One flood with its millions of losses in property and time costs more than the entire flood program under way in the State. In this we must not be provincial, but allow our minds to drift beyond our state borders and insist that the rivers of the nation be curbed and floods halted.

More dams are needed on the Allegheny River to make it of further use to the people of that valley. Admirable factory sites nestling safely among the hills are available if means of water transportation were at hand. The latent plan of linking the Ohio River and the Great Lakes via the French Creek Valley at Franklin should be carried out.

Improvement of highways and rivers will cost millions. Certainly, but the great manufacturing territory of Western Pennsylvania must be given aid. It may be the fate of the nation that is waiting on our action.

Erie's great General Electric plants turning out guns, shells and other munitions of war must be given such an outlet that speed in delivering its products is accelerated. Warren County is turning out guns of various types. Huge electric turbines are being built and so across the State plants large and small are at work. Such aid should be extended that their raw materials and finished products could be moved with speed. We saw during the World War the railroads becoming so congested that trucks were pressed into service. There are thousands of trucks now where hundreds existed then. Our roads should present the picture of lines of trucks moving speedily and without obstruction from all parts of the State.

As I view the situation it is time that petty political feuds be forgotten. There will be time enough for political battles to rage when the guns of the aggressor nations are silenced. The big job now is to silence the guns of the dictators and then let the big guns of politics resume their reverberations. But until that time comes Pennsylvania must take up the initiative on behalf of the United States and unite behind a program that will keep the people at home employed and satisfied and at the same time give unsparingly to the cause of defense.

Our factories are doing their best to fill the demands. Our laboring men are turning their sweat into products; our young men are in the camps learning the rudiments of war; our women are clicking needles to make the victims of the catastrophe that has been loosened warm and I ask you if we legislators, elected by the people should hesitate to pass legislation that will bring to our state strength? Let our roads be improved with speedy methods to make them real ribbons of concrete, binding the East, West, North and South. Let our rivers become filled with barges carrying raw and finished goods. Let our air fields be expanded with State aid if necessary. In fact let us carefully weigh the problems that confront us and act like men loving our country, acting for its best interests. Speed, I take it, is necessary. Months hence it may be too late.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege touching upon the collective integrity of this Senate and the House of Representatives.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette may proceed.

Mr. President, Mr. William Scott of Bradford Woods, Pennsylvania, has written a piece of poetry entitled, "The Plight of Man." The first verse reads as follows:

"Born in debt the son of man
"Hath neither where to lay his head
"Nor how to earn his bread;
"Because the earth is owned outside and in
"By parasites who toil not,
"Neither do they spin."

Mr. President, on June 24, 1937, the General Assembly, under the authority conferred upon it by the Constitution and the soverign people of this Commonwealth, enacted a law. That law was approved by the Governor of this Commonwealth on June 24, 1937, at PL 2003, article 15-A, Section 2504-a. In that law, Mr. President, we find this proviso. May I state parenthetically that that law pertains to the Department of Public Assistance.

The Employment Board shall first "prepare and conduct examinations for employment, which shall be practical in their character, and, so far as may be possible, shall relate to those matters directly bearing on and which will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of persons examined to discharge the duties of the service into which they seek to be appointed, but no applicant shall be required to have had any scholastic education in social service work, nor to have had any other special scholastic education or special training or experience."

Mr. President, when that legislation and kindred legislation was being considered by the General Assembly at that session, many of us were aware and state for the information of our collegues that all of the bills pertaining to public assistance, such as the ripping out of the poor boards and the establishment and centralization of the distribution of relief here at Harrisburg, was being propelled or pressured through the General Assembly by a special group of citizenship that were not so much interested in altruism as they were in greed and self-interest, and no sooner had they succeeded in driving through the General Assembly these various laws pertaining to public assistance, creating the Department of Public Assistance, that this group, like a pack of hungry wolves waiting for the kill, rushed pell mell to the Capitol Building to root their snouts in the public trough for big salaries. We called attention to the members of this body at that time who this pack of wolves represented, who they were.

At that time, Mr. President, we pointed out that they were a group of individuals who regarded themselves as specially trained by some power here within the state to administer all those state functions which were altruistic in nature. This group we have referred to repeatedly as the social welfare workers, but I think more appropriately should be called the flat heels I think several days ago we pointed out how, instead of being a benefaction to the welfare of this Commonwealth, many people were satisfied that they had become a canker on the body politic.

Now, Mr. President, I have asked the privilege of speaking on the question of personal privilege, touching on the collective integrity of this Senate and the House of Representatives. I did that because I feel that when the General Assembly, acting conformably with the Constitution, enacts legislation, then it is the duty of all the departments of the State, state employees and citizens, to obey the mandate of that law and not to flaunt it, not to disregard it, not to trample it under foot, and if it is not desirable, to bide their turn and see that the proper representatives be sent to the General Assembly who will correct any inaccuracies or any deficiencies in these acts.

Mr. President, when this particular act that I have referred to, the act approved June 24, 1937, P. L. 2003 came up for enactment, it was very carefully and calmly considered and it was determined by the collective judgment of the General Assembly that in all employment by the Department of Public Assistance, no applicant for a position should be required to have any special training, especially that kind of training that the flat heels said was necessary in order to be employed in the Department of Relief. We put that right in the Act of Assembly and I have read it to the members of this body.

Mr. President, I think the integrity of the General Assembly of this Commonwealth is being impeached, is being flaunted, is being disregarded by somebody connected with the Employment Board of the Department of Public Assistance. Let me read for the information of the members of this body, the following letter, on the letter-head of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, Employment Board of the Department of Public Assistance, Harrisburg, February 20, 1941.

Mr. Fred Theodore Baker
119 Coffey Street
Uniontown, Pennsylvania

Dear Mr. Baker:

A verification of your application for the Clerical Series in the Department of Public Assistance shows that, whereas you claimed two years attendance at the Wharton Business College, the Director of that College stated that there is no record of your attendance.

In the attesting certificate to your application, you certified that the application contained no intentional misstatement or omission of fact, and that you knew that penalties could be imposed for any infraction of this certificate, to the extent of your removal from employment and disqualification from future examinations.

I regret to inform you that the Employment Board, by resolution adopted February 18th has cancelled your eligibility effective February 18, 1941, for any positions for which you may have qualified and for future tests conducted by the Board for a period of three years.

A copy of this letter is being sent to the Secretary of Public Assistance and to the Chairman of the Fayette County Board of Assistance.

Very truly yours,
RUTH GLENN PENNELL,
Secretary of the Employment Board

Now, Mr. President, this gentleman, Mr. Baker, is one of my constituents. He took the civil service examination, and the records of the employment board will show that he made a very high mark. I am not interested in where he got his education. The thing that I am satisfied of is that like all good Americans, in school or out of school, he has gotten himself a training and education sufficient to pass the civil service examination given him by this Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and passed it very highly, and he is on the eligible list for employment.

Mr. President, on December 16, 1940, this young man who has dependents was on W.P.A., employed as timekeeper or a cost clerk at a salary of $90.00 per month, and when he received the letter from the Department of Public Assistance that he had been appointed to the job mentioned in this letter, he immediately handed in his resignation to the W.P.A. and took unto himself the job offered by the Department of Public Assistance at $85.00 per month. He did that because the civil service job appeared to him to be just a little more permanent than a job on the W.P.A. Mark you, gentlemen, what state of mind this American citizen should have today in the face of this letter and in the face of the procedure taken by the Department of Public Assistance and the Employment Board.

Mr. President, I have in my office at Uniontown several more cases just like this one, where individuals have creditably and highly passed the civil service test given to them and their names were placed on the eligible list and after they had been given jobs, assigned to positions, they then received similar letters of this kind, that some flat heels in this set-up had gone through the files, examined the application and the statements made therein, and found that here was one fellow who did not have the blessing of a Mr. Pray or a Mr. DeSchweinitz or some social welfare agency here in the State of Pennsylvania, and they proceeded to apply the acid test to check up where he got his education and whether he had any education.

I say to you, Mr. President, and members of this Senate, that in view of the Act of Assembly that we have solemnly passed and which was approved by the Governor, what right does the Department of Public Assistance or any flat heel in it have to set aside this Act of Assembly and require these employes to possess any particular kind of education? Was it not our intention that any American who could take the examination and receive a good and proper mark was entitled to be employed, whether he was a flat heel or not?

Mr. President, I trust I am not mistaken in my position that the action of the Department of Public Assistance or the employment board, as recited here today, is a direct impeachment, a direct disregard of the integrity of this General Assembly, and that we should do something about it.

Mr. President, I have been asked by the gentleman from Washington, what I recommend. I am recommending, Mr. President, that the following resolution be adopted unanimously.

RESOLUTION

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. CAVALCANTE offered the following resolution which was twice read.

In the Senate, March 3, 1941.

Whereas, The Act of the General Assembly approved June 24, 1937, P. L. 2003, Article XXV-A, Section 2504-A Inter Alia provides "The Employment Board shall—

> 1. Prepare and conduct examinations for employment, which shall be practical in their character, and, so far as may be possible, shall relate to those matters directly bearing on and which will fairly test the relative capacity and fitness of persons examined to discharge the duties of the service into which they seek to be appointed, but no applicant shall be required to have had any scholastic education in social service work, nor to have had any other special scholastic education or special training or experience. In written examinations, the identity of each applicant shall be unknown to the examiners," and

Whereas, It has come to the attention of the Senate of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania that Civil Service Employees who have passed all Civil Service requirements

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. Donald McFall, offered the following prayer:

Our God, we beseech Thee to guide our nation in the way of righteousness, truth, and peace, so that we may never fail in the blessing which Thou hast promised to that people whose God is the Lord. Teach us as a state, how to live lives that will meet the tests of this hour in which we find ourselves. Make us ever mindful of the fact that where there is unity of both mind and heart, there is such power that the forces of evil cannot overcome nor destroy. May we never be ashamed of the acts we perform as citizens, as Representatives, as Thy children. May our tongues utter truth and speak the finest that is in each of us as we together endeavor to make this Commonwealth a fit place in which to live and worship.

Hear our humble prayer, O Lord. Amen.

RESOLUTIONS INTRODUCED AND REFERRED

By Mr. O'BRIEN. (Concurrent) RESOLUTION No. 44.

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1941.

Whereas, Newspaper reports have flatly asserted that there are teachers in the public school system of the Commonwealth who openly advocated the destruction of our democratic form of government; and

Whereas, These newspaper articles state that these teachers are instilling such pernicious doctrines in the minds of our school children; and

Whereas, Such statements, if true, are cause for great alarm among the sober-minded citizens of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, If such practices do exist they should be immediately eradicated; therefore be it

Resolved, (if the Senate concur), That the Speaker of the House appoint a proper committee of the House, and the President pro tempore of the Senate appoint a proper committee of the Senate to jointly investigate the activities of teachers in the school system to determine whether or not such pernicious instruction is now being given in the public school system of the Commonwealth; and be it further

Resolved, That the said committee shall have power to issue subpoenas under the hand and seal of its chairman requesting and commanding any person or persons to appear before them and to answer such questions touching matters properly being inquired into by the committee, and to produce such books, papers, records and documents as the committee may deem necessary. COMMUNICATION FROM THE GOVERNOR

The Secretary to the Governor being introduced, presented a communication in writing from His Excellency the Governor, which was read as follows:

APPROVAL OF HOUSE BILLS NOS. 263 and 262

Commonwealth of Pennsylvania,
Governor's Office, Harrisburg, Feburary 27, 1941.

To the Honorable, the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania:

I have the honor to inform you that I have this day approved and signed the following:

House Bill No. 263, Printer's No. 15, entitled, "An Act Transferring money from the Motor License Fund to the General Fund and providing for the subsequent return from the General Fund of the transferred money."

House Bill No. 262, Printer's No. 42, entitled, "An Act making a deficiency appropriation to the Department of Public Assistance and providing for certain allocations therefrom for the purpose of carrying out the Public Assistance Law for the two fiscal years ending May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred and forty-one and for the payment of assistance and expenses accrued or incurred prior to and remaining unpaid on May thirty-first one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine."

In signing the relief appropriation, I affixed the following statement to the bill over my signature:

"House Bill No. 262, now before me for approval, contains a radical departure from the method by which Pennsylvania has been providing funds to the State Treasurer for administrative expenses in disbursing relief.

"For the first time a lump sum is granted under the bill itself, instead of means being provided to distribute the moneys from month to month on a basis of current needs.

"If it was the intention of those who prepared Section 3 of this bill to insure that the appropriation of $180,000 would finance all the Treasurer's relief expenses from now until the end of the fiscal year, no such guarantee appears in the bill. The sum is made available in full at once, and the methods and time of its use left to the discretion of the Treasurer.

"Not only do we regard this as a bad business practice, but the amount fixed is a much greater sum than in my opinion should be required to perform the duties.

"Rather than raise the issue at this time, however, and thereby possibly delay the distribution of relief checks, I have this day approved the bill."

ARTHUR H. JAMES.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

Agreeably to order,

The House proceeded to the second reading and consideration of House Bill No. 208, entitled:

An Act to further amend the act, approved the second day of July, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-seven (P. L. 2724), entitled "An act relating to soil conservation and soil erosion, and regulating land use practices contributing to soil wastage and soil erosion; providing for the organization of soil conservation districts, as governmental subdivisions of the Commonwealth, with powers of enacting ordinances and regulations for the prevention and control of soil erosion and the conservation of soil resources; prescribing the officers and employes thereof, and defining their powers and duties; creating the State Soil Conservation Board in the Department of Agriculture and imposing powers and prescribing duties thereon relative to the enforcement of this act; providing financial assistance to such soil conservation districts; prescribing penalties; and making an appropriation," by providing changes in the membership of the State Soil Conservation Board; prescribing procedures for the allocation of funds among districts, requiring the filing of budget reports, changing the necessary favorable vote in referenda on the creation, addition of territory to, and dissolution of districts; changing the requirements of petitions for inclusion of additional territory; requiring district supervisors to be residents of such districts; further defining the powers of districts; and making appropriations.

The first section was read.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the section?

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the author of this bill, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I shall.

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. Speaker, when a district, or when twenty-five men petition for a district, are they to be occupiers or owners?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, they are owners.

Mr. REAGAN. Then, Mr. Speaker, when the vote is held on the district as to whether the district will be formed or not, who will vote, the occupiers or the owners?

Mr. MOUL. Only owners, Mr. Speaker. This is determined by the act as it now stands. This bill, House Bill No. 208, has certain amendments to change certain portions of the present act, but the amended portion under House Bill 208 does not affect the status of those who vote in the referendum. It still applies to owners.

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman kindly state whe nthe occupiers have a voice in this matter.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, the occupiers have no voice insofar as voting is concerned. However, if House Bill 208 is enacted as it stands, the occupier will have to be consulted before they can enter the farm which he occupies and make certain changes or alterations on the farm. That applies only to the cases where they are starting new work on the farm. It does not apply to those which are already in operation.

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. Speaker, on page fifteen where it says that supervisors may require contributions in money, services, and materials or otherwise, is this required of the occupiers or the owners.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, is the gentleman referring to six?

Mr. REAGAN. Mr. Speaker, eleven.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, that portion pertains to occupiers of the land, and "occupiers" as we define them in the new act take in both owners and renters or tenants. In other words, when we are setting up a new program for a particular farm, it will require that the occupier,—and occupier is both the renter and the tenant, it will require that the occupier be consulted and that he consent to the program they have in mind. I might add in this connection the reason for that is this; I'm not a lawyer, but I believe our legal friends tell us that if the tenant has an agreement with the landlord, it would be impossible to go in on a farm without consulting that tenant in cases where he has a lease which has some time to run. In other words, the tenant has some rights on that farm and without his consent, it would be impossible to enter that farm.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the section?

It was agreed to.

The second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth sections and title were separately read and agreed to.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to.

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be recommitted to the Committee on Appropriations for the purpose of further study and possible amendment.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, are we now on third reading of this bill?

The SPEAKER. The bill has been agreed to on third reading.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Monroe permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I shall.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask whether it would not be better, in view of the fact that I requested that this bill be passed over, that the bill be not read for the third time, so that if there be amendments, it will not be necessary to go back to third reading.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, it was my intention to ask that the bill be passed over but unfortunately I was unable to be recognized by the Chair in time to do so.

The SPEAKER. If there is no objection the Chair withdraws its decision that the bill has been agreed to on third reading and it will be passed over.

RESOLUTION No. 29

Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 29, Printer's No. 45.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 12, 1941.

Whereas, the present maximum monthly shelter allowances to families receiving public assistance in Pennsylvania is $5.85 for families of one person, increasing to $9.75 maximum for families of three persons or more, and

Whereas, recent surveys have conclusively shown that there is a gross insufficiency of dwelling accommodations renting within the amount of the allowance, and

Whereas, the report of the survey of the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance, published in 1939 entitled "Current Living Costs as Related to Standards of Public Assistance in Pennsylvania," shows that the actual minimum costs of shelter greatly exceeds the present shelter allowances, and

Whereas, the Department of Public Assistance is charged by law to provide sufficient assistance to relief families to "enable them to maintain for themselves and their dependents a decent and healthful standard of living," and

Whereas, the present inadequate shelter allowances make it impossible to carry out the provisions of the law, therefore be it

Resolved, that the House of Representatives hereby goes on record as favoring and urging that sufficient funds be provided to the Pennsylvania Department of Public Assistance to enable it to make shelter allowances to families receiving Public Assistance in an amount sufficient to cover the actual costs of shelter as determined by surveys, and be it further

Resolved, that a copy of this resolution be sent to His Excellency, the Governor of Pennsylvania, and to the members of the Pennsylvania Board of Public Assistance

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS

Mr. TARR offered the following privileged resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, March 3, 1941.

Whereas, The Hon. John M. Burns of Fayette County, was noted for his defensive play while wearing moleskins for Duquesne University; and

Whereas, A good offense is still the best defense; and

Whereas, Utilizing said strategy, he has succeeded in having Miss Helen Marie Zoretic, also of Fayette, to say "yes"; and

Whereas, Such news has just been flashed by teletype to the Members of the House of Representatives; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives serve a copy of this resolution personally on the Hon. John M. Burns, and send a copy to the blushing bride-to-be, as a fitting token of the good wishes of the membership of the House upon the announcement of their engagement.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 4, 1941

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

Our Heavenly Father, we are greatly concerned about the well-being and destiny of our beloved country in these times, not entirely concerning an aggressor from abroad but more specifically from the enemies of our government from within our own borders.

There are those among us whose philosophy of government differs widely from ours. There are those among us who believe in the complete divorcing of Thee from life and government; those who believe in the regimentation of the people in their government and making them mere chattels of the all-powerful state; who deny the freedom of speech and press and the right of peaceful assembly and the right to worship Thee whatsoever and so many other ideals foreign too our democracy and representative government.

During these fruitful years of national existence Thou hast been close to us, within us, and while our faithfulness to Thee could have been much better, yet we recognize Thy name on our currency, Thy name is held in reverence in our churches and schools, our courts, our public institutions and the consciousness of our people apprehend Thee and withal Thy name remains inseparable with that of our country.

What then, O Father God, must be the problem to be squarely faced sooner or later? Is it not whether we shall or shall not defend our ideals of life and living? Must we not decide as true Americans that the American way shall remain true?

Let us awake unto the dangers lying so close to all of us e'er it be too late as the pages of the sad history have been and are being written so surely in Europe. May our faith in Thee be reawakened and our allegiance to Thee be fortified through a more definite spirit of dependence upon Thee. Thou shalt never fail and those who put their trust in Thee shall renew their strength daily. May this be the prayer of our entire nation today. In Thy Holy Name we pray. Amen.

They also read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 267, entitled:

An Act to further amend section three hundred and three of the act approved the seventeenth day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-one (P. L. 789), entitled as amended "An act relating to insurance; establishing an insurance department; and amending, revising, and consolidating the law relating to the licensing, qualification, regulation, examination, suspension, and dissolution of insurance companies, Lloyds associations, reciprocal and inter-insurance exchanges, and certain societies and orders, the examination and regulation of fire insurance rating bureaus, and the licensing and regulation of insurance agents and brokers; the service of legal process upon foreign insurance companies, associations or exchanges; providing penalties, and repealing existing laws," by further regulating the computation of the reserve liability of life insurance companies and the issuance of life insurance policies.

Which was committed to the Committee on Insurance.

Which was committed to the Committee on Insurance.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I rise in my place and present to the Chair the following bill, and ask the indulgence of the Senate for just a moment to make a few brief remarks.

Mr. President, while this bill is not a tax exemption bill, it does, however, provide for the redemption of properties taken through tax sales. I might say, Mr. President, in my county of Luzerne there are eleven thousand properties now which have been taken over in tax sales, and with the coming of the next advertised sale four thousand more will be added. We in Luzerne County believe, with the defense program as set up, there are many persons who are desirous of seeing enacted into law some method whereby they may redeem their properties, and this bill simply provides that by payment of costs established by the courts, and by taking advantage of the twenty per cent deferred payment plan, these properties may be redeemed. In that way it will bring into the county additional taxes that will not come in through that source, for the reason that the counties themselves retain the properties.

Mr. President, I ask that the Senate study the bill, and I trust the members may see the logic of it.

Mr. MILLER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 269, entitled:

An Act authorizing the reduction of real property purchased by political subdivisions at tax sales, upon the payment of the amount charged against the same and costs, by installment payments; and prescribing the procedure therefor.

Which was committed to the Committee on County Government.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of information.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, about two weeks ago I spoke on a current subject and during my brief discussion I used the word "dive." At that time, if I recall, my colleagues and the Presiding Officer asked me to explain the word "dive." To the best of my knowledge I did.

Yesterday afternoon, Mr. President, a new word was brought into this hall by my colleague from Fayette County, Senator Cavalvante, who talked on a current subject and he read into the record a certain communication, and he referred to certain employes of this Commonwealth as flat heels.

Therefore, Mr. President, I should like the Senator from Fayette to explain and magnify that word "flat heel" so that we might be acquainted with the term.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Fayette furnish the gentleman from Cambria with the desired information?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I should have had prior notice so that I could have consulted the various books on that subject. The best elucidation, probably, is the term that a flat heel is a person that believes in the science of statisticology. That, Mr. President, is about the only and the best answer I know of.

The PRESIDENT. If it would be "flat foot" it would be comparatively easy.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President and members of the Senate, about two months ago I introduced a number of bills and several resolutions with reference to the public assistance law. One of the resolutions on which I asked unanimous consent, was pertaining to the practice being used by the Department of Public Assistance, making and compelling every relief recipient to assign his life insurance policy before relief can be granted, down to the amount of five hundred dollars.

Mr. President, the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, according to the record, agreed with me that I had a just cause but because he thought the resolution deserved consideration and further study he objected to immediate consideration of my resolution.

Therefore, Mr. President, since that happened about three weeks ago I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether or not he has read my resolution after they had sent it to committee and whether he gave it study?

Mr. GELTZ. I have not, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I threatened last week the next time I rose to my feet I would ask for the discharge of that committee. I dislike that and I have no intention today of going through with that threat.

Mr. President, I think I have a very important resolution in committee and once again I am going to ask the chairman of that committee if possible to give that resolution some consideration today. I believe, Mr. President, I have been courteous, I have been patient, I believe you have all been, but at the same time we do have thousands upon thousands of persons who daily are being called upon to do away with their life savings, just because Mr. Russell has inaugurated such a rule, and I am asking the chairman of the Committee on Public Assistance, Welfare and Pensions, as I understand he has a committee meeting today, to bring up that resolution and give us here in this Senate an opportunity to either vote yes or no upon that resolution. How you vote is no affair of mine, but I do believe, with all due courtesy, that this body should have the opportunity to express their feelings so that Mr. Russell might know just how we feel about this most important issue.

Mr. President, we are going now into the eighth week of our session and very little, if anything, has been accomplished. I think, Mr. President, we will be here in October, the way we are going, and I hate to think that sometime in the late fall, when it is time to go hunting that I will be called upon to take up the time of this body and speak on relief and other bills I have introduced.

Mr. President, I have not had the pleasure of having one of my bills come out of committee. I am going to speak briefly on one important bill which I think, Mr. President, should receive consideration. It is America's cleanest entertainment, America's greatest sport, and that is bingo.

Mr. President, I have introduced a bill to place a license on all places where bingo is played.. That bill is in a committee controlled by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, and up to the present time I doubt whether he himself has even read the bill.

Mr. President, when we go back and look at the facts we find that happened in Delaware State, and that is apt to happen in Pennsylvania. We have more folks playing bingo in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania than any other form of entertainment that I know of. Mr. President, we either believe in bingo or we do not. We either say it is lawful or it is unlawful, we are going to say it shall be legalized or we are going to say the law shall be enforced. I assure all my colleagues that we will all have an opportunity to vote for or against bingo.

Mr. President, we can not play a Doctor Jekyl and Mr. Hyde. Let us not kid ourselves. We can not go back home and put on a saintly look and come up here and be the opposite, or vice versa.

Mr. President, I have people in my county who are opposed to the legalization of bingo, but my people know where I stand. I have the courage of my convictions, I am fooling no one, I am aware of the fact that I can not serve two masters, and I have the courage to come up here and tell them by my vote what I believe in and what my convictions are.

Mr. President, I know of men in this body, who would find no fault in going to a hotel room and playing poker but who would find fault in legalizing bingo. Let us not kid anybody.

Mr. President, I am going to introduce a resolution, if my bill does not come out, asking that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania enforce the laws of our state, to arrest every person that conducts a bingo game and arrest every person that partakes in that game. You will have an opportunity to say then, I am for the liberals or I am for the church people; you will have an opportunity to vote your convictions, and I say if our present laws do not have sufficient teeth to enforce the law, then we should pass an amendment and make it possible for the state police to enforce our laws. Let us not kid them. We believe in the great clean sport or we do not. It might sound funny, it might sound like a joke, but do not kid yourselves. We have thousands upon thousands of persons who live for that alone. We have churches, the Eagles, the Moose, fire companies, Legionnaires, fairs—yes, Mr. President, fairs above all—carnivals, circuses, and bingo in private homes, and I wonder how many of you, if you were put to the acid test, would stand up and vote "no."

It is an important bill, Mr. President, and I do not think that bill should die in committee. I am asking my good friend from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, to bring the bill out, let it come out of committee, let each and every man here vote his convictions.

Mr. President, I have only one alternative, which is to introduce a resolution and thereby get their votes, and at the same time tell the people back home whether or not you believe in its legalization or you believe in repealing the act.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I rise to a question on personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, last week the gentleman from Philadelphia, Senator Stiefel, and myself presented a resolution to the Senate calling on the Secretary of Public Assistance to make certain changes in the regulations of that department as applied to the healing arts group.

Mr. President, we have received from Mr. Russell a rather lengthy letter which I do not wish to take the time to read but I would like to ask unanimous consent to have permission to have it spread on the record.

The PRESIDENT. Is there any objection to the request of the Senator from Allegheny. The Chair hears none. It is so ordered.

The letter is as follows:

February 28, 1941.

"The Honorable Charles A. P. Bartlett Chairman, Welfare Committee, Senate of Pennsylvania
Harrisburg, Pennsylvania

"Dear Senator Bartlett:

"Thank you for your inquiry as to the Senate Resolution now before your Committee which was introduced on February 25, 1941 by Senators Stiefel and Cox.

"I am pleased to inform you that the request that the allocations to physicians participating in the Medical Care Program be raised had already been complied with through action of the State Board of Public Assistance on February 14, 1941.

"The responsibility of providing medical care to assistance recipients is a matter of law. This assistance is provided through a special service program operating on policies approved by the State Department and the State Board of Public Assistance, but largely administered by a State Healing Arts Committee and sixty-seven County Healing Arts Committees.

"This program recognizes the principle of a free choice of physician on the part of the assistance recipient, and depends upon the members of the Healing Arts professions for policing and control of volume. The Healing Arts professions originally accepted the principle that bills for services rendered would be prorated in accordance with the money made available in each county on the basis of an allocation of fifteen cents per person per month, and eleven cents per person per month in Philadelphia and Allegheny County.

"Due to the fact that the volume of services was expanded by inclusion of nursing care, dental care, provision of drugs and hospital clinic care, the proration of bills presented for services rendered declined steadily. The basis of allocation was raised to a flat twenty cents per person per month for the entire caseload, but during 1941 the volume of services continued to increase and prorations became steadily greater.

"This situation was thoroughly studied and reviewed by members of the staff of Public Assistance and many separate and joint conferences were held to attempt to find a solution to the problem.

"On February 14, 1941 the State Healing Arts Committee met with the State Board of Public Assistance, and the presentation of the problem resulted in the adoption of the following resolution by the State Board:

'Whereas, On the present basis of twenty cents per person per month, prorations in the Medical Program have dropped to thirty-five and thirty cents for many counties; and

'Whereas, Such prorations have caused dissatisfaction among the Healing Arts groups and withdrawal of many practitioners; and

'Whereas, It is maintained that the ceiling of volume in the Medical Program may be presented by a morbidity of not more than 12% as against 9% at present; and

'Whereas, It is recommended by the State Healing Arts Advisory Committee that allocations be based on thirty-five cents per person per month and made on a basis of a revised seasonal variation having less spread; and

'Whereas, It is recommended by the State Healing Arts Advisory Committee that the Dental Program be reorganized as recommended by the State Dental Society with dental expenditures limited to 15% of total allocations;

'Therefore, be it resolved: That the State Board of Public Assistance approve allocations based on thirty-five cents per person per month and made on a revised seasonal variation having less spread, for a trial period of six months, beginning March 1, 1941, with the understanding that, if this plan does not succeed in improving prorations, consideration will be given to a complete revision of the Medical Program as to its nature and extent; and

'Be it further resolved, That the State Board of Public Assistance approve the revision of the Dental Program as recommended by the State Dental Society, and outlined in the minutes of January 6, 1941, meeting of the State Healing Arts Advisory Committee, with the provision that expenditures for dental care shall not exceed fifteen per cent of total allocations in any county in any month."

"On the basis of the new allocation of thirty-five cents for person per month the problem of prorations should be solved unless the volume of services under this program continues to rise. The State Board intends to review the experience with this new basis of allocation of funds after six months. If proration then continued to be a problem, the State Board considers that some drastic revision in the organization of this program will have to be attempted.

"In regard to the prompt payment of bills, excellent service is being given the participants in the Medical Care Program in the payment of invoices once these invoices have reached the State Department. There have been serious delays in the receipt of such invoices, since each month all invoices in a particular county must be reviewed and approved by a local volunteer Healing Arts Committee. In some counties there has been great difficulty in getting these County Healing Arts Committees to handle the invoices promptly. The State Healing Arts Committee has promised to require more prompt action on the part of the local committees, and, if this is not forthcoming, to replace them.

Sincerely yours,

HOWARD L. RUSSELL, Secretary"

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I might say very briefly the contents of this letter are to this effect; in the past there has been set aside for the Healing Arts Group, consisting of physicians, nurses and various other healing groups, an appropriation of twenty cents per person on public assistance. The doctors, the physicians, have always felt that they were willing to assume one half of the burden of the physical care of indigent people and on that basis they got their fees, so that they would assume one half of that cost.

This appropriation of twenty cents per person has never been sufficient and as a result of that appropriation has had to be prorated, so that during some months during the winter physicians received as little as thirty cents for an office visit and sixty cents for a visit at the home of a sick person.

Mr. President, that of course was ridiculous and as a result of that thousands of physicians in Allegheny County and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania have made no charge whatsoever for their service to indigent people.

Now that the great cloud of the depression seems to be lifting and we have more money, I think it is only fair to those physicians that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania once again assume one half the burden.

INTERROGATION

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Cambria.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HALUSKA. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Cambria if the bill to which he referred previously as a bingo bill is Senate Bill No. 14.

Mr. HALUSKA. No, Mr. President. To clarify that, the thought my colleague from Allegheny has pertaining to that bill, I say no, because I introduced Senate Bill No. 14 and I later found it was a direct revenue raising bill and I introduced Senate Bill No. 133, which is in your committee, Mr. Walker.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, do I understand then the answer to my question is "No"?

Mr. HALUSKA. On Senate Bill No. 14, Mr. President?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the question is as to Senate Bill No. 14. Is that the bill the gentleman from Cambria referred to in his discussion on bingo?

Mr. HALUSKA. No, Mr. President, that is not the bill. Senate Bill 133 is the bill I was referring to.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Montgomery will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I want to say just a word with reference to the very interesting statement given to us by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, a few moments ago.

I do not know whether I am telling the gentleman from Allegheny something which may be new to him but Mr. Russell stated yesterday that a little while ago the State Board of Assistance had increased the ratio for the M.D.'s from twenty cents to thirty-five cents, I have had several letters from physicians since that time stating that the increase in the allowance did away therefore in very large measure with the injustice to which the Senator from Allegheny has referred. Mr. President, I mention this because that information was brought out in one of our hearings last week, which probably the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, did not attend.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I wish to thank the gentleman from Montgomery for his statment and to mention that that information is contained in the letter which I asked be spread on the record. Inadverently I forgot to indicate that and that was the real reason I got up to indicate that Mr. Russell had the situation well in hand.

Of course you gentlemen appreciate this is for a temporary period of time, I believe a test period of about six months, and we hope in six months the thing here works out.

Mr. President, my point is this: when the Legislature adjourns this time it will be another year or two years before we meet again. That is a long period of time to wait if there is not a sufficient appropriation and this resolution prepared by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Stiefel, was prepared very, very carefully after exhaustive study of this matter, and we would like it to be considered, to be brought out on the floor of the Senate for the purpose of showing Mr. Russell that it is the unanimous desire of this body that the Healing Arts group receive fair treatment.

Thank you, Mr. President.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland will state his point of information.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, a few moments ago one of the Senators used a term that is quite foreign to me and therefore I desire to ask the gentleman from Fayette if he will please explain to me what the science of statisticology covers.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Fayette furnish the desired information?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I have already defined the term "flat heel". I said a flat heel is a person that practices the science of statisticology.

Mr. President, the science of statisticology is an art, is a science that has been spawned by the minds of public trough parasites. I want to repeat that: that the science of statisticology is an art spawned in the minds of public trough parasites. It is the art of measuring human hunger and misery by remote control, based upon rules predicated on geneological statistics, based upon the tenets not of the God that we cherish and love but a figment of the minds of public trough parasites, a god that takes a definite form, a statistical god, and in conjunction with geneological statistics the flat heel then proceeds to measure human hunger and misery by remote control, based upon those statistics and in the name of that statistical god that has become such a potent figure in their imagination.

The PRESIDENT. That is a very elucidating definition.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 9 on third reading, entitled:

An Act concerning the permanent recordation of certain births, birth certificates, the issuance of copies of such certificates, and prescribing the procedure therefor; enlarging the powers and duties of the Department of Health and the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

be recommitted to the Committee on Public Health for the purpose of amendment.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THIRD READING

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 34, as follows:

An Act to amend section twelve of the act approved the eighth day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven (Pamphlet Laws 705) entitled "An act creating the office of Fire Marshal to be attached to the Department of Public Safety in cities of the first class prescribing his duties and powers and providing penalties for violations of the provisions of the act and providing for the method of appointment compensation and for the maintenance of his office" by imposing additional duties on the Fire Marshal

Section 1 Section twelve of the act approved the eighth day of June one thousand nine hundred and eleven (Pamphlet Laws 705) entitled "An act creating the office of Fire Marshal to be attached to the Department of Public Safety in cities of the first class prescribing his duties and powers and providing penalties for violations of the provisions of the act and providing for the method of appointment compensation and for the maintenance of his office" is hereby amended to read as follows

Section 12 (a) The Fire Marshal his chief assistant and inspectors may examine all buildings upon which any fire-escapes may be erected shall see that it is kept in good order and repair and no person shall at any time place any incumbrance of any kind whatsoever upon any of said fire-escapes or passageways constructed or intended for the escape of persons from the premises in case of fire Any owner or occupant of buildings or premises failing to comply with the orders of the authorities above specified shall be deemed guilty of keeping and maintaining a nuisance detrimental to life and property and on conviction before any magistrate be fined twenty-five dollars or in default of such payment imprisoned in the county prison not more than thirty days

(b) The Fire Marshall shall cause to be made a periodic inspection of all fire-hydrants at intervals of not more than ninety calendar days apart and if he finds any such fire-hydrant to be defective he shall immediately order its repair or replacement

(c) All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with this act are hereby repealed

Section 2 The provisions of this act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, when this bill was first introduced in the Senate I felt by the time it got some real action there might be a real bill made of this subject which is plaguing Philadelphia.

Mr. President, I was afraid the provisions in the act were a little too strenuous as far as the fire marshal was concerned, because in Philadelphia the fire marshal who inspects fire plugs and finds them defective can be asked to repair them—but that requires money—and unless the city council gives him the money he would be out of a job without being able to carry out the duties imposed upon him. Mr. President, with the bill in its present condition, as amended, we might just as well not pass the bill. I think there will have to be found a medium between the two extremes and I would like to suggest to the sponsor of the bill, the gentleman from Philadelpha, Mr. McCreesh, that he request that Senate Bill No. 34 be recommitted to committee for the purpose of amendment.

SENATE BILL No. 34 RECOMMITTED

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 34 be recomitted to the Committee on Municipal Government.

Mr. President, I have great faith in the chairman of that committee and I do hope we will get out a good bill.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

It was agreed to.

MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL No. 66

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 66, on third reading, entitled:

An Act to further amend the last paragraph of section four hundred thirty-nine of the act, approved the second day of May, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-nine (P. L. 1278), entitled "An act relating to counties of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth classes; and revising, amending and consolidating the laws relating thereto," imposing additional duties on and providing for additional compensation of veterans' grave registrars.

be recommitted to the Committee on Military Affairs for the purpose of further study and amendent.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I am going to be frank about this bill. I introduced Senate Bill No. 66 because it was prepared by the legislative committee of the American Legion in this state and it simply puts into law the mandate of the American Legion adopted at their convention.

Mr. President, the bill has been out on the floor of this Senate and then it was recommitted, then it was reported out again, and it is now on the Calendar for final action.

The truth of the matter is this, and I am not impugning the integrity of my colleague from Luzerne, Mr. Miller, at all—the truth is there is opposition to this bill and the opposition is very formidable but those who are opposed to the bill apparently do not wish to face a decision on the floor of the Senate and the bill is absolutely marked for pickling or slaughtering in that committee.

Mr. President, I am a member of the committee and I know I will continue to fight to the end in order to see that there is final action, but I do reluctantly stand by to see a bill moved back to committee for reasons that are not definitely the proper reasons; when the reasons are known why the bill is asked to go back to committee then the members of this Senate ought to be told plainly and openly on the floor of the Senate so that when they vote to send a bill back they know what they are sending it back for.

Mr. President, this bill is not being sent back to committee for amendment or further study or further consideration. A decision has been taken and there was action taken in the Caucus relative to this bill. I would not state the definite action taken, what it was, but I do say that action was taken and you know what your intentions are relative to this bill.

I repeat again, Mr. President, this bill contains a mandate passed upon and adopted by the American Legion of this state at one of their conventions. It is no more nor less than their mandate and you are now asking that this bill be sent back for the purpose of killing it and because you do not have the courage to vote on it on the floor of the Senate.

I oppose, Mr. President, the recommittal of this bill.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I rise to enlighten the Senator from Fayette as to what took place in the Republican caucus on this bill, because I feel somewhat responsible for the step that is proposed to be taken to refer Senate Bill No. 66 back to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. President, one question, and I think it is a serious question, that was raised by one of the members of the Republican Caucus was whether this Legislature can enact any bill requiring an elected official to do or perform a duty presently performed by a member of a private corporation. That is one thing I think should deserve some consideration.

In the second place, Mr. President, I personally am in favor of this bill if it is limited to adding additional duties to the party holding the position of grave marker but I think this is of the utmost importance and it is something that the members of the Senate should always keep in mind, especially during this session.

Mr. President, there is a great possibility that our country might be involved in war. I pray to God it will not, but it seems to me that now is the time above all times that we adhere not only to the policy and advocacy of economy in government but we practice it.

Now, Mr. President, in our own county a friend of mine held the position of grave marker. I think he received a salary of one hundred fifty dollars a month for those arduous duties. He has had time during the time that he held this office—he resigned last year—to compile a very worthwhile history of all men, residents of Blair County, who had ever served in the armed forces.

I know, Mr. President, in our county that man is adequately compensated. I think we might well add some additional duties to that job but I ask this Senate to be mighty careful in adding to the cost of our local government during this session of the Legislature.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I feel in view of the remarks offered by the gentleman from Fayette that I should reply to certain statements he made.

As chairman of the Committee on Military Affairs, to which this bill will, I trust, be referred, I might say that several of the Senators, members of the Committee on Military Affairs, have requested that it be referred to the committee in order that further amendments might be placed in the measure.

I would like to dispel from the mind of the gentleman from Fayette that the purpose of recommitting Senate Bill No. 66 is to pickle the bill because if I might be permitted to use the pronoun "I" I state that I represent as the legislative chairman the American Legion, Department of Pennsylvania, I feel there are amendments that will tend to help the bill, I want to say in appreciation of the efforts of the gentleman from Fayette, who at my suggestion presented the bill, that I will stand shoulder to shoulder with him—he is also a member of the Committee on Military Affairs—in seeing that the bill is given consideration and it is my earnest hope that Senate Bill No. 66 will be reported out from committee again on the floor of the Senate for action.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, assuming what the gentleman from Luzerne has stated is beyond question I offer the following motion.

MOTION TO AMEND MOTION TO RECOMMIT SENATE BILL NO. 66

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I offer an amendment to the motion introduced by the gentleman from Luzerne to recommit Senate Bill No. 66, that if the motion is carried that the committee, after it has amended or corrected the bill, shall within thirty days return the bill to the floor of this Senate.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I can not see that a motion such as has been introduced by the Senator from Fayette can bind the Committee on Military Affairs. Mr. President, I can not speak for the committee but I wish simply to state as a member of the Committee on Military Affairs and as its chairman, as I stated before, I will stand shoulder t shoulder with the Senator from Fayette in seeing that Senate Bill No. 66 is considered and I will vote to have it brought forth on the floor of the Senate. I think the amendment to the motion made by the gentleman from Fayette is somewhat out of line.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I insist upon my amendment to the motion and ask a roll call.

The PRESIDENT. Was there a seconder to the motion of the gentleman from Fayette.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The PRESIDENT. It has been moved by the gentleman from Fayette and seconded by the gentleman from Washington that the original motion of the Senator from Luzerne be amended as follows. Will the Senator from Fayette repeat his motion?

MOTION REPEATED

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, if the motion to recommit Senate Bill No. 66 is carried the committee to which the bill is recommitted, after it has been corrected and amended and considered, the committee shall return the bill to the floor of the Senate within thirty days.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, will the Chair please state to the Senate what the proposition is we are now voting on.

The PRESIDENT. The question before the Senate, on which a roll call has been asked, is as to the amendment to the motion, submitted by the gentleman from Fayette and seconded by the gentleman from Washington.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, the first proposition is as to whether or not the amendment to the motion submitted by the gentleman from Fayette is to be adopted as a motion; is that right?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, we are not voting on the original motion.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, we are to vote on the question as to whether or not the Senate shall adopt the amendment to the motion submitted by the Senator from Fayette; is that correct?

The PRESIDENT. The Senate must first dispose of the motion to amend, introduced by the gentleman from Fayette. The procedure would then be to consider the motion of the gentleman from Luzerne.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, to meet this new system of government, with regard to this bill?

The PRESIDENT. Roll call has been requested by the gentleman from Fayette.

The Clerk will call the roll.

(During the calling of the roll.)

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no".

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will be so recorded.

Mr. COX. Mr. President, I would like my vote to be recorded as "no".

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Cox, will be so recorded.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no".

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Philadelphia will be so recorded.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I desire to change my vote from "aye" to "no".

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Lackawanna will be so recorded.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I desire to be recorded as voting "no".

The PRESIDENT. The vote of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCreesh, will be so recorded.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I desire to explain my vote.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I feel when a discussion is carried on on the floor of this Senate, if some specific amendment is discussed to be redrafted, this body has the right to send a bill back to committee with instructions to draft that specific amendment and return it. However, on the general proposition to send a bill back to committee for further study I feel this body has no right to tie the hands of that committee.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CAVALCANTE and Mr. REED and were as follows, viz:

YEAS 10

Barr,	DiSilvestro,	Lanius,	Reed,
Cavalcante,	Haluska,	McQuiddy,	Ruth,
Dent,	Jaspan,

NAYS 35

Bartlett,	Edmonds,	McCreesh,	Taylor,
Becker,	Farrell,	McGinnis,	Thomas,
Carr,	Frey,	Miller,	Tyler,
Chapman,	Geltz,	Scarlett,	Wade,
Coleman,	Homsher,	Shapiro,	Walker,
Cox,	James,	Snowden,	Wilson, H. I.,
Crider,	Kephart,	Stevenson,	Wilson, T. B.,
Crowe,	Letzler,	Stiefel,	Ziesenheim,
Ealy,	Mallery,	Tallman,

So the question was determined in the negative.

The PRESIDENT. The motion falls. The question before the Senate is on the adoption of the motion of the Senator from Luzerne, to recommit Senate Bill 66 to the Committee on Military Affairs.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I understand a motion to recommit is not debatable and I am not going to debate it, but for the purpose of guiding me on my vote on that motion, I should like to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne, Mr. Miller.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I understand this motion is to recommit this bill for the purpose of amendment.

Mr. MILLER. Yes, Mr. President, for further study and amendment.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, may I be informed as to what part of this bill is to be amended and what amendment is under consideration?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I can not answer as to what the amendments are that are under consideration, but there is a certain portion of the bill, found on page two, beginning at line 25, that seems objectionable to a certain extent.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to further interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be further interrogated.

Mr. MILLER. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. I understand this bill as now framed enlarges the duties of certain registrars in connection with grave digging for veterans, and I understand further that is the only amendment to the bill, and I understand in connection with this additional work the costs of compensation for the additional services are to be fixed by the Salary Board which fixes the salary of the particular individual in the first instance in any office. Is that correct?

Mr. MILLER. That is correct, Mr. President.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I can see nothing that has been brought to this floor which indicates there can be any amendments that will help this bill, and I want to say very frankly to the gentleman I am informed the purpose of sending this bill back to committee is for the purpose of killing it.

Mr. President, as far as I am concerned, I should like to ask the gentleman from Luzerne to make that question clear, because while I am not willing to tie the hands of the committee and set a precedent of sanding back bills to committee with strings attached, I am opposed to a bill being on third reading and being sent back to committee for the purpose of amendment, when the real purpose is to kill it; and I should like to have that clear in my mind.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, if the reporter will refer to my remarks, when I previously spoke on this subject, I think I stated to the effect I would like to dispel from the mind of the Senator from Fayette that the purpose of recommitting this bill is for the purpose of pickling it, so to speak, and I still make that statement. I have no knowledge from any Senator within this body that they are desirous to having this bill killed, and I want to say again I have an obligation to perform in my official capacity, representing the veterans' organization, and I will stand shoulder to shoulder with the Senator from Fayette in order that this bill again be brought out on this floor for action.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, is there anything that would interfere with amending the bill on the floor of this Senate?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I do not know whether the amendments have been prepared.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, why not let the bill remain in the Senate on the Calendar until such amendments are prepared and introduced the amendments in the open forum of this Senate?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I prefer to stand by my original motion, to have the bill referred to the Committee on Military Affairs for further study and amendment.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, may I further interrogate the gentleman from Luzerne?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, is it then the purpose to have this bill returned to committee for amendment or for further study?

Mr. MILLER. Both, Mr. President.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I should like to interrogate the sponsor of this bill, the gentleman from Fayette.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Fayette permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CAVALCANTE . I will, Mr. President.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, may I ask this question, if this bill is going back to committee for consideration, which is asked in good faith, on page two, at the bottom of the page, where the words "family relations" occur, a duty is put on these men to advise veterans with regard to family relations, what is the meaning of that term? As I understand it there has been considerable talk among members of the Senate, on both sides of the house, as to what the meaning of that phrase is.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, for the information of the gentleman from McKean—not Tioga—the federal law provides certain benefits for the orphans and widows of veterans, and the expression "family relations" referred to the rights of orphans and widows of veterans as they are related to the federal acts providing for benefits for them; it does not refer to desertion or non-support, it does not refer to divorce or anything else. We made that very specific in the act.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, the bill does not say so, does it?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I think it does.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, the bill is not specific in saying what family relations they are to be advised on.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, may I take the liberty of reading the amendment?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman may proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, the amendment reads: "The veterans' grave registrar shall also perform service officers, duties in assisting war veterans in securing their rights as such in matters relating to their person, property and family relations." Very plain, Mr. President, assisting them as veterans in all matters relating to person, property and their family relations.

Mr. President, we have many, many veterans at this very moment lingering in hospitals for the demented and otherwise, who have nobody to assist their children and their widows in protecting their interests under the federal acts, and this would place some duty upon the grave registrar to assist the wives and the children of those demented war veterans and disabled war veterans.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I did not rise to in any way enter into any controversy with the gentleman from Fayette, but merely to say this question has been raised and there has been objection to the bill until it was clarified.

Mr. President, it is very easy to get up on this floor and say that bill is being sent back to committee to kill it. It has been made on the floor of this Senate in the last few days in regard to a great many bills when the statements had no basis in fact at all. There is no basis in fact in saying this bill is being sent back to committee to be killed, and I think some of the Senators should be stopped when they criticise the action of other Senators in asking that the bill be clarified in order to be properly considered before it is finally passed.

Mr. EDMUNDS. Mr. President, in order that those who are interested in this bill may know the point of view of those who are going to vote for recommittal, I want to call attention to these facts: I am a member of the Committee on Military Affairs and I am interested in what this bill wants to accomplish.

Mr. President, I call attention to the fact that it says, "The veterans' grave registrar shall also perform service officers' duties." Mr. President, the position of a grave registrar is an official position, service officers are Legion officers, and Mr. President, it seems to me there ought to be some clarification before you take the duties of a private official of a private corporation and put them into the public law. Second, what shall they do? They are to look after the veterans, the Senator from Fayette has stated that, and we are all in favor of that but the phrase "person, property and family relations" is a very broad series of terms, and it might mean that they should engage in law suits or perform divorces or something of that sort, which I think would be rather annoying under present conditions.

Third, in the last part of the amendment it is provided that their compensation is to be fixed by the salary board, but there is nothing about expenses being under the jurisdiction of the salary board or the county commissioners.

Mr. President, on those few points I think the bill needs clarification, and therefore I shall vote to return it to the committee for that purpose.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I would like to make a correction in the statement made by the Senator from Montgomery whereby he states that a service officer is a legion officer. A service officer is an officer who handles the functions of all veterans organizations, it is not a distinct legion function. I would just like to clarify that point.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I would like to clarify two points raised in the bill.

First, Mr. President, I think there is a misconception of the status of a war veteran, especially a disabled war veteran who is receiving compensation or pension from the government.

Now, Mr. President, if we will here pause and consider well, we will know that war veterans who receive a pension, or who are at this time lingering in some government hospital for the demented or disabled, are considered wards of the government and anything that we do relative to them is not anything that we are doing because of something being done by any private corporation. We are doing these things for the wards of the government and not for a private corporation.

Now, Mr. President, there is another point I want to clarify that has been made on the floor of this Senate relative to this bill. When this bill was first in committee and considered, there was objection made or discussion had on the point mentioned by the gentleman from McKean, and the bill was then referred back, I think, to a subcommittee with instructions to amend the bill so as to eliminate the objection made in committee.

Mr. President, it has been stated on the floor of this Senate that this bill was reported and that particular objection or point was not covered. Now, I call your attention, Mr. President, and also the members of this Senate to the fact that this bill has two printer's numbers. If you will turn to the same bill under printer's number 9, you will find that the amendments to cover the very objection mentioned were taken care of; the amendments were put in the bill and I think that the objection primarily to the point raised by the gentleman from McKean was properly raised, because in the original bill, lines 25, 26, 27, 28 and 29 read as follows:

"The veterans' grave registrar shall also perform service officers' duties in assisting war veterans in securing their rights as such and in other matters relating to their person, property and family relations."

Mr. President, it was thought at that time that that might mean the service officer would have to go out and assist the veterans in matters of divorce and in matters of desertion and non-support and everything else, and the amendment was made and the word "and" was stricken out and the word "other" was stricken out, and the objection made or the argument made was answered by that amendment.

So, Mr. President, I say to you today that argument does not hold water, that this bill has been clarified by that amendment, and the matters that the registrar will be under duty to take of are matters that are related solely to those benefits and those rights which belong to the veterans under the federal acts and the state acts.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his point of order.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, my point of order is that the vote on the motion with the suggested amendment carried with it the motion to recommit.

The PRESIDENT. The point of order is not well taken, and the Chair clearly stated that at the time.

The question before the Senate now is on the motion made by the Senator from Luzerne to recommit Senate Bill No. 66 to the Committee on Military Affairs for further study and amendment.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from McKean will state his point of information.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, may I ask what we are voting on? Are we voting on the original motion made by the Senator from Luzerne to recommit Senate Bill No. 66?

The PRESIDENT. That is right.

Mr. THOMAS B. WILSON. Mr. President, that motion is unattached or unaccompanied by any direction to the committee as to what it shall do?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct. The motion stands alone.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CAVALCANTE and Mr. REED and were as follows, viz:

YEAS 37

Barr,	Ealy,	Mallery,	Stevenson,
Bartlett,	Edmonds,	McCreesh,	Tallman,

So the question wass determined in the affirmative.

The motion prevails. Senate Bill No. 66 is recommitted to the Committee on Military Affairs.

BILL RECOMMITTED

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I move that Senate Bill No. 176 on third reading, entitled:

An Act for the judicial notice of the ordinances of cities, boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class, and for proof thereof; and to make uniform the law with reference thereto.

be recommitted to the Committee on Municipal Government for the purpose of further amendment.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Roll call, Mr. President, I wish to be recorded as voting "no".

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I desire to explain my vote on Senate Bill No. 176.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection, the gentleman from Philadelphia may proceed.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, section 3 of this bill requires that the determination of the ordinance in question shall be made by the court. I have called the attention of the sponsor to the fact that the word really should be "interpretation" instead of "determination." The bill requires amendment, and for that reason I intend to vote that it be sent back to the committee.

QUESTION OF PARLIMENTARY RECOMMENDATION

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary recommendation.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his question.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I would like to recommend to this body that we abolish the rule that permits amendments to bills on the floor of the Senate, and adopt a rule that all amendments shall hereafter be made in committee.

The PRESIDENT. The motion is out of order.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CAVALCANTE and Mr. REED, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—36

Barr,	Edmonds,	McGinnis,	Tallman,

BILL ON THIRD READING AND FINAL PASSAGE

Agreeably to order,

The Senate proceeded to the third reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 198, as follows:

Section 2 All acts or parts of acts inconsistent herewith are hereby repealed

Section 3 This act shall become effective immediately upon final enactment

And said bill having been read at length the third time, and agreed to,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

Ordered, That the Clerk present said bill to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

BILL ON SECOND READING

Agreeably to order,

The rule requiring bills to be considered in Committee of the Whole being in this case dispensed with,

The Senate proceeded to the second reading and consideration of Senate Bill No. 152, entitled:

An Act authorizing and directing the Department of Military Affairs to compile, edit, publish, and distribute books, listing the names of the veterans of the wars and expeditions, in which the United States has engaged; authorizing said department to procure and accept a Federal Works Progress Administration grant; and making an appropriation.

And said bill having been read at length the second time and agreed to,

Ordered, To be transcribed for a third reading.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I spoke yesterday concerning information received from the Department of Public Welfare in connection with mental institutions. You will remember I referred to the fact the Department had stated if these mental institutions were taken over the state would lose not only the cost of five million dollars to operate these institutions, but would incur a loss in receipts of six and one half million dollars which it receives from the various counties for the care of county patients in state institutions.

Mr. President, I have always stated I doubted those figures were correct, but before making any attack on the figures in the budget, I felt we should try to get that information, and I am convinced now the procedure which I have adopted is the proper procedure, because the information which I have received does not bear out the Governor's estimated figures set forth in the budget, nor does it bear out the information given to us by the Department of Welfare.

The figures were furnished to me at my request by the Department of Revenue, which receives this money, and here are the figures:

For the year 1940

Allentown	$256,467.70;
Danville	307,888.46;
Farview	139,529.80;
Harrisburg	287,142.84;
Norristown	530,510.56;
Philadelphia	856,906.90;
Torrance	280,828.96;
Warren	333,891.92;
Wernersville	72,024.26;

making a total of $3,035,191.40.

Mr. President, these are the amounts that are billed, not the amounts received. These figures that I have just read represent the total amounts billed by the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the various counties for patients in state institutions.

The amount collected, however, is $1,987,372.87.

The counties which have practically paid in full are Allentown, Danville, Farview, Harrisburg, Torrance, Warren and Wernersville. The counties which have not paid in full are Norristown, which of its $530,510.56, has paid only $191,380.89, and Philadelphia which of its $856,906.90, has paid $5,458.50.

That does not reflect, Mr. President, the true picture as far as Philadelphia is concerned, however, because Philadelphia owes the state approximately $1,389,238. May I add to that, Mr. President, that since the state has already taken over the institution at Philadelphia, it certainly owes it if not legal, the moral obligation to carry it out in full, to relieve the county of the payment of this three dollars per week per patient, and if you remove that item from this total sum, you will find that all the state will lose by taking over these institutions will be the cost of five million dollars to maintain the patents and operate the institutions, and $2,200,000 per annum or $4,400,000 per biennium, which it would lose in receipts that it would otherwise get.

The total, therefore, Mr. President, is not $11,600,000, but the total is $9,400,000.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Messrs. STIEFEL and FREY read in place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 285, entitled:

An Act abating certain tax penalties and interest on city and school taxes in cities of the first and second class and school districts of the first class; prohibiting the sale of real property for the nonpayment of any such taxes for a certain period; preserving certain tax liens and providing for the extension thereof.

Which was committed to the Committee on Judiciary General.

Mr. FREY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce bills at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, we have with us today a distinguished former Senator, the Senator from Armstrong County, Mr. Sipe. I am sure we who know him would not feel at home, after having him in our midst, without hearing a word from him.

MOTION TO EXTEND COURTESY OF THE FLOOR TO EX-SENATOR SIPE

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I therefore move that former Senator Sipe be extended the courtesy of the floor.

The PRESIDENT. Hearing no objection, the former Senator from Armstrong, Mr. Sipe will proceed. The Chair has no doubt he will tell us the present status of the Butler Sanitarium.

Mr. SIPE. Mr. President, and members of the Pennsylvania Senate, young and old, it is a great pleasure for me to come down here to the Senate of the sovereign State of Pennsylvania and to renew my acquaintance with the old members of the Senate, and make the acquaintance of the new members of the Senate.

My relationships with the Senators when I had the honor of being a member of this august body will always remain among the most cherished recollections of my life. Yes, it was a great pleasure for me to be a member of this body; I was happy here when in your midst and now that I am out of the Senate I am still happy. In other words, it was a pleasure to be a member of the Senate, a pleasure to be in it, and I find it an equal pleasure to be out of it.

Mr. President, I should not like if I were a member of the Senate in this session, to be on any of these committees. It seems to me from what I have been hearing here yesterday and today that these committees have entirely to much studying to do. You know, Mr. President, that excessive and skull breaking study is a dangerous thing; it will break down the constitution of the most robust Senator.

As to the Butler Sanatorium, I have been asked by your adorable Excellency and by many members of this body whether the institution is closed or open. Coming from the buckwheat fields of Butler County, I can assure you that the institution still remain locked and barred, and from all that I have been able to learn, it has most excellent prospects of remaining locked and barred, but I feel sure that no member of this body can blame that on me.

So, in closing, Mr. President, I repeat I had happy days here among you, I am glad to come down and look you in the faces again, and that I am still happy although not a member of this august and sacred body.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Butler will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CARR. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to read an advertisement headed "Sipe Congratulates," which appeared in the Butler Eagle, November 6, 1940 and which reads as follows:

"I congratulate Jacob W. Carr on his election and hope he will have a successful term. While his lack of legal training will handicap him as a battling senator, yet he will never disgrace the people of his district by getting drunk on the floor of the Senate, as some Senators do."

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now adjourn until Wednesday, March 5, 1941, at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

Mr. SNOWDEN. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

The Senate adjourned at 1:46 o'clock, p. m., until Wednesday, March 5, 1941, at 11:00 o'clock a. m.

We invoke thy blessing upon all the men and women who have helped provide for our needs and our desires. Grant us wisdom to deal justly with those who labor to make our lives more comfortable.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I do not desire to oppose the passage of this bill, although I believe it does need amendments. I have asked the sponsor of this bill, Mr. Achterman, to permit amendments as to the make up of the Council of Defense. I have no personal reason to oppose the gentleman named, or the officers named, in the bill as members of the Council of Defense. I have always had the most pleasant relations with them, but having had something to do with the origin of the program for state Councils of Defense, it would seem to me that the Council as appointed in this state should be streamlined with the National Council of Defense. What are the agencies that will have something to do with defense, and the advancement of our National Defense promulgated in Pennsylvania? One would be the Adjutant General, another would be the Attorney General, another would be the Secretary of Commerce dealing with industries; another would be the Secretary of Labor dealing with labor, another would be the Secretary of Health because the health problem is an important problem in this state, another would be the Secretary of Public Instruction, dealing with public instruction. Public instruction is interested in vocational training and the restraining of people who take part in our defense program. Agriculture also has a place in the defense program. Highways have a very important place in the defense program. It seems to me that the President pro tempore of the Senate, and the Speaker of the House would be proper members of that Council because they would bring to the work of the Council the legislative viewpoint, and should it be necessary to prepare legislation at some future session, or some special session of the Legislature, they would be there with first hand knowledge of the workings of the Council and the problems of that would be presented.

It also seems to me that a Council of Defense should have a very substantial representation of citizens of the state, because there are a great many worthwhile citizens who may have particular knowledge, may have particular information that would be of service in the program for national defense.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker, I offered amendments to this bill for the purpose of changing the personnel, not with any intent of depriving any of our state officers of the opportunity to serve, but to make it more effective, but the sponsor of the bill has seen fit to refuse the amendments. If I wanted to try to insert them, I would have to go back through the process of getting the bill back to second reading before being able to insert them.

I am, therefore, going to vote for the bill but I do think it would be a more effective Council if it were streamlined with the National Council of Defense.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I feel perhaps it would be proper for me to explain the reasons why I refused to concur in the amendments that the gentleman from Delaware suggested. The particular legislation before us now, and I believe I am breaking no confidence in saying that this legislation has been framed as it has been discussed and finally approved by the Governor and the Speaker of this House, not only in relation to the legislation but also as to the personel that was to compose the Council. I can appreciate what the gentleman has said in relation to this great mass of people who could very properly be included in this State Council. As a matter of fact I can think of many different types of individuals engaged in various occupations that could quite properly be included until you got the Council so large that it would be unable to function. The bill gives the Council the power to call in any agency of the state and request and require their cooperation. I believe what the gentleman desires to obtain by this amendment can be obtained in the present measure and it is for those reasons that I do not agree with the gentleman from Delaware.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I do not rise to oppose this bill but there is a glaring defect in the draftmanship which I call to the attention of the majority floor leader and I hope it will be amended. I'm hardly in favor of what the bill purports to do, that is, setting up a Council.

On page four, line twelve, paragraph fifteen, the bill has these words, "To require and direct the cooperation and assistance of the state and local governmental agencies and officials".

I only oppose the draftmanship of this bill. It does not seem to me to make very good logic to say that you can direct cooperation. The other part of the bill on page three dealing with the duties of the commission Council says, "to cooperate with similar counsels of defense in other states." And, "to cooperate with local defense Councils" and yet when it gets over here where it has to do with local governmental agencies, agencies that are set up under the Constitution, and are governmental divisions of the state, the bill uses language with which I cannot agree.

I do not see how this Council, or any other commission so far as that is concerned, can "direct" the cooperation of certain state and local governmental agencies. Therefore, it seems to me a very grave question of draftmanship. While I'm going to vote for this bill I hope that before the bill reaches final passage that section will be amended so as to use the word "require" the cooperation rather than "direct" cooperation, whic I feel is not only misleading but cannot be done in certain governmental functions according to law, and thereby might lead us into dubious ways on account of innocent wording in a very pertinent paragraph of the bill. I hope before the bill reaches final passage the section I referred to will be amended.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

On the question,

Will the House agree to the bill on third reading?

It was agreed to.

On the question,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this bill.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul permit himself to be interrogated.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I shall.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, we sympathize with the objections made by the farmers as to overlapping inspection as well as laws that do not conform to the regulations of the state. However, I have a telegram from Dr. Alexander, Director of Public Health of the City of Pittsburgh, who asked whether you would be kind enough to hold over this bill until Monday and until he has an opportunity of speaking with you regarding amendments that he thinks are important. Would you consent to hold this bill on the postponed calendar until then?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, may I ask a question before answering that one?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, is Dr. Alexander the same gentleman who during the session of 1937, when we considered a bill of similar nature asked at that time that that bill be held over?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I am not positive. I am not really well acquainted with that time. I know that in 1939 he was very active when bills of similar nature were presented in this House, and he did make requests time and time again.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman from Allegheny to say in the 1939 session?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I did. He sent a wire direct to me.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I want to go back to my question again. In the 1937 session of the Legislature we had a bill of similar nature. The question I asked pertained to the session of 1937. Was Dr. Alexander the gentleman who asked that a bill of similar nature be held over at that time.

Mr. HOLLAND. I cannot answer that question, Mr. Speaker. I am really not well acquainted with what was done at that time.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, one more question before answering the gentleman; did I understand him to say that during the 1939 session of the Legislature there was a request made of a similar nature?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, there was.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, what was the result of the request in 1939?

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I think the bill was not passed. It was dropped from the calendar.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman's question as to whether we would be willing to hold it over, I would like to request that we proceed to vote on the bill at this time, and after the interrogation, I will be glad to give the reasons for so stating.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, in asking for a postponement of the bill until Monday, I do not think I am asking anything that should not be granted. All I am really trying to do is to cooperate with the farmers and the large milk dairies throughout the State in trying to solve the problem that they too are trying to solve. I regret as much as anyone else does that there are overlapping inspections, and overlapping laws and I think they should be corrected. There is also a question of health that enters into it, and I believe that we people in the cities, who after all are the big users of milk, should be given some consideration.

When Dr. Alexander took office in the city of Pittsburgh, there was a considerable number of deaths due to the use of raw milk. Dr. Alexander was one of the first to insist on the pasteurization of milk with the result that complaints of illness of infants were cut down to a very very small amount. Our mortality rate in the city of Pittsburgh has decreased to a minimum and I feel that we should be given some consideration.

MOTION TO POSTPONE

Mr. HOLLAND. I move, Mr. Speaker, that this bill be placed on the postponed calendar to permit these people to come and talk the matter over with the sponsors of the bill. I feel and I believe that these corrections can be made to the satisfaction of the farmers as well as the users.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the motion??

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to oppose the motion. During the 1937 session of the Legislature we had the same type of bill and at that time we had a request from the same gentleman. At that time we granted the request and after a delay of some two or three weeks, we finally came to the point where we are today. We eventually decided to vote on the bill and when we did, the majority of the House voted in favor of the bill. In view of the fact that we are now at the same place, it seems that there is not any particular reason why we should hold the bill over again and probably rehash the same information we heard in 1937, and in the end come to the point where we are going to vote on the bill at any rate.

I ask the members of the House to vote against the motion to postpone the bill, so that we can proceed to direct action on the bill itself. Mr. Speaker, I ask the Members of the House to vote "no" on the motion made by the gentleman from Allegheny.

On the question recurring,

Will the House agree to the motion?

It was not agreed to.

On the question recurring.

Shall the bill pass finally?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I regret that there seems to be some misunderstanding on the part of some members of the House, and I think probably a few words might help to clear up some of that misunderstanding.

The bill we have before us is a bill that will establish uniform regulations insofar as sanitation of milk on the farms is concerned. For probably twenty years the farmers of Pennsylvania have gradually been subjected, to more and more regulations from various types of inspectors. Some of them come as city inspectors, some of them come as inspectors of milk dealers, some of them call themselves municipal inspectors, some call themselves other types of inspectors, but in the end they always said that they were state inspectors.

In some instances farmers were subject to two different types of inspectors. The same farmer was subjected to a municipal inspector and a dealers' inspector. In each case the gentleman who came to the farm said he was a state inspector. We also have had conditions existing in certain sections where farmers were subjected to regulations because the milk was shipped into districts other than those in the immediate territory where the farms were located, so that in the end the sum total of the past twenty years has been that gradually the farmers have been subjected to more and more difficulty in the way of regulations, changes in his barns, changes in his cooling system, changes in the way he handles his milk. There is no uniformity in the handling. One inspector comes out to the farm and says, "You should have the windows on the right side of the barn." The next inspector, after the farmer proceeds to put the windows on the right side of the barn, may come out and say, "You should have the windows on the other side of the barn; you may tear these out if you want to but at any rate before you can ship milk to my plant, I am the state inspector, you will have to put the windows over here." The next inspector may come along and say "The windows should be on the south side." Then again you may have one inspector come in and say that the gutter in the rear of the stable should be here. The next inspector may come in and say, "That is all wrong," after the farmer has spent five hundred dollars in carrying out the wishes of the previous inspector. The next inspector comes along and says that he is a state inspector and makes a request entirely the reverse of the previous inspector. The inspectors have regulations whereby they have made the farmers turn around their cows. In other words the barn faces in one direction and the next inspector may come out and state that the farmer should face it in the other direction. As far as the cooling system is concerned one inspector may come in and say, "You must have this type of cooling system." Another inspector may come in and say, "You should have this type." Therefore in the end you have a multiplicity of inspection. This multiplicity of inspection is driving the farmer to a point where he doesn't know where he stands. He is not objecting to regulation, but he would like to have uniform regulations and know whether it is of one kind or another.

This bill, if it becomes a law, states that we shall have uniform inspection throughout Pennsylvania. It does not say that it shall not be the highest that we have in Pennsylvania; it does not even say it could not be higher than the highest at the present time, but it says that whatever that regulation is it shall be uniform. That is all we are asking for in this particular bill. We are asking that this situation be clarified.

There is one other point. The gentlemen seems to be worried about the health of certain cities of Pennsylvania. If I thought today as a sponsor of this bill that there would be any chance whatsoever of changing the high standards now maintained by any municipality in the state of Pennsylvania, I would be the last to sponsor such a bill, but the condition under which you milk is produced on the farm is not the most important factor insofar as the bacteria in your bottle of milk is concerned. In other words, the bacteria that you get in a bottle of milk that is delivered on your door step in the city may get there from many, many places.

I do not know just how much of the milk that is delivered in bottles in Pennsylvania is pasteurized, but I am told that the great majority of the milk that is delivered is pasteurized, and for those of you who fear for the health of the citizens in the municipality, when your milk is pasteurized, it is not pasteurized before it is milked on the farm, nor before it is cooled on the farm, nor even before it is transported to the city. It is pasteurized after it reaches your plant, and if that pasteurization is any good, and we are told it is, then there can be no bacteria carried from the farm into that bottle as it is finally delivered to your doorstep. If there is bacteria that is harmful in your bottle of milk that is delivered to your doorstep, in a bottle of pasteurized milk, that bacteria must have gotten into the milk bottle after the milk was pasteurized in the plant. Bacteria could have been put in the milk while delivered, and I believe you will find if you will check the records of your health departments where pasteurized milk is delivered to your doorstep, when you have epidemics due to milk, epidemics of typhoid or any other type that is carried through the milk, you will find there always has been some unsanitary condition after it left the pasteurizing machines. You will never hear them say that it happened on the farm. So I do not know but that in a great majority of instances you will find if there is any danger, that danger lurks in the bottles from the handling after it is pasteurized, and not on the farm.

Then again, in the case of raw milk, your raw milk is delivered to your doorstep not on the basis of the way it is produced, but it is delivered on your doorstep according to the bacterial content of that bottle of milk. If you have the proper test on the bacterial content of that milk then you will not only catch any bugs that might have come in from the farm, if you have any there, but you will also catch the bugs that get in the milk after it passes the pasteurization machines.

Therefore, I can see no reason for anyone's being afraid this will lower the standards of sanitation in regard to the milk that is delivered to your doorstep, and I am certain that the farmers of Pennsylvania are not going to object, regardless of how high the sanitary standards may be set, but they certainly will be very glad to know for once in twenty years, what those standards actually are.

I want to urge you all to vote for this bill in its present form.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I agree with most of what the gentleman from York has said, to the effect that the farmer is over-inspected, but I believe that there are some very apparent defects in this bill and it will not by any means correct the situation he desires to correct.

I would, therefore, like to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MOUL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York answer me if he thinks the state inspection is of as high a standard as municipal inspection of milk.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I do not quite understand the gentleman's question. Will he repeat it, please?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I will phrase my question differently.

Is state inspection of milk on as high a standard as the inspection of milk set up by municipalities, throughout the state in most of our cities?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, perhaps the gentleman can answer that question better than I can. The Department of Health might be able to give that information.

However, I will say this, that it wouldn't make any difference what the regulations are today, when this act becomes a law. We are asking them to set up a set of standards that are high; we are asking for a set of standards that will meet the requirements. Any regulations that might be in existence today would not necessarily have to be the ones that would continue.

You will note in this bill it says specifically that this applies only to those that are inconsistent with present regulations. If the gentlemen are correct in their statements that the state at present has no regulations or that they are inferior, then they should not fear this bill, because as long as the state puts in no new regulations that are inconsistent herewith, they would not be affected.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman point out to me just what part of the act provides for the statement he just made?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, section 18, page 2, beginning with line 9, reads as follows:

> "The provisions of this act and the regulations made thereunder shall repeal existing municipal ordinances and prevent municipalities from enacting and enforcing new ordinances,"

I repeat, "new ordinances, inconsistent with the provisions of this act."

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, if this act becomes a law, would not the standard that is set up by the state for milk inspection on a farm become enforced to the exclusion of all municipal inspection?

Mr. MOUL. Mr Speaker, in case the municipality would set up regulations contrary to the standards to be set up, it would. If, however, the municipality wanted to enforce the regulations that would then be in existence under the new act or the act as amended, then they could go on enforcing those regulations just the same as they would today.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York state just what standards are to be set up by the state under this act?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, in any act that we pass we never attempt to set up in detail the way a Department is supposed to handle it. We take for granted that the Department of Health in this instance, would have competent men to take care of this work, and I am sure that the gentleman would not want to say at this time that the Department of Health does not employ men who are competent to handle such problems.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York state whether or not he has any assurance the specific department which would handle this inspection would set up standards as high as those which exist in the municipalities.

Mr. MOUL. No, Mr. Speaker, I certainly do not. That is up to the regulating body.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, then will the gentleman from York state whether he has any assurance that the high standards as set up by the municipal authorities will be maintained?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from the other side of the House should be able to convince the Department of Health along any lines that he might wish, and he certainly would be in better shape than any of the members on this side of the House.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, may I make a statement at this time?

The SPEAKER. Has the gentleman from Blair finished his interrogation?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I may wish to interrogate the gentleman later.

The SPEAKER. Has the gentleman from Blair finished with his interrogation for the moment?

Mr. AUKER. For the moment, Mr. Speaker, I have.

The SPEAKER. The chair recognizes the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, in my experience as a member of this house, which has been comparatively brief, I find it is really hard to change the minds of any of the Departments of this state unless you pass a law to make them change it. That is why I am so much concerned about this bill. I am very much afraid if this bill goes through that state inspection, which we all know is not as high as the highest standards of municipal inspection set up for the protection of the children and the people who live in those municipalities, will be the ones that will be enforced and the high inspection that is now set up by the municipalities will be thrown to the four winds, and all the work that has been done during the past years by various municipalities throughout the State in order to set up these standards of milk inspection, which have been promulgated in order to protect the health of their inhabitants and the children in these municipalities, will be thrown to the four winds and will have gone for nought.

Mr. Speaker, I would ask again to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MOUL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I shall, with one provision, that is that I would like to interrogate the gentleman first. I have but two questions that I would like to ask him.

Mr. SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AUKER. I will yield myself to interrogation, after I interrogate the gentleman, if I may.

Mr. MOUL. All right, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from York whether or not there is anything in this bill that would prevent the inspection that is now enforced by the distributors of milk in the municipalities?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I see nothing in the bill that would do so.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York answer me whether or not the inspection that is set up by distributors is not one of the most arbitrary inspections of all three bodies of inspectors that are inspecting farmers?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, did I understand the gentleman in the first question to speak of distributors? I understood the gentleman to be speaking on the distribution of milk.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, on milk dealers.

Mr. MOUL. Then the second question seems to be a different one.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I will repeat my question: Is not the inspection set up by the distributors of milk in the various municipalities in the state one of the most rigid, and one of the most arbitrary inspections of the different inspections as set up by the state and the municipal authorities and the milk distributors?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I still do not know exactly what the gentleman means. If he means the inspection in so far as the farmer is concerned, I would say, yes. If that is what he means I will say that this bill will very definitely eliminate that and will cause it to be uniform. If on the other hand the gentleman's question pertains to the distribution from the time it leaves the plant until it gets to the doorstep then my answer is, No this bill will not affect that. I would like further to add, if the gentleman is insinuating he would like to regulate the distributor, he can go beyond this bill as far as I am concerned. This bill does not regulate it, but if he wants to do so I have no particular objection.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York admit that milk inspection on farms as set up by milk distributors is arbitrary in many instances?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, yes, that is what I said. I hoped I had made that plain.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York admit that this bill will not correct that particular situation?

Mr. MOUL. No, Mr. Speaker, I maintain that this bill will correct that particular situation.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York point out to the Members of the House just how this bill will correct this particular situation?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, as I stated on two occasions before, it provides for uniform inspection, one inspection that will apply to farmers in the Pittsburgh area and one for those in Philadelphia, York, Lackawanna, Luzerne, and all of the other sixty-seven counties of the state.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman has still not answered my question. May I ask him if he would point out where in the bill it abolishes the inspection of farms by milk distributors?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I cannot answer the gentleman in any plainer language.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman point out just in what part of the bill that is corrected?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Blair please state his question again?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman point out just in what section of the bill it repeals or prohibits the inspection of farms by milk distributors?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, it does so in that it provides for uniform regulation, and if we have uniform regulation for all inspectors, regardless of whether they be dealer inspectors, or municipal inspectors, city inspectors, state inspectors or any other inspectors, they will use the sheet that shows what the uniform regulation will be. I cannot explain it any more plainly than that. They will all use the same regulation; it will be set forth as to what they will do, and if they follow that sheet it does not matter whether it is a dealer's inspection or what it is, he will have to follow the sheet.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from York state whether or not this will prohibit milk distributors from inspecting farms from which they now purchase milk and set up arbitrary standards so that they could refuse to buy milk from those farms?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, absolutely, that is exactly what we are trying to do in this bill. The answer is absolutely, yes.

Mr. AUKER. That is all, Mr. Speaker, of my interrogation. If the gentleman wishes to interrogate me I shall be glad to be interrogated at this time.

The SPEAKER. Does the gentleman from York desire to interrogate the gentleman from Blair at this time?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I was going to but I do not want to burden the House with any long discussion on insignificant questions, but did I understand the gentleman to say that there were no regulations in the Department of Health at the present time?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, no, I did not say that. I know that there are regulations at the present time in the Department of Health requiring inspection of milk and produce of farms.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, I thought that the gentleman said a while ago they were in such a shape that they were terrible, they were not doing anything about it, and if that be the case they probably would not make any new regulations, and then this bill would not apply because they would not be doing anything inconsistent therewith.

The second question I would like to ask the gentleman from Blair is this: does the gentleman believe in relieving the farmers from this terrible burden of multiplicity of inspection?

Mr. AUKER. I do, Mr. Speaker, and I also believe in protecting the health and the high standards of inspection as pertaining to milk distribution in our cities.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, would the gentleman care to tell this House how in any other way it might be possible to relieve the farmers of that terrific burden?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I believe there is a middle ground that can be reached in this particular problem. I believe that if the motion of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, had prevailed, that would have given a chance for the state authorities and the city authorities to sit around a table and talk over the situation and arrive at a bill that would be all-encompassing and not be a hodge podge, which I believe this bill will be.

Mr. Speaker, I have sought by this interrogation to point out what I believe to be some very glaring inconsistencies in the bill, that it will not correct the situation that it is designed to correct, that it will just simply be more or less of a makeshift and will not protect the farmers from some very arbitrary inspections which they now suffer at the hands of some very arbitrary dealers. I will grant that not all dealers are arbitrary. I know that not all municipal authorities are arbitrary. There are some very bad faults on both sides. I believe that an opportunity by all means, ought to be given to the municipal authorities to be heard on this bill, to see it some method can not be arrived at that will correct the situation in its entirety, so that it will be satisfactory to the farmers, the state and the municipal authorities. I have no recourse under this bill, and I imagine that most of my leagues who are from the cities, if they see it as I do, they will have no recourse but to vote against this bill to protect the high milk standard of inspection that now exists in the various cities and municipalities of the state.

I, therefore, ask the members of the House to vote against this bill.

Mr. WOODRING. Mr. Speaker, I will not tire the Members of the House with a long discourse. However, I rise in support of this Bill. I think we have spoken too much already about it. I do want to state that I am in full accord with what my co-sponsor has stated, that the farmers of the state of Pennsylvania need relief and they need it now. They have needed it for some years.

Every time this question comes before this House it is kicked around, and the farmers do not get the relief which is their due. I know from personal experience and observation that countless farmers all over the state of Pennsylvania have had to do just exactly what Mr. Moul has suggested, they have had to build and rebuild, they have had to repair and re-repair their milk sheds, under the guise of standards.

The dealer inspector comes in and lays down one set of specifications, and the farmer accedes to his suggestion and rebuilds. Then a municipal inspector comes along and has another set of standards, and the farmer rebuilds again. So on, Mr. Speaker, until the poor farmer doesn't know where he stands or what the standards are.

This bill is simply an attempt by the House of Representatives of this Commonwealth to standardize those regulations. If, as has been suggested, a hearing is desired there will be ample time afforded to those people wanting a hearing after the bill has passed our House and before the Senate finally passes upon it. The only opposition that has come to my ears on this proposed bill is that of the municipalities, and in that respect I would like to point out that it is not real opposition but it is the mere statement of a suspicion. The municipalities throughout the state feel that perhaps they are going to be deprived of some opportunity to inspect their milk and exact the health standards that they desire.

In that connection I would like to refer the Members of the House, and call their attention to the original act which this bill 481 proposes to amend. The act of 1935 P. L. 589. Section five reads as follows:—mind, this section is not amended or repealed, but it reads as follows:

> "The secretary" meaning the Secretary of Health "may constitute as his agent for the purpose of issuing permits for the sale of milk or milk products, the Department of Health, Board of Health, or Health Officer of any municipality."

In other words the municipalities under the proposed change will still have all the rights of inspection which they have had in past years, ever since the act of 1935 was enacted.

The only thing this proposed bill will do is that it will standardize the regulations for milk production on the farm, so that the farmer will not have to be hard put as they have been in the past.

I urge the support of all of the Members of the House for this bill. I especially ask the rural members to support it because it is necessary to help the farmers. I urge the support of the urban Members of the House as well, because I think it is a necessary enactment for the continued flow of a most vital commodity for the health and the welfare of all our people.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Blair permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. AUKER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, for my information, I would like to know whether or not the gentleman from Blair knows whether there is any regulation regarding sanitation set up by the Health Department of the State?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I think I answered the gentleman from York on the same question, that there are standards set up by the Health Department of the State, but I feel confident and I feel sure that they are not as high, nor do we have any assurance under this bill that they will be as high, as the standards set up by the municipalities at present enforced in the various municipalities throughout the State. If we could have some assurance, if we could have some hope that the state would bring their standards of milk inspection up to the standard now maintained by the municipal authorities, I would withdraw all of my opposition to this bill, but until that is assured I certainly will oppose it.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman from Blair, when he says he thinks that there are regulations in the State, whether or not he knows of any specific regulations set up by our Health Department.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I cannot now name specific regulations, in answer to the gentleman's question. I cannot name specific regulations that are set up by the state, but I do know that they are not as high as the standards set up by the municipalities.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, if the gentleman says he does not know anything regarding the state regulations, and yet knows that they are not as high as the regulations set up in municipalities, how did he arrive at such a conclusion?

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, my information was given to me by my own municipal authorities in Altoona, who have a very high standard and they should know as they are experts.

Mr. Speaker, I would like to interrogate the gentleman from Beaver, Mr. Nagel.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Beaver permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. NAGEL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman from Beaver tell me what are some of the specific regulations that are now set up by the state for the inspection of milk?

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I did not ask the question. I do not know. I asked for information.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I was just wondering if there are any.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I want to say to the Members of this House that this is one of the most important pieces of legislation touching our rural districts. It is a matter, a serious matter, that our milk producers have been begging for relief from this terrible grievance. We have had occasions out among these producers, where a man may have his milk house in a certain place, and the state inspector will come along and tell him, "You will have to build a new one." He complies with that request, and within six months or a year another inspector comes along from a distributor and tells him he must move it to another spot, and in certain cases have required him to pump water to this milk house where before he had running water; and perhaps move it a third time. This is exasperating when we know that they are not even receiving the cost of producing their milk, as testified to in one of the hearings in Pittsburgh by an expert. We know that this condition cannot prevail long.

I believe that those who oppose this bill are sincere in their efforts. They have my sympathy, but I believe they are deluded. I believe they are deceived by certain inimical interests that are working to promote their own selfish ends, and as far as waiting or as far as postponing action on this bill confronting this House, I think every member of the House is familiar with the fact that if and when this bill is passed by this House, it still does not become a law, as it must be referred to the other legislative body in this Assembly, and there receive action. If there is anything drastically wrong with the bill, why not take it up with the Senate and have it corrected there?

I want to say to our Members on this side of the House that when you go back to campaign or run for office, how can go out to your rural districts and ask them for a vote to return you to this House when you have voted against the bill? The same thing applies here on the other side of the House; many of you represent rural districts and farmers that are crying and shedding tears, and are accumulating mortgages on their farms just because of this great burden that most selfishly has been placed upon them. Consider that, Members, consider the people at home; let us give them a square deal. I am fair on this. I am not partisan on it. I have all confidence that if this bill becomes a law the administration in power that has appointed the personnel of our Health Department have appointed such persons as are competent and able to set up high standards in milk sanitation. There is no reason why you should oppose it. It is not a danger, but it is a benefit to the great industry in this Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I ask every Member of the House to support this bill.

Mr. HOLLAND. Mr. Speaker, I believe that the question of overlapping inspection is one that we all agree on. I do not believe there is a Member of this House, whether he be from the city or from the rural districts that does not agree that this should be corrected. All we ask to do is to sit around a round table and prepare a bill that we know will work. This bill as it now stands, I admit, takes care of the farmers. We do not know how the health regulations will be made because we are not legislating, all we are doing is passing a bill, and I might say passing the buck to an administrative bureau to make rules and regulations.

I want to point out on page 2, section 18, lines 16 to 23 of the bill. By the deletion of lines 16 to line 23 you take away from every municipality the right to even issue permits to a milk dealer. You place it all on the state. There is no selfish interest in this. I am assured, and I know from experience, that the Director of Health of the city of Pittsburgh is not interested in any milk company. What he is interested in is protecting the health of the people of the city of Pittsburgh. We all know that before the municipalities passed the so-called drastic laws we had epidemics of dysentery, fever, summer complaints and colic. In our city that took great toll. If the people of the rural districts and the people of the city districts would only take time enough out to sit down, I know we would get a bill that every Member of this House could vote for. That is all I think these people want, who after all, are making their living by selling milk to the people in the city. The health of the people of Pennsylvania comes first and profits come second.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, we are hearing the same argument we have heard every time one of these bills comes before the House. Every time we ask for uniform inspection somebody asks for delay. For twenty years the farmers have waited hoping that sometime the delay would cease and they would have an opportunity. Nobody today has asked us to delay it for any reason that has not been thrashed out previously at some previous session of the legislature.

The gentleman from Blair has been using the arguments that there should be delay; we shall just wait a little while. He says he does not know how it will come out, but if we would just sit down and wait, finally somebody will get an idea which will be better than this one, but we have waited for twenty years and at the moment this seems the best that we have.

Members of the House, it is a question of whether we want to do something for the farmer or whether we do not. Gentlemen on both sides of the House, we have come to the point where we must decide whether or not we are going to do the best for the farmer we know how at this particular moment. If we get smarter in the future, then I for one will be glad to vote for a bill that will do the job better, but this at the moment is the best, after twenty years of discussion, that we can arrive at. So I appeal to you if you want to do something for the farmer on this question, now is the time to do it.

Mr. ELY. Mr. Speaker, I speak on this question from the standpoint of a producer of milk over a period of twenty-three years. I agree with the gentleman from York as to the disadvantages of multiple inspection. The farmers for many years in our section have been under the inspection of New York city, New York state, and many of them New Jersey. I know fully the disadvantages of multiple inspection. But there is a point in this bill which has not been brought out in all the discussion which we have already had and which more than outweighs the advantages.

At the present time when a dealer in any market is at variance with his producer in regard to price he cannot go outside his own area and bring in milk because it is not inspected for that particular market. If this bill were to be passed he could go anywhere in the state and bring any milk into that market, break down the market and defeat his producer from securing a better price. Not only that, but it would open up a flow of out-of-state milk. At the present time there are farms as far away as Wisconsin bringing cream into Pennsylvania from those farms. If this bill is passed I can see no reason why milk should not be brought in from as far away as Wisconsin to break down any market in Pennsylvania where the dealer was at variance with his producer with regard to price. While I realize the advantages of this bill, the disadvantages to my mind far outweigh the advantages and I am compelled to vote "no" on this measure.

In my own particular locality it would not affect the farmers, it would not save them from multiple inspection, on account of the milk going into New York city where they would still be under the inspection of New York city, New York state, and in many cases New Jersey.

Members of the House, before we pass this bill let us consider these things very carefully. The disadvantages far outweigh the advantages of having uniform inspection.

Mr. GYGER. Mr. Speaker, as a Member actually engaged in the production of milk it has been brought out that the cities would probably not receive good milk. There are no people more interested in furnishing the cities with good milk than the producers themselves, because after all unless you have a satisfied buyer of milk you do not have a good market. I am sure the farmers are just as anxious to sell good milk to the cities as the cities are to receive it.

As far as this inspection is concerned I know of farmers who have had five different inspectors in one day, each with a different idea. The farmers do not object to inspection, and we do not object even if it is high, but we want it uniform so that when one inspector comes on the farm the things we do we want to know are right: we do not want to be told one thing one day and the next day told to do something else. The thing the farmer wants more than anything else is that he will know when he repairs things or builds things they will stay right, at least for twenty-four hours.

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, there has been a lot of intelligent debate on this bill, and a lot of interrogations, but there is one question that has not been answered, about which I have some concern. That is whether the dirty farmer of the House will be prevented from milking his cow on this bill.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would say that this vote will not preclude the "dirty farmer" from milking his cow, nor will it relieve him of multiple inspection, nor from placing the windows in his barn on the south, west, east or north, nor from moving his milkhouse from one part of the farm to another, for the simple reason that the gentleman from Delaware has no barn, and no cows.

I would like to interrogate the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from York permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MOUL. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker I am in hearty sympathy with my fellow farmers who find difficulty with multiplicity of inspection, but I find there is a tremendous multiplicity of inspection in all the Departments of state.

I would like to ask the gentleman from York, would it not be possible to set up uniform inspection insofar as the farmers are concerned and at the same time leave to the municipalities the opportunity, or the right to set standards so far as their milk is concerned?

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, will the gentleman please explain to me what he means by "standards"? Perhaps the answer to the question will depend upon what he says he means by "standards."

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would presume there are two questions as to standards. One would be the standard pertaining to bacteria, or as to the cleanliness of the product as delivered; the other one would be as to the content of butter fat.

Mr. MOUL. Mr. Speaker, we hope that under this setup nobody would attempt to lower any standards as far as cleanliness is concerned, and I for one, as I stated before, would be only too glad to vote for any bill, regardless of what it might be, if I were convinced that it is going to stop multiplicity of inspections in Pennsylvania. That is my one interest, and I know in saying that I speak for a great many more Members of the House who have the same problem before them. I certainly would be willing to vote for any such bill, but I have been a Member of this House, this is my third term, and I have never seen any other attempt except in this way to solve that particular problem. I think in view of that fact and in fairness to the farmers of Pennsylvania what we should do here today is to vote in favor of this bill, and then if within the next day or the next week or two weeks, before the bill is passed by the Senate and signed by the Governor, somebody can sell us the idea that they have something that we want. I think I can speak for the members that come from the sections that have farmers who are interested, I think I would be willing to substitute something else that will do the job.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think the difficult position that many of us find ourselves in is that while we agree heartily on the question of multiplicity of inspection, and believe that the farmer should be relieved of that as far as possible to do so, yet on the other hand we are asked to vote for a bill which as I understand the interrogations would prohibit the municipalities from setting up their standards.

That raises a question in the minds of many of us, especially in my own county, where we have a large number of small municipalities, townships and boroughs, who have their own inspection, and who have their own licensing provisions. In the past when this measure was before the legislature we always received from our different municipalities a large number of protests against the passage of the act. They have explained to us the necessity for that sort of an inspection, and rather than vote on a measure which would prohibit them from having such inspection, no matter what my feelings may be towards the farmers as to the necessity of relieving them from this difficulty, I am compelled to vote "no" on this measure, because I know that in these municipalities in Delaware County they protest against the breaking down of the provisions they have now under the law of setting standards to determine the kind of milk they will have in their own communities.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I am rather surprised that the other side of this House should have such little faith in their own Department as to believe that the standards they would set would be so inferior to the standards now existing and created by the municipalities. I am rather surprised that they have no confidence that a Republican administration would not jeopardize the health of the citizens by letting down the bars.

In other words, the opposition, if we are to believe it, is based solely on a lack of confidence in their own Department. However, I might say that I have grave doubts that that is the reason that has actuated all of their opposition at the present time.

Let me read to the members of the House the reason why I doubt that opposition or the sincerity of it. I am reading now from the history of the House Bills of 1939. Listen to it.

> "An act to amend section 18 of the act approved the second day of July, nineteen hundred and thirty-five (P. L. 589), entitled 'Milk and Sanitation Law,' requiring local ordinances in certain cases to conform to this act and the regulations made thereunder."

This bill was introduced by whom? By the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Auker, and also the gentleman from Blair, Mr. Jones. But when the same bill and the same act is introduced a few years later, these gentlemen are opposing it. Is there sincerity in that opposition, or is he opposed to it because he did not introduce this particular bill?

I submit to the Members of the House that the farmers of Pennsylvania certainly have a right to ask the Members of this House to sincerely oppose measures, rather than for facetious reasons or reasons of a personal nature, that is, because they do not receive the credit or the benefit. I am saying that that opposition should be voiced for substantial reasons, and not purely for the purpose of opposition. It is for those reasons, plus the fact that the farmers have been crying for this thing for years, that the membership of this House should support the measure and support it regardless of whether they are Republicans or Democrats. Vote your convictions here, which you know will be sustained and upheld by the farmers, and incidentally not destroy the high standard now existing in Pennsylvania.

Mr. HUNTLEY. Mr. Speaker, I did not realize that this was a partisan bill and I did not expect to speak on it, but since the partisan nature has been brought up I think it is time that I should ask the Members of the House to lay partisanship aside and discuss the bill on its merits.

I come from a county that is not an agricultural county, although we have a number of people in it that make a living on little mountain farms. They are in a good position to make their living with a few cows. Many of them have undertaken it but on account of this multiplicity of inspection which has cost them more than the profit they could possibly get out of having a few cows, they have virtually all gone out of business, and the big milk dealers get the most of their milk from out of the county as a result.

I feel this way about this bill. I would like to vote on both sides. I believe there are merits on both sides, but my experience is this, that the big boys think the farmers, especially the little farmers, are a bunch of clodhoppers because they do not have the money to carry it through, and it is always a case of putting off, putting off and putting off. We have learned on both sides of the house that this question has been agitated for the past 20 years so that it is about time for the farmer and for everybody who is a friend of the farmer, to come to the farmer's support and show the farmers they mean business. After the big boy gets everything out of what he calls clodhoppers he can get, it is time for us to show these big boys we now mean business and do something to solve the problem rightly. Therefore, for that reason I am going to vote for this bill.

Mr. AUKER. Mr. Speaker, I do not wish to prolong this argument but since the gentleman from Monroe, Mr. Achterman has seen fit to raise more or less a personal issue I feel I should answer him.

It is true that we did introduce more or less the same kind of a bill in 1930, but I will remind the gentleman from Monroe that that bill was called back on second reading, and never came up for further consideration in the House. There was nothing further said. The bill was introduced in 1939 to correct the very thing we are here trying to correct here, to wit, this multiplicity of inspection of farmers. When we found we could not get the various parties together and when we found there was no guarantee that the state would set up as high a standard for milk as was set up by the municipalities we did not push the bill. That is the reason why the bill did not come back, but not for any such petty motive as the majority floor leader has seen fit to inject into this discussion.

On the question recurring,

Shall the bill pass finally?

Agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution the yeas and nays were taken.

Messrs. BAKER, POLEN and FLEMING asked for a verification of the roll.

The majority required by the Constitution having voted in the affirmative, the question was determined in the affirmative.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, there are about fourteen thousand men of Pennsylvania in camp at Indiantown Gap, and they are mainly young men,—The National Guard of Pennsylvania. There are no recreational facilities at Indiantown Gap, although I understand that General Martin has asked for an appropriation to build an auditorium.

On Saturday afternoons and Sundays it is my understanding most of these young men will have an opportunity either to go home or to have some time off for recreation. Therefore, a great number of these men are coming into Harrisburg, Lebanon and possibly Reading and other small nearby towns. This is going to present a great problem. I have no doubt that when the Council of Defense is organized this will be taken care of by it as one of its functions, but until that time, which may be sixty days before they are appointed and under way and in a position to do something, a number of weekends will pass, which will not only present a problem to the heads of our National Guard but also for the communities involved. We all know that in parts of the United States where there are cantonments the influx of large numbers of troops has sometimes almost paralyzed the moving picture and other recreational agencies in the town. Last Sunday I saw in Harrisburg a great number of these young men walking down the streets. A great many of these young men from the nearby towns will get home on those weekends. On the other hand it still leaves a large number of young men remaining in camp over the weekends, which will present a problem to the communities and the cantonments to see that they have proper entertainment and recreation.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker I am going to ask unaminous consent for immediate consideration of the resolution which I want to present, asking the Governor to appoint a Committee of five to undertake this problem and to cooperate with the citizens of the local communities in order that these young men may be properly taken care of. I have a particular interest in this as one of my boys is out there at Indiantown Gap and when he comes into Harrisburg, as I expect he will, I want to know that he has a proper opportunity and facilities for recreation within the community.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 47

Mr. TURNER offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was twice read, as follows:

In the House of Representatives, March 4, 1941.

Whereas, the Pennsylvania National Guard has been called into the service of this country and 14,000 men are now stationed at Indiantown Gap; and,

Whereas, there are no facilities for entertainment and recreation for these young Pennsylvanians, a large part of whom will have leave each Saturday afternoon and Sunday; and,

Whereas, many of them will be unable to go to their homes and will, therefore, seek entertainment and recreation in the nearby towns, such as Harrisburg, Lebanon and Reading; and,

Whereas, there is no existing agency to take care of this large influx of men; therefore, be it

Resolved, if the Senate concur, that a Committee of five citizens, at least two of whom shall be women, be appointed by the Governor immediately upon the passage of this Resolution to organize the religious and social agencies of the communities and to foster entertainment and recreational activities in conjunction with the citizens of the several communities; and be it

Further Resolved, that a Bill providing for an appropriation of $10,000 be immediately introduced and passed as rapidly as possible. The said Committee's work shall terminate when the State Council of Defense has been organized and is functioning so that it can take over these activities

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, would it be possible for me to ask the Clerk to read the resolution again, especially the latter part of it? I understand it is not on the desk and it was hard to catch it when it was read the first time.

The SPEAKER. The Chair will request the Clerk to again read the resolution at length.

The resolution was read by the Clerk.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I am concerned with the latter part of the resolution, and I am asking about the wording of the last "resolve" clause. I will read it for the information of the Members of the House:

> "Resolved that a bill providing for an appropriation of ten thousand dollars be immediately introduced and passed as rapidly as possible."

I take it that when we vote for this resolution it commits us to vote for this appropriation, is that correct, that is, we are morally bound to vote for the appropriation?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I would think that would be true.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, may I ask whether the gentleman from Delaware has made any investigation to find out whether ten thousand dollars is too much or too little?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I think the urgency of the occasion did not warrant taking up the time for an investigation to determine the costs. I presume that if such a commission is organized and it would proceed with its business, it could very readily come back in a week, or ten days, or two weeks and say they want more money than is contained in this appropriation. The urgency of the matter, it seems to me, precludes any question being raised as to the amount.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, notwithstanding what may be true about the urgency, does the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, not feel that it would be better procedure to delete from this resolution part of the last resolve clause insofar as it has to be with the appropriation of $10,000, and so far as it binds us to pass as rapidly as possible a bill which is not before us?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to deleting it because I intend as soon as I can today, to have a bill prepared and I expect to introduce it. I, however, have the greatest respect for the opinion of the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Brown, and his desire to see that we proceed in a proper manner, but I rather feel we are muddling over fine points on something that does not require such muddling.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, the question I proposed to ask was would it in any way interfere?

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, not one whit and I am perfectly willing, if the gentleman from Allegheny in his wisdom feels it should be deleted, that it shall be deleted from the resolution.

PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, the gentleman from Delaware having answered the inquiry to the effect that it might be proper to delete two lines from this resolution which has just been presented, could that be taken care of by a motion on the floor of the house or must there be an amendment in writing?

The SPEAKER. In answer to the gentleman's question of parliamentary inquiry the Chair advises that the Rules require amendments to be in writing. However if the House gives its unanimous consent the lines can be deleted without offering the amendment in writing. The procedure would be for the gentleman to ask the unanimous consent of the House to amend the resolution.

Mr. BROWN. Mr. Speaker, I ask the unanimous consent of the House to amend the resolution now before us by striking out in the last Resolve" clause, the words

> "a bill providing for an appropriation of $10,000 be immediately introduced and passed as rapidly as possible."

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to the consideration of the amendment? Is there objection? The Chair hears none and consent is granted.

On the question,

Will the House agree to the amendment?

It was agreed to.

On the question recurring,

Will the House adopt the resolution as amended?

It was adopted.

Ordered. That the Clark present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

CONDOLENCE RESOLUTION

Mr. RUSH offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, March 4, 1941.

Pennsylvania mourns the passing of one of her beloved citizens, Judge John M. Broomall, III.

Judge John M. Broomall died Saturday, March 1st, in Philadelphia at the age of sixty-two.

He was born in Media, Delaware County, and was the third of his family to become a Delaware County judge.

Judge Broomall was appointed to the Bench by Governor Pinchot in 1926, and he distinguished himself as an outstanding jurist of this Commonwealth from that time up until the moment of his passing.

During the Spanish-American War, Judge Broomall served with Company C, Pennsylvania Volunteers, and was preeminent for his courage and perseverance.

The loss of Judge Broomall is keenly felt by the people of his judicial district which he served so long and ably, and by the people of the State as a whole; therefore, be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives, by the adoption of this resolution, expresses their sorrow at the loss of Judge Broomall; and be it further

Resolved, That this resolution be spread on the records of the House, and a copy be sent to the family of the deceased as a fitting testimonial of the great regard in which Judge Broomall was held by his fellow-Pennsylvanians.

RESOLUTION

CONGRATULATIONS

Messrs. TARR and WILLIAMS offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, March 4, 1941.

Whereas, This day marks the eighth anniversary of the induction into office of our beloved President, Franklin Delano Roosevelt; and

Whereas, Since that eventful day of March 4th, 1933, the many accomplishments of that truly great man have resulted in leading this great nation out of a long period of misery and want, back to security and happiness; and

Whereas, Since that eventful day, the overwhelming confidence of the American people in him has been twice more recorded by American history; and

Whereas, It is fitting that here in Harrisburg, we the chosen representatives of the citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, should do honor to that truly great American by noting that day which has taken its place among those that history will mark and perpetuate; therefore be it

Resolved, That the Members of the House of Representatives of the Commonwealth send greetings and hearty congratulations to His Excellency, the President of the United States on the occasion of the eighth anniversary of his induction into that high office, and wish him the happiness and contentment which belongs to those who are successfully performing great tasks and solving difficult problems; and be it further

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be forwarded as a token of the admiration and respect to the President at the White House.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. McFALL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, The city of today is a place of great contrast, of great wealth, very often wealth that is not created by honest effort or toil. It is also a place of direct poverty. It has on the one hand kindness and goodness that is unexcelled. On the other hand it has sin and degradation of the lowest order, church spires that tower towards heaven, slums and foul places. That the fumes of Hell would be sweet in comparison.

The modern city of today could be a place where men and women might find happy living and that happiness could be made possible by a fine and noble social life. But, I am afraid, very often the reverse is only too true.

We, of the rural sections, like to visit our large cities and enjoy with our urban neighbors music, art, science, literature, and all things that make for a higher social order and a more humane civilization. We even like to go up to the cities to see the national games of baseball and see the Phillies and the Pittsburgh Pirates.

But, one cannot help but be shocked to read almost weekly in the leading metropolitan newspapers of gigantic rackets played upon an innocent public and upon innocent investors by city slickers, underworld crooks and just plain racketeers. The ink is hardly dry on the Boltz 2½ million steal and the 1 million dollar gigantic twelve state lottery with fleeing racketeers from two of our largest cities, when there breaks in glaring headlines the news of a one million dollar bad egg racket that disclosed the fact that rotten eggs are being sold not only in Philadelphia but perhaps all over the state as a product of canned eggs, these canned eggs are sold to bakeries as fresh canned eggs and thus the innocent public made a victim by profiteers and racketeers and a victim endangered health and wellbeing. Think of the rotten eggs that nature only intended to be thrown at bad actors and politicians baked into cakes and cookies.

Think of the millions of incubator decayed eggs sold by these fiends in human form baked into 101 products that a chemical analysis cannot detect, not even by smell after it is once baked into a cake.

And the worst of this rotten racket is that the poorer the people are the more of this cheap baked product is bought for it resolves itself in a pure economic phase of merchandising—cheap ingredients, cheap product.

Why it is that this racket that endangers the health of the people breaks after two years of the present administration when so much had been promised for the general welfare and wellbeing of all the citizens of this Commonwealth? Why was there an apparent leak before the raids were made allowing certain preferred groups to destroy all evidence? Why did Dr. Yunker, of Philadelphia, Chief of the City Department of Health's Division of Milk, Livestock and Food Inspection say quote "There is no law under which the City can prosecute the more serious aspects of this racket."

Since the pure food and drug act became a law, I have been rather proud of this achievement, that prevented a class of crooks from poisoning decent, respectable people for profit. Has it come to this pass that we must have an act governing every item of food we humans consume? I think not.

We most certainly have laws under which these wolves in egg shells can be prosecuted and punished by imprisonment to the full extent of the law, or else our great state of Pennsylvania is one that stands alone in this great collection of states, not to be pitied but to be shamed beyond degree.

Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, as long as we, as Legislators have a voice we should raise that voice in protest against injury to health and the wellbeing of the great mass of people of our state.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. WILKINSON from the Committee on Counties reported as amended House Resolution No. 43.

HOUSE RESOLUTION No. 43

Mr. WILKINSON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up House Resolution No. 43, which was just reported from Committee.

The resolution was read by the Clerk as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, Under existing law, the county treasurers of the various counties will be required to hold tax sales of returned seated lands before the first Monday of May, 1941; and

Whereas, It appears that sufficient time may not remain to enact suitable legislation before said date fixed for such tax sales, to authorize adjournment or further adjournment; therefore be it

Resolved (If the Senate concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes the county treasurers of the various counties of this Commonwealth, if the county commissioners and the court of common pleas of such counties consent therto, to adjourn or further adjourn any tax sale and advertising of said sale which under existing law is required to be held prior to the first Monday of May 1941 and the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation to validate any such adjournment of a tax sale and advertising of said sale and to provide by law for the holding of such adjourned tax sales at a future date, saving the lien of all taxes assessed against real estate which was to be sold at such sales.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the county treasurer of each county of this Commonwealth by the Clerk of the House.

On the question,

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the Senate for concurrence.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of information.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, it has been customary in the House in previous years, when the Legislature is in session, to celebrate St. Patrick's Day. This has been handled by the so-called "Friendly Sons of St. Patrick." May I ask, Mr. Speaker, what action has been taken on that this year, or this session?

The SPEAKER. The Chair would suggest that the gentleman prepare a resolution for a suitable celebration.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, but in bringing this question up I was not looking for a job, although I will bring in the resolution.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, March 5, 1941.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock a. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS, offered the following prayer:

"Pray without ceasing" is the great admonition which came from the pen and heart of the second greatest missionary who ever lived, Our Father, and we are truly thankful for these moments of prayer in this legislative hall. We are gratified that our forefathers likewise went to Thee in prayer. They sought Thy will. They believed implicitly in Thy grace. They were comforted and strengthened through it. So would we be this day.

Do Thou ever remind us of our need of loyalty to Thee and grant us the answer to our prayers, not according to our desires for they may be amiss, but according to our needs. Thou knowest best.

Guide our minds and hearts this day for we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities and powers, against the rulers of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. To win in this conquest we need Thy help always.

Hear our prayers for Thy name's sake. Amen.

RESOLUTION URGING ORGANIZATION OF RECREATIONAL FACILITIES AT INDIANTOWN GAP

He also presented an extract from the Journal of the House of Representatives, which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the House of Representatives, March 4, 1941.

Whereas, The Pennsylvania National Guard has been called into the service of this country and 14,000 men are now stationed at Indiantown Gap, and

Whereas, There are no facilities for entertainment and recreation for these young Pennsylvanians a large part of whom will have leave each Saturday afternoon and Sunday, and

Whereas, Many of them will be unable to go to their homes and will therefore seek entertainment and recreation in the nearby towns such as Harrisburg, Lebanon and Reading, and

Whereas, There is no existing agency to take care of this large influx of men, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That a Committee of five citizens at least two of whom shall be women be appointed by the Governor immediately upon the passage of this Resolution to organize the religious and social agencies of the communities and to foster entertainment and recreational activities in conjunction with the citizens of the several communities, and be it

Further Resolved, That the said Committee's work shall terminate when the State Council of Defense has been organized and is functioning so that it can take over these activities

SUSPENSION OF RULE 39

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection,

The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution,

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, because of the importance of the subject matter of this resolution I ask unanimous consent to its immediate consideration and adoption. This work which is proposed by this resolution, or the committee to be appointed, is really a part of that which would come under the consideration of the Defense Council but it will take some time for that to become operative and in action. It is of present necessity that something be done to care for these 14,000 or more boys who are at Indiantown Gap from a recreational standpoint. In Harrisburg we have no Sunday movies or things of that kind and while they are kept busy five days of the week, on Saturday and Sunday they have leave and it is considered of the greatest necessity that some Commission start to function now to cooperate with the local authorities so that provision can be made for their proper recreation and pastime.

Therefore, Mr. President, I ask immediate adoption of this resolution.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the Resolution?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

RESOLUTION AUTHORIZING ADJOURNMENT OF TAX SALES

He also presented extract from the Journal of the House, which was twice read as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas, Under existing law the county treasurers of the various counties will be required to hold tax sales of returned seated lands before the first Monday of May 1941, and

Whereas, It appears that sufficient time may not remain to enact suitable legislation before said date fixed for such tax sales to authorize adjournment or further adjournment, therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes the county treasurers of the various counties of this Commonwealth if the county commissioners and the court of common pleas of such counties consent thereto to adjourn or further adjourn any tax sale and advertising of said sale which under existing law is required to be held prior to the first Monday of May 1941 and the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation to validate any such adjournment of a tax sale and advertising of said sale and to provide by law for the holding of such adjourned tax sales at a future date saving the lien of all taxes assessed against real estate which was to be sold at such sales

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the county treasurer of each county of this Commonwealth by the Clerk of the House

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection,

The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution,

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this resolution.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I will.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, would adoption of this resolution pledge the General Assembly to pass a bill of this kind?

Mr. MILLER. I do not believe it does, Mr. President.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, what is the effect of the resolution?

Mr. MILLER. The effect of the resolution as I understand it is to forestall sales which will be scheduled for this coming May.

Mr. EDMONDS. But, Mr. President, it does not circumscribe legislative independence in the future.

Mr. MILLER. I would not say so, Mr. President.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, there seems to be some question in the minds of some of the Senators as to just what this resolution covers and I therefore suggest that the resolution be read again.

The resolution was again read by the clerk.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I would suggest to the gentleman from Montgomery that this resolution seems to put the General Assembly on record as to passing some subsequent legislation to validate this proceedure but not on record as to passage of an abatement act.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, since raising my question I have read the resolution and it seems to me the statements of the gentleman from Allegheny and of the gentleman from Luzerne are absolutely satisfactory.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the Resolution?

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the House of Representatives accordingly.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, and members of this Senate, yesterday morning I spoke to my colleagues in regards to a resolution that I offered some weeks ago. That resolution—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I rise on a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his point of order.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, the gentleman from Cambria is not speaking on a matter of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. I do not believe the gentleman has proceeded sufficiently with his remarks to determine that.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I would like to ask that the gentleman from Cambria first state his question of personal privilege before proceeding with his remarks.

Mr. HALUSKA. That will be my point, Mr. President If the gentleman from Allegheny wishes to draw the line, I realize, Mr. President, that the Chair has been very fair to every member of this body and I realize he could if he cared stop all of us on questions of personal privilege because up until this time I have failed to hear anyone of my colleagues confine himself on a question of personal privilege.

However, Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a statement.

Mr. GELTZ. I object, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Thank you.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Cambria has asked unanimous consent to make a statement, which has been objected to by the gentleman from Allegheny.

The next regular order of business will be to receive reports from Committees.

REPORTS FROM COMMITTEES

Mr. THOMAS, from the Committee on County Government reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 81, entitled:

An Act to amend section one thousand one hundred and forty-seven of the act, approved the first day of May, one thousand nine hundred and thirty-three (P. L. 103), entitled "An act concerning townships of the second class; and amending, revising, consolidating, and changing the law relating thereto", by extending the power to accept roads, streets, lanes and alleys dedicated as public highways.

Mr. BARTLETT, from the Committee on County Government, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 151, entitled:

An Act authorizing and directing county treasurers to execute deeds for unseated and seated lands sold by their predecessors in office, and validating deeds heretofore so executed.

Mr. TAYLOR, from the Committee on Municipal Government, reported as committed, Senate Bill No. 244, entitled:

An Act to amend section one of the act approved the fifteenth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-seven (P. L. 159), entitled "An act authorizing controllers of the several cities of this Commonwealth to appoint probate clerks", by providing for the appointment of additional probate clerks.

BILLS INTRODUCED

The PRESIDENT. The next order of business is the introduction of bills.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I am having prepared a couple of bills which are not yet ready for introduction at this moment, possibly they will not be ready until Monday, but I desire to preface the introduction of those bills by certain remarks which I shall make now in order not to take up the time of the Senate on Monday afternoon and evening, when there seems to be a great deal of business.

Mr. President, I would like permission to make this statement in regard to these bills at this time.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection the gentleman from Somerset will proceed.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I just want to say I will give the courtesy of the floor to the gentleman from Somerset.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I think the remarks I intend to make would come under a question of personal privilege, but personally I was in favor of allowing the gentleman from Cambria to talk all he desired.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I want to hear the remarks of the gentleman from Somerset.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, during the past fifteen years I have been a member of this Senate I have introduced very few bills and perhaps only a dozen or fifteen of them were enacted into law.

I now have a couple of bills which I believe are very important and that is the only reason why I expect to introduce them. I think in this session if we pass one-third or one-fourth as many bills as we usually do the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania will be the gainer.

I just want to say this as a sort of preface to these remarks: that the laws of economics are as inexorable as the laws of nature; we cannot change these laws by passing any acts in Congress or in our legislative halls here. Individual spending in excess of income leads eventually to bankruptcy, and governmental spending in excess of receipts must eventually lead to ruin and chaos.

We have had a state which we have been proud to say has been perfectly solvent and I regard that solvency largely due to the fact that we have had a Constitution which prevented the incurring of a great amount of debt without preliminary consent of the people.

In the last administration an effort was made by the leaders of the administration to change the Constitution to permit unlimited borrowing. The people of the Commonwealth turned down that attempt to change our Constitution, and then we had certain other devices. Here was a device of the devil's fetching, tax anticipation notes, which cost us a million or two million dollars every biennium to pay the interest on them. Then, Mr. President, another scheme was this authority scheme. We have heard a good bit of discussion here in the Senate about these local authorities; we haven't had very much discussion about the General State Authority, and that is the thing which I want to talk about just a little.

In 1935, Mr. President, this local authority act was passed and in the same year the General State Authority Act was passed. Just as in the local authority act, there was a limitation of two years. This General State Authority act was to have a limitation of two years, but when the camel once gets its head in the tent it chases the occupant out, and now the sky is the limit. In 1937 the two year limitation was taken off. This act of 1935 permits this General State Authority group of ten citizens to do almost anything, they can builds roads, they can build school-houses, they can do almost anything you can conceive of; there is no limitation upon them, if they can sell the bonds.

Now, Mr. President, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania had decided this General State Authority act was unconstitutional, and then on a re-hearing on a special set of facts which was presented to the court, the court gave a cautious permission to go ahead, but I think the General State Authority has gone beyond that cautious permission which was given by the Supreme Court.

This General State Authority scheme is simply an extra-constitutional device and it is not a very creditable way for the State of Pennsylvania to do business. Mr. President, if anyone says these bonds which are issued by the General State Authority are not debts of the Commonwealth, why that is merely a fiction, because the retirement system of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania holds all these bonds and certainly we are obligated to see they are made good.

During the last biennium, a great many buildings were constructed throughout the Commonwealth under the authority of this General State Authority group. A good many of them, perhaps, were buildings which were needed, but we should have proceeded to do this work in a constitutional way, and a good many of these buildings were not needed at the time; they were constructed hastily, and some of the most important were left unfinished, and altogether I think there was somewhere between fifty-five and sixty-five million dollars spent.

There have been some commitments recently to Byberry, Polk and Pennhurst, so that I think the amount of bonds now outstanding would be something over eighty million dollars, or about eighty million dollars.

If you will notice in the budget which the Governor presented for the next biennium, eight and one half million dollars are required to pay the rentals and to pay into the sinking fund for the retirement of these bonds. So far this program has not gone very much out of bounds, but I am afraid of what is going to happen.

Mr. President, the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, spoke the other day about taking over the mental hospitals, and I am sorry he is not here today. It seems to me his discussion on this question was merely a lame attempt to justify his action in forcing over that bill in 1938. That was a wholly unwarranted proceeding, to seize the properties of counties for the benefit principally of Philadelphia. The Byberry Hospital had developed a sort of a scandal and in order to take that over by the State they passed this act, which allowed the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to seize the properties that the counties have constructed out of their own funds. In some of those instances the county was left with a large bond issue, which they had to pay, notwithstanding the fact that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania took over the mental institutions.

The Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, stated that he had figured out it would only cost five million dollars or something of that nature to conduct these buildings for the next biennium. I would much prefer to take the figures of the budget office; I think they are more nearly correct, but that is only the start of this thing. If the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania takes over these mental hospitals, which the counties are now perfectly willing to conduct themselves, it will start an orgy of building like we had in the last administration, and Pennsylvania will become a paradise for architects and contractors, just as it was then. Why, the Lincoln Highway people are asking this General State Authority to build the Lincoln Highway with state authority funds.

The other day, a gentleman came to my office with a roll of papers which seemed to me to be drawings. He asked whom he should see in regard to having the General State Authority construct a school building somewhere. I told him, as I understood it, the General State Authority had refused up to this time to take over buildings for counties or local districts. He seemed very indignant about it, but under this act which was passed in 1935, and later amended two or three times, this General State Authority can do anything.

By virtue of the present office I have, I am a member of that authority. I may feel, perhaps, that I should go along with the majority of the group in constructing some building here or there which seems to be needed, but as a member of the legislative branch of this Commonwealth, a coordinate branch of the government, I can not look with complacence on a group of ten citizens of this Commonwealth spending our money without any control from the Legislature which must raise the funds to pay for the bonds issued.

So, Mr. President, I have two measures, I am going to introduce—one a bill to limit this State Authority to projects already undertaken, but if this Legislature does not have the courage to go the whole way back to constitutional and sound government, then I am going to have another bill, which I am introducing, to require that this General State Authority shall not undertake any project without the prior consent of two-thirds of the members of this Legislature. Thank you.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I would like to ask the gentleman from Allegheny why he objected to my question on personal privilege and at the same time gave his consent to the gentleman from Somerset County on another subject.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, for the past six weeks or so, I think we have been very lenient in making no objection to remarks made on the question of personal privilege. I think if we were to examine or analyze the so-called speeches or remarks made under the privilege of personal privilege, we would find not one in ten are really personal privilege.

Mr. President, we ran into a situation on Monday where because of that leniency it was necessary that we adjourn without acting on the Calendar. I think what should be done here is that we attend to the order of business first, and when the order of business is completed if someone is inclined to run off one way or another, that is his privilege and we will make no objection, at least I will make no objection after the business has been completed for the day.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny permit me to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, on the remarks made by him.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, that is one of the reasons why it has been necessary that we adopt parliamentary procedure, or try to, in this session, because of ridiculous statements of that kind.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, shall I assume from that answer the gentleman from Allegheny will not permit me to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair thinks the gentleman from Fayette is out of order. He knows, and every member of this Senate knows, in order to interrogate another Senator it is not necessary to go through a third Senator. If the gentleman from Fayette desires to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset I know he will be very glad to have you do so.

Does the Senator from Fayette desire to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, when the gentleman from Somerset started his remarks it was understood they were not in order but they were permitted without any objection by the gentleman from Allegheny, and I presume if I would interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, without asking unanimous consent that I too would be transgressing the right of personal privilege. Therefore, Mr. President, I wanted to make sure the gentleman from Allegheny would not rise to a point of order should I undertake to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset, and if there is no objection at this time—

The PRESIDENT. Does the gentleman from Fayette desire to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. If there is no objection, Mr. President.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I think my remarks were proper on a question of personal privilege, because as a member of the General State Authority I wanted to be protected from my colleagues and myself.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I understood the gentleman from Somerset to admit that they were remarks under a question of personal privilege and so therefore any interrogations I made would necessarily have to come under the question of personal privilege. That is why I was eager to make sure I had unanimous consent from the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, before I started to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair would like to know whether the gentleman from Fayette desires to interrogate the gentleman from Somerset?

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Yes, Mr. President, if there is no objection.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Somerset permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. EALY. Yes, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. If there is no objection, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Somerset state whether the General Authority Act that he referred to is not the same act that was once declared unconstitutional by our Supreme Court.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, there have been some amendments to the act. It is my recollection the Supreme Court has not passed on the act since the amendment, notwithstanding the general principles laid down by the Supreme Court in its decision.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, is this not the General Authority Act that was first declared unconstitutional by the Supreme Court and then, about a year afterwards, without any change taking place whatsoever in the Constitution of this State, they reheard the case and decided that the State Authority Act was Constitutional?

Mr. EALY. Well, Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Fayette is substantially correct in his statement.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Somerset state whether there would be any objection to investigating the reasons why the Supreme Court of the State of Pennsylvania first declared the act unconstitutional and then, without any change in the Constitution, one year after that, they reheard the case and decided the act was constitutional.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I have no objection to the Senator from Fayette investigating anybody he pleases. However, if the gentleman from Fayette will read the opinion of the Chief Justice in the case, the facts as presented to him at the second hearing, or as presented to the court at the second hearing, were different from the facts presented in the first hearing, and as I recall that decision the writer of the opinion pointed out that it was represented to him that the total amount of rentals and funds for retirement on bonds for the biennium amounted to less than five millions of dollars—four millions of dollars plus—but as we look at the budget now the amount has gone up to over eight million dollars.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, the reason I made inquiries was because at the time the State Authority Act came up before the Supreme Court for second consideration there was considerable rumor and feeling throughout this Commonwealth that some powerful contractor bosses around the City of Philadelphia were exorting terrific pressure to have the first decision of the Supreme Court reconsidered.

The result was a turning tail by the Supreme Court and they disregarded that first decision and held the act constitutional, when no change had taken place in the structure of the Constitution from the date of the first decision to the date of the second decision.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I may not agree with the Supreme Court, and did not agree with the decision of the Supreme Court regarding mental hospitals, but I would not impugn any improper motives to them. I do not know anything about the reasons, other than what was said in the opinion but in order to avoid any of those rumors in the future, that is the reason I want to introduce these bills.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I do not know whether I have the privilege of saying a word in connection with what the gentleman from Somerset has said or not.

The PRESIDENT. If there is no objection, the gentleman from Allegheny may proceed.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I think there is merit in what the gentleman from Somerset has said about limiting the authorities or tying some strings to the authorities that are already created. I think that has a great deal of merit.

However, Mr. President, when it comes to the question of taking over mental hospitals I feel he is wrong. I heard the Secretary of the Department of Welfare say the other day at a hearing that in his opinion it would be better for the State of Pennsylvania if all mental patients were taken care of entirely by the state. Over forty states in this union take care of all the mental patients. Secretary Sweeney said they had better facilities, they had better experts and specialists, and he felt they could do much better than the counties could do it.

I know of only two counties at present that are objecting to the transfer of these mental hospitals to the state. I have felt for a good many years we had a wrong system of taxation in this state, that for forty or fifty years we have saddled taxes onto the home owners that should be paid by people more able to pay.

Mr. President, this was a step in that direction, taking the burdens of government and the taking care of unfortunates off the home owners and placing the tax levy some place else.

The transfer of mental hospitals from our county of Allegheny will probably allow us to reduce taxes on real estate, homes, by two mills. It is the modern way, it is the way the other states are doing it and I feel it is a step in the right direction in relieving the home owner, the real estate owner, of the tax burdens that are crushing him.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. GELTZ. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether he has knowledge of the fact that the Committee on Public Welfare, Assistance and Pensions had a meeting for yesterday afternoon?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, whether I had knowledge of that?

Mr. HALUSKA. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. GELTZ. I did, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether that meeting was held?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I think it was but I am not certain.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny find out whether or not that meeting was held.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, may I suggest to the gentleman from Cambria that he find out for himself.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President,—

The PRESIDENT. I think if the Senator from Allegheny, to whom the inquiry was addressed by the gentleman from Cambria, is unable to answer the query and so stated, then the gentleman from Cambria should address his inquiry to the chairman of the committee to which the resolution was referred.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, that is the reason I rose on a question of personal privilege, and the gentleman from Allegheny objected before I had a chance to speak my word.

Now, Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Northampton.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Northampton permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. BARTLETT. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Northampton tell me whether or not a meeting of the committee of which he is chairman was scheduled to be held yesterday afternoon.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, there was such a meeting scheduled.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Northampton state whether such a meeting was held or not?

Mr. BARTLETT. It was not, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Northampton state why the meeting was canceled?

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, it was quite evident no quorum could be obtained yesterday afternoon.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Northampton state the reason for that?

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, I think the gentleman from Cambria knows himself.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I do not know; I am asking that question.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. President, there was a hearing in the Senate chamber on Senate Bill No. 172 and practically every member of the Senate, every member of this body, was present at that hearing.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I just want to state, if I may be permitted briefly, that was my point of order, that that meeting was scheduled and I was informed that I would have the opportunity to have my resolution brought before the committee, and much to my surprise, the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions waived that hearing.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands the cancellation of that hearing was announced by the secretary right before adjournment.

Mr. HALUSKA. That is correct, Mr. President, I want to state why it was waived. That meeting was waived to give way to the Communist Party, and ignored entirely the many hundreds and thousands of persons who were asking for the meeting, within the wording of my resolution, and I charge that the Committee on Welfare, Public Assistance and Pensions ignored entirely the requests of the many thousands of citizens to give a hearing to those who are not worthy of it.

BILLS INTRODUCED

Messrs. KEPHART and JASPAN read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 295, entitled

An act to amend sections seven and eight of the act approved the twelfth day of June, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-eight (P. L. 201), entitled "An act to provide for the publication of the decisions of the supreme court and the appointment of a state reporter," requiring the publication of advance sheets of such reports, requiring printing and publication in this Commonwealth by a responsible person having a plant and facilities and place of business therein; and further regulating the basis upon which bids shall be submitted and the provisions of the contract for publication of such reports and advance sheets.

Which was committed to the Committee on State Government.

Messrs. EDMONDS and COX read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 296, entitled:

An Act to re-enact and amend the title and act approved the twenty-fourth day of June, one thousand nine hundred thirty-nine, (P. L. 748), entitled "For the registration and regulation of certain individuals and entities selling, contracting to sell or dispose of, attempting or offering to dispose of, soliciting offers to buy, or inducing holders thereof to exchange, securities defined herein, including securities issued by them, or engaging in the business of inducing holders of securities to effect the sale thereof in order to produce funds to pay for other investments sold by them, or in the business of buying securities directly from individuals who are not registered thereunder; providing for the revocation and suspension of registrations; conferring powers and imposing duties on the Pennsylvania Securities Commission and otherwise providing for the administration of this act; providing for appeals to the Court of Common Pleas of Dauphin County, and to the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania; conferring jurisdiction upon the several courts of common pleas to issue injunctions against violations of this act; and prescribing fees and penalties," providing for the regulation and registration of persons and entities engaged in the business of investment advisers, and for the revocation and suspension of such registrations; conferring additional jurisdictions upon the courts of common pleas and further regulating the business of buying and selling securities.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, this is a proposed series of amendments to the Blue Sky Law of Pennsylvania relating to registration of security salesmen. It will be remembered that act was introduced and carried in 1923 and from time to time it has been necessary, under new conditions, to enlarge somewhat the function and scope of the commission.

These amendments, Mr. President, are proposed to take in the class of investment counsel, so as to require them to register and to file their plans for financing, and to file their compensations under those plans with the commission and thereby to bring them under the commission for investigation.

Mr. President, as it is an important question, I hope my colleagues will study this bill and advise us of any suggestions they may have.

Which was committed to the Committee on Banking.

Messrs. COLEMAN, McGINNIS, MALLERY and STEVENSON read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 297, entitled:

Which was committed to the Committee on Municipal Government.

They also read in their places and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 298, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation out of the Motor License Fund to the Department of Highways for allocation to and expenditure in cities, boroughs, towns and townships of the Commonwealth for maintenance, construction, reconstruction, resurfacing, or improvement of municipal roads, highways and bridges, during the calendar years one thousand nine hundred forty-two and one thousand nine hundred forty-three; permitting the use of the funds for maintenance and repair of municipal roads, highways and bridges under certain conditions; and providing for the method of payment to such political subdivisions.

L. 797), entitled "An act to establish a Bureau of Forest Protection within the Department of Forestry; designating the officers who shall constitute the Bureau, their duties and salaries; prescribing penalties for the violation thereof; and repealing all laws, general, special, or local, or any parts thereof, that may be inconsistent with or supplied by this act," authorizing the Department of Forests and Waters to dispose of telephone lines by sale or lease.

Which was committed to the Committee on Forests and Waters, Game and Fish.

Mr. HOMSHER. Mr. President, I rise in place and present to the Chair two bills. One bill refers to educational and other kinds of training, which I suggest be referred to the Committee on Education, and inasmuch as it carries an appropriation, that it then be reported from the Committee on Education and then re-referred to the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. HOMSHER read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 301, entitled:

An Act providing for practical arts and vocational agriculture, home economics, industrial and commercial schools and classes, through public school districts and in cooperation with employment offices, for the training, retraining, instruction, and adjustment of out-of-school, unadjusted individuals, in order to enable them to enter, reenter, or continue employment under changing conditions; conferring powers and imposing duties upon the Superintendent of Public Instruction; and making an appropriation.

REPORT FROM COMMITTEE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make report from committee at this time.

Mr. COLEMAN from the Committee on Municipal Government re-reported as amended, Senate Bill No. 176, entitled:

An Act for the judicial notice of the ordinances of cities, boroughs, incorporated towns and townships of the first class, and for proof thereof and to make uniform the law with reference thereto.

RESOLUTION MEMORIALIZING THOMAS JEFFERSON MEMORIAL FOUNDATION

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, in offering this resolution in behalf of my colleague, Senator Chapman of Warren and myself, I desire to make several prefatory remarks.

Mr. President, to some of you this resolution may appear a bit premature, but I believe no time is more propitious for offering same than the present moment.

Mr. President, in these days of shifting world situations, of doubt and fatigue, of strain and stress, of gloom and vaccilation, this resolution is bound to have a salubrious affect as a challenge to escapists and calamity prophets. Nothing, Mr. President, refreshes more than a return to the fundamentals of our Republic, nothing rejuvenates more than the reaffirmation of the cardinal principles thereof so elaborately evolved by our founders.

Mr. President, in the engulfing turbulence of totalitarianism, our beloved Republic stands out like a Rock of Ages beckoning to the weary and perplexed.

Mr. President, it is to the greatest architect of our republic, Thomas Jefferson, that this resolution is dedicated.

Mr. President, on behalf of Senator CHAPMAN and myself, I offer the following resolution and ask its immediate adoption.

Messrs. STIEFEL and CHAPMAN, offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, March 5, 1941.

Whereas, On April 2, 1943 our Nation will celebrate the 200th Anniversary of the birth of its Luminary of Luminaries, Thomas Jefferson, who by general consent shares only with Dr. Franklin the honor of being the most versatile and accomplished of Americans and whose immortality, to use the expression of Woodrow Wilson, "does not lie in any one of his achievements, but in his attitude toward mankind"; and

Whereas, Preparatory to the celebration of the 200th Anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, a Bicentennial

Commission was established by Congress last year; and

Whereas, In these days of strain and stress, of gloom and vaccilation, a celebration revolving around the immortal draftsman of the Declaration of Independence will result in the reaffirmation of Jefferson's teachings, the salubrious and tonic values whereof have been already universally acknoweldged; and

Whereas, The ringing phrases of the Declaration of Independence, intended according to Jefferson's expression "to be an expression of the American mind", are together with Lincoln's Gettysburg speech the greatest monuments of the English language, as well as limpid springs of political rejuvenation, from which our Republic had drunk heretofore and shall continue to deeply drink henceforth; and

Whereas, The February report of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation shows that the last cent of mortgage on Monticello has been paid as a result of its devoted work over a period of eighteen years; and

Whereas, Under the direction of Mr. Fiske Kimball, the most sympathetic and learned scholar in Jeffersonian draftsmanship and architecture, the interior and exterior of Monticello have been restored and the gardens thereof made beautiful according to Jefferson's plans and drawings, thus restoring to our Nation one of its Shrines; and

Whereas, The preservation and recovery of Jefferson's beautiful historic house and estate at Monticello is a memorable work of patriotism and public spirit, that will enrich not only Virginia but the whole United States of America; now be it therefore

Resolved (if the House concur), that the General Assembly of Pennsylvania appoint a Commission, to be known as the "Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission of Pennsylvania", to consist of six members, three of whom shall be appointed by the Speaker of the House on the part of the House of Representatives, and three of whom shall be appointed by the President Pro Tempore of the Senate on the part of the Senate of the General Assembly, and the task whereof shall consist in evolving plans in collaboration with the Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission established by Congress for Pennsylvania's part in the celebration of the 200th Anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, in order that said plans may be submitted in the form of a report to the General Assembly of Pennsylvania in 1943 for proper action; and be it further

Resolved, That the General Assembly of Pennsylvania commend the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation for its work of restoration of the Shrine at Monticello and its pious care thereof, and call upon the citizenry of Pennsylvania to lend its moral and material support thereto.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the Resolution?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I am going to vote for this resolution, and I am happy to do so, but before the vote is taken, I suggest to the New Deal Democrats they should consider seriously how they vote, because it seems to me they have repudiated the principles of Thomas Jefferson, particularly in connection with the fact they believe in centralization of government, and Thomas Jefferson expounded the principle of local self-government.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the immediate adoption of the resolution.

It was agreed to.

Ordered, That the Clerk present the same to the House of Representatives for concurrence.

RESOLUTION URGING INVESTIGATION OF CAUSE OF RESIGNATION OF SECRETARY OF COMMERCE

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, before presenting this resolution, I desire to make a few pertinent statements that have a direct bearing on the contents of the resolution.

Mr. President, I do not expect the Republican majority will give me unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of this resolution, but I think it is a very important resolution that deals with the matter of the resignation of Richard P. Brown, late Secretary of Commerce, and the reasons for the resignation, if any.

Mr. President, it seems that a shadowy figure has come out of the past, that a will-o-the-wisp known as Colonel Estes is again upon the scene very prominently, and is again dictating executive orders of the State of Pennsylvania, and it seems, according to the newspapers if you please, that the charges that were made during the 1938 campaign against the Democrats have come home to roost. It seems the Democrats are not the only ones that care where political patronage goes in the matter of governmental spending, if you please, and it seems to me it is very important for the people of Pennsylvania to know whether or not Richard P. Brown, who has done I believe a very excellent job up to date in the matter of handling the State's business in the Department of Commerce, was forced to resign because friends of Mr. Estes did not get the patronage of the political advertising, something over a quarter of a million dollars worth of business, at sixteen per cent commission, which is not much, of course, to Republicans, but it is a whole lot of money to Democrats.

Mr. President, I just want to call the attention of this Senate to the fact that it is a disgraceful situation when a member of the Governor's cabinet can no longer do his duty as he sees his duty, he must take orders from that will-o-the-wisp, Colonel Estes, from Texas, the man I understand who is responsible for this mismanagement of the State of Pennsylvania.

Therefore, Mr. President, I present this resolution and ask unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. DENT offered the following resolution which was twice read:

In the Senate, March 5, 1941.

Whereas, There seems to be a controversy over the reasons for the resignation of Richard P. Brown, ex-Secretary of Commerce, and

Whereas, During the past few days the Public Press has been filled with statements and counter-statements relative to the resignation of the former Secretary of Commerce, and

Whereas, In the statements contained in the Public Press the matter of state advertising has been prominently mentioned as the cause for the resignation of Richard P. Brown, therefore be it

Resolved (if the House concur), a committee of five Members of the House and five of the Senate be named to ascertain the real cause for the resignation of the Secretary of Commerce and to further ascertain whether the question of patronage in the matter of political advertising was included in the agreement or disagreement between the Governor of the Commonwealth, the Secretary of Commerce and certain agents or agencies.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the Resolution?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the sponsor of this resolution.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. DENT. With apprehension, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, in reading the resolution I notice that there is a committee of five to be appointed from the House and the Senate. I would like to know if that is five in toto, or five from the House and five from the Senate?

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, any way they want it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to know what the purpose of the resolution is.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I mean five of the House and five of the Senate. Of course, Mr. President, on all resolutions presented, if there is an odd number, the Senate names the number specified and the House names the number specified. It says five members of the House and Senate. That is ten. Of course, Mr. President, that is not the meat of the resolution.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to further interrogate the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Westmoreland permit himself to be further interrogated?

Mr. DENT. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have a copy of the resolution in front of me, and it says, "Resolved (if the House concur), a committee of five members of the House and Senate shall be named." I would like to know if that means five members of the House and five members of Senate.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I mean five members of the Senate and five members of the House. I am going to correct it.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Westmoreland mean ten on the committee altogether?

Mr. DENT. Yes, Mr. President. I am going to correct it now, and I thank the gentleman from Allegheny for calling my attention to it, because I do not want a valuable resolution like this to be lost over a technicality.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I object to immediate consideration of this resolution and ask it be referred to committee for the purpose of amendment.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Westmoreland presents a resolution and asks for its immediate adoption. The gentleman from Allegheny objects to its immediate adoption.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his point of information.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, did I understand the gentleman from Allegheny to object to immediate adoption of this resolution and then move that it be sent to committee for the purpose of amendment?

Mr. GELTZ. That is correct.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair takes the position if there is objection, it is then up to the Chair to refer it to the proper committee.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, may I just remark we agree with that. I think what the gentleman was driving at was the fact that the gentleman from Allegheny was guilty of violating the very thing that he charged the other day when we wanted to send a bill back to committee for a specific purpose and I think the Chair is absolutely right when he says it goes to committee and let the committee attend to it.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands that and agrees with the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante

Mr. CAVALCANTE. I understand, Mr. President, the Chair might understand a thing to mean one thing whereas the gentleman from Allegheny might understand something entirely different.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair was about to make a statement when the Senator from Fayette rose, to state that the Senator from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, objected to immediate consideration of the resolution and therefore the only alternative the Chair has is to refer the resolution to committee which the Chair will now do.

Resolution is referred to the Committee on State Government.

RESOLUTION EXPRESSING THE PROFOUND ADMIRATION, RESPECT AND GRATITUDE OF THE SENATE FOR THE BOY SCOUTS OF AMERICA ON THEIR 31ST ANNIVERSARY

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to offer a resolution at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. WALKER offered the following resolution which was twice read, considered and agreed to:

In the Senate, February 5, 1941.

Whereas the people of many nations are now plunged into deepest sorrow, and abject need by their unhappy divisions, and whereas the spirit of unselfish service and generous regard for others as embodied in the fundamental principles of the Boy Scouts of America, would in large measure, have bound men in mutual understanding and fellowship, and

Whereas the Boy Scout Movement throughout the United States has committed itself to a program of action to "Strengthen and Invigorate Democracy," and,

Whereas A million and a half American boys have taken upon themselves the following citizenship pledge as a part of this program:

What We, as Americans, solemnly pledge ourselves:

To join wholeheartedly and with personal sacrifice in strengthening the work of our organizations and of other civic and social activities in our community, our state, and our nation.

To be vigilant and courageous in maintaining human sympathy and respect for the rights of others.

To beware of the enemies of democracy, whatever their passwords or places of birth, and wherever they may be found.

To stand united with all lovers of freedom, whatever their tongue or origin.

To keep our nation strong in valor, and confident in freedom, so that government of the people, by the people, for the people shall not perish from the earth.

Whereas The Boy Scouts of America has inculcated into the lives of more than nine million American youth during the past thirty-one years the ideals as expressed in the Boy Scout Oath and Law which is based upon reverence to God, service to self and others, and has prepared them to be better participating citizens in their various communities, therefore, be it

Resolved that at this, the thirty-first anniversary of the founding of the Boy Scouts of America, the members of the Pennsylvania State Senate, here assembled, reaffirm their belief in the purposes and precepts, which, through the vision and foresight of its founder, the late Sir Robert Baden-Powell of Gilwell, England, and made this Movement in the United States possible, and be it further

Resolved that we hereby express our profound admiration, respect and gratitude to all those connected with the Boy Scouts of America, and order that a copy of this Resolution be sent by the Clerk of the Senate to the Honorary President of the Boy Scouts of America, Franklin D. Roosevelt, President of the United States; Walter W. Head, President of the Boy Scouts of America; and Dr. James E. West, Chief Scout Executive.

Mr. WALKER. I would like to say, Mr. President this is a resolution expressing the admiration and respect of the Pennsylvania State Senate for the Boy Scouts of America on their thirty-first anniversary, and in view of our memories when we were a lot younger than we are now, I would like to say as members of the Boy Scouts we could find our sermons in stories and our books in running brooks.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the Resolution?

It was agreed to.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Rule 39, which requires resolutions be referred to an appropriate committee, be suspended and the Senate do now proceed to the consideration of the resolution just read.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection?

The Chair hears none.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the resolution?

It was agreed to.

BILL INTRODUCED

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to introduce a bill at this time.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

Mr. EALY read in his place and presented to the Chair Senate Bill No. 308, entitled:

An Act making an appropriation to the Somerset Comnunity Hospital, Somerset, Pennsylvania.

Which was committed to the Committee on Appropriations.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS SENATE

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to make a brief statement.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Lackawanna may proceed.

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, on Monday of this week, I presented a resolution declaring the intention of the Legislature to enact suitable legislation to adjourn tax sales in the Commonwealth.

I asked for unanimous consent and it was denied but the gentleman from Allegheny, my good friend, Mr. Walker, becoming cognizant of the plight of the home owners of the Commonwealth, promptly summoned a committee meeting Tuesday at 1:45, immediately preceeding the hearing of the Communist Bill, and the resolution was forthwith reported out.

This morning we adopted a resolution of my colleague in the House, Representative Cordier, which carries out the intention of the resolution I had introduced and which the Committee on Judiciary General so kindly reported out yesterday afternoon.

Mr. President, I merely want to say this is a matter that I think transcends political parties, and I am delighted to say that the Senate of Pennsylvania and the House of Representatives in voting for such a resolution indicate that they propose to pass an abatement bill at this session of the Legislature.

RULE 39 SUSPENDED

A motion was made by Mr. TALLMAN and Mr. GELTZ That Rule 39, which requires resolutions reported from committee to lie over for one day be dispensed with and the Senate proceed to the consideration of the foregoing resolution.

Which was agreed to.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the same?

Mr. COLEMAN. Mr. President, I wanted to consult with the majority leader. It is my impression we must wait until the House concurs in the amendment to concurrent resolution No. 43. Am I correct in that?

Mr. President, I have a fear we are likely to adjourn here today and as it is tremendously important that this resolution pass at this session I am raising the point, Mr. President, that the Senate will have to remain in session until the House concurs in the amendment offered by the Senate.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information on that resolution.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his point of information.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, is it a joint resolution or a concurrent resolution?

The PRESIDENT. It is a concurrent resolution.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Does the Chair understand, then, that this resolution will require also the approval of the Governor?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair so understands. It is to be returned to the House after we take action.

On the question,

Will the Senate concur in the Resolution?

Ia was concurred in.

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a point of order.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette will state his point of order.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I would also like to make this point of order, because I am exceedingly interested in this resolution. My point of order is this, that all bills and resolutions that require approval of the Governor do also require a roll call and must pass by a constitutional majority.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair is of the same opinion.

The point of order is well taken.

The yeas and nays were required by Mr. CAVALCANTE and Mr. REED, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS 38

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and

Gentlemen of this noble institution
I submit to you a serious resolution;
I ask your undivided attention
To a matter I intend to mention.
I do not wish to introduce a bill,
But rather by discussion—to instill
A definite and vital realization,
That there is present in our Nation
The problem of increased population.
First, the responsibility for this fault
Must fall on a man by the name of Walt;
But not only Walt caused this ado,
For he was aided and abetted by Walt No. 2:
And from their actions, what do we see—
Our Little Problem—Walt No. 3.

Then be it resolved, here and now
That we arise—and give a bow
To Walter L. Miller No. 1
Father of Walter No. 2—a son,
Who, with God's help, you must agree
Was blessed with the birth of Walt No. 3.
And be it resolved that he give us more—
How about a new Walt called—No. 4?

But with all this joy, there is one rub
Walter Miller now is in the "Grandfathers' Club."

Be it further resolved that this proclamation
Be spread throughout the State and Nation,
So that attention is directed by every one
To the eight and one-half pound baby grandson.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Cohen, has read the resolution he now offerh in his address.

On the question.

Will the House adopt the resolution?

It was adopted.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. BENTLEY asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and gentlemen of the House, the public press in the last two days has carried an increasing volume of material upon the resignation of the Secretary of Commerce. I quote from the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette a statement which they print as emanating from the resigned State Secretary of Commerce Richard P. Brown, and I ask that the members of the House give close attention to the very serious statements made by Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown resigned and gives as his reasons for so resigning the following:

"The question of transferring the tourist advertising to the Eshelman company never arose until after the Republican national convention in Philadelphia last June.

"About six months ago the highway safety advertising in the department of revenue was transferred from the Lefton Company to Eshelman. I have understood that the change has not been beneficial.

"On January 17th, Carl Estes, formerly of Texas, and now of Bryn Mawr, Pa., called me on the telephone at my home to say that he wished the tourist advertising of the department of commerce transferred to the Eshelman company. I replied that I would resign before the State's advertising was made a political football.

"Several conferences have been held with the governor since and he still insisted on this transfer of advertising to Eshelman, which I opposed.

"The two questions which the Governor refused to answer me as secretary of commerce were:

"Why did you insist on the transfer of the highway safety advertising to Eshelman?"

"Why have you insisted that the tourist advertising of the department of commerce be shifted to Eshelman?"

The resignation was forthcoming and those are the words Mr. Brown has quoted in the public press.

Mr. Speaker, these very serious statements call for consideration and a thorough and full investigation and I offer a resolution in that connection.

Mr. BENTLEY offered a resolution which was filed with the Clerk under the Rules.

In the House of Representatives, February 25, 1941.

Whereas Under existing law the county treasurers of the various counties will be required to hold tax sales of returned seated lands before the first Monday of May 1941 and

Whereas It appears that sufficient time may not remain to enact suitable legislation before said date fixed for such tax sales to authorize adjournment or further adjournment therefore be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur) That the General Assembly hereby authorizes the county treasurers of the various counties of this Commonwealth if the county commissioners and the court of common pleas of such counties consent thereto to adojurn or further adjourn any tax sale and advertising of said sale which under existing law is required to be held prior to the first Monday of May 1941 and the General Assembly hereby declares its purpose forthwith to enact suitable legislation to validate any such adjournment of a tax sale and advertising of said sale and to provide by law for the holding of such adjourned tax sales at a future date saving the lien of all taxes assessed against real estate which was to be sold at such sales

Resolved That a copy of this resolution be transmitted to the county treasurer of each county of this Commonwealth by the Clerk of the House

On the question,

Will the House concur in the amendments made by the Senate?

They were concurred in.

Ordered, That the Clerk inform the Senate accordingly.

ENOLA HIGH SCHOOL WELCOMED

The SPEAKER. The Chair welcomes the Senior Class of the Enola High School to the House this morning. The Chair trusts they will return when the House has a longer calendar.

SONS OF ST. PATRICK COMMITTEE

The SPEAKER. The Chair appoints, in order to avoid an Irish battle in the House, and to show the world that there is unity among Irishmen, Mr. Gates, whose forefathers were born in County Antrim and fought under the banner of William of Orange, and Mr. Welsh of Fayette whose forefathers fought for the Boers in the Boer War, to the St. Patrick's Day Committee.

The Irish are already fighting among themselves, and the Chair also adds to this committee the name of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. O'Mullen.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his question of information.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I suggest that the whole House be put on the Committee.

The SPEAKER. They will be in due time.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

Mr. SPEAKER. The gentleman from Beaver will state his question of information.

Mr. NAGEL. Mr. Speaker, I would like to know whether or not the Chairman appointed Mr. O'Mullen to stop the Irish fight?

The SPEAKER. I believe that is right.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

Mr. SPEAKER. The gentleman from Allegheny will state his question of information.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I desire to know whether Mr. Turner's ancestors were Irish or not?

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware can answer that question for himself.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, in answer to the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Moran, I would say that my ancestors were friends to all people and I, therefore, am descended from the Irish by remote control.

My ancestors on the Turner side came from England, and we all know, of course, that the Irish once dominated England. My ancestors on my mother's side came from England, almost from Wales, and therefore, they could by some sort of remote control be related to the Irish.

As far as I am concerned, the earliest story that my mother ever told about me was when we were living in Scranton, she said there was an Irish family that lived across the way and that she could not keep me clean—that is the reason I am a "dirty farmer"—because I was always crawling under the gate and going over to stay with those Irish people. Therefore from that affinity and from that relationship through remote control I think I belong on the Irish Committee.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman qualifies.

Mr. MORAN. Mr. Speaker, I would say this is as clear as mud to me. I went back and studied history at considerable length to find out something about the ancestors of a lot of members of the House, and I found that the reason the Turners left Ireland was because they were chased out for stealing sheep.

I know too that everybody originally came from Ireland. Of course, that is a good excuse for some of them. However, they did not all come from Ireland at one time, some of them landed in Germany, some went to France, some to England and some to other countries, but all those people who left Ireland in the old days didn't leave of their own accord; they were chased out for horse stealing and sheep stealing. If Mr. Turner's ancestors were all horse thieves, of course, he cannot help that.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Delaware will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, the reason the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Moran, knows so much about the Turners stealing sheep is that the Morans were the fence to whom the Turners sold the sheep.

QUESTION OF INFORMATION

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a question of information.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Westmoreland will state his question of information.

Mr. WEISS. Mr. Speaker, last year we had a good Irishman named Ominsky on the Irish Day program, and I believe this year we ought to have an O'Levy on it.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. McFALL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I asked the privilege to address the House on this question of who is Irish and who is not.

I don't think we got any of these stories right, because the real Irish story, if you want to make the Irish people mad, is to tell them that when St. Patrick drove the snakes out of Ireland he drove some of the other Irish families out with them, and then you have a real fight on your hands. I think some of our ancestors who came over here, a good many of them landed in Northampton County, and they have been there so long that most of them have lost their Irish brogue, and the ability to drink whiskey, but they tell me that my grandfather was an artist along that line. Speaking about drinking whiskey, I have been wondering whether these people who are trying to "horn in" on this Irish festival are not doing so because they are thinking of the free whiskey they might get.

ADJOURNMENT

Mr. BRETHERICK. Mr. Speaker, I move that this House do now adjourn until Monday, March 10, 1941, at 9 p. m.

The motion was agreed to, and (at 2:08 p. m.) the House adojurned.

COMMONWEALTH OF PENNSYLVANIA

Legislative Journal.

Session 1941. 135th of the General Assembly.

Vol. 25. HARRISBURG, PA., MONDAY, MARCH 10, 1941. No. 19.

SENATE

MONDAY, March 10, 1941

The Senate met at 4:30 o'clock, p. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

O Lord, Our Lord, how excellent is Thy name in all the earth! Everywhere Thy goodness is gloriously manifest. How thankful we should be and are for this great reality. How simply may we as a people become the grateful benefactors of Thy goodness in our own name and right by our obedience.

Now that the greatly contested legislation has finally passed the Congress and about to become law, do Thou guide its use wisely by the chief executive of our land. May He guide our ship of state safely through the troubled waters of the unchartered future that if possible, Our Father, we may remain at peace and that no overt act shall precipitate us into the catacylsm of the old world. May our objective be the continuation of the strengthening of our defenses and the making safe of our liberty to our posterity.

But we know the future for us must be paved with giantic sacrifices and adorned with unified endeavor. This must be the fabric to be woven upon the American looms of production. Vouchsafe unto us, We pray Thee, a unified purpose in this direction.

And do Thou bless the labors of our hearts and hands as we strive for the fashioning of legislation rightly and justly to serve all of the people of this great Commonwealth this day. For Jesus' sake. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

The PRESIDENT. A quorum of the Senate being present the Clerk will read the Journal of the preceding session.

The Clerk proceeded to read the Journal of the preceding session, when on motion of Mr. HEYBURN and Mr. EALY, the further reading was dispensed with, and the Journal was approved.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Mr. Thomas asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Schuylkill, Mr. WATKINS.

Mr. Edmonds asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. WOODWARD.

Mr. Geltz asked and obtained leave of absence for the Senator from Bucks, Mr. JAMES.

POINT OF INFORMATION

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a point of information.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his point of information.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, may I interrogate the Senator from Allegheny County, Mr. Geltz, to obtain my point?

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria may proceed.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, last week, last Wednesday in fact, I rose to a question of personal privilege and the Senator from Allegheny County objected to my having the floor. Will the Senator tell me whether that was a personal feeling or whether he meant for that to be a new order of business?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I am glad my colleague, the Senator from Cambria, asked that question. I would not for the world want him to feel there was anything personal involved in the objection which we made last week.

It is our desire not to endeavor in any way to suppress the wish or will to talk on the part of any of our colleagues in the Senate, but we would like the co-operation of all of our colleagues in this respect; if it is a matter of personal privilege, I believe under the rules it comes in order at any time?

The PRESIDENT. That is correct.

Mr. GELTZ. If it is not a matter of personal privilege, then we would ask that the request to speak on other matters be held off until after the order of business for the day, and thereafter we will have no objection.

Mr. HALUSKA. Thank you, Mr. President, I appreciate the answer. I thought for a while possibly the gentleman from Allegheny County was still pursuing me from days of old.

However, I happened to pick up the Jefferson Manual and I find much to my own surprise that questions of personal privilege shall have precedence over all other matter excepting motions to adjourn.

Mr. President, I belive we can come to an understanding —I am only speaking on behalf of myself at this time, but because there are certain things I wish to put before this assembly, if I am denied the floor naturally I want to have that opportunity.

Thank you, Mr. Geltz.

PETITIONS

The Chair cleared his table and laid before the Senate the following communications:

PETITION URGING PASSAGE OF AN OCCUPATIONAL DISEASE ACT

The PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate a communication from the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America, East Pittsburgh, Pa., requesting that an act be passed to make out a deficiency appropriation to cover claims and liabilities in full, which will be noted in the Journal.

A meeting of the Committee will be held in the office of the Chief Clerk of the House at 8:00 P. M. this evening.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The Senator from Warren, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, what is wrong with the United States?

Fifth columnists and saboteurs find ready listeners among the ranks of the unemployed and the old saying is true that "the devil finds work for idle hands to do." To that end in the scheme of things to keep our state happy and contented we must give ear to the needs of our constituents. The defense program is calling for skilled men and women, and in many places men of sixty and over are being recalled to jobs from which they were released due to age. But how many thousands of unskilled hands of fifty and over are not being recalled? These men are ready and willing to work but have been told "industry has no place for an old man." However the man of sixty or over can be of use in road building, in erection of works for flood control, as guards at defense working plants and in a myriad of ways. Our duty as legislators lies in taking up the slack. Let us make plans that will give work to the men who are not recalled to jobs and who in many instances have been cut off WPA payrolls due to age. Happy, contented people on a payroll are not those to whom the sirens song of the fifth columnist sounds like sweet music.

In many parts of the state homes are needed. Let the situation be carefully scanned and let aid be given toward the erection of homes. Let our authorities be given to understand that bid rigging and similar practices are taboo.

Our state forests have stood for years with no adequate program of cutting and let this be given attention. I dare say that within the state forests lies thousands of cords of wood that if cut to length would provide immense stocks of fuel for the needy. Fuel is a mighty important question to the poor when winter's blasts roar.

Our soft and hard coal fields are already darkened by threatened troubles so let us make all haste to see that these dark clouds are lifted before they break forth into a storm.

Already food prices are rising in no uncertain way. The cost of placing food on the table is advancing. Vegetables and meats have moved upward in price. All aid should be given our agricultural districts to secure more and bigger crops. More milk, more meat, more potatoes and more farm products should come from our farms. Our State College advisers have done yoeman's work in aiding the farmers but let their efforts be redoubled until the granaries of Pennsylvania bulge, the trucks roll to market groaning with a burden of foodstuffs and the squeal of pigs make the hungry hear a rhythm melody. Armies are said to travel on their stomachs (Frederick, the Great) but don't forget the folks at home have stomachs also. Thousands of young men are being taken from the farms into the army so let the school authorities help in a plan whereby still younger men may find a place on the farm and older men too can aid in producing food for the nation.

Hitler is not overlooking any feature in his fight against the Democracies. I read recently that 240,000 French and Polish prisoners are being used in building broad highways, heavy foundationed over which the Hitler mechanized war machine moves. Let us out Hitler in road work. Canals are being dug in Germany and let our unemployed scoop canals. Denmark, Norway, Holland and Belgium men and women are being forced into the fields and the mines to get food and fuel for Germany's needs. Picture if you will populations of whole nations turned into slaves to grub and hoe, delve and sweat that Hitler and his satellites may grind the free peoples of the earth under his leaden heel.

God forbid that our fair State should ever feel the burden of the conqueror. Never since the Southern armies swept over a portion of our lands and fired the homes and buildings with the torch of war have we been invaded. It must not be. Let us awaken to the tocsin that is being sounded. Let us help in every possible way. Turn our factories into arsenals out of which will pour the arms and ammunition so badly needed, let our fields be blooming with waving grains, let our stockyards have a stream of livestock to be turned into meats and above all let every man have a job in some part of the vast program that will turn back the dictators and show the world that Democracy is still the thought of free men. An hour may destroy what an age has built.

Pennsylvania has never been under the heel of a tyrant and the smug, calm feeling that is so apparent in the State must give way before an avalanche of facts that show us a crisis is really faced. By our example as legislators we must point the way. We who meet under the folds of the Stars and Stripes on the flag poles of this Statehouse must first of all be citizens of the United States, of Pennsylvania and later on New Dealers or Republicans. A clarion call is sounding and we must give it ear or have our flags lowered in defeat and the goose stepping hordes thundering over our highways.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege concerning my own safety, the safety of many members of this assembly, as well as the safety of the citizens of this Commonwealth.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Fayette may proceed.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, during the last four years, millions of dollars have been spent in order to construct a modern highway leading from the western part of our state to the eastern part. The highway was constructed by a commission created by the General Assembly, and we called it the Turnpike Commission.

Mr. President, the purposes of that highway were manifold. One of them was in order to eliminate the hazards of winter that the citizens from the western part of the state had to undergo when traveling to the capital and the eastern part of the state. Many lives were lost in the construction of that highway, and since its construction several lives have been lost due to accidents happening on that highway.

This is the first winter the highway has been opened to the public. I am one of the citizens of this Commonwealth who travels from Fayette County to Harrisburg and the eastern part of the state, and I have occasion to use that highway. It has been advertised as a safe highway to travel, so that we might overcome the mountainous regions that exist between the western part of the state and the eastern part of the state.

Mr. President, I am sad to report or to say that notwithstanding the fact that users of that highway pay rather a high toll for the privilege of using that highway, I doubt very seriously whether the hazards of winter have been eliminated to the extent that the highway is safer than the previous highways that lead from the western part of the state to the eastern part.

Mr. President, I have traveled that highway every week during this session. Some days that highway has been very bad; there has been snow and ice gathered on it.

Today, Mr. President, my colleague, Senator Reed and myself, as well as many other members from the western part of the state, have come to the capital over that highway. On our way we encountered many wrecks. I am not positive, but we were told that another life was taken on that highway today. It was not due, in my judgment, to the negligence of the operators of vehicles on that highway today.

Mr. President, entering the highway at its western terminus, Irwin, all the way to the Tuscarora tunnel, the highway was absolutely dangerous and unfit to be traveled over, and it was all due to the fact that snow and slush and ice at places was at least three to four inches thick, making it very dangerous for anybody to travel over it.

Mr. President, my opinion is that any motorist who enters that highway west of the Tuscarora Mountains ought to be probably prosecuted for negligence, solely on the fact that he enters that highway and travels eastward on it. From the Blue Mountain to the eastern terminus the highway is in excellent condition, all the snow is off of it, no ice on it, it is perfectly safe, but from the Blue Mountain tunnel and westward, the road is in terrible condition, and I am sure that it is not due to the fact that there is not money to see that it is kept clear of ice and snow, but it is due to the fact that I think we have W.P.A. attending to it. From Donegal and to the Tuscarora tunnel there is any number of snow scrapers and highway equipment and employes, but they are not taking the snow off. You see them leaning on their shovels along the side of the highway. One snow crew was out in a field, clearing a path out in the field, while right at the point where they were clearing on the highway there was at least four inches of snow, right in the center of the highway, making it dangerous. Men with shovels were all along the highway, but loafing and doing nothing; trucks loaded with ashes had coats of ice on the ashes, evidence that they were merely hauling the ashes around from one place to the other and not placing them on the highway where they could be of some safety to those that travel that highway.

Now, Mr. President, I hope I am not accused by anyone of misstating any facts. We have members of this Senate who traveled that highway today who encountered these accidents. One car was turned on its side and almost on its top; another car had skidded across from the right lane over into the opposite lane, endangering the lives of motorists traveling in the opposite direction.

Mr. President, I find no fault with the highway itself, or with the construction of the highway. I think it was an excellent piece of work. The highway was needed and it is a good highway, but I think the fault lies with those who are now trying to operate that Turnpike Commission or that highway. They have the equipment; we who travel over it are paying the tolls and why is not this snow on the western end of this highway cleared? The sun was high and bright today and if the snow had been scraped off or taken off yesterday, when it should have been taken off, and Saturday, that highway would have been clear of snow and ice at its western end, as it is at its eastern end.

Now, Mr. President, if I were to advise any citizens of this Commonwealth who are traveling west today, surely I would not tell them to take the Turnpike route but I would tell them to follow the state highways, the county highways, because we found them clear and well ashed so you could travel over them safely.

Mr. President, with my colleague, the gentleman from Washington, Mr. Reed, coming from California through Fayette County, up to Westmoreland County, and Donegal, we found no icy condition of the road, no danger; the county crews had cleared the snow, the state crews had cleared the snow and ashed the road, but just as soon as we landed at Donegal and got on the Dream Highway, the highway supposed to be a dream, lo and behold, we found ourselves on a glare of ice and snow covering the highway three and four inches thick, that persisted and continued dangerously all the ways to the Tuscarora tunnel, Mr. President, and I can not see how we who travel that highway can advertise it, when we are asked by our constitutents, "How is the Turnpike; can we travel east?" We can not tell them, "Yes, take the highway, because it is safe," but we must definitely say it is very dangerous to travel, Mr. President.

I hope that the members of this body, in fact the whole General Assembly, will raise their voices or do something about seeing that this Turnpike is kept in better shape than it has been and to see that these crews and this equipment, instead of loafing and idling and clearing the snow off of the banks and out in the fields, would confine their activities to the main lanes of travel, and take the snow and ice off those lanes, instead of carrying ashes on their trucks back and forward, trying to cut the snow and ice, but take those ashes and put them on the highway, and nature itself through the energy of the sun, would do the rest and melt the ice and snow and make it safe for all of us to travel that highway.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I agree with what the Senator from Fayette County said to a great extent as to the condition of the super-highway today.

We are all very proud of this super-highway. When it is not covered with snow and ice, we can travel from here to Pittsburgh in three and one half hours. I understand it takes about three hours to go to Philadelphia from here, so this highway has brought Pittsburgh as near to Harrisburg as the City of Philadelphia.

It is one of the marvelous accomplishments of the engineers. This snow proposition today was bad, that is, conditions were bad over a great portion of the highway. This, however, is a new highway. The snow covered the entire highway, that is, the snowfall, so that the snow plows had the entire one hundred and sixty miles to keep clean, which is something quite unusual.

Mr. President, I have traveled over this highway every week since the Session opened, and on the whole it has been in very good shape, but today there probably were fifty miles of it, in the lanes coming east, that did have snow four or five inches deep. I noticed that most of the plows were on the lane going west, for they had apparently cleaned about all the snow off that entire end of the highway. There is no question but what more plows or more activity of the plows would have easily cleaned up the forty-five or fifty miles of the lanes coming east.

I observed the other day in the newspapers, Mr. President, that Walter Jones, Chairman of the Authority that constructed this highway, was made an honorary member of the Pennsylvania Society of Engineers, and while he has been ill ever since the road was completed, I doubt if he has ever gone over the road after the work was completed.

Mr. President, it is saddening to realize that after all the work and the energy he had put forth to accomplish the construction of this highway, that he had perhaps overtaxed his mind and body and has not been back here since the highway was opened, until the other day.

Mr. Jones sent me a few days ago some leaflets on his proposition to extend this highway to St. Louis and Chicago, and from Boston, I believe, to Richmond along the coast.

I introduced a bill at the beginning of this Session to extend this highway from Irwin to the Ohio State line, and I have here a clipping from the Pittsburgh Sun Telegraph, in which Governor Bricker has asked the Ohio Legislature to make a study, and he is going to make the request that this road be extended through Ohio to the Pennsylvania line.

Mr. President, I have these leaflets that Mr. Jones sent to my desk, that I am going to pass around. I only have a few of them, which give a picture of a super-highway built in Germany seven years ago, the super-highway that started in Germany, and alongside of it there is a picture of our super-highway, and you can see where the idea of this super-highway was found. This super-highway in Pennsylvania is an exact duplicate of the super-highways that were constructed in Germany seven years ago, and were very effective when Adolph Hitler started moving his troops all over Europe.

Mr. President, I am going to ask the page boys—I do not have enough to go around—but I shall ask the boys to take one over and pass it around to the other side.

Mr. President, I am not criticizing the committee that is holding this bill. There has not been any meeting, and I have not pressed it very much, but I now think these super-highways are of great importance as defense highways in the movements of troops. I understand the other day one hundred trucks moved from Pittsburgh to Indiantown Gap in eight hours without any trouble whatever. It is capable of moving the heaviest equipment. I feel now that some steps should be taken to have this bill reported out of committee, and at least a study considered of the road from Irwin to the Ohio State line.

I read just the other day in one of the local papers that Mr. Jones, while he is still ill, is working, however, arranging for the financing of the highway that is already authorized from Harrisburg, or from the end of the super-highway to Philadelphia, and I am sure from the way he went at the main super-highway and provided for its construction, that he will also find the finances for constructing the highway on to Philadelphia, and also on to the Ohio State line.

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, in view of the remarks of my colleague, the Senator from Fayette, it seems to me something should be done about this matter, and if such a motion were in order, I would move that the remarks of Senator Cavalcante be sent to the superintendent in charge of maintenance of that highway.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. The western end, Mr. Mallery.

MOTION THAT REMARKS BE SENT TO TURNPIKE SUPERINTENDENT

Mr. MALLERY. Mr. President, I move that the remarks of the Senator from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, be sent to the superintendent in charge of the western section of the super-highway.

Help us to seek Thee and to know Thy leading in the important legislation to come before this body. Mr. SHEPARD. Mr. Speaker, I want to congratulate the Speaker on the correctness of his attire, and suggest that the House adjourn early so that he can return the suit.

Mr. TURNER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to thank the gentleman from Philadelphia for explaining just what this is all about. I was rather concerned. I thought the Speaker forgot his tie and vest.

The SPEAKER. The Chair is somewhat embarrassed. Since his attire has been called to the attention of the House, the Chair regrets appearing formally without the traditional emblem—the white carnation.

The Chair thanks the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Lee, who has presented him with a carnation.

For the information of the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shepard, the suit will be returned on time.

SENATE MESSAGE

RESOLUTION FOR CONCURRENCE

The Clerk of the Senate being introduced presented an extract from the Journal of the Senate, which was read as follows:

In the Senate, March 5, 1941.

Whereas, On April 2, 1943 our Nation will celebrate the 200th Anniversary of the birth of its Luminary of Luminaries, Thomas Jefferson, who by general consent shares only with Dr. Franklin the honor of being the most versatile and accomplished of Americans and whose immortality, to use the expression of Woodrow Wilson, "does not lie in any one of his achievements, but in his attitude toward mankind"; and

Whereas, Preparatory to the celebration of the 200th Anniversary of the birth of Thomas Jefferson, a Bicentennial Commission was established by Congress last year; and

Whereas, In these days of strain and stress, of gloom and vaccilation, a celebration revolving around the immortal draftsman of the Declaration of Independence will result in the reaffirmation of Jefferson's teachings, the salubrious and tonic values whereof have been already universally acknoweldged; and

Whereas, The ringing phrases of the Declaration of Independence, intended according to Jefferson's expression "to be an expression of the American mind", are together with Lincoln's Gettysburg speech the greatest monuments of the English language, as well as limpid springs of political rejuvenation, from which our Republic had drunk heretofore and shall continue to deeply drink henceforth; and

Whereas, The February report of the Thomas Jefferson Memorial Foundation shows that the last cent of mortgage on Monticello has been paid as a result of its devoted work over a period of eighteen years; and

Whereas, Under the direction of Mr. Fiske Kimball, the most sympathetic and learned scholar in Jeffersonian draftsmanship and architecture, the interior and exterior of Monticello have been restored and the gardens thereof made beautiful according to Jefferson's plans and drawings, thus restoring to our Nation one of its Shrines; and

Whereas, The preservation and recovery of Jefferson's beautiful historic house and estate at Monticello is a memorable work of patriotism and public spirit, that will enrich not only Virginia but the whole United States of America; now be it therefore

Resolved (if the House concur), that the General Assembly of Pennsylvania appoint a Commission, to be known as the "Thomas Jefferson Bicentennial Commission of

RESOLUTIONS

SCRANTON'S CENTENNIAL JUBILEE

Mr. CORDIER. Mr. Speaker, I desire to offer a resolution which is in the nature of a congratulation to the City of Scranton of which I am a native, on the occasion of its Centennial Jubilee on April 23 of this year.

Mr. CORDIER offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, March 10, 1941.

Whereas, The City of Scranton, the anthracite capital of the World, will celebrate its Centennial Jubilee on April 23, 1941; and

Whereas, This great city of Pennsylvania emphasizes the glorious development of our country over the one hundred years of its corporate existence; and

Whereas, The original population of this anthracite city was 1,169, and now numbers over 140,000 residents; and

Whereas, It has grown in stature as an industrial giant, with the real estate valuations rising from $453,000 in 1857 until in excess of one hundred million dollars in 1940; and

Whereas, Scranton was first in many of the great industrial achievements in this glorious country, among them being the manufacture of the first T-rails made on the American Continent, and first in the introduction of electric cars in this country upon which fares were collected; and

Whereas, The finest water supply in the World is to be found in the City of Scranton; and

Whereas, The country's largest lace mills and silk manufacturing mills are to be found in this productive metropolis; and

Whereas, Manufacturing establishments in Scranton are now manufacturing over forty separate products; and

Whereas, Scranton has become the center of the industrial life of the anthracite region, with five steam railroads serving it, and with highways in a state of excellent construction radiating from it to all corners of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, Its sons and daughters have spread throughout the country, bringing renown and fame to the city once known as Slocum Hollow, and now known as the Electric City; and

Whereas, Today Scranton stands as a jewel in the glorious diadem of cities comprising the urban development of this Commonwealth; therefore be it

Resolved, That the House of Representatives hereby salutes this great city of our Commonwealth on its 100th anniversary and hails Scranton for its achievement and for its future promise; and be it further

Resolved, That the House of Representatives wishes this great city to continue its glorious traditions for the coming centennial.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. McMILLEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I do not intend to read a speech or to take up much time, but previous to the big convention of the school directors of Pennsylvania, several members of the House thought we should prepare a questionnaire and have these delegates answer it and return it to us.

There are bills now in Committees in this House and in the Senate that I feel, and some of the other Members feel should have action by the Committees. I have compiled the answers of the delegates at the convention and have put a copy of the questionnaire and answers in each Member's box. You have it and can refer to it at any time. The Members who made up this questionnaire do not propose to prove or disprove any particular point, but being new Members it was a matter of information to us. We pass this information along to you with the hope that it will be of some use to you when you come to consider bills concerning communism, teachers' tenure, and what to do with the state teachers colleges.

I would just like to call your attention to several of these questions.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman yield for a moment? The Chair would inform the House that this is the gentleman's maiden speech and asks the members to be kind to him. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. McMILLEN. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

Question No. 1 is:

"Do you think the minimum salary in the fourth class districts should be one thousand dollars per year?"

Out of a possible five hundred and thirteen the "yeas" were three hundred fifty-seven; only one hundred twenty-six voted "No." Of course a few did not answer. I think that is conclusive evidence that the school directors of Pennsylvania are on record as favoring the increase in salary of teachers of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I want to call that to your attention because I think it is one of the most important spots in school legislation in the state.

Another thing to which I would like to call your attention briefly is question No. 8 which is as follows:

"Should membership in the Communist party or like organization be made a cause for dismissal of a teacher?"

There you will notice the answers are four hundred eighty-six "yeas" against twenty-one "nays" a very definite trend and reaction.

Going to question No. 12,

"Should we endeavor to indoctrinate our children with democratic ideals?"

There were four hundred four "yeas" out of a possible five hundred thirteen. Fifteen voted "no."

Coming down to question No. 14,

"Should we permit the teachers to select and teach foreign ideals of government?"

The answer is "yeas" sixteen and "nays" four hundred eighty-six. There you have a very definite trend of thought concerning the teaching of Communistic principles in our schools of Pennsylvania.

We had over in the Senate last week a hearing on this particular situation. I believe this information is very pertinent to that particular bill.

The rest of the information I will pass along to you and, Mr. Speaker, I hope that this may be constructively helpful. I ask consent of the House for this questionnaire be spread in full on the Legislative Journal.

The SPEAKER. Will the House give its unanimous consent to the insertion of the material referred to by the gentleman from Indiana, Mr. McMillen, in the Legislative Journal? Is there objection? The Chair hears none and consent is granted.

QUESTIONNAIRE

The attached questionnaire was drawn up by three members of this House, Messrs. Hare, Helm, McMillen, and presented to delegates attending the Pennsylvania School Directors Association convention, Harrisburg, February 7 and 8, 1941.

The totals tabulated with each question represents the answers of the delegates, only, and must not be construed to be conforming with nor contradicting the personal opinion held by any one of the three members named above.

There was a total of 513 questionnaires answered and turned in. If you check, you will notice that not every one answered each question. Why? We do not know.

Perhaps the most interesting of all were the comments on various questions. We have these and will be glad to make them available to any who may be interested.

We further wish to state that by this questionnaire we were not attempting to prove or disprove any theory or point, but to gain information pertinent to school matters now before this House.

Mr. Speaker, with the hope that this report may be constructively helpful, we ask that it be spread in full upon the journal of this House.

Messrs. HARE, HELM, McMILLEN

RESOLUTION

Mr. DALRYMPLE. Mr. Speaker, I desire to introduce a resolution which is sponsored by the Erie County Chapter of the Pennsylvania Truckers' Association. There is a bill on this same subject before the House, and I would ask the Speaker to rule on whether or not it shall be read.

The SPEAKER. This is not a privileged resolution. It will be filed with the clerk under the rules, and referred to the proper Committee.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I rise for the purpose of discussing legislation that was passed by this House last week. It has been referred to in the press as Moul-Woodring Bill. Ordinarily, I certainly would not take the time of the House to address it on legislation that has already been acted upon in this House. However, in the instant case there has been printed in a certain newspaper in this State certain criticism that is not only vicious, but it is absolutely unfair and distinctly unwarranted and certainly needs answering.

The articles I refer to refer to the legislation as, "A Bill to Kill Babies." Again it is referred to as the "Moul-Woodring Bill," and then states, it should be amended to read, "A bill to permit the delivery and sale of contaminated milk."

Mr. Speaker, I am at a loss to determine why such attacks are made on this particular bill of the nature of the present attack. I am at a loss to determine whether it is because of pure ignorance, that type of ignorance that permeated this nation back in the days of witchcraft, or whether it is a premeditated and unwarranted attack. Certainly be it either one or the other it does deserve the severest kind of condemnation on the floor of this House and in the press of this State.

I, therefore, Mr. Speaker, am going to take sufficient time to analyze for this newspaper, and for the state, what the existing legislation will be in this state if the Moul-Woodring Bill is finally passed. I am doing it because this attack is based on mob hysteria, on mob psychology, intended to frighten the mothers of this State, frighten the people of this state for some sinister purposes that at the present time is not apparent to me and perhaps to no one except those who initiated the attack.

Mr. Speaker, I call the attention of the Members of this House, and of the newspaper in particular to the Act of 1935, Pamphlet Laws 589, which law is in no manner affected by the present bill now in the Senate. First of all in section two I call to the attention of this House the fact that permits must be secured, reading in effect as follows:

> "Except as hereinafter provided, no person shall sell milk or milk products within this Commonwealth without first having obtained a permit from the Secretary, nor otherwise than in accordance with the requirements of this act. Each person desiring a permit to sell milk or milk products shall annually make an application on a form to be secured from the Secretary."

It goes on in detail to say what is set forth.

May I point out something else to the Members of this House? This is what is provided for in the Bill.

> "Permits shall be issued only to persons, whose entire milk supply, the farms, where it is produced and the milk plants in which the milk or milk products is handled, have been approved by the Secretary, and in any case in which, at his discretion he shall deem such action necessary for approval, inspected by the Secretary. Every permit shall expire annually."

Then going on further in section three, we find that this same Secretary has this power.

> "Permits may be refused, suspended or revoked by the Secretary if in his judgment the requirements of this act, and the rules and regulations made in conformity herewith are not complied with by the person making an application for a permit, or to whom a permit has already been issued."

Then those who are worried about the rights of local government, listen to this, and it is, not affected, by the amendment adopted in the Moul-Woodring Bill.

> "Section 5. The Secretary may constitute as his agent, for the purpose of issuing permits for the sale of milk or milk products a Department of Health, Board of Health, or Health Officer of any municipalty, and shall accept permits issued by municipalities under the terms of municipal ordinances equally as stringent as the requirements of this act and enforced by such municipalities as the only permit required for the sale of milk or milk products in such municipalities."

It is the only form required for the sale of milk products by such a municipality.

Now then, Mr. Speaker, let us see what is required in this act. What is placed in the Department of Health, is this, it states in Section 6:

> "Every person, having made an application for a permit to sell milk or milk products or holding a permit for the sale of milk or milk products, shall, at any time, allow the Secretary to inspect the herds, stables, and dairy farms from which milk is obtained, handled or prepared for sale, to inspect the milk plants, pasteurizing, bottling and handling of milk or milk products, examine books and papers wherein a record is kept of the name and address of each person from whom milk or milk products is purchased, the amount of milk or milk products purchased, and the date on which the milk or milk products was purchased, in any manner whatsoever and to take such samples of milk or milk products as may be deemed necessary upon payment therefor at the usual market price that payment is demanded."

Every particular item involved either in purchasing, handling or selling of milk comes distinctly within this province of the Department of Health.

Mr. Speaker, let us now turn to Section 7. Observe what is provided.

> "No person shall sell milk that does not bear prominently the designation 'certified milk' or 'raw milk' or 'milk for pasteurization' or 'pasteurized milk". Other designations may be used with the designation of 'raw milk' or 'pasteurized milk' provided the definition of such designation is filed and approved by the Secretary."

Then Mr. Speaker, let us go into the provisions concerning "raw milk. Raw milk is treated under Section 8. This is what is provided:

> "Raw milk shall be milk from a cow or cows, determined by physical examination and tuberculin tests conducted in accordance with the rules, regulations, and practices of the State Department of Agriculture pertaining to the individual accredited area plan or the modified accredited area plan to be free from communicable disease."

Does that sound as though we are going to permit milk from diseased cattle to be sold?

"The milk process shall be carried on in a cleanly manner. The milk shall be promptly cooled. The milk containers, utensils, and equipment shall be of such material and so constructed that they may be readily cleansed."

"Section 9—Every applicant for or holder of a permit to sell pasteurized milk or milk for pasteurization or milk products must meet certain requirements."

Then listen to this, Members of the House.

"No milk shall be received in any milk plant for any purposes, unless such milk or milk products shall have been produced on dairy farms, or acquired from milk plants approved by the Secretary, or unless permission for the receipt of such milk or milk products shall be obtained from the Secretary. Only milk or milk products may be prepared or processed in a milk plant."

Mr. Speaker, are we watching out for the welfare of the people? Are we protecting them? Isn't this article unwarranted from the reading of this act.

Then we go on into Section 10 relating to milk for pasteurization—the inspection or the watching over the same.

Section 11 refers to the milk containers in which milk for pasteurization is received in milk plants and dairy farms, must be thoroughly cleansed and dried before returning to the dairy farm.

"Section 13. Adequate facilities shall be provided and used for furnishing clean containers, free from injurious organisms in which to sell 'raw milk' or 'pasteurized milk' or 'milk for pasteurization' or 'milk products'."

Next, Mr. Speaker, we go into "milk plants" in section fourteen.

Section 15 provides for water supply.

Mr. Speaker, I particularly call the Members' attention to section 16.

"The Secretary of Health shall have the power to make requirements concerning the number, character of bacteria in milk and milk products after hearing.

"Bacteriological analysis of milk and milk products shall be made under the supervision of a laboratory, the equipment and director of which have been approved by the Secretary of Health. The bacteriological analysis of milk and milk products shall be in accordance with Standard Methods of Milk Analysis of the American Public Health Association and the Association of Official Agricultural Chemists last adopted, unless special permission is given by the secretary for modification of the above standard methods."

Then lastly in section 21, we find that this may be done.

"Whenever, in the opinion of the secretary, a given supply of milk or milk products is considered unsafe or a menace to public health, the secretary may seize, condemn, denature or destroy such milk or milk products without compensation to the owner or owners thereof."

"The general sanitary conditions of any place where milk or milk products are produced, stored, prepared or handled and its immediate surroundings shall be such to insure a safe and clean supply of milk or milk products.

"The Secretary shall have the right to exclude from sale any part of a milk supply that may be considered unsafe, or milk or milk products which is produced on dairy farms or handled in milk plants, which fail to meet the requirements of this act."

This act is so comprehensive, Mr. Speaker, and it so safeguards the welfare of our people, that I have taken the trouble to issue the following statement that I am going to read into the record.

"The milk dealers of Pennsylvania who have long controlled the distribution of milk to the detriment both of the farmer and the consumer are already working hard to discredit the Moul-Woodring Uniform Dairy Inspection Bill, which passed the House last week.

"False propaganda is being spread to the effect that a break-down in milk sanitation standards is threatened by this bill and that public health will thereby be endangered. This simply is not true. The act as amended creates a uniform standard for milk production throughout the Commonwealth under the administration of the State Department of Health much in the same manner as standards are set with regard to all other health matters effecting the people of our state.

"It is absurd to suppose that the State Secretary of Health would permit a break-down in requirements and standards that would endanger the public. There is nothing in the bill that will prohibit municipalities and other political subdivisions from setting up whatever requirements they deem necessary with regard to distribution of milk within their own border and continuing whatever inspection service they now have or may desire.

"This bill gives to the farmer the protection he has previously been denied in freeing him from a multiplicity of arbitrary and conflicting regulations which served to harass him and supplied no additional protection to the public."

May I add to that just this passing comment, Pittsburgh or rather the paper there that is complaining, if they would just take time to investigate whether butter-fat that is going into ice cream or other products, is legal. They find it is not. They find it is not affected, and of course I do not imagine they find any increased mortality in their babies. I imagine they will find that they are healthy, and the babies are certainly eating the ice cream. They will certainly find that their health standards are being protected.

"If these interests who seek to attack this measure are sincere and have any confidence whatsoever in the administration of the Health Department of the State they will address any justifiable and helpful criticisms to the Secretary of Health, who, under the provisions of the act has the power to make additional regulations.

"The farmer along with the consumer has for too long been a victim of the vicious practices of the dealer interests. The Democratic Party has pledged itself to correct this situation and I know that we of the Democratic Party, as well as those Republicans who joined us in voting for the bill, are much more interested in the health of the people of our state than the milk interests who are and have been solely motivated by desire for a profit."

Then I wish to call the attention of the Members of the House to one other statement contained in this newspaper. It is attributed to the Secretary of Health and this is the statement:

"Dr. Shaw pointed out that the relaxing of milk sanitation regulations would have detrimental effects on the milk industry itself through use by the consumers of other forms of milk and canned milk in the event of any suspicion of the fluid milk supply."

Now, may I say to the Members of this House that most of the milk supply furnished to the citizens of our State at the present time, the inspection thereof is limited to that inspection now carried on by the Department of Health. I dare say that the communities outside of those that already have their own milk inspection are just as healthy and just as sound, the individuals are just as well as they are in those communities wherein the municipalities maintain their own particular standards and inspection service. I am saying that believing I am accurate and correct in that statement. Then why, may I ask, did the Doctor make this statement? Is the Doctor fearful of the size of the job? Has the Doctor got doubt as to his ability? Doesn't the Doctor want to carry out the functions that are legislated into his office? Doesn't the Doctor want to perform the duties of the Department of Health? Is the Doctor running away from the problem? Is the Doctor an individual that we must say, should resign? Does this Doctor mean to say in this article that he cannot do the job? If so, then, Members of the House I say the Doctor should resign. I will go further and say that the Governor of this State should call the Doctor in and ask for an explanation, and if that is his story, demand his resignation.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have listened with very careful attention to the plea by way of confession and avoidance of the gentleman from Monroe, who in his best legal forensic ability has attempted to take the sting out of a blunder that was made last week and has attempted to turn it over on the Secretary of Health. I have no objection to the gentleman from Monroe trying to raise a smoke screen. He did it last week on the debate of this bill, and I was very much tempted to answer the gentleman at that time, but it seemed to me that the question was not one of political importance but one of real importance to the people and that the bill itself should be debated. So I refrained from saying anything to him.

You know Abraham Lincoln said you should never explain, because your enemies won't believe you and your friends don't need it. I have listened to the explanation of the gentleman from Monroe, and the reading of statutes, and all I can say to him is, I haven't a bit of sympathy for the predicament in which he and his colleagues find themselves at the present time, because they got themselves into it last week when they wouldn't stop, look, and listen, when the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Holland, asked if they would not postpone consideration of the bill until next Monday night until certain people could come here and talk it over with them and tell them some thing about their angles and the problems of the cities and the urban centers and give them a chance to determine just what should be done. I think I said at that time that I was in favor of relieving, as I am sure every Member of this House is, the farmers from this multiple inspection. If this bill does not take away any of the prerogatives of the municipalities or if it insures to them the kind of standards that they want, then the gentlemen on the other side have only themselves to blame because I asked the gentleman from York, Mr. Moul, whether this would prevent the municipalities from setting up their own standards and he said that it would not. If that doesn't take anything away, then I think that a little less of speed would have been a little bit better, especially for those who did not understand all of the provisions of the bill at that time. You know the old saying about the pitcher that goes to the well oftenest is the soonest broken. The gentleman from York, Mr. Moul, you remember, had quite some success with the resolution about rural electrification and you will recall that the embattled farmers of York, Adams and Fulton Counties had phobias of delay. It reminded me of the phrasiology used by the former member of the House, the gentleman from York, Mr. Cohen, phobias of delay. You will recall that Mr. Moul used that same language in regard to his resolution. Then undoubtedly, spurred on by his success with that action, he comes back with one on soil erosion. Well, he stubbed his toe a little bit on that, by getting all mixed up with the appropriation to State College. That wasn't quite so good. He managed to wangle this through the House on some appeal to the farmers.

This is a part of the program sponsored, as I have seen on four different occasions, by the Democrats to wean the farmers. This was going to do something for them. Then they came along last week, riding high, wide and handsome, with all the effect of the two plays that have gone before in an effort to wean the farmers—you fellows on the other side of the House thought perhaps too many of the farmers were Republicans and you had to get some of them on the Democratic side. Then you came along with this bill, and you were not going to stop, look and listen for anybody or anything; you were going to go straight ahead and pass this bill notwithstanding that we on this side were in favor of relieving the farmers of this multiple inspection, but we would like to know about these communities of ours, these boroughs as I told you, and townships in my county that like to set up their own standards. That sort of appeals to me as one of those home rule propositions that we like to talk about, in that these communities have some right to set up their own standards.

The difficulty with setting up state-wide standards is that they must meet the lowest level of standards because other places may want to drink milk of a little different standard, and it seems to me they ought to have that opportunity. You have got yourselves into this mess, and you are trying to find a way to let yourselves out of this hole. As a matter of fact, you did not help the farmers a bit as far as inspection is concerned. The gentleman from Susquehanna Mr. Ely, pointed out that you cannot get away from inspection by New Jersey, New York and other states. You cannot get away from inspection by the distributor. I do not believe there is any constitutional power to prevent the inspector from seeing what he is going to buy conforms to some other kind of standard. You have that on your hands. You will find a lot of inspections that you cannot get away from. Therefore, when you put through this bill to provide that there should be uniform inspection by the state, it was just one more step in that magnificent program of rural legislation to throw a sop—a milk sop in this case—to the farmer, and you got your feet all tangled up. You got yourselves stung down in one of those Democratic strongholds in Allegheny County. You are now reaping the whirlwind and, therefore, you are trying to put forth some kind of an alibi by trying to find somebody that you can throw bricks at, and you pick a newspaper and the Secretary of Health. I do not believe the people of Pennsylvania are going to pay a bit of attention to what you say.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE.

Mr. MOUL asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I want to assure the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, that we on this side of the House are not arising to apologize for anything that was done here last week. In fact I am certain that there are a great many members of his Party who voted for this bill last week, who if they had an opportunity to do so again tonight would vote exactly as they did then. The gentleman is getting excited and probably unduly alarmed at an early date because in due time we shall read to the House editorials and comments which are appearing in many newspapers throughout the State of Pennsylvania. If it is a fight to the death, as two or three newspapers and several people in Pennsylvania are saying, then we who represent the rural sections of Pennsylvania, I would say, on both sides of the House, are willing to accept that challenge and go through with it to the end.

The thing that prompts me tonight to ask permission to address the House is not to present any apology but to discuss with the House what I consider an unwarranted attack against the sponsors of the bill and against more than one hundred and fifty Members of this House who intelligently considered the particular bill for many weeks while it was resting in Committee, and in behalf of those Members who sat in that House Committee, Republicans and Democrats alike, on the Dairy Industries Committee, if you please, and not the Committee on Agriculture, but the Dairy Industry Committee, which reported the bill out after due study and fair consideration, and the more than one hundred and fifty Members of this House who had ample time to study the bill and who voted for it last week after they studied the bill. I submit to this House that it is most unwarranted for any newspaper or any person in this State to come back on the last day, when the House is considering this bill for a vote, after there was no protest on first reading, no protest on second reading, but finally on third reading when it was up for final passage, we suddenly find that all over the State, they would have us believe that almost over night every last citizen had suddenly decided that he was against the bill. I want to call to the attention of the House what I consider an attack against the intelligence of not myself, nor the two sponsors of the bill, not the gentlemen from Allegheny County who voted for this bill, but an insult to the intelligence of every Member of this House who voted for the bill after due study.

An article appeared in the Pittsburgh press on Wednesday, March 5, and this is what it said, in the headlines:

"A Bill to Kill Babies." I might add, before reading the article, that we did not hear a sound from the Pittsburgh Press in all the weeks that this bill was in committee. This is what it said:

"Suppose someone were to charge that it is the duty of the Democratic Party in Pennsylvania to endanger the lives of little babies, retard the recovery of invalids, and spread disease among the people, particularly of children.

"He would be denounced as an infamous liar and the charge would be branded as monstrous.

"Yet that is exactly what will happen if the bill to rip out Pittsburgh's milk ordinance and milk inspection system is passed by the Legislature. It went through the House on first reading yesterday."

That is the end of the quotation for the moment. That, by the way, is not correct at the time that this article was written.

Now returning to the quotation:

"It went through the House on first reading yesterday, after Philadelphia Democratic leaders, who are cuddling up to the dairy bloc in an effort to get farmer votes, refused to hold a hearing."

That is the end of the quotation again for the moment. That is not correct.

Returning to the quotation:

"This bill is so serious that we call it to the attention of all women's organizations and parent-teacher groups in particular, and to all other citizens and organizations in general.

"Pittsburgh has the finest milk regulations and inspection system in Pennsylvania—adopted and enforced as a means of protecting her citizens, and particularly her children, against disease and death.

"There has been introduced, at the behest of dairy interests, a bill to repeal these ordinances by making it impossible for any city to have rules more stringent than those existing for the state as a whole."

Further quoting upon the article:

"The bill, if enacted, will repeal Pittsburgh's prohibition against the importation of raw milk, will outlaw the city's rigid inspection of milk stations, eliminate the ordinance requiring that all milk be brought into the city and be delivered to homes in covered trucks, and kill the regulation requiring use of caps entirely shielding the tops of milk bottles."

That is the end of the quotation for the moment. The statements made in that paragraph, with very few exceptions, are absolutely false. At the end of the statement they state that the regulations against Bang's disease and undulant fever will no longer be required.

I want to call to the attention of the Members of the House that we have now in Committee and we will have on this floor very shortly a bill to provide enough money to test all the cattle in Pennsylvania against Bang's Disease so that the question of Bang's disease will be removed entirely from Pennsylvania, if the bill is written into law, and if an appropriation is granted there will be enough money available for the next two years so that all cattle will be tested for Bang's disease and undulant fever in Pennsylvania. That will be eliminated from the milk question in Pennsylvania. That bill, if you please, was presented by the farmer group of Pennsylvania.

The article continues and finally winds up with a statement that this bill will kill babies when it becomes law. I leave to you, gentlemen, whether or not that is an insult to the intelligence of the Members of this House who voted for the bill, after they had ample time to study and see the results of their study. When did the "Pittsburgh Press" study that bill? They say nothing about the contents of the bill. They simply write an article. However, several days later they apparently repented somewhat; they apparently got a little different idea and another article appeared on March seventh, a few days later, and here they say almost the opposite of what they said in the first article. In the first article, you remember, they said it would eliminate all protection. In the second they said it won't help the farmers.

I am now reading from the editorial appearing in the "Pittsburgh Press" under date of March 7, 1941:

"Sponsors of the Moul-Woodring Bill, which destroys the most vital provisions of Pittsburgh's excellent sanitary milk regulations, advance only one reason for enactment of this extraordinary selfish piece of legislation.

"They say they want to free the farmer of a 'multiplicity of regulation and inspections' and they say the Moul-Woodring Bill will do it.

"'If the bill passes the Senate,' says Representative Clayton E. Moul, co-author of the measure, 'he (the farmer) will be assured, for the first time in twenty years, of freedom from arbitrary, captious and useless inspection by local groups.'

"Nobody will quarrel with anyone's desire to be free of the red tape which has been imposed willy-nilly by the bureaucrats in government. But the farmers isn't the only one who suffers from a multiplicity of regulations. Everybody who has any dealings with government—and practically everybody does—is a victim of the bureaucrats.

"The multiplicity of regulations at Harrisburg has become so bad that the Legislature even now is taking steps to curb it.

"Mr. Moul says the farmer is beset by arbitrary, captious and useless inspections from three sources.

"He complains of regulations and inspections imposed by the State. He complains of regulations and inspections imposed by municipalities. He complains of regulations and inspections imposed by milk distributors and dealers.

"One inspector says the windows should be on the right side of the barn, he said. Another comes along and says the windows should be on the left side. The farmer doesn't know where he's at.

"But the Moul-Woodring Bill won't cure this situation. If it relieves the farmer of a 'multiplicity of regulations' at all, it will relieve him only to a negligible degree.

"The complaint about State inspections hardly can be of much importance since the State has only eleven inspectors for the whole Commonwealth.

"The Moul-Woodring Bill won't stop municipal inspectors from coming around. They still will have the right to inspect the facilities of milk producers whose products are sold in the municipalities. If, as Mr. Moul says, some of the municipal inspectors are 'captious,' they still will be captious, even though the scope of their captiousness may be somewhat reduced.

"As for regulations and inspections imposed by the milk distributors and dealers, the bill has no effect whatever. If the milk producer doesn't comply with the regulations and inspections of the dealer, the dealer still can refuse to buy his milk. There is no law—and can be no law—which will compel a dealer to buy milk from any special source.

"The Moul-Woodring bill won't eliminate a single inspector. It will not prevent the milk dealers from imposing any sanitary regulations they choose. It will not stop arbitrary, captious and useless inspections, if any such exist. The bill totally fails to accomplish the aims of its sponsors.

"But the bill will rip out the best and most vital sections of Pittsburgh's milk regulations.

"It will jeopardize the health and life of every milk consumer in the Pittsburgh area.

"It will permit the introduction of raw milk into the Pittsburgh market.

"It will open the way to the spread of disease among Pittsburgh's children.

"It will destroy a sanitary milk law in Pittsburgh which it has taken years to build up and which admittedly is one of the finest in the country.

"The bill accomplishes none of its avowed aims, but it does inflict a dangerous handicap on the public health. It is an arbitrary, captious and useless piece of legislation. And more, it is perilous gamble with human lives."

Then they go and tell you what you shall do. I do not know whether the same person wrote both articles or not, but it looks to me as though, if it was written by the same person on the fifth day of March and on the seventh of March, he certainly must have been having a debate with himself. I think what actually happened is that he rushed in on the fifth day of March and wrote an article because somebody said there was something in that bill. Then between the fifth and seventh he said it wasn't quite as he thought it was, and then he wrote another article on the seventh. It was no longer a "baby killer bill" on the seventh; it was much milder, and for that we thank him. But he still seems to be quite far off the trail. I think in fairness to the Members of this House the Pittsburgh Press should allow the sponsors of this bill, or someone in this House, to write an accurate account of what is actually in that bill, an accurate account of what we think the bill will do, and along with that print a copy of the bill itself so that the people of Pennsylvania will have an opportunity to see that this particular bill will not kill babies.

I myself am interested in milk, and, as the gentleman said, "and babies," I have four children all of whom were raised on raw milk that was checked for bacteria content and some of them are practically grown today and are hale and hearty. I think there are many other people who can say the same thing. I believe if we check the health of the people in our particular section, which takes in one of the largest cities in the state, a great industrial city, you will find that our health is not any worse than it was in the other sections of the State, and as we said when this bill went through the House, we had no objection to the Secretary of Health taking the highest health regulations and adopting them, the highest that exist in the State of Pennsylvania. If that is Pittsburgh, well, we are quite willing to accept them in York County and hope that you will adopt them so that you will get the benefit of it.

I don't like to burden the House with a lot of time, but there is still one other thing in another newspaper that I think should be read into the record at this time. Jumping down to Philadelphia. I am going to read the one that attacked the bill first, and as the day goes by we will read them on the other side of the fence. In the Philadelphia Inquirer under date of March seventh we find:

"City fights curb on milk control. State bill denounced by officials."

This particular article goes down the line and says that Doctor Martha Tracy, Assistant Director of the Department of Public Health, and William J. Wolf, Secretary of the Board of Health, warned that it might endanger the health and safety of Philadelphians. Further down the article says in one of its headlines: "Raw milk control." And then the article continues as follows:

"For example, under a city ordinance we control both raw and pasturized milk.

"We set up the conditions that cows which produce raw milk sold here must be not only tuberculin tested but also examined for Bang's disease and undulent fever. The State Code provides only for a tuberculin test."

Then they discussed the various inferences to the city of Philadelphia and the Health Department. Then it says that they are coming here from Philadelphia and they are going to fight to the death against the passage of this particular bill. They are very much interested in milk, but the funny thing is this, that while they are so alarmed in protecting the milk trust of Philadelphia, and they are willing to come to Harrisburg and spend the taxpayer's money, fighting for the milk trust, we find that a morning newspaper of Philadelphia, under the date of March tenth, the Philadelphia Record has an interesting article:

"'Water' In Tioga is inky black; City apathetic. Residents unable to drink smelly fluid, bathe or do washing.

"The burghers of Tioga are pining for the good old days of the 'Chlorine cocktail.'

"They're not kidding. The Philadelphia brand of water that used to come out of their faucets would taste like Sparkling Burbundy compared to the inky black slime they're getting these days.

"They've complained to the powers-that-be in City Hall hundreds of times; they've written their ward leaders; they've telephoned the Water Bureau until they've lost count.

"Yesterday they tried to get Mayor Lamberton at his home, but his secretary, Samuel Rosenberg, said the Mayor couldn't be disturbed on week-ends.

"Tiogans are in the main placid, unexcitable people. When the water had a brackish, milky appearance they didn't complain. They didn't even mind the chlorine taste.

"But now their water is black with a substance that's been described by Water Bureau officials as "coal dust.' It has an unbearable stench. It's impossible to drink even when filtered or boiled.

"When clothes are laundered, they come out covered with dark, greasy spots—irremovable except by a strong acid. Cooking with the 'ink' is impossible. Taking a bath is foolhardy"—

POINT OF ORDER

Mr. EDWIN A. LEE. Mr. Speaker, I rise to a point of order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his point of order.

Mr. EDWIN A. LEE. I don't mind the speaker picking on the city of Philadelphia, but, as you must drink the same water, I think it is about time to stop the gentleman from talking about water and put us back on the subject of the milk bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. MOUL. I will repeat, "Taking a bath is foolhardy, the bather coming out of the tub much dirtier than when he went in.

"Next Sunday a delegation of Tioga residents"—and by the way, Mr. Speaker, I would like to recommend that these Health Department officials in Philadelphia get ready for next Sunday because I think they say that "Next Sunday a delegation of Tioga residents are going in a body to Mayor Lamberton's home, 5335 Knox Street, and drink a toast to the city's chief executive in the water his administration has supplied. The toast will be (you guessed it) Mud in your eye.

"Leader of the protest is C. R. French, superintendent of the Tioga Manor Apartments, 23d and Estaugh Sts., who explained that the Sunday protest was the only way they expected to get 'any action.'

"We're all working people and Sunday is the only day we can get off to make a squawk, he said.

"His wife had fire in her eye when asked about the water.

"'Here, I'll show you,' she said. She pulled out some of her husband's shirts just out of the laundry tub. They were covered with black spots."

So the article continues. The point I'm trying to make with this article is that while the gentleman in the Health Department is running around to Harrisburg and fighting the battle of the milk trusts, because the farmers want a little decent inspection, he is allowing the whole of the city of Philadelphia, if this article is correct, to drink this black water and bathe in this black water. He does not seem to realize that there is a real health problem right there at his back door. I think it might be interesting if we could get some of these gentlemen who are so much interested in what the farmer is doing with his milk or his farm, to turn around and look into their own back yards, and see whether there isn't a little that they can do. Thank you gentlemen.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. DIX asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I have no desire to enter into a battle with that great dairyman from Monroe County, Attorney Leo Achterman, but I would like to read a newspaper article to correct the wrong impression that it is only the dairy bloc that is supporting this bill, and for the benefit of Mr. Moul, I would also say that while he was reading the article from the "Pittsburgh Press," he forgot to read a very important paragraph in that article and I would like, with your permission, Mr. Speaker, to read some of the paragraphs that Mr. Moul did not quote. I have this from the "Pittsburgh Press" of Sunday, March 8th, in this editorial which is headed, "Dirty Milk Will Kill Babies."

By the way, Mr. Speaker, I think myself that that term, "Dirty Milk Will Kill Babies," and the term, "Baby Killing Milk," is out of place, but it is exactly as much out of place as the Democrats were when they called the Pearson Work Bill a "work or starve bill," and there is just as much sense in calling this particular bill the "baby killing bill."

Turning back to the rest of it, Mr. Moul says that the milk trust opposed this bill. Here are the interests opposed to this bill, taken from the "Pittsburgh Press":

"The Pittsburgh Central Labor Union, representing all of the A. F. of L. unions of the city, voted unanimously their opposition of this bill.

"Milk Dairy Employes Union, Local 205, have passed a resolution declaring that 'the highest standard for milk should obtain at all times, and no law which restricts the rights of the municipality properly to protect its constituents should be enacted.'

"The Health Departments of Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Altoona and Wilkes-Barre have denounced the measure as a blow to sanitation and health. The Pennsylvania Medical Society has called for its defeat. So has the General Health Council of Allegheny County, so has the Civic Club of Allegheny County."

Mr. Speaker, I voted against this bill for the reason that I thought it would not get anybody anywhere. I believe that the underlying thought that is behind this bill is correct, in other words, to cure this multiplicity of inspection of the farmers, but this bill wouldn't do that. As I see it, it would take five hundred inspectors in Pennsylvania to inspect the one hundred and fifty thousand farms that we have. About the only reason that I can see why the Democratic side is in favor of this bill is that they hope, and of course, we know that this hope is not going to come true, but the Democratic side hopes that two years from now, they will be able to have a Governor in the Chair and have all the departments of the state government under their control, and that they will then be able to appoint these five hundred milk inspectors in order to milk the farmer.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. GEORGE E. JONES asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, two years ago I was a co-sponsor of a bill, and last week I voted for this bill, thinking that I was doing what was just and right. I did not know that they were going to make a political football out of this bill. I do not think it is fair. I think that the bill in principle is honest, true and all right. I think there is no doubt that there should not be a multiple inspection of dairy farmers, but when some of these fellows come here and say this and that and so forth, I want to say to you that two years ago I got up and made a motion to refer a bill back to committte, and I might say at that time the Democrats on the other side of the House put so much pressure on me, saying that the bill would possibly kill millions of babies. I don't believe that a bill could kill any babies. I think they are just making a whole lot of something out of this bill here tonight for political reasons. I think that is about right. I think that as the bill has already passed the House, enough has been said on this matter. Thank you.

INTERROGATION

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman from Delaware permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. TURNER. I shall, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. Mr. Speaker, can the gentleman from Delaware tell me how many Republicans voted for the Moul-Woodring bill?

Mr. TURNER. I did not count them, Mr. Speaker.

Mr. ACHTERMAN. I thank the gentleman from Delaware.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. ACHTERMAN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I am just a bit fearful that perhaps the gentleman from Delaware, Mr. Turner, may have created the impression that my remarks made earlier in the evening were for the purpose of defending the bill. On the contrary the remarks were made solely for the purpose of answering an attack by one of the newspapers of this State which I felt was unwarranted and unfair. I felt that the one hundred and three Democrats and the fifty-two Republicans who voted for that measure, and by the way, that is a majority of Democrats and a majority of Republicans, that the membership had the right to express themselves to that particular newspaper as to their feelings in regard to the attack that was being made in regard to their action in voting for that measure. It was solely for that reason that I rose this evening.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. TURNER asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker and members of the House, I think it was Shakespeare who said, "I think the lady doth protest too much."

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS THE HOUSE

Mr. REUBEN E. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, during this long and arduous debate on this milk question, there was a question raised concerning water in Philadelphia, and I think I might be very remiss in my loyalty to Philadelphia if I were not to get up and say a word in defense as a matter of explanation to all the Members of the House and visitors here tonight. It seems that muddy water is not only the proud possession of the State of Louisiana, but also muddy water has been in Philadelphia for too many years. The gentleman spoke about black spots on the clothing from the dirty water. I want to refer to an article in the Philadelphia Inquirer which shows a lady standing at her clothes line taking off her husband's shirt, apparently having just washed it and showing it to be muddy, her striped skirt was also muddy, and her arms muddy up to the elbows. The shirt is rather black, it is supposed to be wash day in Philadelphia.

Another phase of the water question. It really shows that the people of Philadelphia did not hearken to what the Philadelphia Inquirer said. The headline is "Monday, fair and colder" and the date is March 3, 1899.

The CHAIR would like to interrogate the gentleman from Dauphin Mr. Woodside. The Chair would like to ask the gentleman from Dauphin where his shirt was washed?

Mr. WOODSIDE. Mr. Speaker, you have not looked closely enough or you would not ask.

Mr. TURNER. I ask the Speaker to invite the gentleman from Dauphin to the rostrum. We ought to have both of you in one place.

The SPEAKER. The Chair invites the gentleman from Danphin to the rostrum.

SENATE

TUESDAY, March 11, 1941.

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS, offered the following prayer:

God of perfect light and life and love, whose effulgence is beyond the conception of man's mind, whose glory is completely indescribable, we worship Thee, the Triune God, in majesty coequal. Before the mountains were formed or ever Thou hadst made the earth and the world even from everlasting to everlasting Thou art God.

To meditate upon Thy goodness towards us and to compare our unworthy lives with Thine which is purity and righteousness and loveliness altogether, is it any wonder that man should exclaim: "O why the spirit of mortal be proud!"

It is quite necessary, Our Father, for us to pause sufficiently long to take a spiritual inventory of our lives amidst the daily routine of each day's labors that we may be humbled in our pride and make our haughty spirits to become meek.

Accept these our humble meditations expressed in prayer unto Thee this morning hour for Thy name's sake. Amen.

REPORT OF JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION AND JOINT LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE TO STUDY UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION

Mr. HEYBURN. Mr. President and members of the Senate, in pursuance of a House resolution and concurrent Senate resolution of the regular session of 1939, the Joint State Government Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation have completed a study of employer experience rating.

As Chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation, it is my privilege to submit this report for your consideration. It is my sincere belief that this work will be of historical value in helping to shape the course of Pennsylvania's industrial future by providing legislators with a more practical understanding of the purpose of experience rating, how it works, and its relation to the tax structure by which unemployment compensation is maintained by industry.

The report which has been placed on your desks is perhaps one of the most valuable and comprehensive ever undertaken by a legislative body and while it makes no recommendation on the adoption or rejection of experience rating for Pennsylvania employers, it lays the ground work for constructive analysis of the possibilities advanced by advocates and opponents of such a plan.

The subject of experience rating is a highly technical and controversial one, because of its many ramifications. As interpreted by the commission report, experience rating is a "method of contribution-rate adjustment based on the relative amount of unemployment for which the employer has been responsible in the past."

The report sketches the purpose of experience rating; methods used in rating experience of employers; experience rating in practice in other states; equity in assessing social costs; efficiency of claim administration; the prevention of excessive reserves; stabilization of employment and many other subjects of corollary importance.

The possible association of employer experience rating with the system of unemployment compensation now set up in Pennsylvania is, of course, directed at the benefits such an arrangement might provide for industries and all forms of business operating in the state.

As you undoubtedly are aware, Pennsylvania employers are required to pay a flat tax rate of 2.7 per cent of their payroll to the Bureau of Employment and Unemployment Compensation of the Department of Labor and Industry, and .3 per cent to the Social Security Board, making a total of 3 per cent in all that employers must pay regardless of variances in operating personnels.

This tax, of course, is the lifeblood of the unemployment compensation system and in its study of the problems evolving around this requirement, the commission was able to draw many interesting comparisons on the basis of experience rating plans now in use in other states.

It is difficult for the commission, on the strength of its study this far, to determine definitely what effect experience rating would have on different enterprises in Pennsylvania.

Advocates of experience rating contend that it will encourage industrial stabilization of employment, introduce equity into the payment of contributions, prevent unnecessary idle reserve surpluses and bring about an efficient and fair administration of unemployment compensation.

You will note that the report draws attention to the Texas Experience Rating Plan which provides for a sliding tax rate. The Texas Plan establishes a ceiling or maximum tax of 2.7 percent and a minimum of 1 per cent. It has been pointed out by proponents of this plan (which, I might add, is the one generally recommended for Pennsylvania's adoption) that this system would have a definite tendency to open new channels of enterprise by establishing a more equitable system of employer payments, based on organization personnel.

The more liberal Texas Plan, it is argued, offers employers direct and continuous incentive to regularize and expand employment and develop a reasonable allocation of the cost of unemployment compensation to be assumed by them.

In January, as you will recall, the Joint State Government Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation submitted to the General Assembly a 23 point program of recommendations for amending the Pennsylvania Unemployment Law. Twenty-two of these recommendations were incorporated in Senate Bill No. 80 introduced by Senators Miller, Dent, Wilson and myself.

One of the principal recommendations made at that time was a provision urging that Congress be memorialized to amend the Federal Laws so that the General Assembly could reduce the employer tax rate from 2.7 per cent to 2 per cent when the State Unemployment Compensation Fund was one and one-half times greater than that required to pay all benefits. This likewise was covered by Senate Resolution No. 104, introduced on January 28.

It is important to consider that the only way states could make a flat reduction of this tax would be to get authorization by passage of an amendment to the Federal Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code. Otherwise, experience rating would have to be adopted to permit tax rate adjustment.

According to latest reports made available to the commission the reserve fund is now close to $150,000,000. The amount paid out last year in benefits was $44,260,799 and the average paid out during the past three years was approximately $56,800,000.

Consequently, it would appear that since the reserve fund has reached a point that might be considered excessive in proportion to requirements, the Legislature has been presented with a direct avenue of approach to lay the ground work for a reduction in the present employer compensation rate.

Similarly, the recommendations made in January would provide employes with specific advantages in connection with excessive reserves.

Proponents of the employer experience rating plan for Pennsylvania have pointed out that the adoption of such a plan would provide a lower tax rate for employers and enable them to regulate employment with a view to possible expansion in principal industries.

Against this, we have the contention on the part of opponents of the plan that the experience rating system would not stabilize employment but would stabilize underemployment.

Thus, the subject of employer experience rating is a highly debatable one . . . a subject which on the basis of our findings to date, warrants further inquiry to make it complete and applicable to the problems associated with industry in the Commonwealth.

The past history of American business includes many examples of unstable organizations which, by means of more intelligent scheduling of their operations, have been able to iron out the peaks and valleys of employment curves to the mutual advantage of management and labor.

The report on experience rating in intended as a barometer of what might be accomplished in Pennsylvania as compared to the operation of this system in other states.

For example, four states now have experience rating; 13 additional states will put experience rating into effect this year and 19 other states, and the District of Columbia and Hawaii, have provisions for its adoption in 1942.

Only further study will determine whether its adoption will be of benefit to Pennsylvania and how this will take shape.

May I suggest that you scrutinize the report carefully and note particularly the elaborate tables which paint a concise picture of how merit or experience rating is being carried out in other states.

I am confident that the observations made in this direction will be of sound value in helping to map a practical legislative course for Pennsylvania, one in which industry's importance to the social and economic destiny of the Commonwealth will, I am sure, be given your conscientious consideration.

I wish to thank the members of my committee for their sincere attention to this study. In the Senate, I particularly wish to commend the gentlemen from Luzerne, Mr. Miller; the gentleman from Westmoreland, Mr. Dent, and the gentleman from Jefferson, Mr. Wilson.

A vote of acknowledgement is especially due Mr. A. Alfred Wasserman, director of the commission, for the invaluable statistical contributions which have helped make this work possible.

Through their efforts, this final study on unemployment compensation takes its place among other legislative documents which have shown the way to improvement within the Commonwealth.

The PRESIDENT. The Joint Report to the General Assembly of Recommendations for Amending the Unemployment Compensation Law, Part 2, Employer Experience Rating in Unemployment Compensation made by the Joint State Government Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee to study Unemployment Compensation Provisions, which is dated January 1941, will be noted in the Legislative Journal and printed copies distributed on the desks of the Senators.

RESOLUTION CALLED FROM TABLE

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I call up at this time for action concurrent resolution relating to the printing of the first report on tax and financial problems of the Commonwealth, and move its immediate adoption, as amended.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Geltz, moves that the resolution as amended be adopted.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, what is that resolution?

The PRESIDENT. For the information of the Senate, the Clerk will read the resolution, and then the amendment.

The Clerk read the resolution as amended as follows:

In the House of Representatives, February 26, 1941.

Whereas, The Joint State Government Commission of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania has, within the past few days published its "First Report on the Tax and Financial Problems of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the General Assembly," which contains information and studies of great value to the General Assembly and to the people of the Commonwealth; and

Whereas, The appropriation made for the use of the Joint State Government Commission permits the printing of a limited number of copies only of this report, which will be greatly inadequate to meet the demand for the same; therefore, be it

Resolved (if the Senate concur), That the General Assembly hereby authorizes and directs the printing of 2500 additional copies of the "First Report on the Tax and Financial Problems of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania to the General Assembly by The Joint State Government Commission of The General Assembly," and directs that the cost thereof be charged against the appropriation for printing required by the General Assembly. 1000 of said copies shall be for the use of the Joint State Government Commission.

QUESTION OF PARLIAMENTARY INQUIRY

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I rise to a question of parliamentary inquiry.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of parliamentary inquiry.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, does this resolution come from the House?

The PRESIDENT. The Chair so understands.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, are they asking unanimous consent to its consideration at this time?

The PRESIDENT. As amended.

Mr. SHAPIRO. As amended, Mr. President.

The PRESIDENT. Yes.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am obliged to object, because of the preamble. I do not want to put myself on record as to whether this report is of great value or not. I have no objection, Mr. President, to the purpose of the resolution, but I object to the statement in this resolution that the publication is of great value. The trouble with most of these resolutions is that they have a good purpose, but they start off making legislation and making declarations of fact which I do not agree with.

MOTION TO LAY ON TABLE

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I move that the resolution be laid on the table for the time being.

Mr. JASPAN. I second the motion, Mr. President.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I ask my colleagues to vote against this motion.

The PRESIDENT. The question before the Senate is as to the adoption of the motion made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, which was seconded by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Jaspan, that the resolution be laid on the table.

MOTION WITHDRAWN

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, if the gentleman from Allegheny does not want the resolution laid on the table, I will withdraw my motion, and I will enter my objection to unanimous consideration at this time.

My reason for moving to lay it on the table was for the purpose of having it amended, which can be done promptly without interference. I will withdraw my motion to lay the resolution on the table and ask the seconder to withdraw his motion.

Mr. JASPAN. Mr. President, I withdraw my seconding of the motion made by the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro.

The PRESIDENT. The motion of the Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, seconded by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Jaspan to lay the resolution on the table is withdrawn.

The Senator from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, has objected to unanimous consent and the resolution will go over for a day.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I realize some of my colleagues have a dinner engagement so I shall be very brief in giving you my point of personal privilege.

I think all of my colleagues this morning received in the mail a copy of the Johnstown Democrat edited by a lifelong friend of mine known as Hiram G. Andrews. Mr. President, in this column of his this man attacks members of the House and Senate on their votes and on their actions regarding the Eckels Milk Bill.

Mr. President, he goes on and states the bill is very unfair, and I will quote one of his paragraphs:

"What price democracy? A few pints of milk? There is no more reason why families should be required to buy a definite quantity of milk each day than there is why they should be required to buy so many pounds of potatoes each week. The Eckels bill is State Socialism, Naziism, Hitlerism, Fascism gone mad. It is the most outrageous invasion of elementary human rights ever attempted in any democratic country. The men who sponsored the Eckels bill were thoroughly selfish and the legislators who enacted it probably did so in a weak moment.

"Senator Haluska, and at least two of his legislators from the north of the county, are FOR the Eckels bill and will OPPOSE its repeal. Haluska's stand is not surprising, since the milk distributors have always contended that 'Haluska always did whatever we asked him to do.'"

Mr. President, this man, I charge, has gone mad. I shall at a later date read into the journal some of the remarks he has made ever since I have been reelected to this body. I might state for the information of my colleagues that the same man who wrote this article happened to be my opponent, seeking the same seat I now hold. Ever since the day I defeated him, he has continuously written about me and has been very unfair, and I charge he has gone mad when he states that the milk dealers always told him that I was under their control.

I doubt if I have ever received any votes from the milk dealers; if I have, it was beyond my knowledge. I resent a newspaper man who will send out such an editorial to the members of this body and say they were selfish when they voted for such a bill.

As I said a moment ago, I will probably next week bring before this body certain charges that have appeared in the Johnstown Democrat in the last twelve months.

RECESS

Mr GELZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess until 4:30 o'clock, p. m.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

INTERROGATION

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Allegheny permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. WALKER. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman tell me whether or not the committee of which he is the Chairman had a meeting this afternoon.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the answer is, yes.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman tell me whether or not there was any action on Senate Bill 133 which is in his committee.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, the answer is, yes.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether or not the bill was read.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I can only answer for one member of the committee and that is myself; as far as I am concerned, the answer again is yes.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Allegheny realize or have any idea as to what Senate Bill 133 relates to?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, Senate Bill 133 is commonly described by my colleagues as the bingo bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether or not that bill was discussed?

Mr. WALKER. The bill was discussed, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me what action was taken on that bill?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have no objection to telling the gentleman from Cambria that the action of the committee was to indefinitely postpone the bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether the same action was taken on Senate Bill 134.

Mr. WALKER. I might say, Mr. President, the same action was taken on Senate Bills 134 and 135.

Mr. HALUSKA. Senate Bill 134 relates to what, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, Senate Bill 134 relates to slot machines and other similar devices of skill or chance.

Mr. HALUSKA. Will the gentleman from Allegheny tell us what Senate Bill 135 relates to?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, Senate Bill 135 was the bill to establish horse racing in Pennsylvania—I beg your pardon, Senate Bill 135 is your pin ball game.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether action on that bill was also postponed?

Mr. WALKER. Yes, Mr. President. May I say, Mr. President, in order to clarify what was said as to the horse racing bill, which is Senate Bill 96, and in order to save the gentleman from Cambria further interrogation, this bill was very carefully considered by the committee, and that is the bill to regulate horse racing and wagers on the results, and I might say for the information of the gentleman from Cambria that that bill was also indefinitely postponed by the committee.

Mr. HALUSKA. Will the gentleman from Allegheny tell me whether or not he has any knowledge of pin ball games being used in different places of amusement such as drug stores, hotels and whatnot in this Commonwealth?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have observed various citizens of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania amusing themselves by playing pin ball machines, or machines that I took to be pin ball machines, at various places in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

Mr. HALUSKA. Will the gentleman from Allegheny state whether or not he knows they are illegal?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I am an attorney and I refuse to give legal advice free.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Allegheny state whether or not the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is today collecting a mercantile tax on pin ball machines?

Mr. WALKER. I am so advised, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, the gentleman does have knowledge they are collecting a mercantile tax from pin ball machines?

Mr. WALKER. I am so advised, that they are collecting a mercantile tax on pin ball machines.

Mr. HALUSKA. Despite the fact that it might be illegal?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, there again I refer the gentleman from Cambria to my former answer; I am not passing on the legality of pin ball machines.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, does the gentleman from Allegheny know whether or not his own county or his own city of Pittsburgh has an ordinance on its books asking and collecting a tax on pin ball machines?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, may I say the Borough of Oakmont does not have such an ordinance?

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, does the gentleman know whether or not that statement applies to the City of Pittsburgh?

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not reside in Pittsburgh and I am not familiar with the ordinances and as yet the bill requiring me to take judicial notice of ordinances is not a law.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria may proceed.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I wish to state it may be a laughing matter but the fact does remain that a number of counties in this Commonwealth and a large number of cities are collecting revenue from pin ball machines and I have further knowledge that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is collecting mercantile taxes on pin ball machines and I have further knowledge that in certain counties after they had collected the revenue from pin ball machines the State Police went back to the same places and had them arrested for gambling and having illegal machines on the floor.

I think a bill of that importance should be brought out of committee, and give to the people of this Commonwealth an opportunity to have a public hearing. We above all should know whether or not when we play these pin ball machines we are playing them legally or illegally.

I think a bill of that type should be brought out of committee and placed before this body and we should decide whether or not we have a right to play those machines.

Some weeks ago the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, introduced a resolution pointing out that the amount of money received for housing by relief clients is inadequate. I am told the reason they pay such a small sum is because they do not have sufficient revenue to pay more. I have shown in my humble way how it is possible to license these machines and give these folks who are on relief a decent standard of living.

But no, you find fault with my proposals; you find fault with all of them; and I dare say ninety per cent of you will go down the street tonight and play these pin ball machines, and down in your hearts you really believe you are doing it legally.

I say if it is illegal we should ask for enforcement and if it is legal let us here enact legislation and derive a revenue from these machines.

Mr. President, these machines all come from out of the state; are sent in on a commission basis and we spend thousands and thousands of dollars in these machines daily and the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is not receiving any money from same, only in some cases where they collect a mercantile tax one day and then go back the next day and have them arrested for conducting these games.

So. Mr. President, I am very much surprised—you know, Mr. Walker, your committee saw fit to postpone these bills. I am satisfied that they had no care for the poor people of our Commonwealth and certainly your committee is responsible if Mr. Kephart's resolution stays in committee because there is not sufficient revenue to take care of the people of our Commonwealth.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I interrogate the gentleman from Cambria?

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Cambria permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. HALUSKA. With pleasure, Mr. President.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to ask the gentleman from Cambria if it is not true all of the bills that he has referred to in his remarks are revenue producing measures.

Mr. HALUSKA. The preamble of the bill speaks for itself and the gentleman from Allegheny said a while ago he was an attorney and if he is one he knows the question is out of order.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I desire to point out to the gentleman from Cambria, and I am not in the least violating my suggestion as a lawyer who hates to practice law for fun, that the bills referred to by the gentleman from Cambria are revenue producing bills, revenue measures, and it is my impression the Constitution requires that such bills be introduced in the House, so the gentleman from Cambria should not be surprised as to any action taken by the committee.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, that calls for an answer. Senate Bill No. 135 is a bill to legalize and regulate the practice of playing pin ball games, hi-score games or other games or devices of skill imposing a license fee on all keepers of such games, providing for the collection of said fee and imposing certain duties upon mercantile appraisers, county treasurers and the Department of Revenue, and appropriating the proceeds from such fees to the Department of Welfare.

That, Mr. President, I believe answers the question as put by the gentleman from Allegheny; it is not a direct revenue raising bill.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I do not care to carry on this discussion any further. I refuse to argue medicine with a doctor for very obvious reasons and I have no desire to argue law with a layman, but may I suggest the gentleman from Cambria has just proven the point they are revenue raising measures and rightfully belong in the House and not in the Senate.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I desire to speak on a further question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Cambria may proceed.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, I will be very brief. This morning I spoke briefly on an editorial appearing in the Johnstown Democrat. This evening I will speak briefly on another editorial, appearing in the Pittsburgh Press last Sunday, edited by a friend of mine called Ken McFarland. I would like it to be known that Mr. McFarland and I have enjoyed very good friendship but last Sunday he spoke of two of my colleagues, including myself. He pointed out that under the question of personal privilege the Senate has abused it very much. He might be correct. He pointed cut that my friend, the gentleman from Warren, Dr. Chapman, has taken up a lot of space in the editorials or else in the journal and it has cost, I think he quoted a figure of eleven hundred dollars a page. He further quoted that my colleague from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, has cost the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania three hundred dollars per page. Then he goes down the line and points to the Senator from Cambria, myself, and says my speeches were short but I made eight of them and they cost less than ninety dollars per page.

Mr. President, I do not know what we are coming to but it all reminds me of an incident which happened back in 1935 in the House of Representatives when the late Speaker of the House, Mr. Sarig, one afternoon, being in a joyful mood ascended the rostrum, brought down the gavel and said, "All visitors take their seats and the members retire to the gallery."

I think, Mr. President, the Pittsburgh press is now trying to insinuate that all members of this Senate should retire to the gallery and the press writers take our seats.

RECESS

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, I move that the Senate do now take a recess for ten minutes.

Mr. SCARLETT. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

AFTER RECESS

The PRESIDENT. The time of recess having elapsed the Senate will be in order.

GRANTING USE OF SENATE CHAMBER FOR A PUBLIC HEARING TO COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.

EXECUTIVE SESSION

By unanimous consent,

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. TAYLOR

That Rule 38 which requires nominations made by the Governor be referred to an appropriate committee be dispensed with, and the Senate do now resolve itself into Executive Session, for the purpose of acting on the foregoing nominations.

Which was agreed to.

Whereupon,

A motion was made by Mr. JAMES and Mr. TAYLOR

That the Senate do advise and consent to said nominations.

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The PRESIDENT. Is it the desire of the Senate that the nominations be acted on individually or collectively?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I suggest that we act on them as a whole, unless there is objection.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair hears none. It is so ordered.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to make a statement in connection with the nominations for the Board of Trustees of the Philadelphia State Hospital. There has been some evidence here of the method of appointments by the Governor and I want to say very frankly that I do not like the proceedings under which we are now working. The Constitution of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania provides the Governor shall ask our advice and consent and for many years I have taken the position the Governor does not seek our advice and our consent does not mean anything because if we do not consent the Governor appoints them again after we leave. Generally speaking we are handed a list of names and we are told to approve or disapprove of these people and we are becoming more and more in the nature of a rubber stamp.

One thing I do object to and I think we can make it a matter of record, is that when an institution is to be governed it ought to be governed, if it is local, by people in the locality. It is possible if we wanted to take the time to examine the qualifications of each person—but it would not make any difference because if they did not suit us and we did not approve the nominations the Governor would appoint them anyway.

As to Philadelphia, Mr. President, ordinarily I would have raised an objection and withheld action on the Board of Trustees for the Philadelphia Hospital as far as it was in my power, if it were not for the fact that the hospital has been unlawfully and illegally operated for a period of almost two years now, because the law requires it shall be operated by a Board of Trustees. A Board of Trustees was nominated by the former Governor of this Commonwealth and the nominations were withdrawn within two days after the present Governor took office and for eighteen months thereafter no reappointments were made.

Recently, Mr. President, when we convened or right before we convened appointments were made to that institution and of the five persons appointed, three of them do not live in Philadelphia and of the other two, so far as I am concerned, only one is known to me and that is Dr. Bond, who was a member of the old board, and while I am voting for these people because I cannot do anything else about it I am making the statement for the purpose of this record that I think appointments to institutions of this type should be made by people who know something about what is going on and by persons who live in the community.

Mr. President, I make the statement now that information has come to my knowledge within the last forty-eight hours that one man was within the last four or five days beaten up by one of the guards, and all that was done with regard to the guards in Byberry was to have one of them suspended and the other may or may not be discharged. The man is still on his back, he has been physically beaten up by one of the guards who was drunk, and under those circumstances, as an illustration, in addition to the fact that there were over four hundred deaths in Byberry in 1940, the people in charge of such institutions should know something about them. I am voting in favor of these people because there is nothing else we can do about it.

I may say very frankly I propose to introduce a bill which would make it impossible for the Governor to reappoint persons after they were once refused or rejected by the Senate, or not acted upon but from a study of the Constitution and cases decided under the provisions of the Constitution I am of the opinion we can do nothing about it and under all the circumstances all I can do is to voice my protest and make it a matter of record.

Mr. EDMONDS. Mr. President, there is only one of those five nominees known to me but I think it only fair to state that Dr. Earl Bond is a man not only of the highest character but of the highest professional reputation and it seems to me if the other appointments equal that grade they certainly ought to be satisfactory to the people of this Commonwealth.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, Dr. Bond was one of the men I originally recommended to Governor Earl for appointment to the Board. The original Board of Trustees consisted of men who were known in the community of Philadelphia. When all of us, Democrat and Republican appointees alike, proceeded to organize that Board of Trustees we unanimously chose Mr. William A. Schnader, former Attorney General and a Republican, as chairman of our board.

Another very eminent man on there was Dr. William A. Krusen, a Republican, and formerly Director of Health in Philadelphia.

We had a very fine board, Mr. President, and the fact that I was a member of that board prevents me from saying anything, but outside of myself there could not have been a word of criticism directed against them.

I know Dr. Bond and I know he is a man that knows his business but I venture to fear very much for what will happen when he is confronted with four or five other people on the board about whom nobody knows anything, and certainly people who do not live in the community, and as I am informed, one of them happens to be a painter somewhere in North Philadelphia.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the motion?

The yeas and nays were taken agreeably to the provisions of the Constitution, and were as follows, viz:

YEAS—42

Barr,	Ealy,	Lanius,	Shapiro,
Bartlett,	Edmonds,	Letzler,	Snowden,
Becker,	Farrell,	Mallery,	Stevenson,

Deitrick,	Kephart,

NAYS—0

Two-thirds of all the Senators having voted "aye" the question was determined in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Governor be informed accordingly.

EXECUTIVE SESSION RISES

Mr. JAMES. Mr. President, I move that the Executive Session do now rise.

Mr. EALY. Mr. President, I second the motion.

The motion was agreed to.

Will the Senate agree to returning the nominations to the Governor.

It was agreed to.

SAINT PATRICK'S DAY DINNER

The PRESIDENT. The Chair understands the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. McCreesh, desires to make a statement.

Mr. McCREESH. Mr. President, I would like to remind the Senate of the fact that next Tuesday night there is to be a dinner at the Penn Harris Hotel and the committee would like to have the members of the Senate procure their tickets as quickly as possible so that we may make arrangements to seat them.

The Chair has a letter which I would like to have read for the information of the Senate.

The letter was read as follows:

"March 11, 1941.

"Senator McGinnis,
State Senate.

"Dear Senator:

"Will you please address the Senate today, explaining to them that the Bi-Annual Dinner of the Legislative Sons of Saint Patrick will be held at the Penn-Harris Hotel, Tuesday, March 18, 1941 at 8 p. m.

"Tickets will be $4.00 per plate. This includes dinner, refreshments and entertainment.

"Please impress the senators with the necessity of making reservations before the session ends this week.

"Tables for 6 persons and 8 persons are available.

"Make reservations at the office of the Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives."

APPOINTMENT OF COMMITTEE TO INVESTIGATE APPOINTMENTS TO SHAMOKIN STATE HOSPITAL

The PRESIDENT. On behalf of the President Pro Tem, the gentleman from Somerset, Mr. Ealy, in conformity with the resolution offered by the gentleman from Northumberland, Mr. Dietrick. to investigate the Shamokin State Hospital, the following appointments are announced.

The gentleman from Northumberland, Dr. DIETRICK.
The gentleman from Warren, Dr. CHAPMAN.
The gentleman from Washington, Mr. REED.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I rise to a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. McGinnis, will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, in connection with the letter just read I might state that for a number of years the Legislative Sons of St Patrick at every regular session of the Legislature have arranged for a dinner to celebrate St. Patrick's birthday. I happen to be a member of that committee, appointed by the President Pro Tempore of this Senate, working with the members from the House appointed by the Speaker of the House, the committee met last night and arranged for the dinner, refreshments and entertainment next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock at the Penn-Harris Hotel.

Tickets are four dollars each and ladies are welcome—at four dollars each.

Tables are arranged for six and eight at a table. Any group that wishes a table of six or eight may have it.

The committee, in order to have a successful entertainment and lay all the plans, ought to know this week how many intend to be present. It is difficult for the hotel to arrange and it is difficult for the committee to arrange for entertainment and space and so forth unless the committee knows this week just how many are going to attend.

Mr. President, the entertainment will be of the best; we will have music, Irish music, with Irish tenors direct from the Emerald Isle and Irish music galore.

I can assure all of those who have not attended any of those dinners previously that they will have a delightful evening and will never regret attending.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I should like to say a word in behalf of this dinner. For years I have been trained in the theory and the practice of the Catholic religion. I recall as a boy when I passed St. Augustine's Church at Fourth and New Streets, between Green and Fairmount Avenue, if I did not raise my hat I always got my block knocked off.

I remember the great consternation in my family when I came home and told them some of the young gentlemen who were my colleagues at that time had dragged me into the Church and baptized me with holy water, and as a result of that I have acquired a feeling of kinship toward the whole movement and feel it ought to be encouraged.

I am going to attend the dinner myself, even if I have to buy a ticket, and I am going to assure the gentlemen, as soon as they get this on a paying basis, I am going to arrange for Rabbi Bookstaber of Harrisburg to take it over—just as soon as you put it on a paying basis.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair might as well set an example for the Senators and purchase his ticket.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I might add for the information of the Senators that the tickets for this dinner of the Legislative Sons of St. Patrick to be held next Tuesday evening at eight o'clock may be purchased downstairs from the Chief Clerk of the House.

Mr. BARR. Mr. President, you may return that money because the Chair is invited, as is the Governor, the President Pro Tempore, and the Speaker of the House. You are the only ones who will get in free.

The PRESIDENT. The Chair does not desire to be under any obligation to the Irish. The Chair hopes the Governor and the President Pro Tempore will do likewise because the Chair knows it will cost money to put on entertainment like the Legislative Sons of St. Patrick puts on.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, mentioned that he is going to invite Rabbi Bookstaber to attend the dinner and in connection with that let me say that in 1937 the then Speaker of the House, Roy Furman, introduced the Rabbi to the Assembly as the Archbishop of the local Jewish Diocese.

The SPEAKER (Elmer Kilroy) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. DONALD McFALL offered the following prayer:

Dear Heavenly Father, This day, we pause to ask for strength that we may work the works that Thou would'st have us to do, while it is day. May we not be mindful only to the needs of self but to the needs of those around about us-our neighbors. Remind us, O God, that this matter of 'doing good' is not optional, but is a commandment from Thee, which if obeyed will bring great joy to the hearts of those we are privileged to minister unto as well as a warning of our own heart in the effort put forth. Help us to be good servants of Thine, we pray. Amen.

JOURNAL APPROVED

JOINT REPORT OF JOINT STATE GOVERNMENT COMMISSION PENNSYLVANIA UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION LAW—PART 2

Mr. TROUT. Mr Speaker, in pursuance of a House Resolution of the Regular Session of 1939, the Joint State Government Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation have completed a study of employer experience rating. As a member of the Joint Legislative Committee, it is my privilege to present this Report for your consideration.

The Report is perhaps one of the most important studies ever undertaken by a legislative group and it is my sincere belief that this work will be a vital aid in charting the course of Pennsylvania's industrial future. It provides a comprehensive analysis of the purpose of experience rating and its relation to the tax structure by which unemployment compensation is maintained by industry.

The subject of experience rating is one which has occupied the attention of legislators for some time now because, in a sense, it represents a barometer of industry's progress and provides a method for regulating employment so that the problems of unemployment compensation can be brought within understandable focus.

Experience rating, in its basic definition, is a system for determining the ratio of employer payments into the unemployment compensation fund. It is a highly technical and controversial subject because of its many ramifications.

The study of experience rating was one involving extensive research and you will find that in its effort to present an accurate picture of this subject, the Committee went far afield to make sweeping probes of similar systems now in use in other states.

As a result of its findings, the Committee and the Commission make no recommendation for the adoption or rejection of an employer experience rating plan for Pennsylvania and it modifies its stand by introducing a list of "pro and con' arguments which indicate very clearly that further inquiry into the subject is necessary before its benefits to the Commonwealth can be fully ascertained.

It is significant, however, that this exhaustive study lays a solid groundwork for constructive analysis of the possibilities advanced by advocates and opponents of such a plan. From this broad base, it is believed a progressive course of action will spring.

The report provides an interesting summary of experience rating as interpreted on a national scale; methods used in rating the experience of employers' comparison of systems used by different states; equity in assessing social costs; stabilization of employment; efficiency of claim administration and the prevention of excessive reserves.

Proponents of the experience rating plan have drawn a sharp comparison between the flat tax rate now paid by Pennsylvania employers and the fluctuating scale observed under the Texas Experience Rating Plan.

Here in Pennsylvania, employers are obliged to pay a standard tax of two and seven-tenth per cent to the Bureau of Employment and Unemployment Compensation of the Department of Labor and Industry, and three per cent to the Social Security Board, or a total of three per cent.

Under the Texas Plan, it is pointed out, the ceiling or maximum scale is two and seven-tenth per cent with provision for a minimum of one per cent, as based on variances in operating personnel. This plan, its sponsors contend, encourages industry to stabilize employment because of the lower tax incentive.

Advocates of this plan for Pennsylvania have pointed out that its adoption would give industry new outlets for its energies and create a wave of expansion that would be felt in all branches of trade and commerce.

The past history of American business is filled with examples of organizations which have been able to iron out the ups and downs of employment by a more intelligent scheduling of their operations and the report on experience rating is intended to show what might be accomplished in Pennsylvania if a system applicable to its requirements can be developed.

It is difficult for the Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee, on the strength of its study this far, to determine definitely what effect experience rating would have on different enterprises in Pennsylvania.

The more liberal Texas plan, it is argued, offers employers direct and continuous incentive to regularize and expand employment and develop a reasonable allocation of the cost of unemployment compensation to be assumed by them.

In January, as you will recall, the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation and the Joint State Government Commission submitted to the General Assembly a twenty-three point program of recommendations for amending the Pennsylvania Unemployment Law. Twenty-two of these recommendations were incorporated in Senate Bill No. 80 introduced by Senators Miller, Dent, Wilson and Heyburn.

One of the principal recommendations made at that time was a provision urging that Congress be memorialized to amend the Federal laws so that the General Assembly could reduce the employer tax rate from two and seven-tenth per cent to two percent when the state unemployment compensation fund was one and one-half times greater than that required to pay all benefits. This likewise was covered by Senate Resolution No. 104, introduced on January 28th.

It is important to consider that the only way states could make a flat reduction of this tax would be to get authorization by passage of an amendment to the Federal Social Security Act and the Internal Revenue Code. Otherwise, experience rating would have to be adopted to permit tax rate adjustment.

According to the latest reports made available the reserve fund is now close to one hundred and fifty million dollars. The amount paid out last year in benefits was forty-four million, two hundred sixty thousand and seven hundred ninety-nine dollars and the average paid out during the past three years was approximately fifty-six million, eight hundred thousand dollars.

Consequently, it would appear that since the reserve fund has reached a point that might be considered excessive in proportion to requirements, the legislature has been presented with a direct avenue of approach to lay the groundwork for a reduction in the present employer compensation rate.

Similarly the recommendations made in January would provide employes with specific advantages in connection with excessive reserves.

Only further study will determine whether its adoption will be of benefit to Pennsylvania and how this will shape.

May I suggest that you scrutinize the report carefully and note particularly the elaborate tables which paint a concise picture of how merit or experience rating is being carried out in other states.

I am confident that the observations made in this direction will be of sound value in helping to map a practical legislative course for Pennsylvania, one in which industry's importance to the social and economic destiny of the Commonwealth, will, I am sure, be given your conscientious consideration.

I wish to thank the members of the Joint State Government Commission and the Joint Legislative Committee to Study Unemployment Compensation for their sincere attention to this study.

A vote of acknowledgment is especially due Mr. A. Alfred Wasserman, Director of the Commission, for the invaluable statistical contributions which have helped make this work possible.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. MARSHALL M. COHEN asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, approximately two months ago this House convened for the performance of its Legislative duties. Likewise, approximately two months have elapsed since I took my oath of office as a Member of this august body, representing the city of Lancaster. When I assumed my official duties, I then and there determined that I would not embark on any oral outbursts unless something of vital importance to my community particularly, and to the state of Pennsylvania generally, would confront us for attention.

Just such a situation has been foisted upon us by the antics of the Chief Executive of this Commonwealth which we proudly call our own.

This fair-haired lad has traded punches in public with his genial Secretary of the Department of Commerce and thus provoked a conflagration that will lead ultimately to the extermination of the Department of Commerce, that surplus commodity of the Chief Executive's imagination.

The Department of Commerce was conceived amid great fanfare on the part of the Chief Executive who at that time vowed a holy vow that this new creation would be the divine saviour of industry in this state. He averred that this new creation would seduce the Gods of Commerce and siren-like would attract industry to Pennsylvania, the new Utopia. He imputed that Governor Earle through the medium of the detested emergency taxes had turned Pennsylvania into a barren land where neither fowl or vegetation could thrive. This twenty century version of Jeremiah raised his voice in denunciation of the emergency taxes and at the propritious moment pulled out of his hat the optical illusion which we all now know as the Department of Commerce. The Chief Executive gleefully purred that he had found the panacea for all our ills—the Department of Commerce.

All of us had misgivings when the Chief Executive set afloat on the sea of controversy this pious fraud known as the Department of Commerce. This new creation was an expensive extravanganza "a la Ziegfeld" which imposed an unnecessary burden on the taxpayers of this state of three hundred fifty-eight thousand dollars in the 1939-41 biennium.

The Chief Executive in his new Budget for the biennium beginning 1941 desired to add a few new frills to the already grossly ornamented Department and has asked for a fifteen per cent additional appropriation. He has asked us to appropriate four hundred twelve thousand dollars for this new fad. I wonder if this increase is to glamorize, with Hollywood settings, probably with Heddy Lamar as the referee, the championship bouts between the Chief Executive and the succeeding Secretaries of the Commerce. In the light of past experience, when I refer to the Secretaries of the Department of Commerce I use the plural advisedly. I do not believe that I am unduly optomistic.

This extravaganza "a la Ziegfeld," more familiarly known as the Department of Commerce is the fifth wheel to the vehicle of state. It serves no useful purpose commensurate with its expenses and hence should be deleted, bag and baggage and sunk without a visible trace except a few tell-tale bubbles reminiscent of a great fight between the Chief Executive and his stablemate Dickie Brown. It was a great fight while it lasted.

But to become serious, and serious it is to the taxpayers who have been called upon to spend four hundred twelve thousand dollars in order to amuse the Chief Executive with his newest plaything, permit me to call your attention to a glaring defect. The Department was allegedly created for the purpose of stimulating and fostering harmony between the various industries, classes and sections of this state in order to attract an influx of industries seeking a Pennsylvania domicile. How then, by all the laws of logic, can this happy goal be attained when there is a complete absence of harmony between the Chief Executive and his Cabinet official? How can one seek harmony in discordant ranks when there is no harmony among the sponsors of the harmony movement? Corporations, methinks, will be fearful of moving into Pennsylvania for fear that internal combustions emanating from the office of the Chief Executive may be contagious and blow the corporations right out of Pennsylvania and back to the soil from whence they came. Furthermore, permit me to focus your attention on another incongruity of this Department. If the substitution of an advertising agency from one favored son to another has caused a major crisis in the Department of Commerce, then is it not behooving to conclude that the Department cannot have very important functions to perform for the people generally nor can it attain very beneficial results? What would the Department do if an important matter was actually encountered It defies ones power of imagination to appraise the efficacy of a Department which suffers an internal hemorrhage when an advertising agency is booted from a rich pork barrel. We in Pennsylvania don't want to be amused by the antics of a spoiled stepchild. Fun is fun and it has its place in our everyday life, but it has passed beyond the point of satiation when we must pay four hundred twelve thousand dollars to be entertained.

Mr. Chief Executive, we have had enough of your spoiled stepchild. We are going to relegate it to the refuse heap from whence this tinselled Cinderella sprang. A blooming morning glory that blooms no longer when fat contracts are bandied about.

Since the various Chambers of Commerce throughout the State perform the function of attracting industry to the respective communities and have done so efficiently and effectively, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve? Since statistics compiled by reliable sources clearly indicate that more industries were attracted to Pennsylvania than removed therefrom because of the emergency taxes, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve? Since we have machinery in the existing Departments that can coordinate the task of attracting industry to the state of Pennsylvania, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve? Since the Governor very lucidly stated that it certainly is a simple matter to obtain a successor to the retiring Secretary of Commerce, thereby inferring that the position is not a heavy one, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve? Since the Governor emphatically stated, directly or indirectly, that he is giving orders in the administration of the Department of Commerce and that he wants his orders in the administration of the Department of Commerce and that he wants his orders obeyed by his hirelings, even though they be ten thousand dollar ones, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve? And since Colonel Estes, the modern Joseph who sports a coat of many hues, Democratic, Republican and Carpet-Bagger, and a combination of all, jointly and severally, like a modern alladin, has had some control and still exercises such control in the dispensation of political favors in the awarding of advertising contracts, what useful purpose did the Department of Commerce serve?

To all these questions and many more of a similar nature my answer is simply this: the Department of Commerce was created for the sole purpose of ballyhooing the Presidential aspirations of the present Chief Executive. As it ignobly failed in this sub-rosa undertaking, it should take a leaf from those famous lines of Longfellow:

"And the night shall be filled with music
And the cares that infest the day
Shall fold their tents like the Arabs
And as silently steal away."

Mr. Speaker, I have spoken my piece and I, therefore, submit my bill to extirpate, exterminate, delete, destroy and to forever banish this misconceived, ill-gotten and utterly worthless Department of Commerce.

PERMISSION TO ADDRESS HOUSE

Mr. HARKINS asked and obtained unanimous consent to address the House.

Mr. Speaker, I arise to call the attention of the House to an instance which I think is an instance of a Department of this Commonwealth making rules and regulations which supersede and nullify the effect of the particular statue governing the operation of that Department. I refer to the action of the Department of Public Assistance as set forth in Memorandum No. 799 issued September 5, 1939, Memorandum 800 issued the same date, and Memorandum No. 30 issued January 31, 1941.

Section No. 4. which is the effective section of the Act which we passed in 1939, known as Act No. 168, approved June 9, 1939, intended to clarify for the recipients of relief the question of what real property and personal property would be liable for repayment of sums received from relief.

In that particular act the Legislature intended to prevent personal property, such as household furnishings, from being liable to repayment of sums granted by the Commonwealth to relief recipients, and the Legislature also intended that the persons on relief against whom agreements known as "reimbursement agreements," were obtained, containing a judgment clause in the amount of two thousand dollars, which were recorded or to be recorded, such persons should not lose their homes. As I said, the Legislature intended to remove the possibility that relief recipients would have their homes taken from them by foreclosure proceedings, but by their positive and clear statement the Legislature also intended that persons inheriting personal property while on relief should reimburse the Commonwealth for the amounts which they received.

I am informed that there has been no practical application of that particular principle. Now, it well may be that this Legislature does not correctly understand the particular social principle involved. The point that I wish to call to the attention of the group here is that so long as Act No. 168 of 1939 is the law, that particular philosophy should be enforced by the Department of Public Assistance which is entrusted with the carrying out of the administration of that particular law.

When we turn to Memorandum No. 30, which is the regulation promulgated on January 31, 1941, we see that instead of the entire amount which has been received by a relief recipient being sought to be collected by the Department from any real estate or personal property which he owned during the time that he received relief, only part is to be collected.

We know that this new regulation says in affect that that real estate will only be liable for such payments as were made during the time of ownership of that property, for that portion of relief that was received during the time his property was owned. Under the prior rules and regulations, and under the act as passed by this House, the policy of the House was to require the entire amount which has been received, and which under the law could be collected, to be collected by the Secretary of Public Assistance or his agents.

The important thing to me, Members of this House, is not how correct the social philosophy of the Department of Public Assistance is, but it is rather a flouting of the expressed will of the membership of the legislature by the rather arbritrary rules and regulations put forth by this Department. Certainly we cannot hope to have real enforcement of any law we pass so long as our Department heads continue to abrogate the mandatory provisions, the specific statements of law we pass, so long as they can do it without fear of being called to account by the House itself. I say we cannot hope to raise our standards of relief to those people who are on relief and who should be taken care of by the Commonwealth, if our Department of Public Assistance continues to enforce the acts that we pass, not in the spirit in which they are passed but in the way they interpret them, when interpreted according to the particular social philosophy of the person who writes each new rule and each new regulation.

It was my understanding of Act No. 168 that it was introduced at the request, or at least with the approval of the Department of Public Assistance, to rectify certain errors then present in the enforcement of the support law of 1937. I think it would behoove the Secretary of Public Assistance to have again presented to this Session of the Legislature a new act proposing to us that we change it, rather than to accomplish the same thing in an indirect way, which quite likely might have escaped the attention of the majority Members of the House. I think it would have been a grand thing for us to have had advantage of the views of the Secretary of Public Assistance so that we could have written the act anew and could have made the specific changes that were desired.

However, if this particular memorandum were not called to the attention of the House, we might as well have written a new law, because the effect would be the same. In order that we may know upon what basis, or authority the Secretary of Public Assistance has seen fit to issue a memoranda which thus negatived the written intent of the Legislature as expressed in a mandatory act, I wish Mr. Speaker, to introduce a resolution requesting and directing—

The SPEAKER. For the information of the gentleman, he has received unanimous consent to address the House, not to introduce a resolution.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I will desist before I introduce the resolution.

The SPEAKER. Will the gentleman file his resolution with the clerk.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, after I finish my speech I shall be glad to.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will proceed.

Mr. HARKINS. Mr. Speaker, I have not introduced the resolution and I shall ask to be recognized for that purpose before I do so. I shall not discuss the terms of the resolution in making the announcement.

I believe, Mr. Speaker, that the dignity of this body will be furthered by calling the Secretary of Public Assistance to account, if my interpretations of this memorandum is correct, for the authority which his department has assumed.

I intend to introduce a resolution asking that this House be furnished with data to justify such action on the part of the Secretary of Public Assistance, and to inquire of him what formal opinions of the Attorney General of this Commonwealth were given him to justify such a course of action.

Mr. Speaker, I asked to be recognized for the purpose of introducing a resolution.

The SPEAKER. Under the rules resolutions are filed with the Clerk. The resolution offered by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Harkins, will take that course.

RESOLUTION

SYMPATHY EXTENDED

Mr. GEORGE E. JONES offered the following resolution and asked and obtained unanimous consent for its immediate consideration.

The resolution was read, considered and adopted:

In the House of Representatives, March 11, 1941.

This House has been shocked by the sorrowful news of the death of one dear to a fellow-member.

Mary E. Stine, sister of the Honorable J. Howard French, died on Wednesday, March 5th, at her home in McVeytown.

She was the widow of Samuel R. Stine, former postmaster of McVeytown, and a resident therein for fifty years. She was born on October 20, 1865, and was active in the affairs of the Methodist Church, the Ladies Aid Society, superintendent of the home department, and the Ladies Fire Auxiliary. She is survived by seven children, twenty-three grandchildren, and four great-grandchildren, as well as the Honorable J. Howard French and a sister.

The tie that so closely binds a brother to his sister has been severed, and that wonderful and constant admiration that was such a help throughout life is forever gone; therefore be it

Resolved, By this House of Representatives of the General Assembly, That, realizing the great grief and deep sorrow that is his, we sincerely extend our deepest sympathy, and direct the Chief Clerk of this House to transmit a copy of this resolution to him, the said Honorable J. Howard French.

Vol. 25. HARRISBURG, PA., WEDNESDAY, MARCH 12, 1941. No. 21.

SENATE

WEDNESDAY, March 12, 1941

The Senate met at 11:00 o'clock, a. m.

The PRESIDENT (Lieutenant-Governor Samuel S. Lewis) in the Chair.

PRAYER

The Chaplain, Rev. BURLEIGH A. PETERS offered the following prayer:

With the dawn of each new day, Our Father God, new duties and grave responsibilities are born, the rightful discharge of which we can fully accomplish only with Thy gracious aid. Howsoever much we may think their discharge is through our own power and wisdom nevertheless even the by-products of religious endeavor, if no other, mightily enter into the entire procedure. For this accept our humble thanksgiving.

From time to time in this Senate chamber clear decisions and political expressions and legislative choices must be made. In these let wisdom be the dynamic and truth the spiritual yardstick by which they are made that withal they may be right and just and true. So much in our lives as well as in those of the people of this State may be vitally affected that we can not afford to do otherwise before Thee and our fellowmen.

Vouchsafe Thy life-giving, peace-bestowing Presence through the Holy Spirit unto us in this day of grace, for we may never have another. It is in Thee we live and move and have our being. Therefore, seal Thou unto Thyself the true motives of our hearts this day. We pray in the name of the Supreme Ruler of the universe. Amen.

QUESTION OF PERSONAL PRIVILEGE

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, I rise on a question of personal privilege.

The PRESIDENT. The gentleman from Philadelphia will state his question of personal privilege.

Mr. STIEFEL. Mr. President, this matter of personal privilege is in the nature of criticism of a report.

Gentlemen of the Senate I hope I am not going to bore you with discussion on the problem of taxation but I believe taxation today is one of the most paramount problems facing the Senate of Pennsylvania and the General Assembly.

Two weeks ago the Joint State Government Commission of the General Assembly submitted its First Reports on the Tax and Finance Problems of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

I desire at the very outset of my remarks to stress and underscore that it is not my intention to engage in carping criticism of this Report. On the contrary, I desire to compliment the Commission on the wealth of statistics that is incorporated in this Report. Graphically speaking, the Report is a vast brick-yard which contains ample building material for the tax-experts and political scientists to erect an edifice which will be of instructive value to the membership of the General Assembly.

Mr. Wasserman, the Director of the Commission, was indeed candid when, in his introductory remarks, he stated inter alia as follows: "The members of this commission are of the opinion that it should be one of the future tasks of the commission to factually strengthen the materials and to undertake intense and comprehensive studies of such consequential matters as school and subsidy procedures and investigate further the effects of different types of taxes upon business and the taxes which are now payable by different types of families resident in the Commonwealth. It is only after such intensive analytical studies have been made that the members of the General Assembly can be definitely assured that their legislative acts will produce the effects they contemplate."

This Report, like many of its predecessors, simply "brought coal to New Castle." It is a fine excursus into the realm of what Senator Cavalcante coined last week as "statisticology", but fails to present a much needed answer to the pressing and thorny problems of our State Taxation system.

In my opinion the title of the Report is a misnomer since it fails to present the tax and finanical problems of Pennsylvania at all. Reduced to its quintessence, our problem consists of ascertaining as to whether or not the present state tax system of Pennsylvania:

(a) Obtains the maximum revenues;

(b) With the minimum disturbance and cost to industry and the community, and

(c) With complete justice to the taxpayers.

Should these three acid tests of taxation show that Pennsylvania's Tax System is cumbersome and archaic, then immediate scientific tax-research and tax planning should further evolve a much needed and long-delayed sound tax system for Pennsylvania.

The First Report on the Tax and Financial Problems of Pennsylvania is bulky and contains 328 pages. Of these the first 122 pages represent the body of the report and the remainder three hundred appendices.

Appendix A—running from page 123 to page 255, deals with the Legislative History of our various taxes and contains also a memorandum on "Constitutional Limitations of the Taxing Power in Pennsylvania" by Sheldon C. Tanner.

Appendix B—deals with Estimations and devours another 38 pages and, finally, Appendix C contains a list of tables and some additional tables.

The Report under discussion is an expression of the interest of the Legislature in state and local government tax problems which contains much useful information in a statistical form concerning the fundamental economic and financial position of the Commonwealth. It will be especially valuable in providing background material for an understanding of Pennsylvania tax problems.

The Report does not attempt to furnish a critical evaluation of the taxes employed in Pennsylvania or of Taxes utilized by other states, such as the personal income tax, nor does it deal with the peculiar problems of particular taxes as revenues. The report does not show the advantages and disadvantages from the fiscal and economic standpoints of the capital stock, corporation income, and other taxes, nor does it indicate the probable incidence and economic effects of specific taxes.

Highly important questions, such as these, are left unanswered. What taxes should form the foundation of the Pennsylvania revenue system? What should be the relative revenue importance of each tax? What reforms are desirable in our present taxes? How can our taxes be made less burdensome to business and to consumers? What lessons may be learned from a study of the tax problem of other states and the federal government?

As the report explicitly declares, the need for further study of Pennsylvania tax problems is urgent. We reached the juncture when scientific reasearch in our tax problems is highly desirable and necessary. Readable monograph studies of the taxes paid by business and consumers should be very helpful in the appraisal of present revenues and in planning tax reforms which will assure adequate revenues with the minimum social cost.

Compliation is not research. Heretofore the General Assembly received statistical compilations—now we crave for scientific research that will once and for all enable the General Assembly of Pennsylvania to erect a new and sound edifice of taxation.

I hope a day will come when each phase of our state taxation will become a subject of a separate study in a form of a monograph prepared by outstanding scientists, in the field of public finance and taxation. Let us take for example the corporation taxes in Pennsylvania.

CORPORATION TAXES IN PENNSYLVANIA

Pennsylvania has developed corporation taxation to an unusual degree of importance in the state revenue system. This is well illustrated by the data recently released by the Bureau of the Census for the year 1939.

In that year Pennsylvania obtained $16,500,000 from the corporation income tax as compared with the total corporation income tax receipts among the forty-eight states of $113,000,000.

In the same year the various taxes imposed upon the capital stock of corporations provided to the state government of Pennsylvania $39,000,000 or far more than the capital stock taxes of any other state.

The leading position of Pennsylvania among the states in the use of corporation taxes and the long history of corporation taxation in the Commonwealth indicate the importance of these taxes as revenues as well as their importance to business and to the community.

Despite the great importance of corporation taxation in Pennsylvania there is a lack of reliable information concerning the operation and the fiscal and economic effects of the taxes employed.

In a period in our history when the revenue and social problems of governmental spending and taxation are daily becoming more urgent, it would be especially appropriate to inaugurate a program of research as a source of information for the Legislature and the public at large in the planning of the tax program.

As I have already stated, tax planning, which necessitates tax research, is essential in the development of a tax system which will accomplish the following objectives:

A. Obtain the maximum revenues, with
B. The minimum disturbance and cost to industry and the community, and
C. With more complete justice to the taxpayers.

A SUGGESTED OUTLINE OF RESEARCH IN CORPORATION TAXATION

A study of the corporation income and capital stock taxes would provide answers to such important questions as the following:

1. How have these taxes arisen and what have been their outstanding developments?
2. What place do these taxes have in the revenue system of Pennsylvania, of other states, and of the federal government?
3. What are the principles of corporation and business taxation? What is the applicability of these principles in Pennsylvania?

4. How are the capital stock and income of corporations engaged in interstate commerce allocated for taxation by Pennsylvania and other states?
5. What problems arise in the taxation of foreign corporations chartered in other states?
6. What are the revenue potentialities of the corporation taxes? How are the revenues affected by the bases of taxation, the tax rates, evasion, etc.?
7. What are the methods of administration? What are the costs of administration to the state and costs of compliance to the taxpayers?
8. What are the legal and constitutional problems of these taxes?
9. What are the economic effects and problems of the corporation taxes? What is the incidence of the taxes? Are the tax burdens distributed equally or unequally upon business? What are the effects of the taxes upon enterprise and investments? Of what importance are the taxes as factors in business?
10. What is the future outlook for these taxes? What improvements may be recommended?

Mr. PRESIDENT, it is important to have the problem of taxation studied on a scientific basis. There is an ancient Arabic proverb as follows:

"He who knows not and knows not that he knows not is a fool—shun him.

"He who knows not and knows that he knows not is ignorant—teach him.

"He who knows but knows not that he knows is asleep—wake him.

"He who knows and knows that he knows is wise—follow him."

I believe that I, personally, speaking in my own behalf, belong to the second class. I do not know but I know that I do not know and I want someone to teach me, show me what should be done to evaluate a new system of taxation in Pennsylvania and for that purpose I believe these discussions should be followed by scientific research and scientific planning.

And said bill having been read at length the third time,

And the amendments made thereto having been printed as required by the Constitution,

On the question,

Will the Senate agree to the bill?

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I am going to vote for this bill but I call attention to the fact that I think there is a defect in this bill in that the title does not disclose the fact that there is a charge to be made of two dollars and a half for registration of these birth certificates. I think that ought to be made a matter of record so that we know what we are doing.

Mr. GELTZ. Mr. President, we appreciate the suggestion and criticism of our colleague from Philadelphia but we are not certain ourselves whether that is necessary in the title or not. We want, if possible, to pass a bill at this time and if necessary the bill can be corrected or amended over in the House.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I am very frank to say I am going to vote against this bill. This bill since it was introduced by the gentleman from Warren, Dr. Chapman, has been mutilated, disgraced and outraged until now it does nothing more or less than to place in statute form the very practices that have been heretofore pursued by the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

As originally introduced by the gentleman from Warren this bill set up a few rules that were a mandate to those who in this body helped to make the law. Up to this very moment the Bureau of Vital Statistics has established a course of red tape through which citizens must travel in order to effect the registration of their birth. We tried very emphatically to impress upon those who have been playing with this bill the fact that the persons whose births were unregistered in this state and who were born in the state should not be charged with any fault because their births were not registered. I think that on the day they were born and for quite a few weeks or months thereafter they did not possess the capacity to see that their births were registered, but here we find these hundreds, probably thousands of citizens born in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania who through no fault of theirs find that their births were not registered.

When they attempted to have their births registered in the Bureau of Vital Statistics they were immediately confronted with a mountain of bureaucracy and red tape, some of that red tape and bureaucracy unsurmountable; they could not get through that and are unregistered to this day.

Mr. President, I studied this bill very carefully with the gentleman from Warren, Dr. Chapman, and I thought we had done a pretty good job in establishing rules for the correction of the injustices done to those hundreds and thousands of persons whose births are unregistered. We had provided compulsory rules where the Bureau of Vital Statistics had to accept what the Legislature here would say was sufficient evidence to warrant the registration of a birth. Lo, and behold, before this bill finally reaches the Senate floor we find in Section 2, sub-paragraph 3, lines 23 and 24, this amendment placed: "And accompanied by a record or records satisfactory to the bureau", God in heaven alone knows what that bureau is going to require.

Again on page 3 of the bill, lines 5 and 6, they have inserted this: "and accompanied by other record or records satisfactory to ehe bureau." On page 4 lines 7 and 8 they have inserted this: "such other information as may be required by the bureau."

Why, Mr. President, that is wnat we are doing today. That is how we are trying to get births registered, by evidence required by the Bureau of Vital Statistics, and this bill does nothing else but tell us that we must continue to fight and get into disagreement with the Bureau of Vital Statistics upon what records and documents are sufficient to register the birth of a citizen of this Commonwealth.

There is one very particular case that I wish to call to the attention of the President of this Senate. We have an act of assembly that was enacted back in seventeen hundred and I think it was ninety-six, and that is still the law of this Commonwealth, which says that a baptismal record kept by a proper ecclesiastical body shall be prima facie evidence of what it contains. When we present a baptismal certificate to the Department of Vital Statistics, properly certified by a proper ecclesiastical body of this Commonwealth, the Bureau of Vital Statistics has consistently refused to accept that baptismal certificate.

Mr. President, I am glad that at least in this bill they have taken cognizance of that situation and say that a copy of—I thought it was in here; maybe they have even struck that out. Well, glory be, I cannot find it—well, it is not there—page 2 sub-section 3 reads that if a person presents a statement written in the English language, signed and sworn to by such person, accompanied by the baptismal record kept by a bona fide and eccleastical body and certified by a priest, minister or other officer of said body but if it is impossible to obtain such records" and so forth. That is what the bureau is requiring now, Mr. President, despite the fact that the act of Assembly I have referred to say a baptismal certificate is prima facie evidence of what it contains, yet this act is going to require a citizen in addition to presenting his baptismal certificate to also prepare and deliver a sworn statement conformable to whatever rule the Bureau of Vital Statistics may promulgate in the matter.

I say we hoped that a bill involving this subject would be drawn up in such a way that it would take away some discretion from those powers here at the state capital and that we would put in the bill what we, the makers of the law, say is sufficient upon which a registration may be had. But this bill, I repeat again, because I do not think I can emphasize the point too much, merely throws the thing back into the lap of the Bureau of Vital Statistics. The only way you can get a birth registered is if you follow the rules set up in the discretion of the Bureau of Vital Statistics.

Mr. President, I intend to vote against this bill in its present form.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, when this bill first came out of committee I objected to it on the ground I did not feel it would do what I thought it ought to do and, in talking it over with a good many Senators, what they thought it ought to do. We are back practically in the same position as Hitler. Hitler has been threatening to invade England for a long time and we have been threatening to pass a good birth certificate bill and we have both missed the bus.

Recently I went over to the department and was discussing with one of the girls—one of the many girls—the question of issuing a certificate based upon a certificate sent out by the department itself at the time of the registration of the birth. On the reverse side of this particular certificate that is sent out by the department it states that this certificate can be used for employment purposes and for purposes of identification. So I said to the girl, "Why can't this party use this particular certificate you sent out when the doctor registered the birth, as a birth certificate in order to obtain a position in the defense industry or wherever they may be needed." She said, "That is not a birth certificate, that is only a notice sent to the baby's mother telling her the baby is born." That is absolutely true, Mr. President. In most cases the mothers know it.

I have here a notice given to me, rather, shown to me about a week ago, of a girl in Detroit that is out of work and who has prospects of getting a job in the defense industry and since the middle of 1940 she has been trying to get a birth certificate out of the department. Some of her letters have been answered and some of her letters have not been answered. In desperation this girl wrote to one of the local newspapers in Harrisburg, the Harrisburg Patriot, and asked the paper if it would see if it could do something to help her get a certificate so that she could go to work.

On the certificates they sometimes make mistakes in spelling. They mispelled a certain name three different times on the same certificate, and I called attention of this Senate to that certificate, so in desperation the young man, who was awaiting a job at the Westinghouse Manufacturing Company, at home, took and corrected the mispelled name so it would be correct, and now the poor devil has been notified he could be arrested and sued for five hundred dollars.

Mr. President, let us cut out this ridiculous position in the matter of birth certificates. We are all born or we would not be here. You stand up in front of one of those clerks over there and they look right at you and say "It ain't you." I will tell you the biggest trouble. In discussing the problem with one of the doctors on the Senate floor he agreed with me, that doctors in making these certificates in many instances were very careless in the spelling of names. Twenty-five or thirty years ago the doctors only received—well, my Dad said he only paid the doctor three dollars and a half for me and sometimes he doubts whether it was worth it. For three dollars and half a doctor was not going to take much time in spelling names.

The biggest trouble in the department today, the greatest difficulty, is the fact that the doctors in making their registration reports have misspelled names. They put a "c" where a "k" should have been or they put an "e" where an "a" ought to have been or they put an "sky" where it should have been "ski", or something like that, and so the poor devils were born and cannot prove it, are now being kept out of jobs because they cannot prove where they were born and why.

I say this bill is absolutely worthless; you might as well leave the situation just as it is. Sometimes I am glad we have an intelligent House majority over there because I am sure they will correct the bill and make it worth while.

You will never get anywhere at the present time unless you do something for the sons and daughters of emigrant fathers and mothers whose names have been misspelled, either on the part of a doctor or through carelessness or perhaps through ignorance; and you have got to take care of those persons because they are decent and American citizens and it is not their fault their names are misspelled.

I know that personally because when my father tells me my name should be spelled "D-e-n-t-e" and Wendell Wilke's name should be spelled "W-i-l-l-k-i-e" or something like that we cannot help it, because some Irish foreman on a railroad job would not take the time to spell our names right and we have to go through life with names we have picked up as we go along. Nevertheless this is me and that is Barney McGinnis and when you go over there they will not believe it.

Mr. President, I want a bill that says any person with a proper certificate or proof, if a midwife for instance, or the mother of a child says "that is my child" shouldn't that be sufficient to prove that is her child?

You know, Mr. President, the trouble is everybody's afraid a lot of fifth columnists are running around with bombs in their pockets to blow up things, and you are going to get someone in the defense industry who is not the person he represents himself to be. I do not care how stringent you make a law, when a person has in mind any such subversive activities he will find a way to accomplish his purpose and his aim and all we are doing with a bill like this is kidding ourselves and costing the taxpayers a lot of money for printing the bill, because it does not help the condition one iota. As much as I want a new vital statistics law, and as much as I want to help these people who are in trouble today, I intend to vote "No" on this bill in protest against the fact the bill does not do what it ought to do.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I think we should understand first of all this bill is a bill to register births, and not a bill to change people's names. If some of these names have been misspelled or earlier birth certificates have been registered containing erroneous names, there is now a method of procedure whereby they can go in and correct that and get the name changed to whatever it ought to be, but certainly the Bureau of Vital Statistics should not be a name changing body; so that would eliminate the argument of the gentleman from Westmoreland.

The second thing I would like to point out to the members of this Senate is that the purpose of this bill is to permit the Bureau of Vital Statistics to register people who were born before 1906, which right they now do not have, and those are the people who wish to get in the defense industry.

Of course we were all born. A lot of people who were born would like to have been born in Pennsylvania. This bill makes them prove that they were born in Pennsylvania before we give them the privilege of citizenship and put the stamp of state approval on them.

Mr. President, there is no unfairness in this, in asking that those sworn statements be accompanied by some sort of a record satisfactory to the bureau. If you did not require such a record a man could come in and swear he was born in Pennsylvania and have two of his friends swear to the same thing and he could get a birth certificate and become a citizen of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania without any more trouble than that. It would be easy to get somebody to swear he had been born in Pennsylvania, especially a couple of Nazi sympathizers who for subversive purposes wanted him to become a citizen of Pennsylvania.

It is our duty in this Senate to protect the citizens of Pennsylvania from conditions such as that, and that is the reason for some sort of a record, whatever it may be, and they are too numerous to mention, which have been required in Section 2, sub-sections 4 and 5. Those additional records might be a school record, a census record, a family Bible or any such thing as that, but there should be some such record as that to corroborate the sworn statements, which anybody can go out and get.

Now then, Mr. President, if a man wants to register his birth and he can not get those sworn statements this act further provides, and in all fairness, the right of appeal to the Orphans' Court and the Bureau must either refuse to give him a certificate or give it to him within thirty days after the appeal. That thirty days is necessary so as to give him time to get the records together when he is applying and has found out what they want him to produce. It certainly is not too short a time, or too long either.

Now then, Mr. President, if he can not get those records, then the bureau has a right to refuse and must refuse within thirty days, at which time he can go into the Orphans' Court in his own county and apply for citizenship papers there, get an order on the bureau to issue to him a birth certificate and the Orphans' Court is required to hear the case de novo on any evidence he may present within sixty days. If that does not protect his rights I do not see how you can do it, but we can not open the doors to anybody who comes in to prove he is a citizen of Pennsylvania because a few people want it. Our national safety is more important than the temporary inconvenience of a few persons, and that is what we have to protect.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I desire to interrogate the gentleman from Warren.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Warren permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. CHAPMAN. Yes, Mr. President.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I would inquire of the gentleman from Warren what was the reason for increasing the fee from one dollar to two dollars and a half.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, that was put in to cover the cost, because of the extra work which would be imposed on the Health Department. That has been estimated as the lowest possible cost to issue these certificates under these circumstances. The cost of the other certificate, for those born since 1906, will be one dollar, as it is at the present time.

Mr. REED. That cost would not include the expense of an appeal to the Orphan's Court, would it, Mr. President?

Mr. CHAPMAN. No, Mr. President, it would not.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, a few years ago the fee for obtaining a birth certificate, I believe, was fifty cents, It was later increased to one dollar. Now the trouble today, Mr. President, as I see it, is the difficulty in getting a birth certificate. I have been over to the Department quite a few times in the last few weeks at the request of some of my people back home, and I find the bureau flooded with people seeking birth certificates.

As I understand the situation, a bill was introduced to make the obtaining of birth certificates easier, more convenient. Now, it seems to me from what I have learned here today, and what the good doctor from Warren has stated, that under this amended bill, it is going to become more difficult. The gentleman from Warren states that the fee was raised because of the additional work involved. As I see it, the bill as amended is too stringent, and for that reason I propose to vote against it.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, this discussion has had a peculiar affect on me. I have been thinking that sometimes a vote is changed or about to be changed on a bill.

I listened to the gentleman from Fayette, Mr. Cavalcante, discuss this bill and I thought there was a great deal of merit in what he said until two thoughts struck me. One of them was discussed by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, and I need not go into it further, and that is the matter with what we are doing now, namely, we are allowing a certain group of people who claim to be citizens by registering their births. That is more than a matter of convenience, it is a matter of seeing people registered, it is the setting up of the machinery by which certain persons who otherwise cannot be registered as having been born here, may be so registered, but in doing that I think we have an important thing to remember, and that is that we have citizenship involved.

The second answer to the objection raised, and I am heartily in favor of what the gentleman says, is to reluctantly give the departments the right to decide what is satisfactory proof to the department. I have had plenty of experience, I might say, plenty of evidence, of it; I do not have any experience, because I very seldom appear before these departments, for which I am thankful.

There is an appeal here to the Orphans Court which did not exist before, and that appeal in my opinion, safeguards any body who is entitled to registration and does not get it. If the requirements are harsh and unreasonable, I am satisfied to trust the Orhan's Court of any county on a question of this kind, and I think the only way you can put a safeguard around it is, as this bill has now been drawn.

With regards to the costs, I can readily understand why these costs would amount to two dollars and a half. The registration of an ordinary birth in Philadelphia is a matter of machinery, machines that do almost the work of human beings, and fifty cents is ample, but under this procedure, a new department, a new bureau will have to be set up, what we might call a department under which different kinds of records will be kept, and those are individual records which can not be treated en masse, and it is easy to see that it might cost two dollars and a half. It must be remembered that two dollars and fifty cents charge only applies to new ones, to that particular type of persons who are asking to be registered, and as I can read it, it also includes the one dollar fee which is ordinarily charged for a certified copy of a birth certificate.

Certainly the cost of court procedure could not be included in that two dollars and a half, and I am afraid if the Commonwealth loses, the Commonwealth will bear the cost and not the gentleman who takes the appeal. If he loses he should bear the cost. The important thing to remember, in my opinion, is that we are not only dealing with birth registrations, we are dealing with citizenship, and I want to say in pasing that most of the objection to this bill arises from the fact the departments are not doing their duty, and I do not know of any law you could pass that would instil intelligence, decency, honesty of activity in any employe of a department. This department, like most departments in Pennsylvania today, does not have sufficient help. The cry for economy has gotten to the point where we are getting economy but we are not getting good government. We are paying a lot of money even with the economy but we do not get anything for our money. You can very well ask, what price economy.

You can go over to this Department or any other department and find as the gentleman from Westmoreland has pointed out, mistakes, lack of action, delays, all due to the fact that the people over there either do not know their job or they do not have enough people over there to do the job. In any event you can not correct that by legislation.

Mr. President, this bill ought to pass if, as I understand it, it involves the right of a number of people who are entitled to get a job, to be able to get that job and prove their citizenship. As I gathered the argument from the very beginning it was not a question of a birth certificate, as has been stated by the gentleman from Westmoreland, it was a question of people going to national defense industries trying to get jobs and being refused jobs on the ground they were not citizens, and then they could not prove their citizenship because they did not have a birth certicate. It seems to me, considering all that has been said about this bill, giving due weight to the very able arguments of my friends from Fayette and Philadelphia, this bill answers those arguments and if those arguments are answered by the bill in its present form, I am going to vote for it.

Mr. CHAPMAN. Mr. President, we have spent a great deal of time upon this bill; it was referred to committee for study. This bill will be a bill that will conform with the Federal Bureau of Vital Statistics, and that is quite a thing for us, to get that sort of a bill, that says this and that and so forth. Before, when they endeavored to obtain jobs in national defense they could not secure birth certicates or recognition, but under this bill that conforms to the Federal statute.

The gentleman was talking about two things, about the present bill, and about other certificates that have been issued to 1906, and the cost. For those certificates issued since 1906, there is no additional cost. This applies only to certicates coming under this bill prior to 1906, and I call on my colleagues in this body to support this bill.

Mr. KEPHART. Mr. President, I would like to say one further word on this bill. This problem of birth certificates has only arisen within about the last year, when there has been an increase in defense industry. The requirements are that employes prove their citizenship in the United States and in the State of Pennsylvania.

Now then, if our laws are relaxed so as to issue birth certificates to persons on their own sworn statements, these defense industries will not accept those birth certificates, and we are not doing the thing that we set out to obtain in any event. Therefore, for that reason it is necessary to have a law that will be acceptable to the Federal government, and I think this one is.

In addition to that, Mr. President, the gentleman from Philadelphia has cast reflection on the administration officials' failure to issue these certicates and I would like in defense of them to point out that several employes have been taken on in the Bureau of Vital Statistics since this demand increased, but it takes a little time to train these people and to handle this flood of applications that have come in during the past year, and it can not be done over night.

Mr. CAVALCANTE. Mr. President, I trust that we can consider this bill with an open mind, and honestly try to evade some of the hysteria that is gripping our nation today.

I, like the rest of the members of this body, have listened very carefully to the arguments advanced by the two gentlemen from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart and Mr. Shapiro. Both of them are attorneys; I am an attorney, but I am not ready to bolster legal business for myself at the expense of hundreds and thousands of unfortunate citizens of this Commonwealth. The gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart seems to be disturbed about Nazism, and he might add to that Fascism and Communism. We who were born prior to 1906 know there was no such thing as Nazism or Fascism or Communism at that time. Why, I recall in my youth there had been created in my mind a deathly fear of what they call Socialists, and then again, during the war hysteria of 1917, there was the horror created in our minds about I.W.W. But I think we should not be taken away by any hysteria in considering this bill and make the mistake of believing those who were born prior to 1906 did not know anything about Nazism, Fascism or Communism. Those things are of modern creation, things that have developed since 1906.

It is my opinion this bill was introduced in order to lend a hand to hundreds and thousands who were born, who can prove they were born, and through no fault of their own, their births were not properly registered.

Now gentlemen, just pause for a moment and consider whether you in your fair minds and honest consciences feel you ought to penalize someone born prior to 1906 for the failure or neglect of a midwife or a doctor or a hospital to register their births.

Now, I do not want to outdo any members of this body in concern over our national defense. I am vitally concerned, for if we take heed to the old adage that blood is thicker than water, I have quite a number of brothers who are of conscription age and who will carry guns in defense of this country if and when in danger. I have probably sixteen first cousins that are of military age, who will also carry a gun in defense of this country if and when needed. Although I am a little too old, I think that I still have enough life in me that I too would like to take up a gun again even now to defend this nation if need be. I can not see, Mr. President, that anybody who was born prior to 1906 should be the type of individual that could endanger our national defense today. If we are to look for danger, danger such as was listed by both of the gentlemen from Philadelphia, these people pursuing this avenue of birth registration as a means of becoming citizens, that danger comes from those who were born after 1906 and during the period in which Nazism, Fascism and Communism were being born and taught in this world.

For instance, I am not afraid of the gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, if he should find that by some fault of the doctor or midwife or somebody, his birth was not registered. I am not afraid of him being a danger to America, if I say, "all right, it was no fault of yours," I will swear, I will make an affidavit that I have known you for fifty years and that you have been a good law-abiding citizen, and if you say and and your brothers says that you were born, I am willing to take your word that you are born. There is no danger to the country to help people register their births who were born prior to 1906.

Mr. President, I would like to answer the point raised by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart, that this registration law is not a law by which a man should effect a change in his name. Members of this Senate, remember this, that the gentleman from Philadelphia's name is Kephart, and it has been used for generations and generations, and if some midwife or some doctor that did not know how to spell his name wrote his name "Kepharski" or something else, and Mr. Kephart did not find out that his birth was so registered until now at the present time, why should we penalize Mr. Kephart, if we can show and if he can show that for generations his name has been Kephart and it was no fault of his when he was born that the doctor or the midwife made that mistake. Why shouldn't Mr. Kephart be permitted to open the affidavit of his mother or his father to correct that birth certificate and show that his name is Kephart, and not Kephartski or something else.

Now, as to this appeal to the courts, Mr. President, as I stated, I am an attorney but I am not willing by any legislation here to promote business for lawyers; I am not concerned in that at this time in opposition to this bill; I am interested in those hundreds and thousands who were born and who are trying to prove they were born, and born in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Mark you, Mr. President, what will happen under this provision of the bill, granting an appeal. There is not an attorney in this body who has had legal work in workmen's compensation cases who does not know that the attorneys, that the bureaus, the departments, refuse to do things on the theory that they are not certain about the law, or that they do not want to take the responsibility of deciding what the fact might be, or they take an appeal on general principles in order to make the court, to pass the buck as we say, to the court to determine the question in issue, and then they know they are protected, as they say, when the court itself has passed upon it and decided the fact.

Members of Senate, I make the prophecy that if you pass this bill there will be less and less births registered in the Bureau of Vital Statistics, on the theory it is better to let the court pass on it and then they know they have made no mistakes in the registration of the birth. When this happens I would like to see a holding up of hands of attorneys in this Senate and the House of Representatives who will say that they will take one of these appeals as a charitable case, or whether under their fee bill they will charge the poor devil twenty-five dollars for preparing the petition and presenting it to the court, and then probably an extra twenty-five dollars to sit in court and have a hearing, and take the testimony of witnesses.

You just pause a moment, you who are attorneys, and see if I am not telling at least some degree of truth when I tell you that bureaus of this government, bureaus to which apply sections similar to this one, that gives an individual the right of appeal from the action of the bureau, just pause for a moment and see how many cases you know where the bureau has taken an appeal merely to pass the buck and not assume the responsibility of deciding the question involved. The Calendars of the Orphan's Court of Pennsylvania are still cluttered with hundreds and thousands of similar cases, they are cluttered enough without these cases.

I also would like to answer this point made by the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Kephart. He complains that it is an easy proposition for a man who wants to have a birth registered fraudently by merely going out and getting two citizens to make an affidavit under oath, and then bring it here and have the birth registered. Why, Mr. President, how can you elicit the truth from any mortal being. We have forgery, we have fraud, we have perjury, we have everything going on now, desipite the fact that the law imposes very severe penalities for telling falsehoods, for committing perjury and crimes of that kind. The most that a human body like this can do is to encourage the telling of the truth, encourage the making of truthful affidavits and statements, by imposing a penalty upon those who would falsify statements, who would make false affidavits, and what more can a mortal body like this do to encourage the substaining of the truth. If this bill provides a penalty for the man who would make a false affidavit, or a false statement, what more can be asked, and how will the bill in its present condition encourage the telling of the truth more than the state in which the bill was before these amendments?

Now, in answer to the gentleman from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, he is very much concerned with the people who in truth have been born here in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, and who are entitled to have their births registered, and who should not be penalized because of any fault of their own, but yet he is willing to subscribe and vote for a bill which does not facilitate, which does not give any aid or remedy to that unfortunate person, but makes it more difficult, which exposes him to the possibility of spending fifty or sixty dollars for an appeal to the Orphan's Court in order to prove what you and I might very readily see to be the truth that he was born. My heavens, nobody needs to tell me what I do not know, practically all of my brothers that were born after me were not born, or that I do not know they were born. I have lived with them, I have carried them in my arms, why should I be submitted to a test by the Orphan's Court, my affidavit upon my oath, backed up by a penalty if false, why should my affidavit or the affidavit of any citizen of this Commonwealth be denied in a matter of this kind?

Now, gentlemen, it is true that our experience in a body of this kind has shown that our arguments do not change votes when our mind is made up and is following a particular course, but I tell you very frankly and sincerely, if you are honest and sincere in wanting to help this situation, if you want to correct the wrong to those hundreds and thousands whose births were not registered through no fault of their own, you are not helping them by voting for this bill; you are making it more drastic, you are making it impossible in many cases for the individual to have his birth registered.

Mr. WALKER. Mr. President, I have listened with a great deal of interest to the discussion on this bill and I assure my colleague from Fayette that if during my lifetime the roll is called on this bill I intend to vote for it.

Mr. President, I am not perturbed by the suggestion of the gentleman from Fayette that there was a mysterious, shadowy connivance or unholy alliance among members of the legal profession being in league to drum up a little surplus business on the side by voting for this bill; neither am I alarmed by suggestions that members of the medical profession are unable to spell correctly or write legibly.

I am against the evils of bureaucracy. I do not approve of it as it exists here in Harrisburg nor do I approve of it as it exists in our capital at Washington but in my humble way I am attempting to do something to correct it here in Harrisburg.

As has been very carefully suggested by the distinguished representatives of this body from Philadelphia, Mr. Shapiro, and Mr. Kephart, this is not a question of facilitating registration to prove that somebody was born, but it is the question they must prove they were born in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. There is a very stringent requirement when an alien desires to become a citizen of the United States; there is no short cut to that, and I think we would be derelict in our duty if we gave an alien an opportunity to take a short cut.

The evils in this bill as originally introduced can not be corrected by a demonstration such as we just had on the floor of this Senate when, as I understood the remarks of the gentleman from Fayette, Senator Cavalcante, he said he was not afraid of the distinguished gentleman from Montgomery, Mr. Edmonds, and that if Mr. Edmonds' family said he was born here that he, the gentleman from Fayette, would be willing to make affidavit he had known the gentleman from Montgomery for fifty years and he would make an affidavit the gentleman from Montgomery was born in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, that is just the danger of having enthusiastic affidavits taken by people who do not know the facts. The first thing you know we would throw the gate wide open and throw the cloak of citizenship around people who were not entitled to it.

Let us keep in mind that in 1939 there was no sudden outburst of demand for birth certificates over there in the Bureau of Vital Statistics and therefore there was not this hue and cry as to having a cleaning up or remodeling of the legislation involved, but under our federal national defense procedure it suddenly became necessary that many citizens who were seeking employment prove that they were born in the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and that they were automatically citizens of this great Commonwealth and the United States of America.

As a result of that, Mr. President, thousands upon thousands of applications were poured into the Bureau of Vital Statistics, which was equipped to handle a normal demand and not an abnormal demand, and as a result the machinery did slow down. However, Mr. President, there have been as I understand it approximately seventy new employes put in there to try to take care of this rush and they are being trained and they are trying to take care of the work but I want to say in all fairness to those people who are working over there morning, noon and night—the forty hour plan does not involve them because they are trying to render a service, about which complaint has been made so frequently.

We have recently had a run of people applying for registration. It is not the fault of the Bureau of Vital Statistics that registration of those born prior to 1906 was not required in the Commonwealth and I appreciate the fact that in a great many instances those of us who were born prior to that effective date may have difficulty in producing birth records or statistical data to show we were born in Pennsylvania.

Mr. President, I would like to make it clear and I want to say first of all there is no attempt to make you prove you were born; the question is the situs of the birth, that is the thing you must prove.

We should not embarrass our federal government, when all political leaders from all political factions are pleading for national unity and elimination of partisanship, we should not embarrass our government by permitting aliens to take a short cut to citizenship.

Here in this department, Mr. President, a few years from now, I would venture to say in 1942, the Department of Vital Statistics once more will be back to normal but here we are asking them to assume the registration of thousands of citizens who were born in this country prior to 1906, and the machinery is tremendous. As the gentleman from Philadelphia says, the charge of two dollars and a half is not exorbitant. I have sympathy for the person who can not produce documentary evidence to prove he was born in Pennsylvania prior to 1906 and would have to seek recourse in the Orphans' Court but I say that the law, ever since the time of Justinian the Great, by its universality has worked hardship in individual cases.

Mr. President, I refuse to accept the gentleman from Fayette as the sole keeper of righteousness and neither will I permit any other Senator to say he has a monopoly on righteousness or justice or equity and I think the members of the legal profession should ignore the suggestion that we are an avaricion group who stand back of this law to drum up business.

I think this law will protect the citizenship of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. I think the committee has done everything it could do, everything in its power to expedite and facilitate and streamline the procedure without endangering the right that a person as an individual acquires when he is born in this country. That is a sacred right and we should protect it.

I think the committee has done an excellent job and I think this bill is as carefully drawn and as adequate as we can make it at this time. The mistakes in procedure will appear in any procedural act or any machinery act after it has been in operation will appear during the course of procedure of this bill but I want to assure the gentleman from Fayette that the bureaucracy that he and I both refuse to tolerate is something we will have to put up with temporarily in order to protect our rights of citizenship.

Mr. REED. Mr. President, I want to rise in defense of the employes of the Department of Vital Statistics. In all of my experience with the departments here I have never found employes that have been more faithful, more courteous and more willing to help than the employes from the Department of Vital Statistics.

Mr. President, that is not where the trouble lies. The trouble lies in the complicated and difficult machinery of procedure. I believe and a repeat that this bill will make the machinery more complicated, make the procedure more difficult and that is exactly what we must stay away from. We want reasonable rules but we do not want burdensome rules.

I have listened very attentively to the discussion here today and a great part of that discussion has been aimed at aliens. This bill does not alone concern aliens; this bill concerns everybody. I have had in the last two or three weeks letters from some of the best farmers in my county, asking and inquiring why it was so difficult to get birth certificates for their children, and I have not got them yet. I had a letter from one of the best church fathers in this state four or five weeks ago. I took that case up immediately and I have gotten no results as yet.

Mr. President, I am not blaming the employes in the department; I am blaming the cumbersome procedure over there. I tell you, Mr. President and members of this Senate, if you make the rules and regulations so stringent that the people cannot comply with them, then you are doing more to break down Democracy than you would by passing this bill in its present form, making the rules and regulations more stringent, and giving this department more and more power and more authority, the very thing which the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, has been condemning on the floor of this Senate for sometime.

Mr. President, I think this bill ought either be voted down or be put back in committee, in order that it might be prepared along a middle ground so that the rules and regulations will be reasonably strict but not be burdensome, not be overly burdensome as they are in this bill in its present form.

Mr. McGINNIS. Mr. President, I think the question here is; does this bill improve the old conditions or not. As I see it, I do not think it does. I think this bill is just as cumbersome to handle as the other bill. I think we ought to decide this question, what is going to do the most good for our own people.

I know people born in this country who are vicious citizens, and I know people born in foreign countries that are our best citizens and I do not think it so very important just where a man is born, but the important thing is how has he lived since he was born, and I do not think a birth certificate makes much difference when a man goes to get employment. Today I am sure every industry in this state not only looks at that birth certificate but looks more at his life since and they go into that very carefully.

Now, if we have a system and it is provided under this bill to make it impossible or well nigh impossible for thousands and thousands of our citizens here, that we all know are loyal and faithful citizens, if we do not provide some way for these people, and they are the great majority, I say there are only a few, only a few in this State that are trying to slip in and get a false birth certificate; if they are that bad, they are doing other things worse.

Mr. President, you know in these days there is a great danger of hysteria. I happened to have served during the other war; I was assistant United States Attorney at Pittsburgh and had charge of alien enemies, and I want to say to those of you who went through that period I hope we will not go through another, with the false patriotism, the hysteria that seizes people when we are in war or near war. Let me give you an example. Out at the Pennsylvania College for Women, back in the old war, there was an old German there who took care of the lawns, flowers and shrubbery, and that lawn of the Pennsylvania College for Women was beautiful for a great many years. Lo and behold, that poor old gentleman was arrested by a United States Marshal one day and brought to my office and every Pittsburgh paper, on the front page, set forth in type two inches long, "a spy found in the Pennsylvania College for Women; he has an instrument that will burn the building down across the street; he has a gun that will shoot without making any noise." The New York World sent down a correspondent; the New York papers ran the same story, and do you know what it was this poor old fellow, when they searched his trunk, they found he had a sling-shot he could shoot without making any noise; he had a magnifying glass so that he could read, and that was the truth. Now, many things like that happened, and I hope that hysteria will not sieze this body.

Mr. President, I feel that the easier we can make it for our thousands of honest citizens who were born here, to get their certificates and get to work, when jobs are waiting for them, that is a great deal more important than perhaps letting some crook slip through. If he does slip through, I do not think he can do much harm, because if he is that deproved he will go further, so it is not so important just about a birth certificate.

I think, Mr. President, we should make this thing as reasonable as we can; cut out this red tape. It is not important to prove other things in this country. I think any person in any community can get a couple of affidavits from decent honest men and women who will come in and say this man lived here forty years, was born here. We take it in other things. Why cannot we take such evidence when it comes to birth certificates back before 1906? I think we are making a mountain out of a molehill, and I do not think this bill does what you intend it to do. I think we ought to send this bill back to committee and provide some reasonable, sensible way so that our thousands upon thousands of people in this state who have jobs waiting for them cannot get those jobs simply because we are afraid that some poor foreigner, half-baked foreigner might get a couple of affidavits and slip in. I think if he did slip in a man of that type would be caught otherwise.

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, before I asked for a matter of information, I just want to make this observation: This bill is based on the assumption that all people are dishonest and have to prove that they are honest. The thing I have been talking about and asking the co-operation of this Senate was covered very ably by the gentleman from Allegheny, that is, to make it easier for a person to establish the fact that he is whom he represents himself to be, that he may get his certificate and get into a job. What you men perhaps do not realize is this, maybe this will make you realize it. I would be willing to wager as much as my financial status would allow me to wager that not more than ten percent of all the persons in this room, taking all ages into consideration in total, ten per cent could not get their birth certificates within thirty days from now, and I think everybody in here is an American. I just want to make that statement to prove to you just how bad the situation really is.

Now, what I am interested in finding out, those who were born after 1906, and I just want to bring this out—for my information, Mr. President, I would like the reporter to read the opening remarks made by the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, where he referred to the statements made about doctors not being able to read or write. I want to hear that.

(The Senate was at ease for a short time.)

Mr. DENT. Mr. President, I had understood the gentleman from Allegheny to say one thing and that is why I wanted it read to me from the record, because a certain doctor on this floor had discussed this matter with me and I did not want any reflections cast on him, but the gentleman from Allegheny, Mr. Walker, has explained it to me and we understand each other.

Mr. President, I do want to say before I close that this bill does not do what I personally want it to do and therefore I shall vote against it.

Also, Mr. President, I just want to say that today out at the Robertshaw plant in Westmoreland County the requirements are not only the presentation of birth certificates but also the matter of taking photos of their employes and fingerprints, and so, Mr. President, we are in this country getting like a group of girls in a boarding school when somebody hollers "Fire". Everything that comes up now is referred to as a matter of national defense. I have a bill which concerns national defense because of certain contingencies in there, which might crop up. I will tell about that when the bill comes out. The gentleman spoke about war hysteria. This is not a defense bill. This bill started out to be a bill that would enable citizens of this country, citizens of Pennsylvania, if you please, and residents here, to get birth certificates in order that they could get jobs. You can not out-legislate crooks, thieves, and embezzlers; if you could we would not have them.

Mr. President, I agree with the gentleman from Fayette, this is going to cost an exorbitant amount of money to the individual who is obliged to go to the Orphan's Court. I am a layman, and I have had to pay some lawyers, and I think the gentleman from Fayette made a very good point on that, because I did not see any hands raised in the Senate when the gentleman from Fayette asked the attorneys whether they would take the cases for charity and you certainly would not be able to go before the Orphan's Court for much less than twenty-five dollars, and with the charges already specified in the bill you are making it exhorbitant to get a birth certicate. My goodness, if a person wants to work you should not prevent him and, you know, according to the rules, the Reds, Nazis, Facists, Communists, do not want to work and that is why they are Reds, Nazis, Facists, and Communists.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, it is not my intention to prolong this discussion any further, but I have listened with a great deal of interest to the oratory of those of the legal profession, and have arrived at the conclusion there is great deal of logic in what has been said. It was my intention to speak as a layman, but I must now make apologies to the gentleman from Westmoreland, who has also spoken on that subject.

Mr. President, I had the privilege of serving on the subcommittee in preparing these amendments, and I will say the same committee spent considerable time in their preparation. They brought before them heads of the Department of Vital Statistics, as well as the Director, and those people in my opinion ought to be in a position to at least know the requirements necessary.

In studying this bill I am of the opinion that as these stipulations here set forth, which make possible the issuing of a certified birth record, combined with a final appeal to the Orphan's Court, if any particular case is rejected by that court, there is something mysteriously wrong in the case of the applicant and I am willing to rest my case on this bill and intend to vote for it.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, as pointed out by my colleague from Allegheny yesterday, I am not a lawyer and I probably should not debate this bill, but I am a layman and a member of this body.

When I first came down to this body, I had a great deal of respect for the Senate of Pennsylvania, because I was always told that they were a law making body and I was anxious to become a member of this body, but I find since I have been here that we are not a law making body. We ought to convene one day and pass a resolution stating that the various departments will have the power to make their own rules and leave.

That is what this bill contains and that is why I have been prompted to introduce eighteen or nineteen measures trying to take away from these departments that right and I think we have sufficient intelligence here to make our own rules. I think that is our duty, and I further think that in this bill this body should stipulate the provisions, how it is possible to obtain a birth certificate, and if the applicant cannot meet those requirements, then it is too bad for the applicant, but we say "if satisfactory to the department."

Therefore, Mr. President, I would like to interrogate the Senator from Luzerne, Mr. Miller.

The PRESIDENT. Will the gentleman from Luzerne permit himself to be interrogated?

Mr. MILLER. I will, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, will the gentleman from Luzerne tell me whether or not the department dictated the amendments that now appear in this bill.

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I am of the opinion the gentleman from Cambria misunderstood my remarks. I do not believe I said the department dictated the amendments set forth in this bill.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, did the gentleman from Luzerne consult with the department as to the amendments?

Mr. MILLER. I beg your pardon.

Mr. HALUSKA. I said, Mr. President, did the gentleman consult with the department as to the amendments?

Mr. MILLER. Mr. President, I said as a member of the sub-committee that the department heads and the director himself appeared before that committee.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, did they recommend any of the amendments?

Mr. MILLER. I do not know as they did, Mr. President.

Mr. HALUSKA. Mr. President, were they orignated with the Committee?

Mr. MILLER. I would say, yes.

And the question recurring,

Will the Senate agree to the bill on third reading

It was agreed to.

Mr. SHAPIRO. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that Senate Bill No. 50, on second reading, entitled:

An Act providing that the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania and its political subdivisions employ only citizens of the United States.

The PRESIDENT. Is there objection? The Chair hears none.
